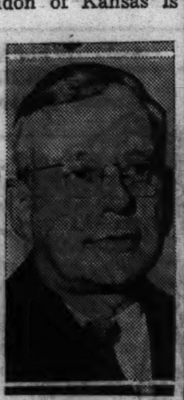
Victory Claims Close Stirring Primary Fights

LANDON TREND RECORDS GAINS; WATCH ILLINOIS

Vandenberg Held to Have Chance.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.] — Gov. Landon of Kansas is looming larger and larger as the probable Republican nominee for President.



GOV. LANDON.

On the eve of the Illinois primary Tuesday the outcome of which will have an important bearing on the nomination, something very like a stampede to Landon appears to be developing.

It now looks as if Landon will go into the Cleveland convention with more than 300, possibly as many as 400, delegates on the first ballot. In that event his nomination on the second ballot with the necessary 501 votes or more may be reasonably expected.

Climb on Bandwagon.

The rumble of the Landon bandwagon and the squeals of pleasurable anticipation with which the Republican leaders, big and little, are leaping therefor are to be heard on every side. They are clambering aboard because it's their guess Landon is a winner and each in his community wants to be recorded in the patronage book as an "original Landon man" when the pie is cut and passed around.

The Landon candidacy is now figuring in every primary contest whether or not the Kansas governor is formally entered as a contender. The Illinois primary, for example, is a fight between Senator William E. Borah and Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher. But everybody knows that a vote for Knox is potentially a vote for Landon and that a vote for Borah is a vote against Landon. Borah is vigorously opposed to the nomination of Landon and may "take a walk" if Landon should be nominated. On the other hand, Knox is on the friendliest terms with the governor and the Knox delegates from Illinois and other states may be expected to flock to Landon on the second ballot.

Wisconsin Aids Borah.

By winning all but three of the Wisconsin delegates last Tuesday Senator Borah goes into the heat of the fight with increased prestige. At least the damage his cause suffered by his overwhelming defeat in the New York primary has been repaired. At the same time it remains true that neither Wisconsin nor New York furnished a true test of Borah strength. It was to be expected that he would win hands down in Wisconsin, in which the dominant La Follette following is of his persuasion on public questions. Nor was it surprising that he was snowed under in New York, where rule the Republican bosses he is attempting to dethrone.

Illinois will furnish the first real test of Borah and anti-Borah strength. If the Idaho senator should make a poor showing in Illinois his cause would be most seriously damaged. The senator is a native of Illinois, is supposed to have a large following therein, and for the last week has been stumping the state, appealing for votes.

Defeat Would Hurt.

If under such circumstances he should be overwhelmingly defeated the event would augur ill for his success in the Ohio primary May 12, defeat in which would just about finish the Borah boom.

A Knox victory would tend to revive interest in the candidacy of the publisher, though in reality it would be but an added fillip to the Landon movement, so generally is it recognized that all anti-Borah votes, in Illinois at least, will be potential Landon votes.

A Borah victory conversely would tend to push Mr. Knox farther out of the picture and in effect serve notice on Landon that he is not going

BITTER BATTLE OF DEMOCRATS MAKES HISTORY

Nation Will Watch Illinois Voting.

Polls open in Chicago next Tuesday for the primary election at 6 a. m. and close at 5 p. m.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Republican and Democratic candidates, leaders and organizations in one of the most exciting primary campaigns that Illinois has ever passed through wound up their oratory, their propaganda, and their machinery polishing yesterday in final preparation for the voting on Tuesday.

The state—and the entire nation—has been given something different from precedent in the last two months. For a change, the Republican contest over nominations was calm, undisturbed by the mudslinging and scandals of former years. In striking contrast to past campaigns, the Democratic forces in the state have been split wide open with a terrific battle against the regular organization. Charges and countercharges have been a daily diet.

In Presidential Primary.

Also for the first time in years Illinois has taken some interest in the expression of presidential preferences. President Roosevelt placed himself on the ballot as the lone Democratic entry. On the Republican side, Senator William E. Borah and Frank Knox have sought the Illinois indorsement.

But this national matter has been overshadowed in both parties by battles over state, and in some instances, county nominations. That is true to a large extent also in reference to the nominations for United States senator and for twenty-five seats in congress.

This is due largely to the extreme, unprecedented bitterness of the Democratic state fight which has had the big headlines for the last month. So strenuous has this fight been that nonfactional Republican leaders like State Chairman John H. Searing have issued appeals for the G. O. P. to keep out of the neighbors' scrap.

Fight Lures Republicans.

There is a widespread belief that throughout the state, but particularly in Cook county, Republicans will be drawn in the supposedly private affairs of the enemy they must face in November. Straw votes have shown that prospect. The result is that ordinary methods of forecasting have been thrown to the winds.

Managers, both Democratic and Republican, followed the old custom of issuing predictions showing that everything was all right for their side, but less heed was given to these utterances in a situation tangled by sentiment for and against the New Deal made worse by appeals to prejudice.

As an example of the uncertainty, the prognosticators were all at sea in attempting to guess what the total vote of each party will be. The total Democratic vote on governor in the 1932 primary was 816,773. The total Republican vote on the same office at the same time was 1,315,245.

Democrats Lead in Total Vote.

The total state Democratic vote on state treasurer—the head of the ticket—in 1934 was 824,966. The corresponding Republican vote was 785,640. This was the first time in many years that the G. O. P. had fallen behind in this sort of comparison.

The Republican leaders now contend that many of their old followers have come back home on the New Deal issue, but it is admitted that the use of federal jobs and relief funds in recent months has made many new Democrats and that other Republicans have been aroused by the appeals to racial, sectional, and other prejudices.

As illustrating the conflicting nature of the forecasts, it was noted that Mayor Kelly in an interview predicted that Cook county will give Herman N. Bundesen, the regular candidate for governor, a lead of 350,-

A young man and a girl were drowned and another young couple injured late last night when the automobile in which they were riding backed into Lake Michigan at the foot of Randolph street, just south of the Naval Reserve armory. All four were residents of Gary.

Those drowned were Dennis Fisher, 20 years old, 4074 Polk street, a second year law student at Indiana university, and Miss Lillian Mark, 21 years old, 3654 Madison street, a secretary employed by the Gary Bolt & Screw company. Miss Mark is the daughter of Frank L. Mark, a retail hardware dealer.

N. U. Sophomore Rescued.

They were pulled from the top of the submerged automobile by George Karl and J. Bennis, members of the crew of the yacht Kenkora, owned by Kenneth G. Smith, president of the Pepsodent company, which was tied up nearby. Karl, who was standing watch on the yacht, heard the cries of the youths as the automobile slipped into the lake, apparently as Fisher, the driver, was trying to turn the car around.

Klominski, who had managed to open the door on his side of the car, helped Miss Mark to get out, but by this time she was unconscious. Miss Craig crawled out of a window and was clinging to the top of the car when rescued. Fisher was trapped behind the driver's wheel and was unconscious when taken out.

Inhalator Works in Vain.

Karl and Bennis were assisted in the rescue work by Joseph Miller and Scott Dillon, both of 1829 Foster avenue, who went to the scene in their small cabin cruiser which had been moored at the foot of Monroe street.

All the victims were taken to St. Luke's hospital, where inhalator squad No. 1 of the fire department worked over Fisher and Miss Mark in a vain effort to revive them. Dr. M. C. Lindman of the hospital staf said Miss Craig and Klominski would recover, although both suffered seriously from shock and exposure.

Dr. J. A. Craig, a Gary surgeon, said his daughter, escorted by Fisher, left home with the other couple yesterday afternoon, intending to have dinner in Chicago and then attend a theater. Fisher and Klominski had returned from the university on Friday for the Easter vacation.

Clear, sunny skies are promised for Chicago's Easter parade today. While Forecaster C. A. Donnel said the weather will be cool, he could find no indication yesterday of showers, such as sometimes drive wearers of new spring finery to cover.

He estimated the mercury would climb no higher than the low forties, but said there would be "plenty of sun, no rain, and lake winds."

Fair weather yesterday brought throngs of Easter shoppers into the loop, and while some were caught in a sudden rain squall late in the afternoon, there was no letup in buying activities.

The State Street council reported an almost unprecedented amount of gift buying, virtually denuding the stock of flower, perfume, and candy departments, and an increase of general Easter shopping of from 30 to 50 per cent over 1935.

All gift buying concentrated on the flower motif, merchants said. Hats were topheavy with violets and freesia. Perfumes abandoned exotic scents for delicate floral ones. Gloves were in brilliant flower colors—purple, coral, rose, yellow, and green.

Sidney Summerfield, chief clerk in the marriage license bureau, reported that 224 couples obtained licenses yesterday, more than double the average daily number.

The sunshine, so great a boon to shoppers and merchants, brought equal delight to the Chicago park districts, which sponsored three large Easter egg hunts during the afternoon. One, at Cornell square, had 5,000 hidden chocolate eggs. Another, at Sherman park, had 3,000 eggs, and at Garfield there was an egg rolling contest.

Richard Yates Dies Suddenly in Springfield

Springfield, Ill., April 11.—[Special.]—Richard Yates, who was governor of Illinois from 1901 to 1905, and congressman at large from 1919 to 1933, died tonight in the Leland hotel here, where he had made his home for years. Mr. Yates was 75 years old.

Mrs. Helen Wadsworth Yates, to whom the ex-governor was married in 1888, was with him when he died. Also at the bedside were his daughters, Mrs. John L. Pickering of Detroit and Mrs. John W. Henderson of Glasgow, Scotland, and his son-in-law, Mr. Pickering.

Mr. Yates had been seriously ill for months, but his condition had shown a turn for the better yesterday and his death was unexpected.

Works on Newspaper.

After leaving college Mr. Yates engaged in newspaper work and was a reporter and city editor on the Jacksonville Courier. Later he entered politics in Jacksonville, his native city. He served as city attorney from 1885 to 1891, and was Morgan county judge from 1894 to 1897. He was appointed collector of internal revenue in the Springfield district in 1897 by President McKinley and served until 1900. The next year he was elected governor following a turbulent deadlocked convention at Peoria.

There were four candidates at the convention—Hanecy, Reeves, Carter, and Yates. On the first ballot Hanecy had 573 votes, Reeves and Carter more than 300 each, and Yates polled 272. On the third ballot some of Hanecy's votes switched to Yates and he was third with 345.

Lorimer Leads Stampede.

On the fourth ballot the roll call had proceeded half way through Cook county when Henry Hertz attempted to throw the Chicago votes from Carter to Reeves. It was then that William E. Lorimer launched a stampede for Yates. Lorimer and his friends rushed to the platform waving flags and shouting for Yates. A picture of Yates was brought in followed by a band. Hanecy mounted the platform and withdrew in favor of Yates and he was nominated.

Mr. Yates served four years as governor, but was defeated for renomi-

Meager Clews Point to Youth in N.Y. Slaying

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—An autopsy performed today on the body of Mrs. Lewis H. Titterton, wife of a National Broadcasting official found slain in her Beekman place apartment yesterday afternoon, revealed that she had died of "manual strangulation" after being raped.

Indications were that the woman had fought desperately with her assailant in the final minutes of her life.

The autopsy was performed by Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, acting medical examiner, who announced his findings verbally, pending a more formal report to be filed later.

Maid Tells of Cry for Help.

The possibility that Mrs. Titterton, who was a writer, called for help when she was attacked and that the calls were heard, although their significance was not realized, developed today from the questioning of Oneda Smithmead, a colored maid employed by the Countess Alice Hoyos, who occupies the duplex apartment two floors below that of the Tittertons.

The maid said that at 12:30 p. m. yesterday she was leaning from a kitchen window of the Hoyos apartment, and that she heard a woman call, "Dudley! Dudley! Dudley!" as if she were summoning aid. The colored janitor of the apartment house is named Dudley Mings.

Neighbor Sees Man on Roof.

An hour later W. A. Dewitt, a magazine writer, was in his apartment on the seventh floor of 30 Beekman place. The window at which he was writing overlooked the rear of No. 22. He saw a colored man in blue overalls on the roof of No. 24, but was unable to identify him. Nos. 20 to 28, inclusive, are of the same height.

Mings said that at about 1 o'clock he was adjusting a trapdoor of No. 24, but was not on the roof of 22.

From the countess and from Miss Phyllis Stafford, who share the apartment, police obtained information that may offer a clew to the murderer. The countess and Miss Stafford told of two visits to the apartment house by a mysterious young man.

Twice Awakened by Intruder.

At 1 a. m. on Tuesday, April 2, Miss Stafford said she was awakened by the doorbell. She answered, and a man she described as young, tall, slender, sandy-haired and well dressed, asked for "Mr. Holaman." He apologized and departed when he was told no such person lived in the apartment.

At 3 a. m. the following Friday, the countess was awakened by a knock on the door. She opened it to find a man answering the description of the one who had disturbed Miss Stafford. This time he asked for "Miss Phyllis Caxton." The countess told him he had made a mistake and closed the door.

The countess and Miss Stafford thought nothing of the intruder until Mrs. Titterton's murder recalled it to them.

It was learned today that at 11:30 a. m. yesterday, a time at which, ac-

20 PASSENGERS HURT BY CRASH IN TAKING OFF

Survivors Rescued by Harbor Craft.

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, April 11.—(AP)—Three persons were killed today when the big flying boat Porto Rican Clipper grazed a launch in the harbor and "ground looped" on the surface of the water.

The force of the ship's collision with the sea broke open the forward compartment of the flying boat and a swirl of water drowned two passengers and the ship's steward.

Of the other 16 passengers aboard five suffered superficial injuries, while the others escaped apparently unhurt. None of the other six members of the crew was injured.

Names of Victims.

Those drowned were:

E. Roman Martinez of New York.

Eric R. Brough of London, Eng.

Amadeo Lopez, the steward, of Miami.

José Iturbi, the famous Spanish pianist, a passenger on the liner on his way to South America, notified his New York office that he and Miss Jean Dalrymple, his secretary, were "all right."

The clipper had reached a speed of about 50 miles an hour on its "take-off course" across the harbor at the time of the collision. It is lifted off the surface after it has attained a speed of 70 miles an hour.

Pontoon Strikes Boat.

A small surface boat appeared in the runway. One of the pontoons on the wings of the flying boat hit the launch.

The 19 ton clipper swung around, out of control on the surface of the harbor. The nose of the cabin, big enough to carry 35 passengers and mail, was cracked.

Officials of Pan-American Airways issued the following statement:

"The clipper was taking off before dawn on the course of its regular run to Buenos Aires. Before leaving the water Pilot C. D. Culbertson sighted a small boat already in the path of the plane. The pilot states he changed the course of the plane, but was unable to avoid a collision.

22 Are Rescued.

"The collision damaged the plane to an undetermined extent, but sufficiently to cause partial submergence of the cabin. Of a total of 25 persons aboard, the Pan-American Airways stand-by launch, which was in the vicinity succeeded in taking off 22 persons. Two passengers and one steward were drowned."

The launch suffered little damage and did not capsize.

The bodies of the drowned men were found inside the plane, where they had been trapped. The two dead passengers still had their safety straps around their waists.

Local fishermen suggested tonight that a minor tidal wave might have been a contributory cause to the accident. A slight earthquake was felt in Trinidad at about the time of the Clipper's attempted takeoff.

Pianist Last to Leave.

Iturbi was the last of the passengers to leave the craft alive. He said he pushed his secretary, Miss Dalrymple, out through a port hole and followed her just as water flooded into the cabin.

The famous musician described the scene as "a mad scramble." He declared the man ahead of him stepped on his head and injured his eye.

"I may not be able to conduct again," said Iturbi, "and I shall not be able to play for some time."

The musician expressed belief that "the accident could not have happened if it had been light."

Iturbi said he particularly regretted the death of Brough, an examiner attached to the Royal Academy of Music, who was touring the British West Indies conducting musical examinations.

Delays His Departure.

Brough had contemplated leaving Port of Spain for Demerara Thursday, but had remained to spend Good Friday in Trinidad.

Within a few minutes after the accident the clipper was surrounded by motor boats and salvage crews who had dashed out from shore.

Capt. Wallace Culbertson, war-time pilot who had more than 8,500 flying hours to his credit without mishap, commanded the Porto Rican clipper. With him in the all-Miami crew were:

19 Ton Queen of Skies.

Miami, Fla., April 11.—(AP)—The 19 ton queen of the southern skyways, the Porto Rican Clipper, which collided with a launch while it was taking off from the harbor of Port of Spain, Trinidad, today, left here Thursday on the regular passenger, mail and express flight of six days down South America's east coast to Buenos Aires.

Among the rescued, some of whom Pan-American officials here said suffered apparently not serious cuts and bruises in the hasty exit from the crippled airliner, were:

José Iturbi and his secretary, Miss Jean Dalrymple; Iturbi was en route to fill 14 concert engagements in South America.

Mrs. Maxwell Rice, the former Claiborne Foster, Broadway actress, now the wife of Pan-American's regional director of Rio de Janeiro.

Milwaukee Man on Liner.

Edmund P. Hayward of Milwaukee, Wis., where he is connected with the Bacyrus company, a manufacturing firm.

Arthur W. Carr of Toronto, Ont.

Gaston Monnerville of Paris, France.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Otten of Richmond Hill, Long Island, N. Y.

E. M. Flynn of Toronto, Ont.

John Garces of Medellin, Colombia.

Harry Benson of Port-of-Spain.

Wilfred Tansley, Toronto, Can.

Wetha Kirplain of Port-of-Spain.

Big Plane Cost $250,000.

The four motored Sikorsky cost $250,000 to build two years ago. Its wings measure 114 feet and the metal hull is 68 feet from nose to rudder. The plane flies at a cruising speed of 160 miles an hour while the landing and take-off speed is about 65 miles an hour.

Until the advent of the ton heavier China Clipper craft the Porto Rican Clipper type ships were the largest airliners in the world. They were built to carry 35 passengers and 2,000 pounds of mail, baggage and express.

Ship Out of Miami.

The ill fated ship left Miami Thursday morning on the south bound run to Buenos Aires. Stops had been made at Port-au-Prince, Haiti; Santo Domingo, and San Juan, Puerto Rico. From Trinidad the planes wing 1,400 miles to the mouth of the Amazon river.

E. A. Beardon, airport manager for Pan-American at Port of Spain, said this was the first accident causing injury to any passenger in seven years of flying boat operation by his company. During that time more than 300,000 passengers have been carried 100 million passenger miles, he said.

AUTO STALLS ON TRACKS; THREE OF FAMILY KILLED

Vincennes, Ind., April 11.—(AP)—An Easter shopping trip ended in tragedy tonight with sudden death to three members of the Humbaugh family. A fourth was not expected to live through the night. The Humbaughs were returning from a shopping trip when their automobile stalled on a crossing in the path of a Chicago and Eastern Illinois passenger train. The train swept the Humbaugh machine 30 feet.

Robert, 9, and Richard, 4, sons of Paul Humbaugh, the driver, who died later in a hospital, were killed instantly. Marjorie, 12, a daughter, was so critically injured she was not expected to recover. Mrs. Humbaugh escaped serious injury.

PORTLAND, ORE., PAYS A BOUNTY ON BAD DRIVERS

Portland, Ore., April 11.—(AP)—There is a $100 bounty on reckless drivers here. This city, coöperating with a local accident prevention organization, enacted a bounty ordinance recently as part of a trafic control program. That new ordinance provides a $100 reward for any citizen who gives information leading to the arrest and conviction of a reckless driver. The reward has been paid twice.

An intoxicated motorist cannot buy gasoline, due to an agreement among gasoline companies and service station operators.

There is a "night school" for trafic violators. There, under the city's direction, they are schooled in safe driving. Three thousand drivers have graduated. Trafic courses have been established in the city's high schools.

Tortured Oil Station Agent Surrenders $250 to Thieves

Seymour, Ind., April 11.—[Special.]—John A. Shields, manager of the Stoll Oil company bulk plant here, was robbed of $250 today by two men who blindfolded him and applied hot stove lids to his feet, then burned paper under his feet to make him tell the combination of a safe. They then bumped his head and face against his desk. Finally, he told. The bandits fled with the money. Shields was found by his son, Robert.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL KILLED IN CRASH AT RAIL CROSSING

Mother Critically Hurt as Car Hits Train.

Miss Lucille McDonough, 17 years old, was killed and her mother, Mrs. Edith McDonough, 37 years old, of Long Lake, was critically injured yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into the side of a southbound passenger train of the Milwaukee road at Wilson, two miles west of Waukegan.

Miss McDonough was an honor student and cheer leader of the Grant Township High school at Fox Lake. She and her mother had driven into Waukegan to get proofs of pictures of the girl, taken for the high school annual, and were on their way home when the accident happened. It is believed that the late afternoon sunshine so interfered with the vision of Mrs. McDonough, who was driving, that she was unable to see the train as it neared the road crossing.

Mrs. McDonough was taken to the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan, where physicians said there was no hope for her recovery.

Killed by Automobile.

George W. Miller, 73 years old, 513 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, was killed yesterday when he was struck at Madison street and Cuyler avenue in Oak Park by an automobile driven by Allen Lankford, 16 years old, 126 Lathrop avenue, Oak Park. Witnesses said that Miller walked into the side of the car. The police held young Lankford.

Mrs. Fern Crossman, 36 years old, 505 165th street, Hammond, was killed yesterday when her husband, Charles, drove his car off the road at East 96th street and Ewing avenue and crashed into a steel light standard.

Charles Chester, 49 years old, and his wife, Margaret, 47 years old, of 601 Rhode Island avenue, Gary, who were passengers in Crossman's car, were seriously injured. Crossman, who escaped uninjured, said he was blinded by the lights of an approaching automobile.

Woman's Legs Crushed.

Mrs. Grace Lundstrom, 49 years old, 855 Lakeside place, was crossing the intersection of Leland avenue and Sheridan road last night when the driver of a north bound automobile lost control as he was about to turn into an alley. The machine skidded across the street and pinned Mrs. Lundstrom against the side of a building, crushing both of her legs.

Physicians at the Lakeview hospital, where she was taken, said it would be necessary to amputate both legs. Willard Phillips, 43 years old, of Chattanooga, Tenn., driver of the car, is a one-legged war veteran. He is staying with friends at 4730 Winthrop avenue.

The coroner's office reported 209 persons killed in trafic accidents in the city from Jan. 1 to 4 p. m. yesterday, and 225 killed in Cook county. In the same period, 4,025 persons were injured in the city.

WAVES PISTOL TO PAY FOR $27 AUTO REPAIRS

A stranger drove into the repair shop of John Soroki, 2518 West Lake street, Friday, and left his automobile with instructions to "spare no expense" in overhauling the motor and replacing any worn parts. He promised to return for the car yesterday afternoon. The stranger did return on schedule, bringing two other men with him. At their request to "see how it works" Soroki started out to drive them around the block. A short distance away, one of the strangers drew a revolver, ordered Soroki out of the automobile, and told him to frame his $27 repair bill.

Transport Plane Overturns After Skidding on Field

Newark, N. J., April 11.—(AP)—A triple motored American Airlines transport plane overturned today at Newark airport on its return from a test flight. The pilot, Ray Wansey, and the mechanic, Clarence Harmon, climbed out unhurt. They said the upset was caused when one of the wheels skidded in a deep puddle of water on the field.

JUSTICE HUGHES HAS BIRTHDAY; WORKS AS USUAL

Reaches 74, Enjoys Duties on Supreme Bench.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the Supreme Court of the United States was 74 years old today. That vigorous and alert presiding officer of the most powerful court in the world took no holiday. He carried on his working routine, attending the usual Saturday afternoon conference of the court to decide on cases already heard and to plan hearings of those on the docket.

Mr. Hughes, court records reveal, has written and delivered more opinions this term than any of his colleagues.

In attending every session of the court Mr. Hughes has heard 118 cases. On all but two of these he was with the majority, dissenting in only two. He has written 27 opinions.

His favorite form of exercise is walking. In fair weather he can be seen stepping out briskly in the neighborhood of his home, usually alone, but now and then with an old friend.

Justice Hughes twice has sat on the Supreme bench. In 1910 he resigned the governorship of New York to take an associate justiceship. That he resigned in 1916 to run for the presidency on the Republican ticket against Woodrow Wilson, who was elected. Mr. Hughes was returned to the bench as chief justice in 1930 by President Hoover.

Born in 1862.

Mr. Hughes was born at Glens Falls, N. Y., April 11, 1862. In the pursuit of a legal career he became governor of New York, secretary of state, chairman of the Washington arms conference and member of the world court as well as a two time member of the high court and a presidential candidate. He is eligible now to retire from the court at full pay. There is little likelihood of his doing so, however.

BROOKS, HADLEY AND GLENN WIND UP CAMPAIGNS

"Big Three" of G. O. P. Ticket Confident.

	FOR GOVERNOR (Rep.)
X	C. Wayland Brooks

Wayland Brooks, candidate for governor, Otis F. Glenn, candidate for United States senator, and Charles W. Hadley, candidate for attorney general—the big three of the Republican primary slate—completed their campaigns last night, all expressing confidence in victory.

A victory dinner was given to Mr. and Mrs. Brooks in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel by the Young Business Men's Government association. More than 1,200 attended and applauded the oratory of the young candidate for governor.

"I have traveled 10,000 miles throughout the state in this campaign" said Mr. Brooks in his speech, "and I know Illinois voters share with you the determination to return the government of this state and this nation to the economic standards that have made us the freest and happiest nation on earth.

State's Problem Economic.

"The problems of this state are purely economic. The equal distribution of opportunities and benefits for all is the problem we face, and there is no other."

He finished with a rapid discussion of his hopes and his plans and gave thanks to those who had aided him in his campaign.

	For U. S. SENATOR (Rep.)
X	Otis F. Glenn

Former Senator Glenn spoke on the radio early in the evening, attended a dinner given by the Egyptian Club of Chicago, hurried to a few meetings and gave the tidings that all is well. He said he has a few chores to do today and will leave tomorrow for his home at Murphysboro, where he will cast his vote Tuesday.

Mr. Glenn reviewed the issues he has discussed during the present campaign, and the part he played in the affairs of the nation during his four years in the United States senate. The waterways of the nation became an issue in the last few days, he said, telling how he had always been an advocate of the waterway connecting the Great Lakes and the Mississippi river. Up to this time, he added, its use has been disappointing.

Tells of Modest Campaign.

At the present time, due to economic conditions, said Mr. Glenn, he does not believe additional taxes should be imposed upon the people to enlarge, add to, widen and deepen the present waterway facilities of the United States.

Discussing his campaign he said he had not conducted a lavish one with big expenditures, believing that, even though it had been possible to do so, that such a course would have been improper and inadvisable and against the public interest. Mr. Glenn declared his campaign has been clean, adding: "I feel the facts fully justify me in believing that I shall be nominated by a very substantial majority on next Tuesday."

	For ATTORNEY GENERAL (Rep.)
X	Charles W. Hadley

Mr. Hadley during the day was in telephonic communication with his downstate leaders, who assured him that he was "out in front" in every county. The Brooks-Glenn leaders in Cook county told him he was the winner, he declared. Hadley issued a final statement and so did his campaign committee, then he went home to Wheaton where he plans to spend a quiet Easter, returning to Chicago tomorrow to arrange a few final details.

Mr. Hadley, a former state's attorney of Du Page county, former assistant attorney general and former chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, said he felt proud that in the quest for votes he had said nothing unkind against his opponents and they had spoken of him only with respect.

URGES UNIFIED CONTROL OF ALL NATION'S POWER

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—Creation of a single federal commission with jurisdiction over all energy resources of the nation was advocated to a senate agriculture subcommittee today by George F. Klein, Kansas City coal man, in opposing sections of the Norris Mississippi Valley Authority bill.

He said there is "something wrong" with national policy because some energy producing groups are being sacrificed for others. He attacked power development provisions in the bill on the ground it would hurt the coal business.

"You are standing in the road of human progress," Senator George W. Norris, [Rep., Neb.], the author, commented.

Klein said he had no opposition to flood control, irrigation, and navigation sections in the measure.

A power development program, he contended, would dislocate farm communities as now established.

"Is it the purpose of the bill to cause an economic upheaval in the Mississippi valley?" he inquired.

Norris cited instances wherein the coal business had increased in communities where public power programs had been undertaken.

His bill would create an authority for the Mississippi drainage system similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Municipal Court

Twelve associate justices of the Municipal court are to be nominated. The recommendations of THE TRIBUNE include the nine candidates indorsed in the primary of the Chicago Bar association, and add the names of Judge John H. Lyle and William H. Haynes, a total of eleven.

Here is a facsimile of a part of the Republican ballot to be used in the primary in Cook county on Tuesday. The crosses indicate the recommendations of THE TRIBUNE to Republican voters.

Because it will carry only district offices such as congressman, state senator, and state representative, for which there are different candidates in each district, the second column of the ballot is omitted. From the lower right hand corner the office of ward committeeman is omitted.

In the first column appear the offices voted upon throughout the state. The names here are in alphabetical order as they will appear on Republican ballots in the First senatorial district. Under the primary law these names are rotated in series for the other senatorial districts.

6 GUNMEN STEAL 15,000 43D WARD CAMPAIGN BOOKS

Six gunmen last night invaded the Adria Printing company plant, 1838 North Halsted street, threatened the compositors and carried off 15,000 election campaign pamphlets printed for Anthony P. Collins, 329 Starr street, candidate for Democratic committeeman of the 43d ward. The pamphlets attacked the record of Ald. Mathias [Paddy] Bauler, who is the Kelly-Nash organization candidate for committeeman against Collins, a member of Gov. Horner's organization.

While the raid was in progress Collins was at the Hudson avenue police station asking that a squad be sent to the printing plant to convoy the load of pamphlets to his headquarters at 643 West North avenue. Informed of the raid, four policemen went to the printing plant and stood guard while 25,000 more of the same pamphlets were run off the press. These were taken to Collins' headquarters and a policeman was stationed there to guard them through the night.

J. D. Roan, 22, Will Head Pike County, Ga., Schools

Meansville, Ga., April 11.—(AP)—J. D. Roan, 22, takes rank with the youngest executive educators of the nation through his election as superintendent of Pike county schools. The voters selected him last Wednesday.

Democratic Municipal Court Recommendations

To Democratic voters THE TRIBUNE recommends for Municipal court judges those candidates endorsed by the Chicago Bar association. Although 12 men must be chosen as judges in the November election, members of the associatio . in the bar primary last March 31, gave endorsements to only 7 of the 16 Democratic candidates. Herewith are the names of those recommended, the asterisks indicating sitting judges in the group:

*EDWARD S. SCHEFFLER.
*WILLIAM BROOKS.
*JAY A. SCHILLER.
*JOSEPH A. GRABER.
OSCAR S. CAPLAN.
JOHN V. McCORMICK.
*ERWIN J. HASTEN.

The remaining nine candidates are Frederick A. Smith, Milton Sabath, Joseph P. Ryan, John T. Zuris, Martin Walsh, Michael Tremko, Justin F. McCarthy, Leon Edelman and Thomas A. Green. The last three named are sitting judges.

Senator Robinson Enters Arkansas Re-election Race

Little Rock, Ark., April 11.—(AP)—Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas today gave formal notice of his intention to seek reëlection to the senate by filing his party pledge with the state Democratic committee and the corrupt practices pledge required by Arkansas statute with the secretary of state.

BEG YOUR PARDON

F. J. Mulholland of Ottawa, state food inspector and former grocer, was identified erroneously in a story in THE TRIBUNE of April 5 as having been indicted in connection with the failure of the Bain banks and further as having served a jail term for contempt of court in connection with a failure to account for money as a receiver. The information in the story relates to F. A. Mulholland, a Chicagoan, and has no connection with F. J. Mulholland of Ottawa. Such inquiry as could be made discloses that the latter has been connected with the state food inspection division since Aug. 2, 1933, and has been an honest and diligent employé of the state.

It has been learned that the page containing this erroneous story has been photostated and used as a campaign dodger in the current primary. This was done without the knowledge or consent of THE TRIBUNE.

Attorney Edmund Burke, Springfield, Ill., said yesterday in reference to his request for leave to intervene as a friend of the court in the pay roll case against Gov. Horner, and other state officials, that he made no charges that the case was sponsored by the attorney general's office as was stated in yesterday morning's story from Springfield.

Escapes, but "Thumbs" His Way Right Back Into Cell

Napoleon, O., April 11.—[U. P.]—Harry Waxler, 22 years old, pried a lock from his cell in the city jail, slipped out, and headed down the highway. Four miles east of town he "thumbed" a ride. The car stopped and Waxler climbed in. Now he's back in his cell. He had "thumbed" Sherif George Bowerman and Deputy Don Johnson.

WOMAN ROBBED OF $40 IN SHOP.

Miss Edna Meade, 1036 North Dearborn street, manager of the DeLoge Hat shop, 6 East Oak street, was robbed of $40 in the shop yesterday.

CANDIDATES PUSH CAMPAIGNS FOR COUNTY OFFICES

Local Contests Outshone by State Races.

With Republican and Democratic primary campaigns for the nomination for governor and other state offices rushing to a stormy finish, public attention has been distracted somewhat from the races for Cook county offices.

The county candidates, however, have been campaigning aggressively, building up alliances throughout the city and suburbs and expounding their respective platforms. They have been fully as active as the state office candidates, appearing and speaking at both mass and organization meetings.

Interest in the Democratic nominations to county offices has been lessened, too, by the scarcity of contests. Many of the Democratic candidates for county positions are unopposed, and the regular organization candidates that have contests are confronted, they report, with nominal opposition only.

Coroner and Tax Board.

In the latter class are Coroner Frank J. Walsh, who is opposed for renomination by two candidates, and Paul Drymalski, who has organization support for nomination to the board of tax appeals. Drymalski has four opponents.

The Republican county picture is in direct contrast to the Democratic. Pre-campaign activities of the Brooks, Caldwell, and Deneen groups were centered on the formation of a harmony slate for the county, an ideal that wasn't realized, although there are some duplications of indorsements.

Early in the negotiations the Caldwell group started out with an almost complete ticket. Negotiations continued between the Brooks and Deneen factions, the latter of which usually operates as a separate entity. An greement was reached on County Commissioner William Busse for recorder—he alone has the indorsement of all three groups—and James A. Kearns for county treasurer.

State's Attorney Race.

A snag was struck in the consideration of candidates for state's attorney. Both Brooks and Deneen refused William F. Waugh, the Caldwell choice, because of the character of some of the cases he has handled. The Brooks people slated Harry S. Ditchburne. Deneen slated Leonard C. Reid, but withdrew him at the last minute and threw his support also to Ditchburne.

In the Chicago Bar association's primary on Republican candidates for state's attorney Ditchburne polled 963 of the 1,802 votes cast. Waugh was his closest competitor with 376 votes. The association's earlier report on candidates praised Ditchburne highly, concluding with the statement that he "is well qualified for the office of state's attorney."

Deneen Maneuvers Candidates.

Deneen slated one candidate for sanitary trustee, and then to complete his ticket for the three positions on the drainage board took one candidate from each of the other two organizations. He indorsed Maxwell M. Nowak, who is on the Brooks ticket, and Samuel R. Ballis of the Caldwell slate.

Brooks has gone ahead with his ticket from governor down, while the Deneen group has centered its activities on its own entries for county office, gaining commendation for bringing new material into the contests. The Caldwell group has been disintegrating gradually, and its candidates are not cutting much of a figure. So far as is known, the Brooks ticket has the support of a substantial majority of the Republican committeemen.

Ex-Governor Dead

RICHARD YATES DIES SUDDENLY IN SPRINGFIELD

Former Governor and Son of Governor.

nation by Charles S. Deneen. From 1914 to 1918 he was a member of the state utilities commission under the then Gov. Edward F. Dunne. He served seven terms as congressman-at-large, but was defeated in 1932 in the Democratic landslide.

Since his retirement three years ago Mr. Yates had lived part of the time with Mr. and Mrs. Pickering in Detroit.

A Staunch Republican.

Mr. Yates througnout his career was a stanch Republican. Of himself he said: "I drummed a little drum for Grant and Colfax in 1868."

"I drummed a bigger drum for Grant and Wilson in 1872. I was a member of a real drum corps when I was fighting in 1876 for Hayes and Wheeler. In 1880 I carried my first torch for Garfield and Arthur. Four years later I followed to undeserved defeat James G. Blaine and John A. Logan; and ever since then, no night has been too dark, no road has been too rough and no trip too long for me to go, and to speak of and in behalf of the sublime principles of the Republican party."

Always Dry in Politics.

Mr. Yates was politically a dry and in his races for congress had the support of the Anti-Saloon league.

Last fall Mr. Yates announced that he was writing a book on Illinois politics, to be based principally on his career and that of his father.

Several chapters of the book deal with the Yates family's early background in Virginia, with the trek westward to Kentucky and then to Illinois, and with the family life in the years just previous to the entrance into political prominence of the first Gov. Yates.

"Sangamon county," he once said with a chuckle, "that was the place in the old days—a regular knock 'em down and drag 'em out political battle going on virtually all the time."

The body will be taken to Jacksonville for burial.

KILLED BY FALL UNDER TRAIN.

Charles Giacolo, 30 years old, 2608 West Huron street, was almost instantly killed last night when he slipped beneath the wheels of a Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad freight train near California and Grand avenues.

FIGHT TO FINISH ON GOVERNORSHIP IN NIGHT RALLIES

Horner and Dr. Bundesen Battle Over Records.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Gov. Horner and his primary opponent, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, campaigned far into the night last night as they entered the final week-end of their memorable fight.

Dr. Bundesen continued his charges that the governor is "hoarding" a sales tax surplus of more than two millions monthly, and called upon him to reconvene the legislature in special session and reduce the tax.

The governor repeated his charge of "bossism" against Mayor Kelly, telling a 24th ward audience at the Herzl school, 3711 Douglas boulevard: "I've been touring the state finding out how I stand with the people. From what I hear I am doing all right with every one except the mayor of Chicago."

Tells of Helping Babies.

Dr. Bundesen spoke first at 1651 Belmont avenue, talking of his own record in public office as well as criticizing Horner's.

"A lot has been said about my baby books," he said. "I am proud to say that since I have been in the health department Chicago's baby death rate has fallen to the lowest of any large American city."

Earlier in the evening the physician, in a radio broadcast, declared that the governor is drawing support "from the enemies of President Roosevelt." He told his listeners that Horner had spent a part of his pre-campaign vacation in Florida with George F. Getz, minority member of the governor's boxing commission and treasurer of the Republican national committee.

He also spoke disparagingly of Horner's support from Floyd E. Thompson, former justice of the Illinois Supreme court, and Theodore H. Brentano, former minister to the Balkans.

Governor Cites His Record.

Gov. Horner told his audiences that his record had been "built up day by day. We have balanced our budget," he said, "and you housewives know how difficult that is. You know that you can't spend more than you take in."

Concluding, the governor said that "one of the greatest mistakes I ever made was in supporting Kelly for mayor."

The mayor himself was also on the stump last night, continuing his support of Dr. Bundesen. At a large meeting of colored citizens at 51st street and Michigan avenue he was introduced to the crowd by Joe Louis, heavyweight contender. In his speech the mayor laid stress on sales tax, stating that "the little fellow must carry the load."

In a speech at Summit, following his Twenty-fourth ward appearance, Gov. Horner warned his audiences that "my opponents may try some cheap, last minute trick against me, distributing handbills or the like. They may be charges which could not be answered until after the primaries. I warn you against those possible tactics."

Rival Labor Luncheons.

At noon yesterday the two primary opponents spoke before their rival labor clubs, Dr. Bundesen declaring that "Horner has done less for labor than any governor in the history of Illinoi." On his side Horner declared himself proud of his labor record.

Campaign hot shots were plentiful at both the labor luncheons, the governor's at the Sherman hotel and Dr. Bundesen's at the Palmer house. Referring to his "opponents," but not mentioning them personally, the governor declared "I have to go to the state house every morning and, figuratively speaking, drive another spike in the state house dome to keep those people from making off with it for the gilt there is in it."

At about the same time, Dr. Bundesen was asking his audience, "Did Henry Horner aid the cause of labor when he saddled them with the three per cent sales tax—this tragic burden which falls more heavily on the working man than any other class of American citizen? Let my opponent who professes such friendship for labor deny it, if he dares."

"No Troops Called."

The governor declared that not once in his administration has he been forced to call out troops in industrial disputes. "The lieutenant governor [Thomas F. Donovan] called the Guard out while I was in Biloxi," Horner said, "but I came back immediately and sent the troops home again."

Five blocks away, Dr. Bundesen said, "I do not have to read books to get labor's viewpoint—I've lived their life. And as a young doctor I learned the uttermost thoughts of the needy, as I kept the vigil of life and death over the sick beds of their loved ones."

The governor charged that his opponents are "trying to claim credit for everything I do."

Dr. Bundesen's special appeal to the labor vote included this promise: "I stand absolutely for the principle of collective bargaining. You men of labor must organize and stick together and work together. I assure you that if I am governor of Illinois, you will be protected in your exercise of the right to organize.

"I stand against the abuse by our courts of the injunction power. I stand for the payment of decent wages and, as governor, I shall insist upon such wage schedules in all work for the state."

State Director of Labor Martin Durkin was chairman of the Horner meeting, while William A. Curran, business manager of the Plumbers' union, presided over the Bundesen gathering.

RECORDS CITED TO BOLSTER PAY PADDING CHARGE

Stelle Charges Huge Jump in Spending.

State Treasurer John Stelle yesterday issued photostatic copies of state financial records to support his charge that Gov. Horner has padded pay rolls to the extent of more than $300,000 for election purposes, and to justify the joint action of Stelle and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett in holding up certain pay rolls.

The treasurer's copies of the records showed that expenditures from the state treasury during February and March of 1936 were $504,753 higher than the expenditures of the same months in 1935.

Highway Expenses Jump.

One set of photostats shows an increase of $340,024 in the maintenance charges of the highway division from Feb. 1, 1936, to April 6, 1936, as compared with the maintenance charges for the same period in 1935. This figure, together with the asserted increases in other pay rolls, makes up the total of $504,753, the treasurer's office explained.

"The records of the state treasurer's office, photostatic copies of which are herewith presented, not only refute the statements of Gov. Horner's lieutenants that the additions to their pay rolls are seasonal, but certainly show that Edward J. Barrett, the auditor of public accounts, had good reason to inspect these pay rolls," Stelle's statement reads.

Mine Pay Rolls Not Included.

"These reports show that the expenditures from Feb. 1, 1935, to April 1, 1935, were $1,435,465.48, and that during the corresponding period this year the expenditures were $1,940,219.26, or a total increase of $504,753.78.

"Even this amount does not include pay rolls of the department of mines and minerals, which were sent back for correction and have not to this date been re-presented. Neither does it include the added investigators in the insurance department, which roll also was sent back for correction, and which has not to date been re-presented. Neither does this amount include the several thousands of common laborers who have been added to the highway pay roll since the first of April and whom motorists observe as they drive over the roads of our state.

Present List of Expenditures.

"Both Auditor Barrett and myself are of the opinion that the people have a right to know the facts in this matter and to make their decisions based upon the facts as they are here presented."

A recapitulation of the expenditures of the various state departments, as shown by the photostats, follows:

Cons'rv.	$ 14,697	$ 16,605	$ 14,630	$ 18,153
Finance	80,074	100,701	83,420	96,035
Ins. ..	22,893	24,802	23,414	33,209
Mines and minerals	4,701	5,239	4,701	9,344
P.welfare	49,488	59,377	46,469	62,935
Institutions	439,782	522,596	*	*
Totals	$611,636	$729,321	$172,635	$219,679
Inc. over prv. yr.		117,684		47,043

*No comparison available.

The comparison of institutional pay roll expenditures for March of 1925 and 1936 is not possible because many of the institutional pay rolls have been withheld from his office and from the auditor, the treasurer said.

The highway department rolls contain a recapitulation showing that the expenditures for the period from Feb. 1, 1935 to April 6, 1935, were $651,192.59, and that for this year, during the same period, the expenditures were $991,217.48.

Gov. Horner and his campaign speakers referred to the action of Stelle and Barrett in holding up the pay rolls as "cheap politics." The added employés were needed, the governor's spokesmen declared, because of seasonal needs and because of new laws that required the services of additional help in their enforcement.

BALLOTS INDORSING SMALL ARE DISOWNED BY FATHER COUGHLIN

Amid the flood of marked sample ballots that poured upon the voters of Chicago yesterday was one which the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin from his headquarters in Royal Oak, Mich., denounced as spurious.

"The intimation that the National Union for Social Justice or myself gave such indorsements is false, because in no way did I or the National Union for Social Justice authorize the issuance of such ballots," read Father Coughlin's statement.

The names before which crosses were placed on the ballot were those of William E. Borah for President, Len Small for governor, Willis A. Overholser for United States senator, Thomas V. Sullivan for attorney general, and Amelia Laura Magee for state auditor.

VICTORY CLAIMS CLOSE STIRRING PRIMARY FIGHT

Democrat Free-for-All Upsets Precedent.

000, while the Horner headquarters issued a statement claiming the county by between 150,000 and 200,000.

Similarly, the Horner managers said their candidate would carry downstate by 300,000 and the Bundesen leaders said he would come up to the Cook county line 200,000 to the good.

There was not the same clashing among the Republicans. Newspaper men's impressions of the situation as a whole are that the nomination of Wayland Brooks for the governorship is conceded by the several rival camps. There is no real effort on the part of his opponents to argue otherwise.

Brooks' headquarters in the Hotel La Salle stood by its earlier prediction that the candidate will carry Cook county in such a sweep that his vote will exceed those of all of his six opponents by 140,000, that he will carry every congressional district downstate and "over ninety" of the 101 downstate counties.

Caldwell Forces Dwindle.

News developments supported the claims for Brooks. Although it was done very quietly, there were disclosures that the forces that had been backing Brooks' only Cook county rival, H. Wallace Caldwell, had been slowly but steadily folding up for the last week.

The number of Hotel La Salle rooms occupied by the Caldwell headquarters had been cut from twenty-three to seven. Most of the employés had been released. And ward committeemen were leaving for new parts, most of them apparently going to Brooks.

Len Small, regarded from the beginning as Brooks principal contender, had not come to Chicago up to last night. The political gossip was that if he could count his chances good during the last week he would open up the money bags in grand style for primary day. But no signs of any extensive distribution of cash could be found.

Describing the local situation in a nutshell, Edward F. Moore, secretary of the county committee, said that on Tuesday 95 per cent of the regular precinct captains will be working for Brooks.

There was not the same degree of certainty concerning many of the Republican candidates for other state offices. Both locally and downstate, during the last week, there developed what many observers called the "Brooks ticket" although the Brooks forces did not put out a state slate. It was said to have grown up by the gradual swinging of Brooks units into "natural alliances" behind one candidate for each office.

Those believed to have benefitted chiefly from this trend were the two men actually indorsed by the Brooks organization in Cook county, Arthur J. Bidwill for state auditor and John T. Dempsey for congressman at large.

Others unofficially given the Brooks label were Otis F. Glenn for United States senator, Charles W. Hadley for attorney general, John W. Kapp Jr. for secretary of state, Clarence F. Buck for state treasurer, and Rodney H. Brandon for congressman at large.

EFFORT TO KEEP ELECTION CLEAN NEARS CLIMAX

Arraign 2 WPA Officials for Intimidation.

County and federal officials and representatives of civic organizations will wind up tomorrow the campaign launched two weeks ago to assure the voters an honest election and a valid count of ballots at the primary Tuesday. While the conduct of the primary itself must be the actual test of the success of the campaign, the officials said yesterday that they believed all possible preliminary precautions had been taken to prevent repetition of the vote frauds which have tainted elections in Cook county in past years.

Judge Edmund K. Jarecki of the County court summed up yesterday the work done within the past two weeks to insure an honest election and outlined his plans for primary day.

"We think that the registry list is pretty well purged of floaters [persons who registered in polling places without being bona fide residents of the precinct], but we are continuing our work in several precincts," the judge said.

Ordered to Challenge Doubtfuls.

"Names of 20,000 we still suspect have been sent to the precinct officials with instructions to challenge their votes Tuesday. We may remove several officials Monday if investigation supports our belief that they were guilty of irregularities in the registration.

"As for 'stingers'—persons who try to vote fraudulently by using the names of legally qualified voters—I have directed the polling place clerks to follow the law and question fully any persons they suspect. If the challenged individual cannot satisfy the clerk as to his identity he will be taken into custody.

"I have also emphasized that only election judges—not clerks nor any one else—can actually handle and count ballots.

Public Sentiment for Honesty.

"I believe we will have a pretty honest election because the sentiment of the public is aroused toward that end. There is intense rivalry between the two major parties and this combined with the work of civic organizations in canvassing districts and assigning watchers to the polls should go far toward preventing dishonesty."

Thomas McElligott, superintendent of the Works Progress administration in Cook county, and John Rose, a WPA foreman in the Deer Grove forest preserve, were arraigned yesterday before Judge Jarecki on charges of threatening and intimidating voters.

The men were arrested Friday after complaint was made that they threatened ten WPA voters with loss of their jobs unless they voted for Dr. Herman N. Bundesen for governor in the primary.

Rose told Assistant State's Attorneys Eugene J. O'Connor and Frank Christenson that he was ordered "to pass the word along" by his superior, McElligott. McElligott refused to affirm or deny Rose's statements.

Judge Jarecki ordered the defendants held in bail of $1,500 each and set the hearing for April 21. Rose, unable to post bond, was taken to the county jail. If found guilty the men face sentences of three months to one year in the county jail.

W. M. Steinbauer, agent in charge of the division of investigation of the WPA, yesterday instructed all officials in the organization to tell workers they can vote any way they please in the primary.

Judge Jarecki, the board of election commissioners and representatives of civic organizations have coöperated to purge the poll lists of names of persons not legally registered. There have been 31,990 names stricken from the poll books and the city's total registration for the primary now stands at 1,612,208. In the 1932 primary it was 1,643,889.

Prepare to Guard Ballots.

As precautions against fraud and violence the following arrangements have been made for primary day:

1. All policemen in the city will be utilized to preserve order at the polling places and persons suspected of vote stealing and other irregularities will be taken into custody and turned over to the election commissioners and the prosecutors.

2. Watchers from civic organizations, including the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Women's Civic council, will be in the polling places. Credentials have been issued to these watchers and those employed by the candidates, and it is expected there will be nearly 65,000 persons stationed in the 3,164 polling places throughout the city, in addition to judges and clerks of election, to prevent fraud.

3. A staf of prosecutors under First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley will be in the County building in constant touch with the election commissioners to conduct investigations into fraud charges.

4. United States District Attorney Michael L. Igoe has assigned two assistants to the election board offices because of the national issues involved in the primary.

5. The Chicago Association of Commerce has offered cash rewards for information leading to the conviction of erring election officials. The association also mailed out pamphlets to all polling place officials last week, warning them of the jail sentences and fines they face if they are detected in dishonest practices.

The deadline for casting absentee ballots was 5 o'clock last evening. About 1,200 such ballots were cast.

ROOSEVELT ACCEPTS INVITATION TO SPEAK AT D. A. R. CONVENTION

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today accepted an invitation to speak before the annual convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution, assembling here on Monday, April 20.

The President will travel to Baltimore Monday night to speak before the Maryland Young Democratic clubs, in what has been considered by some observers the opening address of his campaign for reëlection.

The D.A.R. address makes three on his list for this month. He will talk in New York City on April 25 at a Jefferson banquet of the National Democratic clubs of New York City.

VIRGINIA G. O. P. FOR GOV. LANDON; GLASS WILL WIN

Roanoke, Va., April 11.—(AP)—The Virginia Republican convention late today adopted a resolution expressing "confidence in the fitness" of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas for the office of President of the United States, and voted not to offer a candidate for the United States senate in opposition to Carter Glass, Democrat.

The action was taken by the adoption of two resolutions recommended by the resolutions committee, and accepted without debate.

The resolution recommending against nomination for the senate asserted that the party believes in the nomination for all offices, but that the "present crisis in our national life justifies an exception."

"The ensuing campaign," the resolution states, "will not be a contest between Democrats and Republicans, but between the New Deal dictatorship now in control of the agencies of government and all Americans, regardless of party, who desire to end that dictatorship."

JUDGE ANSWERS VOTERS' QUERIES ABOUT BALLOTS

Jarecki Tells How to Write In a Candidate.

Because of the interest in the primary Tuesday and the unusual phases of the party campaigns, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and the board of election commissioners called attention yesterday to a newly issued booklet containing answers to questions which are likely to arise in the polling places. Hundreds of telephone calls have been received by THE TRIBUNE within the last week from voters seeking information on the procedure of asking for ballots and marking them.

Most of this information is in the booklet, which is distributed by the board to judges and clerks of election. Judge Jarecki supplied supplemental explanations yesterday. One of the questions most frequently asked is how voters may enter the names and vote for candidates other than those who are printed on the ballot.

How to Write in a Name.

The procedure is as follows: The voter writes in the name of the candidate [who must be a member of the party with which the voter has declared his affiliation] under the name or names of other candidates appearing on the ballot for the same office. To the left of the name written in must be placed a square, and a cross in the square, as illustrated:

☒ Richard Roe.

Judge Jarecki pointed out that all three elements must be present in the write-in: The name, the square, and the cross. If any one of these three is missing, the voter's choice for that particular office will not be counted, although it will not invalidate the remainder of his ballot. If, however, the voter enters a name by use of a rubber stamp, sticker or paster, the entire ballot is voided. It is not necessary to add the address of any candidate whose name is written in.

Another question often asked by primary voters concerns their party affiliations. Judge Jarecki explained that the election statutes provide that after a voter has declared for one party at a primary he cannot change party for two years. This means that persons who voted in the mayoral primary on Feb. 26, 1935, cannot switch parties on Tuesday.

On the other hand, those who have not voted in a primary since the one on April 12, 1934, may change their party affiliation Tuesday, if they wish. They are then bound by the new party tie for all primaries until April, 1938. Those voters who signed a nominating petition for any candidate within the last two years may not change from that candidate's party at this primary.

Challenges Are Obligatory.

Among other questions and answers in the booklet are the following:

Q.—Is a judge of election required to challenge every person whom he knows or suspects not to be entitled to vote? A.—Yes. The judge is subject to punishment if he does not do so.

Q.—Can a voter who has signed the pledge card of a candidate of one political party vote in the primary of a different party? A.—Yes. Signing a pledge card is no bar to voting contrary to pledge.

Q.—What persons may vote by affidavit? A.—Any registered person who has moved from one address to another within the same precinct since March 21, the day the poll books were revised.

Law on Refusal of Ballot.

Q.—Have the election judges the legal right to refuse a ballot to a voter whom they know has voted in the primary of an opposite political party within the two year limit? A.—Judges have no right to finally refuse a ballot to a voter under such circumstances, but they may admonish the voter that if he votes illegally he may be punished under the election laws. The punishment is a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment in the penitentiary from one to five years, and disfranchisement for a period up to five years.

Gov. Ross of Idaho Voices Senatorial Ambitions

Boise, Idaho, April 11.—(AP)—Gov. C. Ben Ross indicated today in a letter he expects to represent Idaho in the United States senate. He neither confirmed nor denied statements of friends that he will seek the Democratic nomination for the seat held for thirty years by Senator William E. Borah, Republican, but in a letter he wrote to W. W. Goodman at Pocatello he referred to the time "when I get to the United States senate."

SPANISH PROVINCE FREES PRISONERS

OVIEDO, Spain, April 11. — [U. P.] — All political prisoners in jails throughout the province were released today on orders of the governor. Among those freed were 52 Fascists.

MISSOURI PICKS FOUR MORE DELEGATES TO BACK GOV. ALF LANDON

Kansas City, Mo., April 11.—(AP)—The Fourth and Fifth district Republican conventions here today named four delegates to the party's national convention instructed by resolution "to vote and work for Gov. Alf M. Landon's nomination until his nomination is secured or until Gov. Landon himself shall otherwise direct."

In these two conventions the instructions also said they had "no second choice for the nomination."

This left the Cleveland delegation situation for Missouri as follows:

Sixteen delegates instructed for Landon.

Four delegates uninstructed.

EXPERT LOOKS; PRESIDENT'S FISH 'MYSTERY' ENDS

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—The Smithsonian Institution's scientists took one glance today at President Roosevelt's "mystery fish" and identified it as a greater amberjack.

"But no wonder the President could not identify it," said Dr. Alexander Wetmore, secretary of the institution, into whose hands the block of ice containing the 30-pound fish was delivered. "It is one of the most unusual and most perplexing fishes known to science and even scientists dispute its place in the animal kingdom."

The President caught the fish while on his Bahama expedition.

"The greater amberjack group," Dr. Wetmore said, "is considerably involved because of individual variations.

"Some fishes of this type have deep and some have slender bodies. The President's fish belongs to the slender division and we have classified it as seriola lanlandi."

The institution hopes to place the fish on exhibition.

EYES OF NATION UPON BORAH AND KNOX IN PRIMARY

Illinois Vote May Affect Party's Fortunes.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The contest between William E. Borah of Idaho and Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, for the popular preference of Illinois as candidates for the Republican nomination for President, makes Tuesday's primaries a national headliner. The outcome will be watched the country over, for it may exert influence on the national convention at Cleveland in June and upon the fortunes of the G. O. P.

The Borah camp holds that if the Idaho senator does well in Illinois—his native state—after his sweep in Wisconsin last Tuesday, it will be a stepping stone to the primaries in Ohio and New Jersey and will build Borah up as a formidable factor at Cleveland.

Knox Backers' Forecast.

The Knox backers argue that if Mr. Knox carries Illinois he will come more prominently into the convention picture, and he will gain strength as an opponent of Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas.

Gov. Landon, who appears to be the leading candidate, is not entered in the Illinois primaries. But he is reported showing strength, especially in the northern counties, and may get votes from Illinois delegates, once the obligations of the advisory vote have been discharged, or if the bandwagon starts up.

The race in Illinois is largely between Borah sentiment and Knox organization. Borah has no organization to speak of, and is going it single handed, relying on his record, prestige, personal appeal and his exposition of national issues and problems. The Idahoan started a four days' platform tour of Illinois last Wednesday, the day after his Wisconsin triumph.

Knox Covers State.

Mr. Knox, in weeks of campaigning, has covered every downstate congressional district, and, his managers say, has met personally most of the candidates who are likely to be elected as delegates to Cleveland. Neither candidate has a slate of delegates; the preferential vote is the stake.

The sheep and goats alike in Cook county Republican circles are supporting the Chicago publisher. At the outset, Borah, making his single handed fight, is confronted with a mass of indorsements and of specimen ballots marked for Knox.

Len Small is said by his managers to have sent out almost a million specimen ballots marked for Knox and Small. Ward committeemen who have Fred Lundin for beacon light have marked for Knox, while a former Republican mayor in a recent speech urged Mr. Knox as a local candidate.

News Softens Its Punches.

Since the candidacy of Publisher Knox, the Chicago Daily News has put pillows on its punches in its campaign for "Purity in Politics" and is making no effort to defeat unsavory characters who wrecked the Republican party in former years. At the various La Salle hotel headquarters, a ballot marked for Knox is regarded by party wreckers as a symbol of atonement.

For weeks a stock gag of cynics at the La Salle has been, "What sensible mug would lead with his jaw against the Daily News?"

Committeemen, too, in the camps of high grade candidates have marked for Knox, and his managers say almost all the old factional Republican groups in Cook county are supporting the publisher. They report the sample ballots sent out by all 50 ward committeemen in Chicago are marked for Knox.

Borah on Party Wreckers.

It was this conglomeration of political groups, party wreckers, and high grade men in the same Knox pew that led Senator Borah in his Chicago speech three weeks ago to declare "a million voters were driven out of the party in Illinois in 1932." He added, "And if you'll look at the leadership in Illinois you'll recognize faces of some of those who drove them out."

The Knox candidacy was indorsed by the Cook county committee last fall, no member voting no. Later the state central committee met at Peoria and voted a Knox [illegible]ement. The organizers then got [illegible] building up support among downstate county chairmen and precinct committeemen. In some congressional districts, the committees after picking the candidates to be supported for national delegates, also voted indorsements.

Big Claims for Knox.

The Knox camp claims that all Illinois county chairmen but three, and most of the 4,146 precinct committeemen are for the publisher. These responses, it may be pointed out, came before Borah started to campaign in Illinois. They indicate it will be Borah singlehanded against the politicians.

Borah's managers expect he will develop his greatest strength downstate. Reports are that in the last week Borah support has come to life in such districts as Rockford, Danville, the coal regions of southern Illinois, Bloomington, and Freeport.

Downstate reports are that Borah's onslaught on party wreckers in his Chicago speech elicited response, while his defense of the constitution and the Supreme court against New Deal encroachments, and the attack upon Wallace-Tugwell policies which have thrown midwest farmers wide open to the competition of foreign farmers, are going strongest in the agricultural areas.

SCHOOL ELECTION RESULTS

School board members were elected yesterday in 194 districts in Cook county.

Joseph F. Mrizek and Adolph Vlk were elected trustees of the J. Sterling Morton High schol, Cicero, defeating seven other candidates. Mrizek polled 8,252 votes and Vlk had a total of 8,145. The defeated candidates with the highest votes were Frank E. Svoboda, with 6,348; Henry J. Chojnacki, 4,623, and Edmund Placzek, 3,313.

In Cicero Edward J. Sass was elected grade school trustee and Eugene Clark and Joseph B. Kovarik were reëlected to the grade school board in a contest with twelve other candidates. The voters approved a proposition to supply free textbooks in the grade schools.

Three Named in Berwyn District.

In Berwyn, District 98, William J. Kalal, Fred H. Roth, and Charles Vitek were elected trustees of the grade school board, defeating four other candidates.

B. Leslie Allen and Irwin C. Hendrickson were chosen trustees of the Proviso Township High school, Maywood. The vote was Hendrickson, 6,307; Allen, 6,284; August H. D'Anza, 3,402; Peter Paul Gaddy, 3,306, and Alvin Adolpson, 254.

In Zion, in Lake county, Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Christian Catholic church, failed in his effort to regain some of the political power he lost in the Zion City election last year, when his four school board candidates were defeated. Onias W. Farley was reëlected president of the board, defeating Joseph L. Bishop, Voliva candidate, by a vote of 1,470 to 1,010. Ivan R. Harlow, George Ingils and Mrs. Helen G. Ingram were elected members.

In Elgin 4,945 votes were cast and Paul F. Born was elected president of the board of trustees. Members of the board elected for three years were: Mrs. Pearl Hood Rayburn, William J. Lorang and C. Roy Dougherty. Alfred H. Kirkland was elected a trustee for two years.

50 RESCUED BY FIREMEN, 10 HURT IN HOTEL BLAZE

Fifty persons were carried down ladders by firemen last night as flames destroyed the Douglas house, 3500 Vincennes avenue, an apartment which housed about 250 colored persons. Ten were burned and cut by glass, but none was seriously injured. Four injured persons were treated at the Lakeside hospital.

The fire apparently started on the second floor of the building, which was one of the oldest on the south side, and the blaze swept rapidly through the upper floors. Firemen responding to a 5-11 alarm fought the flames with two high pressure water towers. The damage was estimated at $25,000 by Fire Commissioner Michael Corrigan.

Jerome Chuman, manager of a drug store at 3460 Cottage Grove avenue, across the street from the hotel, said he heard an explosion and looked out to see the second floor windows red with flame. Another explosion followed, he said, and soon afterward people appeared at many windows, screaming for help.

The second floor stairway collapsed and some residents of the upper floors made their way to safety down a fire escape. Others, including many children, were carried down ladders by the firemen, directed by Chief Daniel Cullinan of Battalion 10.

Those treated for burns at the hospital were William Bell, 51 years old; Mrs. Callie Verdell, 36; Mrs. Emma Ladd, 34, and David Nicholson, 38, of 593 East 35th street.

SPIRITUALISTS ELECT CHICAGOAN.

C. A. Burgess of Chicago was re-elected president of the Illinois State Spiritualists association at the 38th annual convention of the organization in the Morrison hotel yesterday.

Oil Well Is Brought In on Gov. Landon's Farm

Topeka, Kas., April 11.—(AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon today said he had witnessed the bringing in of a 40- to 50-barrel oil well yesterday on his Greenwood county properties. "It's just a little well in that shallow pool, a 'poor man's field,'" he said. "It's about 1,600 feet deep."

LANDON BACKING RECORDS GAINS; WATCH ILLINOIS

Vandenberg, in Limelight, Given Chance.

to find it such easy sledding to the nomination after all. Moreover, with a victory in Illinois Mr. Borah would go into Ohio, where he will oppose Favorite Son Taft, and into New Jersey, where he will meet Landon, with prestige incalculably increased. Thus it may be judged with what intense interest the politicians will scan the returns from Illinois next Tuesday night to learn which way the political wind is blowing in the western country from which the Republican standard bearer is by common consent to come.

How Delegates Line Up.

The results in the selection of delegates up to date follow:

New Hampshire—11 delegates; all uninstructed but favoring Knox.

Oklahoma—21 delegates; all instructed for Landon.

Missouri—Thirty delegates; 16 instructed for Landon; 6 named in conventions which indorsed Landon; 4 uninstructed [remaining 4 not selected].

Kentucky—22 delegates; 18 instructed for Landon and 4 uninstructed.

Kansas—18 delegates; all instructed for Landon.

New Mexico—6 delegates; state convention endorsed Landon's candidacy but left the delegates uninstructed.

Louisiana—12 delegates; all uninstructed.

Iowa—22 delegates; all uninstructed.

North Carolina—23 delegates; all uninstructed.

South Carolina—10 delegates; all uninstructed.

New York—90 delegates; all uninstructed.

Minnesota—22 delegates; 14 uninstructed, 10 of whom favor Landon, 4 Knox, remaining delegates not selected.

Anti-Landon Forces Busy.

While Landon is away out in front in the race the contest is far from over. The anti-Landon forces have not given up the fight by any means. They contend that Landon would be a party liability, that he would be branded as the choice of "the interests," including the oil crowd, and that the brand of Hearst would be upon his brow. Nor are they overlooking the governor's prohibitionist record to stir up opposition to the favorite.

If they can stop Landon the blankets would quickly be removed from those dark horses, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan and Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa. Vandenberg without stepping outside of his dark horse rôle has become more and more of a real contender for the nomination. To such an extent is this true that politicans are accustomed to summing up the situation by asserting that the nomination is going to Landon or Vandenberg.

Vandenberg Wins Victories.

In the last few weeks Vandenberg has been almost steadily in the limelight on Capitol Hill. He has taken the leadership in two successful fights on the administration. Almost single handed he defeated the administration attempt to procure appropriations for the Passamaquoddy dam and the Florida ship canal, which the President had initiated for political reasons. Likewise he forced the administration upon the defensive in regard to the publication of the big AAA payees. After refusing on one pretext or another to make the information public the administration finally assented.

It has been a common observation of late that Vandenberg has virtually taken over the Republican leadership in the senate, although Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon is the regularly constituted leader.

TRIES TO WRECK TRAIN; SENTENCED.

New London, Mo., April 11.—[U.P.]—Arthur Davis, 33, of St. Louis, was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge Edmund L. Alford, after pleading guilty to attempting to wreck a Burlington railroad train.

BORAH DECLARES HIS DUTY TO HIT 'BIG INTERESTS'

G. O. P. Convention Control Sought, He Says.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fairfield, Ill., April 11.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah, who enlivened his Illinois presidential preference campaign yesterday by charging that the great corporate interests were spending perhaps as much as a million dollars in Illinois to defeat him next Tuesday, reiterated this accusation today.

Coming to Fairfield, near his birthplace, to greet his old friends at a noon political gathering, he was given a telegram from Frank Knox, Chicago publisher and his opponent in the Tuesday's primary, in which Knox denied that he was the beneficiary of large sums contributed by big business.

Knox Spends $25,000.

"I am sure you do not want to leave the impression among my own people of Illinois that I am the beneficiary of large sums contributed by big business or that contributions from such sources have been used in my behalf," reads the telegram sent by Knox.

"For your information total sum expended by my committee in entire campaign for all purposes in the state of Illinois has been approximately $25,000, all contributed by my friends in small amounts. I have not, nor has any one in my behalf, paid a penny to any candidate or group in Illinois to secure support or marking of their sample ballots in my behalf. In fact, I do not believe any Republican candidate in Illinois for high office ever received such measure of entirely unpaid voluntary support as I am receiving in this contest.

"If large sums are being used to support any Republican candidacy for President, these are not being employed in my behalf. I trust our personal friendship of more than twenty years will persuade you to accept this as the plain truth."

Borah Dictates Reply.

Senator Borah, sitting in the parlor of his sister's home here, dictated the following statement regarding this telegram:

"I haven't referred in any way to Col. Knox or any other candidate for President in this campaign. There has been no desire or occasion to do this. I do not retreat a moment from the statement I made that certain powerful interests are seeking to control the Cleveland convention, write its platform, and name its candidate.

"When you see men like the president of the Sun Oil company, representative of the Standard Oil company, and satellites of the du Pont dynasty and numerous other interests of that kind getting active, I know precisely from past observation and experience what they want to do and how they do it.

"While I am not dealing with individual candidates, I think it is the duty of all individual candidates to denounce such things and help clear the party of such influences. I have ample facts which have been presented to me and which I feel to be reliable which justify me in making the statements I have made. No denial on the part of individual candidates has any relevancy to what I have in mind or to the course which I intend to pursue."

Senator Borah's greeting to his home town folks was given in the courthouse, which had been filled long before his arrival. A fair morning had turned to rain. Fifteen thousand persons, mostly farmers from this section, had come to town for the biggest day in its history of 100 years. Borah's talk dealt largely with his boyhood days on the farm near here.

Travels to Old Home.

After his strenuous campaign yesterday in Urbana and Danville, where he charged his opposition in Illinois with raising a great sum—perhaps a million dollars—from the great corporation monopolists—to defeat him, Senator Borah dropped into a pool of quietness here early this morning. After his Danville address he suddenly decided to travel at night to his old home here.

With his cousin, J. C. Borah and Judge J. V. Heidinger, he set out on the night highways, arriving here at two o'clock in the morning. The little brown cottage of his sister, Mrs. Mattie B. Rinard, was open to receive him. The sound of cardinals and thrushes singing, and the sunshine of a perfect spring day greeted him on awakening. The town was in gala attire, with flags, bunting, and welcome signs, and all business was stopped at noon, when the town band and the school children marched over to greet the senator.

From here he was escorted to the courthouse for his formal appearance before the citizens of his home county. Farmers in wagons, buggies, and automobiles crowded the square all day. The Borah homestead is five miles away, also the little frame schoolhouse where Borah attended as a boy. The roads were too muddy to permit a visit there.

The woods are full of Borah relatives and he spent hours in recalling incidents of his childhood. The man who bought a cow from his father, the man who heard him make his first political speech here at the age of 20, were on hand to greet him. Borah attended Enfield Academy until he was 20. His boyhood was spent on the farm, at the woodpile, and in the corn field. He quit the farm at 17.

Heidinger Is Chairman.

Judge Heidinger, a lifelong friend, was chairman of today's meeting. T. H. Creighton, an attorney introduced him. Borah has made it a rule for 30 years never to make more than one address a day, but he had to break this yesterday and again today.

Borah told his friends, however, that he had promised his father, who had many Democratic friends, never to make a Republican speech in this county, and so he would not talk politics. The courthouse square had been prepared with amplifiers to carry his words to the thousands who came into town.

At the courthouse Borah said in part: "I do not make partisan speeches. I may say to you that we are entering a campaign as important as any that has taken place since the civil war. Involved in this campaign are questions as vital to the welfare of the people as could be submitted, questions of fundamental principles of government, the economic freedom, and the contentment and prosperity of the American home.

Urges Primary Voting.

"The most I can say to you today is that you as individual citizens take an earnest, active part in the primaries and the election. If we can have a free, honest expression of mankind in America, we need not be uneasy about the result. We may be sure the result will be satisfactory in the end.

"It has been circulated in the campaign that if I am not nominated at Cleveland that I'll bolt the ticket and support Roosevelt. Let me say that there will be no trouble whatever about my conduct after the convention if the man who is nominated is nominated as the result of a fair expression of the voters of the Republican party. That is one reason for my having entered the campaign because I saw certain gentlemen getting very active in trying to control the convention for selfish, personal reasons. I shall continue and I would rather have the indorsement of my friends of old Wayne county than any other thing that Illinois can give me."

"EUROPE MUST PAY DEBT"

Carbondale, Ill., April 11. — [Special.]—Winding up his Illinois campaign for delegates to the Republican national convention at Cleveland in June, Senator William E. Borah tonight for the first time since he started speaking in Illinois, assailed European nations for failure to pay their war debts to the United States.

"Since 1914," he said, "we have put into Europe something like forty billions of dollars, enough to pay the mortgages on every farm in the United States. Where is it now? It's still there.

"We pared it down until it amounted to about half of what it was, and Europe still owes us about eleven billion dollars on that basis, and they aren't paying, and they aren't proposing to pay. But it has to be paid, either by the taxpayers of the United States or the taxpayers of Europe and I'm in favor of it being paid by the taxpayers of Europe."

Senator Borah spoke before a large audience in the Southern Illinois Teachers' college, where he said if Illinois would give him her delegation he would be almost certain to be nominated for president.

"If Col. Knox and Gov. Landon will take the same position as I do against the Standard Oil company and the du Pont dynasty who will put millions in the campaign to dictate the nomination," he said, "the interests may succeed, but they will have a fight.

"If the interests do not control the Cleveland convention with Knox and Landon aiding me in the fight, it will be a God's blessing not only to the Republican party, but also to the United States.

"They should not be permitted to be around when the convention meets, but if I ever become President of the United States they will have more sleepless nights and they know it.

"But whether I am nominated or not you are going to hear from me again about the middle of October. I won't say it now but it will be good news. That's why I want to say it then."

He'll Talk to Ross.

Carbondale, Ill., April 11.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah grinned tonight when told Gov. C. Ben Ross of Idaho was believed to have designs on his senate seat.

"Mr. Ross and I are very good friends," said the senator. "And we will discuss that when I see him next."

PICKPOCKETS MAR BORAH HOMECOMING FETE AT FAIRFIELD

Fairfield, Ill., April 11.—(AP)—Pickpockets marred Fairfield's homecoming celebration today for its most famous son—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Police said fifteen men in the throng that heard Senator Borah's campaign address reported their purses were stolen. Officers searched through the crowd at the close of the speech but made no arrests.

WATSON BEATEN; JOLIET GETS NO SIMPLE SPELLING

Josiah Watson of Joliet, advocate of an ultrasimplified spelling system, polled 773 votes yesterday as a candidate for membership on the Joliet township high school board. Just the same, Joliet will have to struggle along with the more conventional spelling, as Dr. Marion K. Bowles polled 2,766 votes and Michael Monahan 1,396 for the same place.

Watson ran on the "Let's Stop Turning Out Morons" ticket and distributed cards carrying his message in the true Watsonian orthography. They read:

"Y sik tu mek skulz mor ril and mor tru to lyf so ic cyld me go qt fram skul tu xep hiz on lyf mor wyzli. Wi der not mek w cyld w slev av ar felhurz."

Translated, this means: "I seek to make the schools more real and more true to life so each child may go out from school to shape his own life more wisely. We dare not make a child a slave of our failures."

JUDGE FORCES MOB TO ACT TO GUARD JAIL

Keeps Crowd Busy Until Troops Arrive.

Danielsville, Ga., April 11.—(AP)—A 74 year old Arling, Ga., judge today quelled a mob storming the jail where a colored man, accused of attacking a white girl and wounding two policemen, was held.

As a six-truck motor convoy of national guardsmen sped here to rescue the prisoner, Judge Berry T. Moseley, gray haired veteran of the Northern Superior court district, reached at his home where he was in bed, pushed through the crowd and mounted the jail steps.

Obey Law, Judge Orders.

"Stop violating the law by breaking into the jail," the judge told the crowd, adding the warning that he knew many of them. He promised a special term of court to handle the case. Then turning to Sherif T. L. Henley he shouted:

"I call on all good citizens to have themselves deputized. Mr. Sherif, I authorize you to deputize these men to see that the law is obeyed."

As the sherif deputized approximately one hundred citizens, the mob quieted and began to fall back.

Guardsmen Soon on Scene.

A short time later, the guardsmen under command of Maj. Walter B. Elliott, arrived from Gainesville, where they had been on tornado duty, formed a cordon about the jail, backed a truck to the entrance and sped away with the prisoner to Athens, 16 miles away.

The prisoner, listed by Sherif Henley as Lint Shaw, 45, was shot and seriously wounded by police after he had attacked them with a knife. Chief E. A. Elder of Colbert, was sent to an Athens hospital.

He had a knife wound in a lung.

County Policeman Ralph Baird of Danielsville was cut about the hands and arms.

Attacked With Knife.

They said the colored man attacked them unexpectedly with the knife as they were transferring him from the jail at Colbert, where he was arrested last night, to Danielsville. The officers fired, wounding the Negro three times, Sherif Henley said.

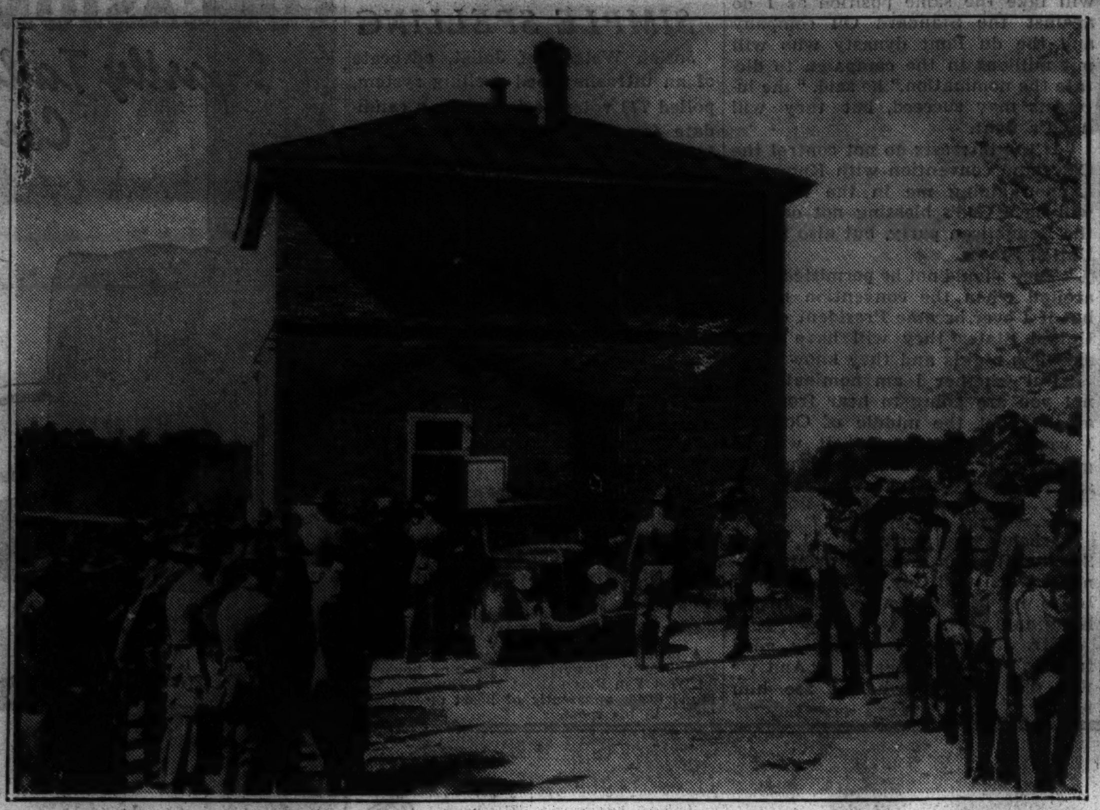
When Judge Moseley arrived at the jail, the crowd, estimated at about 150, had dug a small hole in the two-story brick structure when the judge's action halted them. The colored man was taken to a hospital at Athens, Ga.

WARN OF FRAUD IN SILVER FOX SALE SCHEMES

The Chicago Better Business bureau yesterday issued a warning to investors that security sharpers are again active in promoting sale of stock in silver fox ranches. Several such enterprises are under investigation, Gordon E. Smith, manager of the bureau's investment division, said. In 1928 and 1929 questionable promotions in the same field cost the public many millions of dollars.

"Silver foxes at present are worth around $40 each," Smith said. "Promoters are trying to unload them at $1,000 to $2,000 a pair, using the same claims which fooled investors in the late '20s—that the buyer's capital investment will increase by leaps and bounds, because the foxes multiply rapidly."

RESCUE NEGRO AS MOB THREATENS



Auto protected by National Guardsmen leaves jail at Danielsville, Ga., with Lint Shaw, colored, charged with attempt to assault white girl, after members of mob threatening a lynching had dug a hole in brick wall of prison. Judge Berry Moseley had halted mob's activities by deputizing all of its members.

Kendallville, Ind., April 11.—[Special.]—Harold Newman, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Newman, is near death in Lakeside hospital, and Raymond Haines faces a charge of leaving the scene of an accident as the result of Haines' running down the youth who was roller skating in the street. Haines reported the accident to the police two hours after it happened.

MAGILL CHARGES COLLEGES DUPED BY NEW DEALERS

Help Preach Government Ownership, He Says.

A warning that the trend toward government ownership of industry in the United States is endangering the country's endowed educational institutions was given yesterday by Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors. Dr. Magill issued a statement asserting that many of the country's educators, college faculty members, and religious leaders have permitted themselves to become "dupes of cunning politicians."

Dr. Magill, a foe of the national administration's policies, charged that New Dealers, despite their anger and impatience with any one who dares to protest their activities, are doing their utmost to spread the doctrin of government ownership and New Deal propaganda throughout the country's higher institutions of learning.

He declared that many sincere scholars and educators, at the instigation of the New Deal administration, are bemoaning the profit motive in business and their teachings are being accepted by the faculties of many institutions, even where the colleges involved are largely dependent on interest and dividends paid on their investments by private corporations which must earn a profit to pay a return on their securities.

Threatens Freedom of Thought.

Unless the present trend is halted, Dr. Magill said, freedom of thought and freedom of teaching will be lost as educational institutions come under the domination of government.

"The shrewd political spoilsman who hopes to profit by the building up of a powerful political machine on the ruins of free industry," he said, "sees clearly the ultimate results. How any of our educators, however theoretical and idealistic they may be, particularly religious leaders, can permit themselves to become the dupes of cunning politicians is difficult to understand, particularly in the light of what these same tendencies have led to as we see exemplified in certain European countries today."

Boosts for Public Ownership.

An illustration of how the government ownership doctrine is being spread and accepted, Dr. Magill said, is furnished by a series of lectures given recently at the Chicago Theological seminary by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority, an advocate of government control in business.

Dr. Morgan's theory, expounded in his address at the seminary, envisioned a wide extension of government ownership, extending under an idealistic socialistic state even to education and the press.

This entrance of the public ownership advocates into scholastic halls recalls the excitement occasioned some years ago by the discovery that private ownership of utilities was being preached in the schools. Opponents of the TVA have said they were unable to see why exponents of one school of thought should have less right on the school rostrum than the other side.

SANITY TEST FOR PEACOCK KILLER.

Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, head of the Cook county behavior clinic, said yesterday he would make a mental examination tomorrow of Emil Reck, 19 years old, one of the four youths under indictment for the murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock.

ORDER $1,400,000 BACK PAY GIVEN TO CITY WORKERS

Kelly Moves to Restore Cut Made in 1931.

Mayor Kelly yesterday directed Controller Robert B. Upham to take whatever steps are necessary to repay to all city employés the two weeks' pay deductions taken from them in 1931, amounting to a total of $1,400,000.

The mayor, who completed three years in office yesterday, acted after receiving a report from Controller Upham telling of the greatly improved financial condition of the city during the three years of Kelly's administration. Mayor Kelly said the salaries of all employés were appropriated for in full in 1931, that the deductions, made later, were voluntary and amounted to a loan, and that the employés should now be reimbursed.

Several former employés have obtained court orders for this back pay, the mayor said, and he didn't want to make it necessary for present employés to take on the burden of legal fees and court costs to get their due.

City Finances in Good Shape.

After reading Upham's report the mayor said it showed that the financial affairs of the city are in splendid shape, Chicago leading the cities of the world in staging a financial comeback.

The best indication of the city's restored credit condition is found in the ease with which its securities can now be sold at greatly reduced interest rates, according to the Upham report.

Three years ago the city was unable to sell 6 per cent bonds at par. On the last sale of a refunding bond issue the city obtained a large premium for 3½ per cent bonds. Tax warants issued in 1933 carried interest at the rate of 6 per cent but recently the city disposed of warants carrying a 1½ per cent rate.

Special Funds Now in Cash.

On April 13, 1933, when Mayor Kelly took office, the traction fund, largest of the city investment funds, amounted to $61,588,689, Upham's report shows. The fund was invested mainly in "frozen" assets, consisting largely of old tax warants for which no market then existed. This was true as well for various other funds, including the water and vehicle tax funds. These other funds had a total of $26,965,109 in unmarketable securities. All of the special funds, except the traction fund, are now entirely in cash as a result of the retirement or sale of the $26,965,109 securities.

Where the traction fund was almost completely tied up in unmarketable securities three years ago, two-thirds of it now consists of cash or marketable securities, the report states.

The traction fund has grown to $66,801,607, due to interest earned on investments. In addition, there is accrued interest of $2,800,000 on investments. Of the present total $7,052,516 is in cash, $36,551,440 in securities purchased in the last three years, and the balance of $22,697,650 in securities acquired prior to 1933.

43 Million Is Liquid.

All the securities purchased in the last three years, according to Upham, are marketable, making a total of at least $43,603,957 which is "liquid." Of the securities in the traction fund held when Mayor Kelly took office $38,891,039 were retired from tax collections or sold to investment houses.

In a discussion of bonds and tax warants, the report states that the bonded indebtedness of the city has been reduced more than $13,400,000 under Mayor Kelly's administration.

The report compares city taxes for 1930, which were in collection when Mayor Kelly took office, with those for the years from 1933 to 1936. The taxes for 1930 for ordinary expenses of operation amounted to $51,961,825. The 1933 tax, according to the report, showed a decrease of $20,217,000 from 1930; the 1934 tax, a decrease of $20,043,000; 1935, a decrease of $15,961,000, and the 1936 levy will be $14,961,000 smaller than in 1930. It points out that pay restorations were made in 1935 and 1936 and 500 additional policemen and 200 firemen added.

"Compared with the year 1930, city operations were carried on at a gross reduction in taxes of $56,221,000 for ordinary expenses from the time you became mayor in 1933 to 1935, inclusive," the report continues. "At the close of 1936, a total tax reduction of $71,182,000 will have been made."

EXILED CALLES GOES TO CALIFORNIA

Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, and the three former officials who were expelled with him "for the purpose of maintaining tranquility," photographed in Dallas, Tex., while on their way to California. WORKERS FIGHT TO SEIZE CALLES' HOME IN MEXICO

Demand Exile's Land "for Use of Proletariat."

MEXICO CITY, April 11.—(AP)—Fifty members of the General Confederation of Mexican workers attempted to seize the residence of Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, Mexico's former dictator, but were driven off by police and guards today.

Despite their failure, the federation members, with other labor unions, renewed their demands that the government confiscate the land holdings of Calles and other exiles and "dedicate them to the use of the proletariat."

Leftists Join Move.

Left wing members of the chamber of deputies also began a movement to expropriate the vast properties of the former "strong man of Mexico."

The newspaper El Universal said it had learned authoritatively the government had decided to place liens on the properties "to obtain funds to pay the indemnizations of the victims of activities of which the four exiles are accused."

The paper declared the determination was based on the law passed when Calles was president which "requires those responsible for rebel activities to pay for resulting damages."

Report Calles' Aids Seized.

Friends of Calles said they had learned that several score of his followers had been arrested and are being held at police headquarters. Authorities refused to confirm their statements.

Officials disclosed today the passenger train en route to Mexico City from Amecameca was fired on last night at La Campuerta in the state of Mexico and then derailed at Chalco, a few stations further on. The engine and a coach were overturned in the derailment, which was attributed to terrorists. None of the passengers or crew was injured.

Calles in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 11.—(AP)—Speeding to San Diego, Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, banished former president of Mexico, arrived late today by plane with three exiled aids. Wearied by his long flight from Mexico City, via Texas, the former "strong man" of his country's political affairs retired to a hotel to rest before proceeding to San Diego, where his daughter lives.

Calles, who blamed his exile to his opposition to communist tendencies, alighted with Luis Morones, former labor leader; former Minister of Agriculture Luis Leon, and Rafael Melchor Ortega, once governor of Guanajuato.

ROCKS OF MAINE STRIKE AGAINST QUODDY PROJECT

Won't Sustain Impounding of Tidal Waters.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Army engineers have found that the exclusive use of tidal power for the $36,000,000 Passamaquoddy project will run to a higher cost than original estimates indicated. They are understood to have recommended that a Diesel power plant be constructed to pump some of the water.

The tidal power plant undertaking is based on the assumption that water rushing in and out of a "high tide" basin, constructed with dams, will produce hydro-electric power. There comes a period at low tide, however, when the water movement is not sufficient to provide power.

Tides O. K.; Geology Balks.

Original army plans were to build a storage reservoir about 130 feet above sea level and use excess electrical energy. They were to be produced as the tides rose and fell to pump water into that reservoir. That stored water was to rush out to produce hydraulic energy during low tide. Engineers admitted today, however, that they had found sites for this projected reservoir were "geologically not good" and that construction of the reservoir therefore would cost more than expected. They said a Diesel plant would cost less to construct, although "somewhat more" to operate.

Other substitute plans, being considered by army engineers, include construction of a steam electric plant. Price estimates have already been obtained on that and, more unusual in view of the "yardstick" purpose of the unique undertaking, hook-ins with existing power lines.

Congress Balks at Plan.

Congress thus far has refused to appropriate the $9,000,000 requested by President Roosevelt, in addition to the initial $5,000,000 allocated for work on "Quoddy," and Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, gave "positive assurances" to the house appropriations committee yesterday that no funds from a new WPA appropriation would be used for tide harnessing.

This does not preclude the possibility, however, that President Roosevelt may make additional millions available from the present work relief appropriation, and army engineers said today:

"We have contracts all ready and are set to go ahead."

Governor Sees President.

Gov. Brann of Maine conferred today with the President at the White House, and presumably the future of Passamaquoddy was discussed. No pronouncement was made about the conference, however.

Suspect in Luer Kidnaping Seized with 3 Companions

Dallas, Tex., April 11.—[U. P.]—Lloyd [Blackie] Doyle, 37, of Kansas City, Mo., identified as a man under indictment for the August Luer kidnaping in Alton, Ill., three years ago, and three companions were arrested late today. The others, held for questioning, gave their names as Fred Wilmerson, 32, of Denver, Colo.; Doris Adams, 26, Topeka, Kas., and Lucille Norse, 26.

Hunt Stoll Kidnapers.

Pasadena, Cal., April 11.—(AP)—Detective A. C. Mansell of the Pasadena police disclosed today a Pasadena soda fountain manager had identified pictures of Thomas Henry Robinson Jr., sought for a Kentucky kidnaping, as a customer in his store Friday morning. Robinson is accused of kidnaping Mrs. Alice Stoll in Louisville, Ky., Oct. 10, 1934. Other customers noticed the grotesque makeup.

BIER OF CHRIST BORNE IN GREEK PARADE

Some 1,000 worshipers of the Greek Orthodox faith marched in Good Friday parade of St. Basil church, 733 South Ashland avenue. The picture was made at the intersection of Harrison and Halsted streets. Adoration of an effigy of the dead Christ is the chief feature of the Good Friday service, and the flower covered bier is shown in the picture. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HAGOOD CONFERS WITH ROOSEVELT FOR SHOWDOWN

Reinstatement Fight Won, Friends Think.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood conferred with President Roosevelt today for a showdown on his removal from command of the 8th corps area following Hagood's frank criticism of the WPA.

MAJ. GEN. JOHNSON HAGOOD.

After the conference Hagood said he had nothing to report on his case but said the White House might have something to say later. The White House cryptically reported that the war department would have an announcement, probably Monday.

Friends of the general interpreted the curt announcement as indicating Hagood was successful in his second attempt to have the President intercede for his reinstatement. The first attempt was made last March 23 as Mr. Roosevelt was speeding south on his fishing excursion.

Parley on Train Recalled.

The general rode with the President for two hours on that trip. As he left the special at West Palm Beach, Fla., it was announced that Gen. Hagood would take a three month leave of absence until a future assignment could be determined.

As this announcement continued the disciplinary action, which he holds to be unjust, Gen. Hagood sought and obtained a second interview. Arrangement for the interview was made by telegraph from Chicago, where Hagood had been for several days on business.

Gen. Hagood was relieved from his command early in February when Aubrey Williams, chief assistant to WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, protested to Secretary of War Dern against testimony given by Hagood before a house subcommittee last December.

Told He Could Talk Freely.

Hagood, who had been told he could speak freely by Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staf, attacked New Deal spending on boondoggling projects and termed WPA funds as "stage money," in the course of the attack, which roiled Hopkins.

As he left the White House today Hagood said he did not know whether he would see the President again. Pressed for a statement he said: "I am just in the position where I am not at liberty to say anything at all."

Mr. Roosevelt met the general after a morning devoted to the signing of forty-one bills, mostly of the claim variety. The President did not leave the White House for the executive offices. In the evening he continued work on the address he will deliver Monday at Baltimore before the Young Democrats of America.

The President plans to spend Easter Sunday quietly with his family after attending church services in St. Thomas Episcopal church.

INFURIATED NUDISTS WAR ON SALLY RAND AT SAN DIEGO FAIR

San Diego, Cal., April 11.—(AP)—Nudist pickets wearing sandwich boards strolled the exposition grounds today as war flared between Sally Rand, fan dancer, and the nudist colony.

Miss Rand has been brought here as a free exposition attraction and an ornate stage erected for her fan and bubble dances.

Led by militant Mary Pomeroy, raven-haired beauty, the embattled nudists avowed they will give Sally "a battle she will never forget."

Exposition police promised to see that no untoward disturbance took place.

So infuriated were the nudists after Sally snubbed the invitation of Queen Tanya to tea in the nudist colony that they rallied together and pondered ways of rebuking her.

ALL CHRISTENDOM UNITES 1ST TIME ON EASTER DATE

World Observance Today Viewed as Epochal.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

For the first time in 19 centuries the whole Christian world, by free choice, will observe Easter on the same calendar date today. Except for previous rare coincidences of variant calendar systems, various Christian groups through the ages have observed the occasion on different dates.

Past ages have witnessed bloody struggles over the date of Easter, Christendom's most ancient feast. The action of Christians in eastern lands in joining western Christianity in the date of Easter observance is considered a stride toward the long desired but still distant goal of ecclesiastical peace for all Christendom.

400,000 in Orthodox Groups Here.

Today is thus the day of resurrection for hundreds of millions of Catholic, Protestant, Lutheran, and Anglican Christians, and also for an almost equally impressive number of eastern or Greek Orthodox Christians in the Balkan states, near east, and Africa. There are about 400,000 Orthodox, or eastern Christians, in Chicago.

Interviews yesterday with theological professors, with priests of Orthodox and Russian churches, and with Peter S. Lambros, editor of the Greek Star, who expressed an Orthodox layman's view, disclosed many meanings to be derived from today's Easter union. Three meanings were pointed out:

1. It marks a final step toward settling a controversy which raged from the time Christianity emerged from its status as a small Jewish sect into a world faith. In early ages it was known as the Pascal or Easter date controversy. It was partially settled by Emperor Constantine in 325 A. D., only to reappear again under some other form to emphasize the rift between eastern and western Christianity.

Accord With Anglicans.

2. It foreruns what was described by Mr. Lambros as the greatest ecclesiastical merger of all time in the completion of accord between the Anglican church, of which the Episcopal church in America is a part, and Greek Orthodox Christianity.

3. It is a step which signalizes progress toward later calendar reform which now has tentative approval of most leaders of world faiths. The proposed calendar will set Easter each year on April 8, instead of having observances vary, year to year, from late March to late April.

The first Christian Easters were celebrated as Christian Passover feasts, according to the Jewish calendar, the 14th day of the month Nisan. But, according to church authorities interviewed yesterday, the first Christian controversy raged over the question of whether the Christian Passover should coincide with the Jewish Passover, or be held on the first Sunday, or Lord's day, thereafter.

Severance from Judaism.

As Christianity moved across the Roman empire, the new members of the church who were not familiar with Jewish traditions sought to sever themselves from Jewish customs. Those closer to Judaism strove for coincidence of the two Passovers. The conservatives lost to the newer Christian converts.

In June, 1937, a council composed of representatives of all Orthodox, Lutheran, Protestant, and Anglican churches will convene in Edinburgh, Scotland, to discuss calendar reform and other important matters. The proposed calendar will "set" Easter on April 8 just as Christmas now is set on Dec. 25 each year.

CHURCHES IN MOSCOW FILLED WITH CROWDS FOR EASTER SERVICES

MOSCOW, April 11.—(AP)—Easter services were conducted tonight without interference from the government or the communist party.

At the same time the tenth national congress of the Komsomol—the communist youth organization—met in the Kremlin to discuss moral issues and preparedness for defense of the country.

The 36 churches still functioning in Moscow were crowded, with the principal services scheduled for midnight, when there were to be the usual processions around the buildings after the announcement: "Christ is risen."

More than 1,000 delegates attended the Komsomol congress, which is expected to last ten days and may be addressed by Dictator Stalin. Recent efforts to increase respect for marriage vows and reduce the number of divorces are expected to come up for discussion. The congress will also discuss measures to popularize defense measures among the youth, concentrating on rifle practice, gas mask drills, horseback riding, parachute jumping, and glider flying. Delegations of Komsomols from the Asiatic war fleet and far eastern frontier guard are present.

GERMAN PARENTS TOLD TO PRODUCE MORE CHILDREN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 11.—German parents were called to task today by the official organ of Hitler Youth, "Young Germany," for failing to produce sufficient children for the fatherland. Three to four children for each family was the minimum demanded by this periodical.

Births in 1935 totaled 1,265,000, or 30 per cent more than in 1933, which had the low record. The periodical demanded a much larger increase in the birth rate in order to "preserve the German nation."

Liner Sky Chief Damaged by Accident on Runway

Columbus, O., April 11.—(AP)—The Transcontinental and Western Air westbound Sky Chief was damaged slightly and 14 passengers, including Johnnie Weissmuller, movie actor and swimmer, were shaken but uninjured tonight when the plane went off the edge of a runway during the takeoff.

Airport attendants said a wing dipped into the muddy field after a sputtering motor swung the plane around.

Ex-Merchant Indicted for Bankruptcy Fraud

Joseph Zegar, former owner of a women's clothing store at 340 East 43d street, was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on a charge of concealing $12,000 in assets in bankruptcy. Zegar is being held in New York, where he was seized two weeks ago while boarding a liner for Palestine. Judge Wilkerson set his bond at $10,000.

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, April 11.—(AP)—Coast guardsmen reported "nothing sighted" today in their hunt for the missing Seattle honeymoon flyers, Albert Almoslino and his bride, last seen Sunday flying from Seattle to Ketchikan. Several inlets remained to be searched.

PILGRIMS IN HOLY CITY SEE ANCIENT 'FIRE BLESSING'

Worshipers from Many Lands Throng Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, April 11.—(AP)—Under clear, sunny skies thousands of fervent pilgrims today witnessed the ancient ritual of "the blessing of fire" at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre as a prelude to Easter Sunday.

The ceremony ended a week of religious pageantry for the holy city. Worshipers from the far corners of the world mingled, visiting the familiar scenes of the gospels—the garden of Gethsemane, the tomb of Christ, and the palace of Pontius Pilate, where, more than 19 centuries ago the Man of Nazareth was ordered crucified.

Today, also, the Jewish population completed its celebration of Passover while white robed Moslem pilgrims started for Nebi Musa—the shrine of Moses, near Jericho—for their annual ceremony tomorrow.

Fewer Visitors in Rome.

ROME, April 11.—(AP)—Easter eve brought Rome only faint memories tonight of the days of yore when thousands of tourists and pilgrims flocked here to participate in the colorful and joyous commemoration of Christ's resurrection.

The influx fell far short of that which packed the city's hotels and tourist resorts in past seasons before economic and political woes stemmed the travel tide.

The greater part of the visitors came from Germany and Austria. There were fewer Americans than in some previous years, and almost no Britons.

Expect Usual Vatican Throng.

Despite this shrinkage in the city's transient population, Vatican City is certain to attract its usual Easter throng for the colorful mass in the Basilica of St. Peter.

Pope Pius, owing to his declining strength and the very small number of foreign pilgrims in Rome, will not continue tomorrow the old custom he resumed several years ago of celebrating the Easter mass in St. Peter's and giving his benediction to the city and the world from the outside balcony of St. Peter's after the mass.

Cardinal Pacelli, the high priest of the basilica, will say the mass, which will be broadcast, but the pope will simply say mass in his own private chapel and will not give his usual blessing.

Pope Will Hear Concert.

Afterward he will hear a concert by the band of the Palatine guard in the courtyard of San Damaso, and in the afternoon he will receive his immediate relatives in his apartment.

The Vatican City newspaper, Osservatore Romano, published "an Easter appeal to the nations," asking peace.

The newspaper declared: "Our dramatic world continues to exchange the cult of life for the cult of fire and force. From the rostrums and tribunes of public life the worshipers of fire repeat every day to the peoples their monotonous sermon—be strong.

"Force, placed above the laws of justice, has come to be the supreme law of history. The collapse of faith in treaties and the revival of sleeping national rancors has renewed the struggle for supremacy, and lack of confidence in the institutions of peace force law to be substituted by the law of force, keeping our world in a state of nerves and spiritual disconcertion."

MEXICANS HAIL EASING OF CHURCH BAN THIS EASTER

Services Will Attract Record Crowds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, April 11.—Easter celebrations in Mexico will be the most elaborate in many years. Although many Catholics claim that the new liberality the government has shown toward the reopening of churches still leaves much to be desired, the majority feel that any loosening up of the heretofore strict vigilance is worth celebrating.

A record crowd is expected at the shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe, just outside Mexico City, where rich and poor mingle indiscriminately on this day. Palm Sunday saw the cathedral jammed to the doors. It is expected many worshipers will be unable to enter tomorrow.

Throughout the republic reports say that churches have continued to open, although not in as spectacular manner as a few weeks ago when, in a spell of sudden enthusiasm, villagers battered down doors in an effort to enter churches that had been closed for some years. Many regions have already struck snags in the application of the clerical laws, which are state governed and therefore differ radically.

This accounts for the fact that in certain parts of the country, such as the states of Mexico, Tamaulipas, San Luis Potosi, and Jalisco, the inhabitants are permitted a far greater liberty to worship than in Tabasco, Vera Cruz, Campeche, and others that are still feeling the effect of severe laws passed by "Callista" governors during the years of 1926 and 1927, when Plutarco Elias Calles, who was then president, and his cabinet intensified the anti-clerical campaign throughout the country.

This Easter many churches which have recently reopened are planning special services. However, the number of priests legally permitted to officiate is still too limited to permit all of the churches whose doors are now open to function. Even so, this is felt to be a decided step forward toward the recovery of religious liberty. For that reason this Easter Sunday has a special significance in Mexico.

BORAH AND KNOX IN THE ILLINOIS PRIMARIES.

Two candidates for the Republican nomination for President are entered in the Illinois primaries April 14. They are Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and Col. Frank Knox, the publisher of the Chicago Daily News. Senator Borah, long the greatest individual force in the United States senate, entered a number of districts in the New York election of convention delegates and was unsuccessful. He asked for the support of Wisconsin and won 21 of the 24 district delegates. He now asks for instructed Illinois delegates.

Senator Borah is seventy-one years old. It can be said with truth in both statements that his age has highly qualified him for many most important works of statesmanship, both domestic and foreign, and also has caused many sincere Republicans to think of him as a man advanced beyond the time when he should undertake the responsibilities of the presidency. Older men than Senator Borah have been safe custodians of a nation's destiny in times almost as threatening as the present. Age is a question which hardly permits a dogmatic answer.

There are many friendly critics of Senator Borah who think of him as a brilliant, conscientious and able man, but one whose talents are best engaged in legislative rather than administrative work. He has by preference and temperament been a single-handed man. His achievements have been as the leader or the eloquent orator of smaller groups, or as the lone objector or lone champion. Although he has had many differences with the Republican party he has not done as the radicals in that party. He has not bolted. He has remained in it and is a Republican. It may be unfortunate that in his recent speeches he seems to be less interested in getting the nomination for himself than in beating any one who does.

It would have been to the best interest of the Republican party if the Illinois delegates could have gone to Cleveland uninstructed and free to vote at all times disinterestedly. However, the primaries were open and there are active candidates who want to make the best showing they can on the first ballot. Col. Knox is one of these as Senator Borah is another.

Col. Knox, although at first not unfriendly to Roosevelt and the New Deal, a defender on some issues, has become both as publisher and campaigner a vigorous critic. In his newspaper and on the platform he has upheld constitutional government and attacked the abuse of power by the rapidly growing dictatorship. Senator Borah has made a campaign not very persistent or with obvious continuity against organization politics. He is in his usual rôle of single-handed champion of ideas. Col. Knox, on the other hand, has organized his following and has sought the support of the politicians. This has brought him to the point where in Illinois his campaign is associated with names every reputable citizen has learned to distrust.

Men of bad name who disappeared from view when the Republican cause was at low ebb have taken advantage of the reviving Republican hopes to seek a rehabilitation of their own political fortunes. This is a rehabilitation which can be only a disaster in the state and it may involve the national Republican party in great embarrassments. If the electoral vote of Illinois is needed to elect a Republican President and these evil men are able to come back to the top in this state the continuance of the New Deal in Washington for another four years may be directly attributable to Illinois state Republican calamities.

Col. Knox has the support of these men and the fact cannot be overlooked. Former Gov. Len Small marks his ballots for Col. Knox. So do the thoroughly discredited and disreputable remnants of the Republican gang formerly in control of the city hall. Col. Knox may feel that he should accept support where he can get it and that he is not bound to deal with these men merely because they have turned to him. A national candidate never escapes his state origins and affiliations. A Tammany man in New York is a Tammany man in the Democratic national convention. A Tammany candidate is a Tammany candidate. The inference is not that he is divorced from the political influences which supported him, but is that he is wedded to them.

It is improbable that the Illinois primaries will have more than a passing influence on the roll calls in Cleveland. It would have been better, as has been said, if the votes were concerned not at all with candidates but with the character of and personality of the delegates themselves. The question presented to the Illinois Republican voters is primarily the character of the delegates and not the two candidates who have entered to secure the indorsement.

BROOKS FOR GOVERNOR.

Seven candidates ask for the Republican nomination for governor. Eight names appear, John G. Oglesby having delayed his withdrawal until it was too late to take his name off the ticket. It is a free field, and this year many politicians who would not have run for anything two years ago on a Republican ticket think well of the chances next November. The chances may depend entirely on the character of the nominations. It won't be a yellow dog election.

A fair minded and unprejudiced man would have difficulty in finding any reason for not voting to nominate Wayland Brooks. He is the exceptional young man in politics and his record in military, official, and civil life is admirable. He is the type of citizen that idealists sometimes speak of drafting for public life.

A field of seven presents complications and difficulties. Each candidate will get some votes. There is bound to be a wide spread in the returns and the majority of Republicans may not get what they really wanted. Their disappointment may be the result of not going to the best man.

There will be a rueful Republican party if it finds it has Len Small of Kankakee on its hands again. Republicans in other states will think the Illinois Republicans did them the worst turn possible if Mr. Small is nominated for governor here. Bad state tickets will make tough going for any Republican nominee for President. To a certain extent the Republicans of one state are dependent on the Republicans of another for the success of their fight against oppressive and subversive government. The New Deal's warant for four more years of depredations might be found, possibly, in the Republican nomination for governor in Illinois.

Wayland Brooks is the best qualified of the candidates for this nomination. The appeal is to public spirited voters to put Illinois out of doubt by nominating him. The party then can go into the November election with confidence and if it wins it will have a good governor.

GIFTS TO CHURCHES.

Gifts to Protestant churches have declined 43 per cent in the last eight years, a survey published by the Federated Council of Churches shows. Twenty-five denominations represented in the survey received some 227 millions less last year than they did in 1928.

To say that the decline in giving is traceable to the depression is not to tell the whole story. That explanation would have had a considerable validity at the beginning of 1933 which it lacks in 1936. The continuance of the depression during the last three years has placed continuing obstacles in the way of those who in happier circumstances would have renewed their gifts of former years to religion, but who has been responsible for the continuance of the depression?

The political preachers must bear their share of this blame. Mr. Roosevelt has nurtured the depression as his greatest political asset. The borers from within, who would make the churches an instrument for the achievement of a collective society, also view continued human misery as a powerful lever toward their ends.

Christian socialists who are trying to use religion to sabotage capitalism will charge that capitalism is attempting economic sabotage against religion in an attempt to silence its critics. This is logic tail-end-to. True, capitalism is contributing less to the churches because of the activities within the churches against capitalism. But its contributions are diminished, not as a measure of retaliation but because the socialists have already achieved some measure of success, and as a direct result there is less money to give.

The social folly of political preachers working for a system of government whose first act has always been to suppress political preaching, and whose policy, if not actively hostile to religion, is at best supremely indifferent to its welfare and progress, has already been remarked. Their economic folly in attempting the destruction of the system upon which they are dependent for support is now becoming manifest and will become more apparent if their present destructive successes increase.

BY FERRY TO MICHIGAN.

In the Graphic section this morning is an article on automobile ferries to which the attention of motorists and of specialists in transportation is directed. The writer, Mr. Harry Laird, THE TRIBUNE'S trafic manager, discusses a number of examples of modern automobile ferries and shows how the specially designed automobile ferry, like the car ferry which preceded it, is a natural response to a new requirement in transportation. The pictures of the Kalakala, the most advanced of the automobile ferries, are particularly interesting.

The article suggests that the operation of such a ship between Chicago and Benton Harbor would be of great service to this community and its motorists and could be highly profitable to the owners of the ship. The motorist who ran his car on the ferry would avoid a particularly unpleasant stretch of highway through the Calumet industrial district. He would be spared a great deal of trafic congestion and in exchange could enjoy a pleasant boat ride. If the boat were properly designed for speed, no time would be lost and the fare for automobile and passengers need not be much, if any, higher than the cost of operating a car to Benton Harbor.

LIBERTIES OF AN AMERICAN

V.

"Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act or on confession in open court.

"The congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture except during the life of the person attainted." [Constitution of the United States, article II., section 3.]

The scene is a street in London. A prisoner convicted of treason is going to his death. He is dragged over the cobblestones lashed to a hurdle, or rough sled. This in itself is a concession from the practice of an earlier and still more brutal time, when the condemned wretch was dragged directly over the ragged pavement, and frequently was lucky enough to reach the gallows dead.

At the place of execution he is hanged, but cut down while he still lives, revived and disemboweled. His body is cut into four pieces and his head and limbs exposed on pikes as a warning against his crime. His lands and property are forfeited to the king and his blood is corrupted, so that his children may not inherit from him or through him. This was the penalty George Washington and his patriots faced had they lost the revolution, for not until 1814 did England substitute simple hanging as the manner of execution for treason.

In the medieval state the king was the government. Upon his personal safety depended the security of life and property of his subjects, for nothing threw the country into worse confusion than a struggle for the throne. In providing such barbarous penalties for treason the law originally sought to protect the person of the king, and, through him, the security of the people.

But in medieval England such a wide variety of offenses were punished as treason that in 1352, under Edward III., parliament passed a statute defining the crime. One of these definitions emphasized the essentially personal nature of the offense in that day. In addition to compassing the king's death, levying war against him, and adhering to his enemies it was made treason to counterfeit his coinage. This was a survival of Roman law, under which falsifying the image of the emperor, who was a god, was sacrilege.

This idea of treason as a personal offense against the king was the root of the abuse of the charge. Autocratic rulers naturally failed to distinguish between the disloyalty which attempted their lives and the independence which disputed their privileges.

The spirit of the law was evaded in numerous ways. Parliament, in times of strife, extended the definition of treason, or, at the king's command, passed bills of attainder condemning men for treason whose only offense often was that they had disputed the prerogatives of the king.

As parliament began to assert its independence of the king, and the tradition of government by law became stronger in England, the king's judges came to his aid in punishing his enemies. They invented constructive treason—that is, they stretched the interpretation of the statute to embrace a much wider variety of acts than it was formerly thought to embrace.

Even if he escaped arbitrary condemnation by a bill of attainder, the man charged with treason faced a frightful ordeal in the courts. The king's judge bullied the jury and the defendant could not challenge its members for prejudice. Rumor and argument passed for evidence. The victim went to trial without knowledge of the specific charges against him, without counsel and without the privilege of compulsory process to call witnesses in his defense.

The spirit of the times was well reflected by the observation of an English mayor on hearing of a rare case in which a defendant was acquitted. Surprised, he exclaimed that the man would not have been brought to trial if he had not been guilty.

Our constitutional section on treason is distinctly a limiting section and as such a guarantee of one of the liberties of an American. James Madison, in the Federalist papers, gave the motives for its adoption as follows:

"As newfangled and artificial treasons have been the great engines by which violent factions, the natural offspring of free government, have usually wreaked their alternate malignity on each other, the convention have, with great judgment, opposed a barrier to this peculiar danger by inserting a constitutional definition of the crime, fixing the proof necessary for conviction of it and restraining the congress, even in punishing it, from extending the consequences of guilt beyond the person of the author."

Madison's prediction of the factional use of treason was borne out within a few years. The notorious Aaron Burr recruited a force of men on the Ohio and floated them down the Mississippi toward New Orleans, where the affair ended in a bloodless fiasco. His purpose is not clear to this day, but historians hold it more probable that he intended an invasion of Spanish territory than a rebellion against the United States.

President Jefferson and his partisans, political enemies of Burr, raised a terrific uproar for the death of the "traitor." When the courts were about to free two of Burr's supposed accomplices on writs of habeas corpus we find Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence, demanding that congress suspend the writ.

Burr himself was tried for treason in Virginia, with the great Chief Justice Marshall hearing the trial. In the face of open threats by Jefferson's prosecutors that he would be impeached if Burr were not sent to the gallows he rendered an opinion on the sufficiency of the evidence which made acquittal by the jury virtually certain.

The indictment charged that Burr had levied war against the United States by collecting an armed force on the western border of Virginia. But Burr, when the force gathered, had been in Kentucky. The chief justice held that the evidence was insufficient to prove an overt act in the manner required by the constitution and that the pernicious English doctrin of constructive treason had no place in American law.

The rage of President Jefferson and his partisans against the chief justice and the Supreme court, during the trial and subsequently, made the recent fulminations of President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace seem mild by comparison.

But Marshall had established the precedent that the charge of treason shall not be used in the United States as a weapon by a political faction and the Supreme court has never found it necessary to restate the principle. It was violated in 1851 when the pro-slavery national administration procured indictments against Pennsylvania violators of the fugitive slave law, on the ground that any defiance by physical force of a federal statute was treason, but the jurors of the state made an appeal to the court unnecessary by acquitting the defendants.

Further discussions of the liberties which are guaranteed Americans by the constitution will appear in these columns from time to time.

MOTOR CAR INJURIES OFTEN DECEIVING.

BECAUSE of our failure to make "the punishment fit the crime," recklessness on the part of motor car drivers continues. There is an utterly unexplainable apathy on the part of the public in supporting courts and law enforcement officials to the end that murder on the streets shall cease.

Trafic accidents may destroy life instantly or cause potentially fatal injuries resulting from sudden, sharp blows on unprotected or but slightly protected parts of the body.

Attention should be called to the frequency of severe damage to the organs within the chest and the abdomen as a result of blows that may appear at first to be insignificant. No one can determine the extent of the destruction of underlying organs by the appearance of the surface of the body. The skin may be unbroken and unbruised, and yet a careful examination may reveal a rupture of the intentine, a torn spleen, a lacerated kidney, or a rent in the bladder. Even tears of the stomach or the liver are found now and then.

Should a rupture occur within the abdomen the chief symptom is shock. This may follow even slight blows—if the patient is in a very sensitive nervous balance. Extreme pallor, a cold skin, and weakness are characteristic symptoms. If shock exists it is the first symptom to be combated. Every physician knows what to do, but even before he arrives heat can be applied and the patient made as comfortable as possible. If it is necessary to move the victim the gentlest sort of manipulation should be carried out. As soon as facilities permit the assistance of the X-ray should be enlisted.

A tear in a loop of bowel is not at all uncommon following a blow against the abdominal wall. If the intestine is fairly empty symptoms may be delayed for several hours. The temperature is usually below normal, but as recovery from shock occurs the fever rises with the development of peritonitis, which will set in rather quickly unless prompt repair is undertaken. Sometimes the condition may be recognized because of the marked rigidity of the muscles. In this way nature signals that she is trying to protect something that has been hurt. Vomiting is another important sign, as is blood appearing via the rectum.

While it takes a rather forceful blow to rupture a normal spleen, a diseased spleen—one that is soft or enlarged—is easily torn. An individual who gives a history of malaria covering several years probably has a spleen that has been damaged. Injury to this organ presents an emergency, as it is usually accompanied by a profuse hemorrhage.

The following report of a recent case is typical of thousands. A young man was seated in his automobile waiting for a stoplight to change. His car was struck suddenly from the rear by an oncoming motor and he was thrown forcibly against the steering wheel. Apparently uninjured, he explained to the trafic officer that he felt as though he had had the "wind knocked out of him." After a few minutes' rest he drove to his place of business.

An hour or so later it was noted by his fellow workers that he appeared unusually pale. On examination, no abrasion or bruise of the skin was found but merely a sharply reddened area marking the impact of his body against the lower rim of the steering wheel. He was taken to a hospital where it was found that the abdomen was slightly distended and the muscles of the upper portion rather more rigid than normal. Fortunately a skilled physician was at hand, who interpreted accurately the symptoms of internal hemorrhage. On opening the abdomen a large tear in the principal vein of the spleen was discovered. Although recovery occurred finally it was touch and go for several days despite numerous blood transfusions.

We must regard blows on the abdomen as deserving of as much care and attention as those on the head. In fact, it is far wiser to err on the safe side. Quiet for 24 hours following an accident should be the rule regardless of the protestations of the patient and the seemingly minor nature of the injury.

SENSITIVE TONGUE.

M. S. writes: For about two months my tongue has been very sensitive and my breath bad. I have been to a physician a few times, but he tells me there is nothing to worry about. He said there is a slight infection and advised me to use sodium perborate. I am worried.

REPLY.

Inflammations of the tongue arise from the same causes as inflammations elsewhere, but among the special causes may be noted digestive disturbances. Your bad breath may be caused by food débris on the tongue or about the teeth. If examination by your physician has not disclosed a serious condition there is nothing for you to worry about.

GOLD FOR ARTHRITIS.

J. S. writes: Some time ago you mentioned the use of some solution of gold in the treatment of arthritis. What is the present attitude of physicians as to the value of this remedy?

REPLY.

In France particularly gold is highly regarded as a remedy in arthritis. J. Forestier of Aix les Bains reports on 550 cases treated with gold, of which 400 responded well. Seventy per cent of the total number were recent cases. The remainder had existed for two or more years. The solution used is known as allocrysine, which contains about 35 per cent of the metal. Other solutions have been used, particularly crisalbine, which is sodium gold thiosulphate. Good effects claimed involve [1] the relief of pain, [2] reduction of swelling about the joints, [3] increased joint movement.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY FLOYD FANGEL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Tied to a cross, a boy of 13 was recently flogged on his bare back for having stolen three pieces of cheese from a store at Hull. This sentence was administered by a court official in the presence of two police officers.

This is one of many cases where the "birch" and the "cat" have been used for punishing children and criminals who have committed crimes of violence. Two days before this a boy of 8 received six strokes at Windsor from a policeman with a government birch.

Not only does this form of punishment still exist in both the British army and navy but the methods are championed by numbers of judges and magistrates all over the country as the most effective means of deterring juvenile and habitual offenders.

This attitude was explained by Cecil Bishop, former officer at Scotland Yard:

"The secret is that it hurts," he said, "and all men who use violence are naturally afraid of their own skins.

"I once saw a man recently freed from prison after serving a term of penal servitude and receiving 20 lashes with a 'cat.' This man had a terrible record of crime extending over 20 years, but this was the first time he had been flogged. He assured me that he had had enough of crime, that he would rather commit suicide than have another 'bashing,' and that he meant to lead an honest life in the future."

Mrs. Baldwin, wife of Great Britain's prime minister, has stated that she considers the "cat" to be the only way to prevent assaults on young girls.

Supporters of these types of corporal punishment have long been active in the attempt to obtain for judges and magistrates the discretionary power of imposing such sentences on motor bandits, blackmailers, and those brought up for rape and other crimes in which arms or violence have been used.

The opposition is equally active, led mainly by the Howard League for Penal Reform and supported by many prominent individuals and groups urging more humane treatment of criminals. They claim that the lawbreaker does not have a proper chance to be a useful citizen under the present scheme of social relations, what with the filth and poverty of the tenement sections and the wide "depressed" areas.

They stress the fact that flogging is unequal in its effect upon the culprit. The physical effects vary greatly in degree, and still more varied are the far more momentous psychological effects.

Hurling the insults of "barbarians" and "sadists" at their opponents the anti-floggers bring out statistics to show that the use of the "birch" and the "cat" is not effective as a deterrent. They cited the cases of two English towns where 38 per cent of the boys who had been birched reappeared in court within six months, and 76 per cent within two years.

Flogging also creates a definite feeling of resentment which may well develop vengeful instincts leading into criminal lines, they assert.

Nevertheless, the use of the rod is increasing rapidly. Magistrates all over England are announcing that if there is no decrease in juvenile offenses and crimes of violence they will impose sentences for corporal punishment with ever increasing frequency and rigidity.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Riverside, Ill., April 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—On May 7, 1935, my father, a resident of California since 1912, died. I have reason to believe I was mentioned in his will. The situation is complicated by the fact that he divorced my mother and about five years ago remarried. This marriage produced one child, a daughter. I received a clipping from a Los Angeles paper announcing "notice of hearing of petition for probate of will" addressed to me in my full legal name. I would like to find out what is being done and who the administrator is. 1. What steps should I take to get this information? 2. How can I know that my interests are being protected? 3. Should I have heard from the court or from the administrator before this time? 4. Should a copy of the will have been sent me by the court or administrator? 5. If not, how can I obtain a copy? 6. Can I obtain a statement of what his net assets are? 7. From whom and when? R. T. D.

1. Write to the clerk of the court named on your notice and ask him to specify his charges for sending you a copy of the will.
2. The first step would be to obtain a copy of the will, so as to see whether you have any interest.
3. Not necessarily.
4. Same.
5. See 1.
6. After an inventory has been filed you could obtain a copy from the clerk of the court by paying him.
7. See 6.

PROBATE PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, April 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother died intestate in Illinois in 1932, leaving unimproved land in Texas. 1. What procedure must I follow to administer the estate? 2. Will procedure be in Texas or Illinois? My father is dead and there are six children in the family, three in Illinois, one in Iowa, one in Colorado, and another in Texas. J. W. S.

1. Probate proceedings would be necessary in order to produce a title which a contract purchaser would be forced to accept. For this reason you should employ an attorney.
2. Technically, the primary probate should be in Illinois, but you can leave these questions to the attorney whom you employ.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, April 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died in October, 1935, and left a joint deed to the home which was in his and my mother's name; also about $6,000 in mortgages. I am the only child and my name was not mentioned in the will. 1. Could I break this will for the money? 2. Is there any set time in filing a will in Chicago? 3. Would there be inheritance tax on property and mortgages? P. G.

1. In order to break the will you would have to show undue influence or a lack of testamentary capacity.
2. No, in the sense that in some cases probate can be entirely dispensed with.
3. The exemption to a wife would be $20,000 worth.

THE GRINNELL JOB HUNT.

Chicago, April 8.—I am directing a "vocational discovery" course at Grinnell college, 300 miles from Chicago, out of which came the organized job hunt which recently brought 27 seniors on a spring vacation trip to seek employment in Chicago as of June, when they graduate. The group met for breakfast daily for four days to exchange experiences, kept 120 appointments previously made by alumni. Over half were offered employment. All got good leads to be followed up later.

I sympathize with the difficulties of "Unemployed," one of your readers who protests that Chicago jobs should be kept for Chicagoans and that the invasion of outsiders merely means fewer jobs for local residents. But I do not agree with him.

To say that some of the Grinnell seniors already live in Chicago, while true, would be the same as admitting that the place of their residence has any bearing on the case. It does not. This is a free country. One of the things that has made it great is that men and women have had full liberty to go and come throughout the land as they pleased. We have done lots of foolish things, but we have not as yet gone in for inbreeding, or for tarifs or other artificial barriers between states.

Jobs are not fixed in number. They are variable, depending largely on variables in human beings. An employer may debate with himself for months whether or not to undertake some new activity that requires increasing his pay roll. A man comes along who looks as if he could do it. The employer takes the plunge, hires him, and thus brings into being a job that did not exist before.

If there are in an organization men of imagination, resourcefulness, initiative, and courage, that organization undertakes things that might not otherwise be undertaken. New jobs for unemployed men result.

In Chicago today there are potential new jobs by the tens of thousands. The trouble is that those of us who are now here do not have the getup, ingenuity, energy, and force of character to figure out ways to surmount numerous obstacles, financial and otherwise, that now prevent the initiation of useful work that ought to be done.

One of the reasons why we are bewildered and ineffective is that we were educated to be that way. Most of us had a passive rather than an active type of education. We sat in seats and took it in. What the book or the teacher said we believed, memorized, and repeated faithfully the next day. Our education lacked force.

Fortunately schools and colleges today are moving ahead in spite of the efforts of wrongly educated adults to retard them. The more power to them in whatever they do to awaken in young people creative and adventuring qualities! Right today the elementary schools of Chicago are doing things, little known to most Chicago citizens, to develop in small children initiative, self-reliance, and imagination that will make them effective workers and citizens in later life. Colleges, like Grinnell, are pioneering with unorthodox ventures, like job hunts in distant cities, that tend to stimulate the adventurous, daring, pioneer spirit in young people.

One of the greatest adventures in life is to cut loose from home ties, go out into the world and seek one's fortune. If those of us who are already here, having the advantages that come from being on the ground first, can't hold our own against these young invaders, it is because they have something to offer that we lack. Let them go to work—if they are men and women enough to find work to do. Maybe after a few years some of us older folks will be working for them at jobs now nonexistent, which will be brought into being because they find ways to initiate useful activities that we do not yet know how to do.

JOHN H. MILLAR.

THE NEW PROHIBITION.

Chicago, April 6.—Roosevelt's Wall Street Record, which you published as a feature in last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE, should be framed and hung in every bank and investment house so that investors in securities may know the source of the new form of prohibition—prohibition in the security field—which promises to develop more scoundrels than ever did liquor prohibition. Securities will always be bought and sold and the ruinous restrictions thrown around this legitimate business by the New Deal are already resulting in trickery to evade unreasonable and oppressive laws.

As every security salesman knows, it is a practical impossibility to transact an investment business under the New Deal without breaking the law. Today the law is being broken because it stands in the way of legitimate transactions in honest securities. Tomorrow the evasion of the law will have the same effects it had in liquor prohibition; it will invite into the security business scoundrels who want to profit by law evasion.

The investment house which has always conducted its business with the highest regard for the investor's best interests, and there are many which have, and the self-respecting salesman whose first care has always been to serve his client well may now realize, thanks to THE TRIBUNE, that the difficulties which beset their path and services were instigated by a man who indulged in speculation of the most questionable type. Was there ever anything rottener than the gambling in German marks? How inspiring that our great leader used his name to invite the unwary to indulge in it.

JOHN DRISCOL.

POSTAL AND TELEPHONE SERVICES.

Chicago, April 3.—Your column printed an article by Mr. Emerson T. Anthony in which he tried to draw the contrast between the postal department and the American Telephone and Telegraph company, stating that though the former is running its business "in the red" and the latter distributing millions of dollars to its stockholders, yet the postal agency of the government is presuming to tell the A. T. and T. how to run its business. And this, Mr. Anthony calls "a new high in absurdity."

He forgets, though, that Uncle Sam will deliver his letter to any part of this country or to its possessions for 3 cents only. If the said company were to do it or any other private corporation, on the basis of their long distance service charges, the costs would run into dollars. So, if there is any absurdity at all it is in Mr. Anthony's reasoning, and before such as he try to turn critics they should stop to think a little.

Besides, are the working conditions of employés of private companies at all comparable to employés of the postal service?

BARE HULL VIEW CHANCES 10 TO 1 AGAINST A WAR

Senate Committee Makes Statement Public.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, testifying before the senate foreign relations committee last January, said the chances were "9 out of 10" that there would be no general war.

He added, however, that the United States should not permit other countries to gain the "false impression that we will not fight." These things were revealed today when the transcript of those committee hearings was made public. Some revisions, however, had been made by Mr. Holt, it was said, to avoid misunderstandings by foreign governments.

Talks During Neutrality Hearing.

Secretary Hull was testifying in connection with the neutrality legislation then pending and subsequently enacted, prohibiting the shipment of arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerents, as well as restricting loans and credits to warring nations.

Secretary Hull's testimony was given in the midst of the international controversy over the application of league of nation sanctions against Italy and at a time when Japan's activities in China were menacing. That testimony far preceded the more recent crisis precipitated by Germany's denunciation of the Locarno treaty and Hitler's remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Stressing the contention that the last thing the state department wished to do was jeopardize the situation, the secretary declared that "it is a very serious period we are going through."

Team Work Against War.

"The chances are 9 out of 10," Mr. Hull said, "that there will be any such [general] war, but it is a very serious period, when team work here, to the extent that it is consistent, is of the utmost importance. All of us, in such a rush, cannot realize the importance of this nation having a real moral standing in the world at this time. If we create the impression that we are too extreme in either direction, we can get into trouble—this means either extreme nationalism or extreme internationalism. Some countries might gain the false impression that we will not fight, and we do not wish to run the risk of being imposed upon by reason of any such false impression."

New World Since 1914.

Secretary Hull said the whole field of international law, international usage and international agreements had undergone a change since 1914, particularly with respect to neutral rights in time of war. The Declaration of London, made in 1909, he explained, contained a list of contraband, conditional contraband and free goods.

That declaration was not considered as having any binding force in the world war.

Referring to what Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] termed "empirical" legislation, Secretary Hull said:

"It was not the intention to make any permanent change, unless future conditions should call for it, in the policy, for instance, in regard to the freedom of the seas, but only to allow the presidential discretion to withhold diplomatic protection when the nation is about to be drawn into war.

"That is a term that is very euphonious and one that we have made our slogan in a number of past years. As a matter of fact, a very able gentleman came into the office the other day and said, 'Now, we have abandoned all the freedom of the seas.' I said, 'In the first place, the laws that gave us rights to the freedom of the seas were largely ignored during the war. They are rather quiescent now. In the second place, all arms, ammunition, or implements of war are contraband per se, and under international law any of our nationals carrying them to belligerents did so at their own risk. They were subject to capture.'"

Feature Never Adopted.

The secretary was then speaking of the proposal, which never became law, to permit the President, in his discretion, to restrict exports of raw materials to belligerent nations. Another proposal, also rejected, was to limit by statute the export of such materials to normal quotas. The secretary indicated his skepticism of any such legislation as follows:

"Must the President, as soon as he hears of a war between two little countries, countries not affecting us in the slightest, put on the whole embargo without discretion? Must he put an embargo on everything? That sort of an arrangement made in advance of knowledge of what the war is going to be, or what kind of conditions or what kind of commodities will be involved, would, in my opinion, be unwise."

Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said yesterday he would appear tomorrow before the grand jury to seek a murder indictment against Mrs. Betty Martin, who shot and killed her husband, Andrew, in a tavern at 938 East 43d street Thursday night. A coroner's jury recommended Friday that Mrs. Martin be held for murder.

Interviewed in her cell in the County jail yesterday, the blonde Mrs. Martin sobbed as she told of the love she bore her husband. When she received a letter from him Wednesday telling her he was through, Mrs. Martin said "everything went black."

ITALY TO ORDER SLAVES FREED IN ETHIOPIA TODAY

Emancipation Affects All Conquered Areas.

ASMARA, Eritrea, April 11.—(AP)—An announcement abolishing slavery throughout the Ethiopian territories occupied by the Italian armies will be posted tomorrow on tree trunks and house walls. This was announced tonight.

400 Ethiopians Killed.

ROME, April 11.—(AP)—Marshal Pietro Badoglio reported today that 400 Ethiopian defenders were killed in a battle between Emperor Haile Selassie's regular troops and rebellious Azebo and Galla native tribesmen on the northern front.

"While national and Eritrean troops were pursuing movements carrying out our plan of operations, Azebo and Galla warriors south of the Cormat river again reached and defeated the Ethiopian rear guard," the Italian commander in chief said in his communique.

"In the encounter, the enemy left on the ground more than 400 dead. Arms and munitions were taken, and an entire column of quadrupeds was captured."

Denies War Law Violation.

Premier Mussolini told the league of nations today the Italian army in Ethiopia is observing the laws of war. His statement was in reply to the league's appeal to Italy and Ethiopia requesting both nations to avoid violation of international agreements on the conduct of war.

[Both Italy and Ethiopia have protested to the league of nations, the former against alleged use by the Ethiopians of dumdum bullets and the latter against Italian use of poison gas.]

Ethiopia Protests Delay.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, April 11.—(AP)—Ethiopia protested today to the league of nations against the delay in peace negotiations of the conciliation committee of 13, declaring the committee had had five weeks to achieve some results.

Eden Returns to London.

LONDON, April 11.—(AP)—Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, came home from Geneva today to confer with other cabinet ministers on the international situation.

He traveled by airplane through a snowstorm and after his arrival at Lympne went directly to the home of Sir Philip Sassoon, undersecretary of state for aviation.

ITALY ADMITS INTELLECTUALS ARE BEING JAILED

ROME, April 11.—(AP)—Officials announced today that 10 Piedmont intellectuals, headed by Prof. Michele Giua, have been arrested on charges of forming an association to overthrow the state.

Seven of the 10 were convicted and sentenced to prison and three were acquitted. Prof. Giua was given a ten year prison sentence.

[This confirms a dispatch from The Chicago Tribune's Paris bureau on April 7 which reported the imprisonment of Prof. Giua and other intellectuals for opposition to Mussolini's policies.]

POLICE SET TRAP FOR KIDNAPER OF PAUL H. WENDEL

New York, April 11.—(AP)—A hundred uniformed policemen and plain clothes patrolmen tonight surrounded two apartment houses near Dyckman street and Broadway in search for the alleged leader of a band which Paul H. Wendel, Trenton, N. J., claims kidnaped him and forced from him a "confession" of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Police were stationed in stores and restaurants in the vicinity watching entrances to the buildings and subway exits.

It was reported that the superintendent of a building had spotted the suspect and notified police, but that he had slipped away before they arrived. The search was continued on the theory he still was in the neighborhood.

"The guy we're after is plenty tough," said one officer. "There's a seven-state alarm out for him right now."

SHOT IN STREET FIGHT.

James Clay, 18 years old, colored, 4102 St. Lawrence avenue, was shot critically yesterday by John Mitchell, 17 years old, colored, 557 East Oakwood boulevard, in a street affray. He was taken to the County hospital.

HITLER TO REVIVE MILITARY POMP FOR HIS BIRTHDAY

Will Be 47 on April 20; Army to Salute Him.

BERLIN, April 11.—(AP)—Military pomp and splendor reminiscent of the heyday of the kaiser will, for the first time, attend Reichsfuehrer Hitler's 47th birthday on April 20.

Although the German public does not know it, the entire diplomatic corps has already been advised there will be a big parade which they have been invited to view.

Military pomp takes on added significance this year since Hitler has reëstablished compulsory military service in Germany and has placed troops back into the long demilitarized Rhineland.

Spends Easter in Bavaria.

The propaganda ministry announced Der Fuehrer had gone to Bavaria for the Easter holidays to be in conference with Joachim von Ribbentrop, his confidential ambassador who recently returned from the parleys in London which developed over Germany's actions in the Rhineland.

A spokesman for the foreign office left the impression that Hitler might not return to Berlin until after his birthday which he usually celebrates in some quiet spot away from the capital. Diplomats, however, could not imagine the promised military demonstrations taking place without the presence of the commander in chief.

Plan Giant Parade.

Diplomats said the troops would march down Charlottenburg Chaussee, a broad thoroughfare through the Tiergarten which connects the fashionable Avenue Unter den Linden and historic Brandenburg gate with the western sections of Berlin and leads in a straight line to the stadium in the Olympic village.

The only intimation the average citizen has of the unusual events impending is the fact that the Charlottenburg Chaussee is being lined with extensive grandstands against a background of green trees. Workers erecting the grandstands merely shrug their shoulders when asked about the purpose of the stands. They profess they know nothing about them.

INTEREST AND BOREDOM AT CIRCUS

The candid cameraman found this young fellow so intent on observing the opening performance of the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus at the Chicago Stadium yesterday that he was scarcely aware of the "candy cotton" in his hand. The girl, however, was so uninterested, at least for the moment, that she broke into a yawn. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

CIRCUS IS HERE WITH EVERYTHING BUT CANVAS TOP

Three Week Run Opens at Chicago Stadium.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Calliopes blared and children stared as the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus opened a three week run at the Chicago Stadium yesterday.

All the beloved accoutrements of an old-fashioned circus were in the two and a half hour program, from gilded chariots to the ringmaster's vocabulary. The men performers executed "death defying feats," the women were "queens of grace and daring," and circus goers were content.

Jumbo's There, Too.

There was Cliff Thompson, 8 feet 6 inches in height, "the tallest man in the world," who trod majestically around the sawdust arena followed by a retinue of Nubian slaves. Behind him came Jumbo II., the mighty "streamlined" African elephant, newly recruited from the Congo.

There were the "human butterflies," girls who, suspended by their teeth from a ring, twirled in a butterfly dance high in the air, and Mlle. O'Del, "queen of aerial gymnasts," who cast her small body, gay in spangled red satin, over her shoulder 50 times in midair. And, too, the great Flores, who balanced himself on his head at the top of a 85 foot steel pole, while the audience stared at the slender, swaying shaft.

Clowns 'n' Everything.

Every variety of clown was there, from the amiable strutter on stilts to those two masters of the impassive face and quiet buffoonery, Otto Griebling and Emmett Kelly.

And then there was, of course, Clyde Beatty, lithe animal trainer, on whose cage of 19 snarling lions and 10 tigers all lights were focused.

One of the thrilling feats was that of "Suicide" Tex Elder, who stood on two horses and jumped them over a flaming automobile.

QUINTUPLETS GET SPRING FINERY AS EASTER GIFT

CALLANDER, Ont., April 11—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets will celebrate Easter Sunday as thousands of other young ladies—all dressed up in spring finery.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe, their physician, said today his little charges have whole new outfits—hats, coats, dresses, shoes, stockings. The eggs they will eat for breakfast have no special Easter significance.

Easter cards and gifts, including toy bunnies and chickens, have arrived at the quintuplets' hospital home from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Orient Farmer Kills Self; Fires Bullet Into Heart

Benton, Ill., April 11.—[Special.]—James Haggard, 73, farmer, residing near Orient, committed suicide today by firing a charge from a shotgun into his heart. Ill health was assigned as the cause.

STUDENT CLAIMS SOCIETY COUPLE STARTED FIGHT

Berkeley, Cal., April 11.—(AP)—Flying fists at the door of an apartment where a party was in progress brought a battery complaint today against William Davey, 23, son of Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr. of Chicago, and his wife, Alice, 20. She is the daughter of Herbert E. and Mary Hastings Bradley of Chicago, writers and big game hunters.

Bert Eugene Graves, 26, University of California graduate student, signed the complaint in the district attorney's office. Graves went to the hospital last night with face contusions and a wrenched shoulder.

Patrolman John A. Ogden reported he found the fight over when he arrived, but was told by Graves the Daveys had tried to "crash" the party.

The policeman said H. E. Sweeting, a guest, related that Davey finally was put out by another guest, Richard C. Newmeyer, 27, an English teacher from Bakersfield, Cal.

JOHN PROVES HE CAN PICK LOCKS, BUT THAT'S ALL

When his skill as a locksmith was called into question yesterday by two friends, John Pagach, 16 years old, 7749 Avalon avenue, was irritated. Like the late King Louis XVI. of France, John had neglected nearly all the other arts and sciences to become a real locksmith.

"I'll show you," he said to the friends, Tony Handler, 14 years old, 908 East 92d place, and Albert Cioppone, also 14, 7721 Avalon avenue. "Pick out an automobile with the doors all locked and I'll open it up and take you for a ride."

Tony and Al chose one that was standing at 79th street and Kenwood avenue. In about three minutes John had picked the lock and they were all sitting inside. They started away, with John at the wheel. Almost immediately it became apparent that he lacked general knowledge of automobile stealing. He didn't know how to stop the car, and it continued in an erratic course until it crashed into a light post at 93d street and Stony Island avenue.

Some policemen came along and took John and his friends into custody. They were locked up last night at the Juvenile detention home.

'HUNGER MARCH' TO WHITE HOUSE; WANT 6 BILLIONS

Radicals Fail to Obtain Roosevelt Parley.

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—About 600 "hunger marchers," members of the newly formed Unemployed Workers' Alliance, singing, shouting, and waving banners, paraded for miles here today with a police guard. They wanted to present a demand to President Roosevelt at the White House; they succeeded in seeing Vice President Garner at the capitol. They demanded 6 billion dollars relief appropriation for next year.

Whites and colored men, and women, some clad in well fitting overcoats and natty Easter hats, others in tatters, chanted: "To hell with President Roosevelt, we want jobs," as they approached the White House.

There a delegation, headed by David Lasser, president of the organization, presented their demands to Marvin McIntyre for the President. McIntyre is one of the secretaries.

Shout and Carry Banners.

Those who marched to the White House sang improvised songs. They carried banners such as:

"Give the bankers home relief; we want jobs!"

At the head of the procession was a huge blue banner bearing the inscription, "Workers' Alliance of America." Those farther back carried a red flag, on which was inscribed, "Workers' Alliance of Greater New York." Numerous small placards bore such inscriptions as:

"Slaves will not be killed," "We demand employment insurance," "Pass the Marcantonio bill" [a 6 billion dollar relief bill introduced by the New York City representative].

One young girl carrying the first banner was identified as a student in the Corcoran Gallery Art school and daughter of an operator of a women's apparel shop on fashionable Connecticut avenue.

Lasser Annoyed by McIntyre.

Lasser declared after spending 30 minutes with the President's secretary: "Mr. McIntyre gave us a lot of nice words, but nothing substantial. If nothing is done to give these people jobs there will be a hunger march on Washington next summer in which hundreds of thousands will take part. We are tired of Mr. Roosevelt's promissory notes."

On the march to the capitol marchers from New York, delayed at Bel Air, Md., had joined the ranks. Permission to enter the capitol grounds en masse was denied and Lasser made a speech urging groups visit the delegates from their home states to press their demands. He thereupon led the delegation which called upon Vice President Garner.

"The jobless feel that we have been sold out by the Democratic party." Lasser declared, in presenting a petition.

"I resent that," snapped the Vice President, reddening. "I have been in politics for 40 years and I don't think anybody has ever been sold out by the party."

20 Million on Relief.

As the marchers, who have been in convention here several days, assembled, the WPA disclosed that the nation's relief rolls stand at an estimated 20 million persons, as many as a year ago when the New Deal started its 4 billion 880 million dollar boondoggling program.

WPA statistics showed that 14,137,502 individuals are now living off the government's 3,820,946 leaf raking jobs. Officials estimated that 5,750,000 more are receiving relief from their communities, placing the "on relief" total at 20 million. Last year on April 1 the government was feeding 20,028,270 persons through the federal emergency relief administration.

PUSH ROUNDUP OF MAIL BOMB PLOT SUSPECTS

Fingerprints Found on Death Missils.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 11.—(AP)—Fingerprint, handwriting, and dynamite experts pursued a three way investigation tonight in a search for terrorists who mailed death in Easter packages.

The death of one man and maiming of four by dynamite bombs brought orders for a general roundup of suspects in this anthracite valley, periodically ridden by labor strife. Postoffice inspectors said "many were questioned in a process of elimination." Two men were detained, though not under arrest, city police said.

J. W. Johnston, chief postoffice inspector at Philadelphia, disclosed that fingerprints were found on the lethal packages. Four of the six boxes failed to explode.

Labor Trouble Blamed.

The nature of the murderous mailing list supported a general belief that the bomb deaths were traceable to smoldering labor trouble. Tension had been eased in the region for a year with the virtual dissolution of the United Anthracite Miners, a union organized by Thomas Maloney in opposition to the United Mine Workers of America.

Maloney, his daughter, Margaret, 17, and 4 year old son were injured seriously, the son dying tonight. Maloney may lose his sight. His daughter will recover.

Another bomb killed Michael Gallagher, 70, cemetery sexton, and maimed his son-in-law, Clinton Lehman, 37. Lehman lost one eye.

Marked for Death.

Luzerne county authorities said they were convinced Gallagher was marked for death and was not a victim of a bungled address, as at first supposed. It was pointed out that he and Maloney were close friends and he had testified against dynamiting suspects and reported thefts of explosives from the cemetery.

Judge Benjamin R. Jones, who sentenced several men for bomb outrages in mine strike disorders, was another on the death list. His package did not explode. Luther Kniffen, who was sherif during the labor disturbances in recent years and a mine superintendent, likewise escaped death. A bomb mailed to James A. Gorman, umpire of the anthracite conciliation board, a labor disputes agency, was intercepted.

NEW YORK RELIEF COST AND CASES INCREASED SINCE ADVENT OF WPA

New York, April 11.—[Special]—Despite continued business and industrial improvement of the last year, a survey of the relief situation in New York City shows that federal, state and city taxpayers are supporting about 25 per cent more persons at a cost of about 50 per cent more than before WPA went into effect.

The all-time peak of the city's relief rolls just as WPA was getting under way saw the Emergency Relief bureau, with about 340,000 cases, in round numbers, on both home relief and work relief. Now there are about 85,000 more cases, representing 255,000 to 340,000 additional men, women and children, on government pay rolls through WPA and ERB combined.

Until last August, the month WPA was put into operation, the total costs of the ERB, including home relief, work relief and administrative expenses, was about $20,000,000 a month. Of this the city paid about $5,000,000, the state government about the same, and the federal government about $10,000,000.

At present the total costs of relief in the city, including both the WPA and ERB budgets, are running about $30,000,000 a month, or $10,000,000 a month more than before WPA. ERB is costing about $9,500,000 a month, of which the city's share is about $5,700,000. The state pays the rest. WPA is costing the federal government from $20,000,000 to $22,000,000 a month.

STRIKE RIOTING; WOMAN IS HURT; TWO ARRESTED

Sioux City, Ia., April 11.—[Special.]—With three persons, one of them a woman, given treatment at a hospital after violence at the plant of the John Morrell Packing company here, a union official was under arrest today. This morning police dispersed a crowd with tear gas. Tonight additional guards were provided at the plant.

The injured woman is Mrs. Gilbert Denfield, who drove an auto taking her husband to work. A stone, thrown through the windshield, cut her face. Ross Gould and Eddie Dunn were less serious injured.

The men arrested at plant are: Sam Twedell, business agent of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, and E. R. Evans, said to have been mixed up in this morning's violence. Police asserted Twedell probably would be charged with intimidating workmen.

The police threw tear gas into the crowd of pickets and sympathizers after glass from the windshield of her car had injured the eyes of Mrs. Denfield, glass in other cars had been broken, and the two men had been beaten.

DECLARE INDUSTRY IS ARMING TO BATTLE IN LABOR CONFLICTS

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—Labor spokesmen told a senate committee today there was a mass movement of machine guns, tear gas, and police clubs into industrial centers for use in curbing strikes and disorders.

J. P. Harris, Portsmouth, O., steel worker, was the first to appear before the labor subcommittee with stories of industrial plants "arming" for possible conflict with labor. In support of his assertions came a mass of data compiled by the senate munitions investigating committee and presented at the hearing by Heber Blankenhorn, an employé of the national labor relations board.

At one point Harris testified that he knew the Wheeling Steel corporation at Portsmouth, O., was "arming," a statement that brought from corporation officials at Portsmouth an assertion that company police were armed to protect property against "thieves and firebugs, and they will continue to be armed."

At another point in today's hearing there was testimony that general "rumors" were being circulated that the Ford Motor company was "shot through" with spies, hired to report on the activities of labor.

WEEPS OVER PEACE MOVE

SABATH TRIES TO RECONCILE BORG COUPLE

Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior court made an effort yesterday to reconcile George Marshall Borg and his wife, Juanita, 19 years old. Young Borg is the son of George W. Borg, chairman of the board of Borg-Warner and company.

Judge Sabath decided to take matters into his own hands during a hearing on Mrs. Borg's suit for separate maintenance. This suit is an aftermath to the one recently won by Mrs. Borg for custody of her son, George M. Jr., 15 months old. The elder Borg who sought to have himself declared legal guardian of his grandson, was in court yesterday with his daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Erickson, 27 years old, with whom he lives at 999 Lake Shore drive.

Young Husband on Stand.

Young Borg took the witness stand in an effort to support the contention of his attorney, F. E. Brightman, that the separate maintenance suit should be dismissed on the ground that the youthful husband's legal residence is Delavan, Wis., and not Chicago. During this questioning and a cross-examination by Attorney Samuel A. Rinella, Borg grew excited and at times his answers were almost hysterical.

Borg admitted that his marriage license, and city and state vehicle licenses all gave 999 Lake Shore drive as his home. He insisted, however, that his legal address is Delaven, Wis.

When Borg grew agitated at the questions put by Attorney Rinella, Judge Sabath interrupted the proceedings, asking:

"Just a minute, gentlemen, has there ever been any attempt to reconcile this couple? Speaking off the record, you know my weakness in court here is trying to bring parents together. Let us adjourn this hearing temporarily."

Resume Hearing Saturday.

Judge Sabath and the young Borgs then went into his chambers for forty-five minutes. Emerging, Judge Sabath announced that the hearing would be resumed again next Saturday, but that meanwhile the young couple would confer with him privately.

Young Mrs. Borg was smiling and her eyes were filled with tears when she left the judge's chambers. Her husband's eyes were red rimmed. Neither had any comment to make.

Harry Hogan, 45 years old, who operates a cabaret with his brother at 8041 South Ashland avenue, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Superior court against Mrs. May Hogan, 42 years old, 1551 West Garfield boulevard. Hogan charged that his wife deserted him 21 years ago after living with him for two years.

WOMEN'S CLEWS POINT TO YOUTH AS RAPE SLAYER

Tell of Two Mysterious Night Intrusions.

cording to all indications, Mrs. Titterton's murderer must have been in her flat, Wiley Straughn, 17-year-old delivery boy for a valet service, attempted to deliver a dress to Mrs. Titterton. He rang the bell, he said, and when he received no answer, carried the dress back to the shop.

A man's fountain pen, upon which detectives had based their chief hope for a clew to the murder, was established definitly today as having belonged to Mrs. Titterton.

The pen was found on one of the twin beds in the room next to the bathroom in which the slayer left Mrs. Titterton's body. Her husband told police he never had seen the pen before. This led investigators to believe it might have been dropped by the slayer.

Finger Prints of No Value.

Today, however, Assistant Chief Inspector John A. Lyons, head of the detective division in personal charge of the investigation, announced that the pen—a larger one than women usually carry—belonged to Mrs. Titterton.

Fingerprints on the walls of the bathroom, which detectives at first hoped might lead directly to the murderer, proved on expert examination to be smudged and of no value.

A small army of chemists labored today to extract some clew from Mrs. Titterton's clothing, the furnishings of the apartment, the walls, etc. Twenty-five operatives have been assigned exclusively to the case.

Detectives have gone over the fire escape of the five story brownstone building and the roofs of several other houses in the row without discovering any fresh footprints. Today they had found nothing to indicate how the killer entered the apartment or how he left.

Question 12 to No Avail.

Questioning of Mr. Titterton and eleven other persons led to nothing, Deputy Chief Inspector Francis J. Kear and Assistant District Attorney William F. O'Rourke announced. The inspector emphasized that none of the persons interrogated should be looked upon as a suspect. Police had hoped that some of them had seen or heard something that would shed light on the case.

"We have found no new leads," the inspector said.

Mr. Titterton told police that he telephoned his wife at 9 a. m. and that she had been cheerful and happy during the conversation. A friend of the Tittertons, Mrs. F. R. Mansbridge, confirmed the declaration of his wife's mood. She talked with Mrs. Titterton on the telephone later, and made an appointment for dinner for tonight.

Truckmen Tell of Finding Body.

The second conversation took place at 11 a. m., according to Mrs. Mansbridge. Police declared from the medical examiner's preliminary report that the slayer must have been getting into the building at about that time.

Among those questioned were the two truckmen who found the body. They are John Fioemza and Theodore Kruger.

With a couch for the Titterton apartment, they entered the two block long street at about 4:15 p. m., they said. They said they rang first at the vestibule of the apartment house. Getting no answer they pushed open the door and went in, they said.

They walked up the four flights of stairs and found the Titterton apartment door slightly ajar. There was no response to their knock. They had received definite instructions to deliver the reupholstered couch yesterday, so they pushed into the apartment.

Nearly Nude Body in Tub.

On the twin bed near the door they saw a heap of clothing. The covers of the bed were rumpled. From the open door of the bathroom, four or five feet away, came a flicker of light.

Alarmed, they investigated.

In the tub was Mrs. Titterton's body, almost nude. A torn slip partially covered the form. The only other clothing was a pair of stockings, rolled down to the ankles.

The murder cut off a literary career of exceptional promise, Mrs. Titterton's friends said. She wrote under her maiden name, Nancy Evans, and had contributed book reviews to newspapers and periodicals. She also had written a work of fiction "I Shall Decline My Head,"

WOMEN PLANNING PAGEANT TO AID MILK FUND DRIVE

9 Day Event Opens at Navy Pier Saturday.

Chicago club women who are working to establish a city-wide milk fund for poor children will open the first Women's Pageant of Progress next Saturday at Navy pier. The nine day exposition is intended to provide attractions for women on a scale large enough to launch the financing of the year round milk fund from 50 cents general admissions.

Contributions of women to the modern world and their participation in government, the arts, education, and humanitarian endeavors will be material for part of the program, according to Mrs. Burnett Dewey Warner, former president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs and a volunteer welfare worker, who is the organizer and president of the pageant.

Plan Baby Clinic.

A baby clinic will be maintained at the exposition with the assistance of the Chicago health department, the Chicago Hospital association, and the Chicago Dental society, with Hermien D. Nusbaum in charge. Vocational guidance will be given to boys and girls in another section of the pageant to be known as the Campus.

On several stages will be presented musical features, a circus, a style show, radio and stage performances, nationality songs and dances, and concerts by the Women's Symphony orchestra under the direction of Ebba Sundstrom. The Polish nationality program, in charge of Mrs. Julius F. Smietanka, will have a chorus of 100 voices, as will the Czechoslovakian nationality program, which will be directed by Mrs. J. F. Smetanka, wife of the Czechoslovakian consul. The Chicago Land Choral society, the Monday National Jubilee Singers, and the Chicago Woman's Flying club are other participants in the pageant.

For Aspiring Flyers.

The flying club, of which Miss Jane Ray, the only woman state aeronautic inspector, is president, will have a booth for consultation with women who want to learn to fly.

A better government forum will be conducted by Walter Millard under the auspices of the National Municipal league. Art students will paint from life in an exhibit studio of Sister Stanisia, religious art teacher.

2 BOYS KILLED IN CUBAN BOMBINGS; POLICE JAIL SEVEN

SANTIAGO, Cuba, April 11.—(AP)—Two deaths in five bomb explosions in less than 24 hours threw this city into a state of excitement tonight as police rounded up terrorist suspects.

Seven persons were arrested charged with terrorism, including the explosion of a bomb at the door of the United States consulate last night. William P. Blocker, the American consul, said he could not guess the motive for the bombing of the consulate, but asked that the chief of police furnish protection for the building.

Two 10 year old children, Armelio Trinchet and Armando Garcia Bargallo, died shortly after the bomb, which they found, exploded as they were tossing it around.

The two bombs exploded at the end of the Good Friday services which Provisional President José A. Barnet came here to attend. Commander C. M. Cooke, commandant of the Guantanamo United States naval base, is expected to come here aboard the destroyer to participate in a reception in honor of President Barnet.

POLAND TO SELL STATE PROPERTIES TO FINANCE ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, April 11.—Oil wells, coal mines and a large variety of real estate and other properties now in the possession of the Polish state are being offered both to local and foreign capitalists, the government announced today. It explained the funds realized will be included in a newly established defense fund, which hereafter is expected to help pay for the upkeep of the Polish army.

Poland has given up hope of obtaining a large loan from France, and also admits the impossibility of floating another internal loan, or adding to the already overwhelming tax burden.

The decision to dispose of state owned properties, including large areas now held by the ministry of defense, was taken after a long conference in Warsaw castle.

INDIANS DEBATE 'FREEDOM' OFFER OF BRITAIN TODAY

Nationalist Congress to Open in Lucknow.

LUCKNOW, India, April 11.—(AP)—Tens of thousands of members of the Indian national congress camped in temporary shelters on the outskirts of Lucknow tonight awaiting the opening of the annual session tomorrow.

The congress is faced this year with determining its attitude in regard to acceptance of offices under the new constitution provided by the British parliament in 1935.

Provides Modified Freedom.

The British measure provides for modified freedom for India. It provides for setting up a federal legislature linking the eleven British Indian provinces and such of the so-called independent Indian states, ruled by native princes, as care to enter. Each of the British states will have a legislature of its own with clearly defined powers under a governor. It is provided that certain important subjects, such as defense, external affairs, and ecclesiastical affairs, shall be reserved to the British viceroy.

The congress, which celebrated its 50th birthday in December, claims a membership of more than 7,000,000 persons. A miniature city covering 2½ square miles has been erected on the plains beyond the city. In addition to some 500 huts where the delegates will reside, barracks have been erected for the thousands of volunteers called to the scene.

Critical of New Law.

One simple hut will provide living quarters for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, president elect of the congress and the Oxford educated successor to the Mahatma Gandhi as the leader of the Indian National movement.

The congress, which as far back as 1927 declared "the goal of the Indian people is complete national independence," has been intensely critical of the constitution. Its attitude toward offices under it has been the subject of many private conferences of its leaders.

Sixty thousand persons will be accommodated in the central meeting place and a smaller hall will accommodate another 10,000 persons for committee sessions.

The convention plans include an extensive outdoor exhibition of handspun and handwoven cloth and other examples of village industries upon whose development Gandhi has concentrated his efforts since he retired from politics.

JAPAN AGAIN INSISTS IT WILL NOT SIGN LONDON NAVY PACT

Tokio, April 11.—Japan will not sign the new London naval treaty, it was reiterated here today in reply to foreign intimations to the contrary. On the other hand she will not contravene the treaty.

It will suit Japan to comply with the treaty in practice and have others obey it, but having allowed its delegates to walk out of the naval conference rather than sign an agreement of merely qualitative limitation, the government does not intend to stir up a naval hornet's nest by signing a plan it rejected in January.

It is admitted the treaty is not hostile to Japan and that its details are such that Japan could accept if they formed part of a general agreement giving her naval parity. But the mere mention of the treaty has become in the minds of Japanese navy men like a red flag to a bull. The nontreaty status they wanted has been attained without any alarming consequences, and domestic reasons for doing nothing further at present are stronger than foreign arguments for signing.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 11.—The government announced today that the official contract for the construction of government buildings destroyed by the earthquake had been awarded to Dambach Gautier, a Swiss-American engineering firm.

The cost of the new construction is estimated at about 1,000,000 cordobas. [A cordoba is approximately 91 cents.]

The buildings will be designed and erected by Americans, but the materials will be purchased from Germany. Because of the scarcity of foreign exchange, Germany has agreed to exchange building materials for coffee.

Bare $199,700 Benefit; Wholesale "Firing."

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—The largest AAA cotton benefit checks both in 1933 and 1934, totaling $199,700 for the two years, went to the R. E. Lee Wilson plantation in Mississippi county, Arkansas, the Washington Post learned tonight as the Southern Tenant Farmers' union charged that:

1. The Wilson plantation changed from the sharecropping system to a day labor basis in 1934, throwing hundreds of families on relief, and then rehired workers at 75 cents a day for 12 to 14 hours of work.

2. That although this was a direct violation of section 7 of the old AAA contracts, forbidding such treatment on penalty of withholding payments, the payments were made anyway.

Admit Evictions "Probable."

AAA officials here insisted they did not know of any such wholesale dismissals or evictions on the 30,000 acre Wilson plantation, largest cotton plantation in Arkansas, although they admitted "some evictions were probable."

H. L. Mitchell, secretary of the union, asserted that the payment to the Wilson plantation had been held up by the AAA pending an investigation. Officials here did not know of any contemplated investigation and believed the payments had been made in due course.

Members of the Tenant Farmers and Sharecroppers' union, while in Washington two weeks ago, asserted that practices such as that allegedly followed by the Wilson plantation forced the government to pay three times—once, the AAA benefits to the plantation, of which the sharecroppers were supposed to receive 15 per cent; again, when croppers evicted by crop reduction programs were forced on relief and thus supported by the Works Progress administration, and the third time when the Resettlement administration endeavored to find them homes.

More Evictions Predicted.

This situation is the basic cause of the present widespread suffering among sharecroppers and tenant farmers over wide areas, the unions charged, asserting that the AAA, even with good intentions, has made the conditions in southern states even worse than before.

Official sources tonight pointed to the possibility of even more evictions and a greater spread of unemployment under the new soil conservation program as southern planters realize that they must pay sharecroppers and tenants as high as 25 per cent of the benefits. Reactions by landloards are being carefully watched at AAA headquarters, it is known, although Secretary Wallace said last week at a press conference that the national reaction on the whole is "favorable" to the new program.

The union members charged, while here in Washington, that croppers and tenants were universally mistreated by a combination of what they called long-standing social injustice.

$4,000,000 WPA Project Produces 50,000 Diapers

Los Angeles, Cal., April 11.—[Special.]—What is believed to be the largest federal Works Progress Administration venture in the country is the Los Angeles women's sewing project. Between 11,000 and 15,000 women, formerly on the dole, are sewing in 43 establishments comprising a $4,000,000 enterprise. Since the project was set up last month, the women have produced 521,803 garments, all of which go to families on relief or charity agencies. One item is 50,000 diapers.

CONFESS MAYWOOD SHOOTING

2 BANDITS, SEIZED AFTER MAYWOOD RAID, NAME PALS

Seek Fugitive Who Shot 3 Policemen.

Two men confessed yesterday that they took part in Friday's Maywood factory holdup, named two men as accomplices, and identified one of them as the robber who shot three policemen in a running gun battle following the holdup.

Lieut. Richard Barry of the detective bureau announced the two men still at large are Frank Korczykowski, 30 years old, and Walter Kania, 26 years old, both of 1248 Fry street. The pair who signed confessions are Joseph Tworek, 20 years old, 1323 North Bell avenue, and Walter Dembrowski, 21 years old, 909 North Hermitage avenue.

Korczykowski, according to the statements, did all the shooting for the band.

Bandit Seized in Taxi.

Tworek, with $700 of the $975 obtained in the holdup, was captured in a taxicab on the west side shortly after the pistol fight in which Chief of Police Richard H. Bailey of Maywood was shot in the chest and Highway Policemen Andrew J. McGrath and Frank Reikowski also were wounded.

The holdup occurred at the Chicago Tubing and Braiding company, 1315 South Third avenue, Maywood.

Tworek's confession sent the police to the Hermitage avenue address, where Dembrowski was seized in a basement flat. There the police found three revolvers and a flashlight.

The car the four robbers took from Nels Larson, 208 South Eighth avenue, for their getaway was found early in the day abandoned in the 7900 block on Fletcher street in Elmwood Park. Although one bandit was believed to have been wounded, no blood stains were found in the automobile.

Loaded Revolver Found.

While Chicago police were obtaining Tworek's and Dembrowski's confessions and seeking the two fugitives, the Maywood police, searching the area through which the quartet escaped, found a gray topcoat, a black hat, and a loaded .32 caliber revolver in a private garage at 209 South Fifth avenue. Residents said that they had seen one man running through back yards after the holdup, loading his gun on his way. The weapon had been fired, police said, but it was not the one which wounded the three policemen. They were shot with .38 caliber bullets.

WALTER KANIA. FRANK KORCZYKOWSKI.

Physicians at a Maywood hospital said Police Chief Bailey's wound was not dangerous, but it was feared McGrath's leg might have to be amputated. The bullet shattered the knee cap and could not be removed. Reikowski's wound might force the removal of one of his fingers, they said.

STREET CAR RUNS "AMUCK"; RAMS A GOVERNOR'S AUTO

Detroit, Mich., April 11.—[Special.]—A Detroit street car, its controls jammed, barged through Saturday's trafic for half a dozen blocks today, sending pedestrians scurrying and damaging two automobiles, including that of Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald.

While the trolley proceeded, slowly, it ran through two red lights as its motorman vainly attempted to stop it. No one was injured, although nearly a score of passengers jumped from its platform.

Several passengers ran ahead of the street car, waving their hands and shouting warnings to pedestrians and vehicles to keep clear. At Grand River avenue, a main trafic artery, only quick action by these passengers forestalled serious accident as the car crossed the street against the light.

O. K. LACKING, BUT SHERIF OUTFITS HIS NEW OFFICE

County Commissioner George A. Miller, who recently opposed the purchase of $1,000 worth of furniture for Sherif John Toman's new quarters on the 10th floor of the county building, discovered yesterday that the furnishings had been ordered despite county board action on March 30 in withholding approval of the purchase.

Records in the office of Joseph H. Donahue, purchasing agent for the county, show that 27 pieces of furniture were ordered by the sherif from the C. F. Roth company, 159 West Lake street, on March 26, four days before the board had a chance to act on the purchase.

$12 Basket For Waste Paper.

Among the items ordered is a red lether davenport and chair for $185, two all green lether chairs for $120, 14 lether chairs for $373, one desk at $110, two lether stools for $30, one phone cabinet at $30, one costumer at $20, and one waste paper basket for $12.

"Sherif Toman can have his furniture, but the board won't pay the bills if I can help it," said Commissioner Miller. "He's been in public office long enough to know that no county purchases can be made without county board authorization."

Last week, as a result of reports of heavy expenditures for office outfittings, Commissioner Miller made a survey of all purchases in the last sixteen months.

As a result of his survey, Donahue has held up approval of a number of requisitions for furnishings priced at a total of $8,530, demanded by county officials, a number of them judges. The official said he would not recommend purchase of the items.

The requisitions included $1,125 worth of furniture for Judge Joseph B. David of the Superior court, $800 worth for Judge Harry B. Miller of the Superior court, $5,200 worth for County Treasurer Joseph L. Gill, and $750 worth of carpet and linoleum for Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court.

Miller found that county records show that Superior Court Clerk Frank V. Zintak bought a $225 couch, a $250 roll top desk, and other items. Zintak said he has not bought a single piece of new furniture since he was elected clerk. The items, he said, had been ordered by Judge Joseph J. Kelly of the Superior court.

FALLS FROM WINDOW.

Mrs. Mollie Loge, 54 years old, fell six feet to the sidewalk yesterday from a window ledge at her home at 3906 North Troy street, while she was washing a window. Her injuries were not serious.

GRANTS DIVORCE BUT OPENS WAY TO 2D MARRIAGE

Although Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior court failed yesterday in his third attempt to reconcile Mrs. Hazel Peterson, 34 years old, and her husband, John, 36 years old, the decree of divorce he granted the wife indicated the future may reunite the couple.

Mrs. Peterson was granted alimony of $7 a week. Their home at 521 Elmwood avenue was turned over to her to be held in trust for the Petersons' five children who will continue to live with her. Every Sunday Peterson, who is a tailor, will be allowed to return home and have dinner with the entire family.

"If he gives up his drinking and stops being cruel to me," Mrs. Peterson told Judge Sabath, "I may remarry him in a year. But it's all up to him."

AID OF MEXICAN GEN. VILLA DIES HERE INCOGNITO

Leaves Mysterious Silver Mine to Lawyer Friend.

The death here of a battle scarred Mexican revolutionary, who claimed to be the brother-in-law of Pancho Villa, and the bequest of a fabulous "silver mine" to a Chicago lawyer who befriended him were revealed yesterday.

The Mexican, José Martinez, 43 years old, died Tuesday in the County hospital from a chronic disease. Friends learned of his death yesterday and claimed his body at the county morgue to save it from burial in Potter's field.

Martinez lived in constant fear of his life from enemies who once tortured him to the point of death, his friends said, and for this reason he changed his address monthly, and adopted an alias. The reason for this torture was explained by Attorney Jay J. McCarthy, when he learned of the Mexican's death.

Harsh Story of Mine.

"Martinez told me about his life with Villa, which began when he was 10 years old," said McCarthy, "and about an amazing silver mine near the New Mexican border where Villa financed his army by digging out about $120,000 a month.

"Martinez told me that his sister, Villa, and himself had title to the mine. It was worked by peons, who were butchered as soon as their work was done so that the secret could be kept.

"This mine, Martinez assured me, would make a dozen millionaires. It apparently is an old Aztec working, and at the second level," Martinez said, "there are priceless antique relics. When Villa died, Martinez said he boarded up the lower levels and then blew up the mine entrance to keep his secret."

Silent Under Red Hot Irons.

He kept the secret well, added the lawyer, because Villa's former associates claimed the body of Martinez with irons, but could not make him talk. Dr. Clement K. Briggs, 160 North La Salle street, who examined Martinez during his last illness, said his body was a mass of scars.

A few days ago McCarthy said he received a letter from Martinez, explaining that because of the many kindnesses the lawyer had shown him, he was leaving him title to the mine.

Enclosed in the letter, said McCarthy, was what appeared to be an engineer's report of the diggings.

Cautioned to Wait 30 Days.

The letter informed McCarthy that Martinez had written a letter to a person living near the abandoned mine to the effect that title to the property now rested with the lawyer. McCarthy was asked to wait thirty days after Martinez' death before taking any action.

According to friends of Martinez his sister was Villa's first wife, marrying him at the age of 17, and they had a son who died. The sister is now said to be Senora Paula Martinez de Reyes, living at Almeda Alzama No. 12, Aguiles Cerdan, Chihuahua, Mexico.

'$4,500 Part of Honest Debt,' Judge Ritter Tells Senate

Washington, D. C., April 11.—(AP)—Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of Florida testified at his senate impeachment trial today that he received $4,500 from his former law partner, A. L. Rankin, after going on the bench, but that it was for "payment of an honest debt" arranged when the law firm was dissolved.

Ritter said when he left the firm to go on the bench in February, 1929, there were some fifty cases pending, 95 per cent of which he had brought into the partnership.

Judge Ritter said he felt when he left the firm that the uncollected fees, with books and equipment, were worth about $35,000. He could not turn this all over to Rankin "as a gift," he testified, so he asked Rankin to fix the amount of his share. Rankin said $5,000 and Ritter agreed.

Never Asked for Payment.

"I never asked him for the money," Ritter said. "When he came into my chambers with the cash, I asked him why he didn't give me a check and he made the same explanation he has made here."

The explanation was that Rankin was afraid of the bad banking situation at the time, and that he also wanted to avoid any possible criticism because of the prior relationship of the two.

Ritter said he took the money the day before Christmas in 1929 and placed it in the bank a few days afterward.

"It was a perfectly honest transaction, gentlemen," he said, "in payment of an honest debt arranged at the time I left the firm.

"The payments made were payments on that debt honestly created in consideration of the business I left him."

Holds $75,000 Fee "Reasonable."

Ritter also testified the $75,000 he allowed Rankin in the receivership case was "reasonable." He said four reputable lawyers had filed affidavits as to its reasonableness, since the value of the property was estimated at $3,000,000, and 275 papers had been filed in the case.

"I submit there was no corruption, nothing back of it," he asserted. "If I used my best judgment, I claim I should not be criticized for it. Nobody charged me with any corruption. I used my best judgment in that Whitehall case."

"Only One of 7,000," Says Ritter.

"That case is only one of 7,000 I've handled in that court. Yet they have gone back to my first year to make these charges against me in one case out of 7,000."

Ritter said he gave no thought to the fact he had allowed Rankin a $25,000 advance on the $75,000 fee on the same day he got the $4,500. Rankin had testified he paid Ritter out of the fee.

Ritter said he went to Miami in December, 1925, from Denver, where he had been a lawyer for 30 years. He said his average income during the ten years prior to going to Florida was between $25,000 and $30,000 and that in one year he made $75,000.

"I emphatically deny," he continued, "that I knew anything about the Whitehall [receivership] case until it came before me on Oct. 16, 1929."

Expect Vote by Tomorrow Night.

The prosecution charges Ritter conspired with attorneys in bringing the suit.

When cross-examination of Ritter was completed, defense counsel announced they would have some rebuttal testimony on Monday before closing arguments begin. After that, probably before nightfall, the senate will close its doors, exclude both the public and newspapermen, and vote on each of the seven impeachment charges.

PROS TO TEACH AT DAILY FEE, PARK COURSES

New Time Permits Early Start.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The fourth annual free golf school of THE TRIBUNE, which in its first three years has become by national imitation the largest system of group instruction in the history of the game, will open on Tuesday night, April 21. But it will not be the same school which, since its inception in 1933, has taught the fundamentals of the game to more than 60,000 men, women and children in the Chicago district.

It will be a bigger and better school from every angle. The time, the caliber of the instruction, and a highly simplified curriculum will enable more golf minded citizens than ever to take the lessons with greater convenience to themselves and their teachers.

Why?

Here are some of the important reasons why the fourth Tribune school undoubtedly will outdo its predecessors, both in attendance and in successful transmission of golf's A B C's to novices.

New Time Advances Opening.

1. Establishment of eastern standard time in Chicago enables THE TRIBUNE and officials of the school to open it weeks earlier than the first three. The 1933 school opened on May 22, while both the 1934 and 1935 called classes to order on June 4. Directors of athletics and recreational activities throughout Chicago have welcomed eastern time, since the addition of an extra hour of daylight on a year-round basis has given them and their charges another 60 minutes in which to enjoy their favorite sports without waiting for the old daylight savings change. This is notably true in local golf, since several courses have been attracting sizeable delegations of players since eastern time became effective on March 1. Eastern time was the prime reason for opening the school earlier this year, allowing more time for preparation and equipping beginners with a knowledge of the fundamentals before the old playing season got under way.

2. THE TRIBUNE school this year graduates in scope from the status of an elementary school to that of a university, thanks to the Chicago park district and the willing coöperation of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, pioneer teaching force in the school. This year's classes will be held on five of the park district's courses, with ten of the daily fee courses available for instruction. The latter group, which has successfully conducted the first three schools, realized the rapid growth of the school could not be encompassed within its courses, and readily agreed to shift the school to the larger and more easily reached park courses. Officials of the Chicago park district, including Robert J. Dunham, president; Vice President Harry Joseph, Commissioners Stephen L Witmanski, James C. Petrillo and Philip S. Graver, and General Superintendent George T. Donoghue approved the use of their courses immediately. Harry O'Hare, supervisor of golf and beaches, and Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, director of golf in the park district, will be in direct charge of the school.

3. The Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' association, admitted by other sections the most potent playing and teaching unit in the national organization, will be an active part of the school's faculty this year. P. G. A. professionals will give lessons at all of the park courses, where loud speakers will facilitate teaching to thousands of pupils. Wherever necessary, they will be assisted by professionals recruited from the daily fee courses. In addition to the actual instruction by P. G. A. professionals, a number of playing stars, all members of the P. G. A., will give demonstrations at the various courses, including Horton Smith, Tommy Armour, Harry Cooper, Frank Walsh, Johnny Revolta, Ky Laffoon, and Dick Metz.

School Is Free to All.

THE TRIBUNE school entails no expense to the pupil. Any beginner desiring to learn such fundamentals as grip, stance, and swing, need only fill out the coupon appearing in this section and mail it to the Golf Editor, Chicago Tribune. Prospective students must fill in the space after the word "course" to indicate at which of the courses he or she will take the lessons.

The complete list of courses where classes will be held follows:

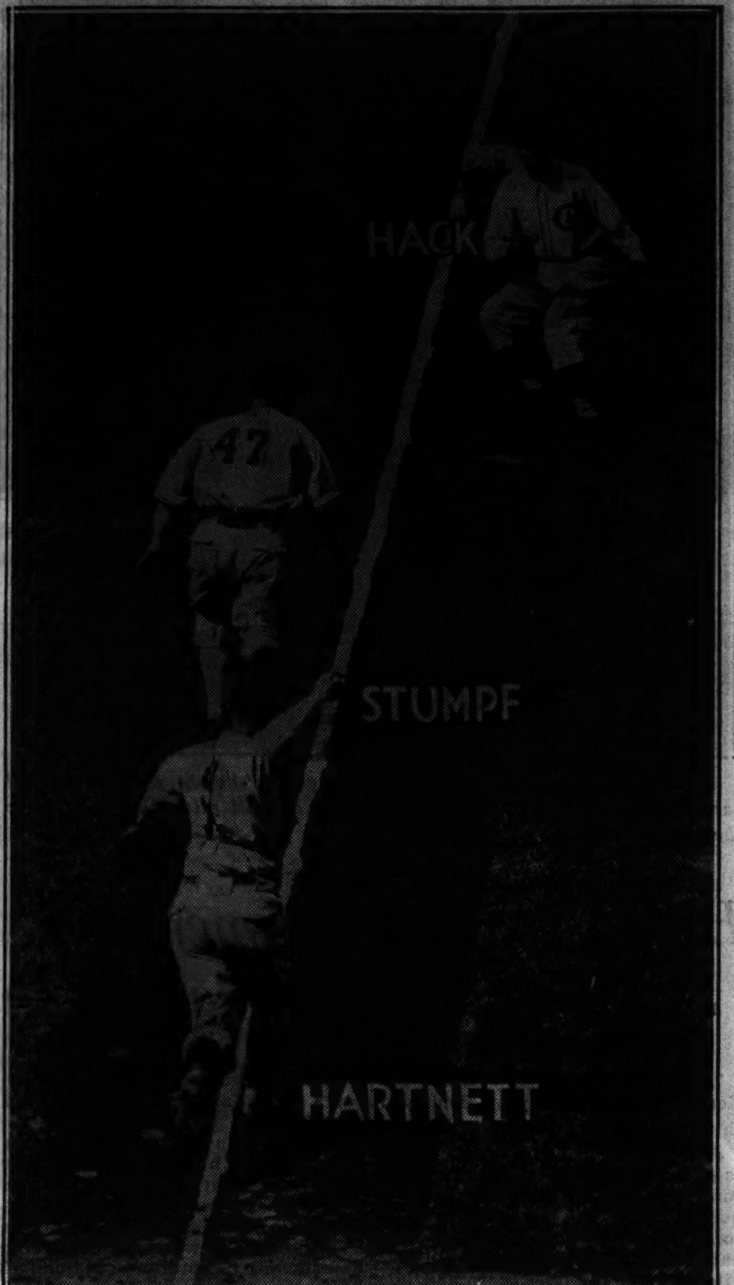
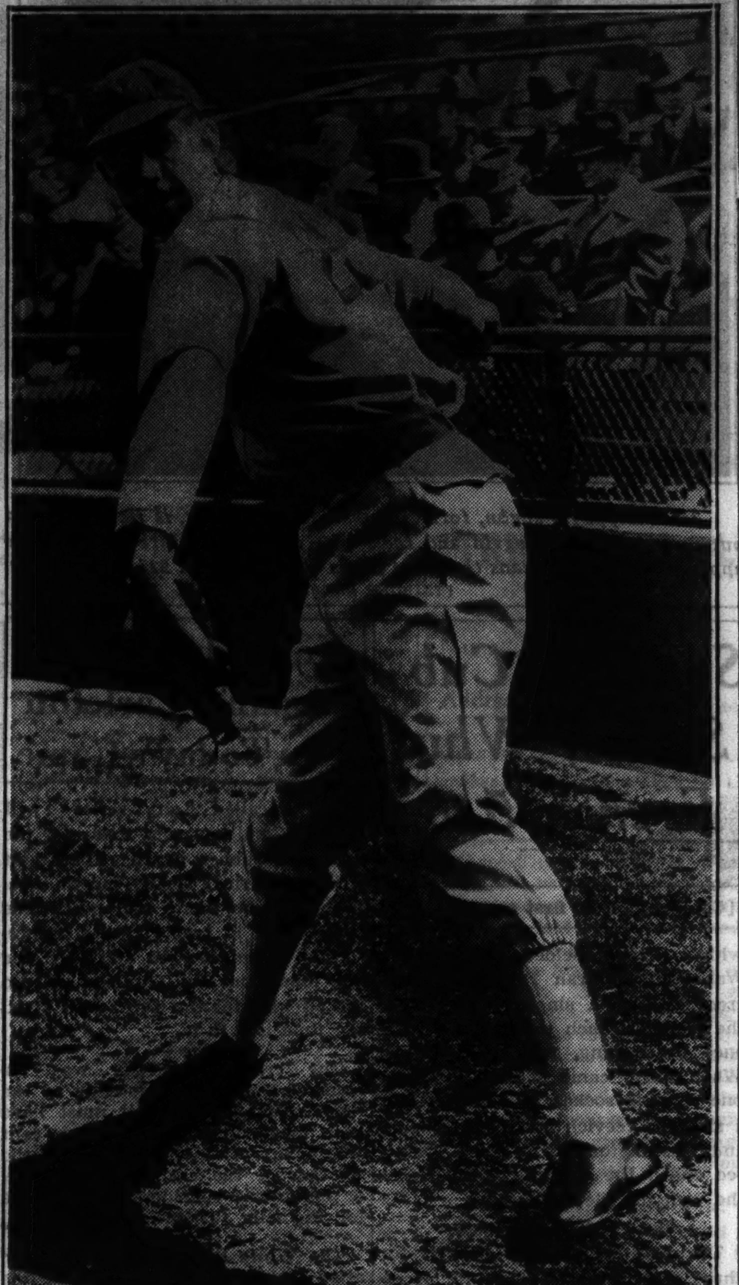
BATTER UP! (ALSO BUNDLE UP)—BASEBALL'S HERE AGAIN

P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, and Mrs. Wrigley entertain Mrs. Ferdinand Bunte (right) at Wrigley field as the National league champions made their first Chicago appearance of the year yesterday, losing to the White Sox, 5 to 1.

It was chilly, but they had a good time. Their team won. Front row, Owner Louis Comiskey of the White Sox, his daughter, Gracie Lou, and Mrs. Louis Comiskey. Rear, Dorothy Comiskey and Mrs. Joe Barry, wife of the White Sox secretary.



The White Sox lost their sense of direction in the sixth inning and George Stumpf, a pinch hitter, was trapped off third and run down, Gabby Hartnett to Stanley Hack. Hack and Bill Jurges then doubled Rip Radcliff, Sox left fielder, off second to retire the side and ruin a rally.



Pitcher Monty Stratton, White Sox rookie, who baffled the Cubs for five innings, allowing one clean single with two out in the fifth and having a double charged against him a moment later when Radcliff misjudged a pop fly. Monty is expected to star for the Sox. He looked the part yesterday.

George Washington beating Pitcher Larry French in a race to first to fill the bases with two out in the third inning. Washington had sent a slow roller to Manager Charley Grimm and French attempted to cover the base, but missed the bag with his foot. Appling's single scored the first two runs of the game a moment later.

CUBS RATE TO WIN FLAG AGAIN; TIGERS CHOICE FOR 3D STRAIGHT

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs are going to repeat as National league pennant winners mainly because of the efforts of 15 or 16 men. A total of 23 will be kept around just in case of an emergency, but the total over 15 won't mean much, except as company and for bench jockying, neither of which the stars on the Cubs need.

The Cubs will not have a breeze. The Cardinals will give them merry competition in the league standings all the way. But the Cubs and the Cards, considering their maximum ability under ideal and lucky circumstances, both are woefully weak in reserves. If physical adversity hits one outfit and not the other, the one that is spared will win the pennant. The Cubs are picked over the Cardinals because they seem less susceptible to accidents and normal misfortunes than do the Cards.

Cubs Will Need Gabby.

To win the pennant the Cubs must have Gabby Hartnett in more than 100 games. Lon Warneke's arm must be in fine shape all year. Bill Lee must have a minimum of his famous one-bad-inning embarrassments. Larry French must find a way to avert those hit showers the boys give him every so often, and Tex Carleton, Moanin' Jim, must attend to his knitting and not start sobbing about things that have nothing to do with sidearm pitching, an art at which he is one of the best in baseball when he concentrates on sidearm pitching. Mike Kowalik must fulfill the promise he has shown in spring training, and old Charley Root must be ready to effect many a rescue. [Maybe Charley can be the miracle man he was last year, but let's not count on that.]

Roy Henshaw, principally because of his wizardry over the Pittsburgh Pirates, was a big factor in last season's Cub success. Unless he snaps into it rapidly he will be lucky to be with the team come next pennant awarding time. There'll be another pitcher, probably Lefty Shoun, but he'll be a spot pitcher and a reliever.

The Cubs are going to repeat for the first time since 1908 because Stan Hack will be in there in most of the games this year, and a better third baseman than ever. And the best second baseman in the league, Bill Herman, doubtless will play in 154 games or pretty near. Bill Jurges will be just as good as ever defensively and approximately as helpless offensively. The greatest change for the better is going to be at first base. Manager Grimm is going to amaze a lot of skeptics.

You Can't Laugh Off Deans.

We've got to be a bit sketchy in skimming over the outfield situation after we say that Augie Galan is a better center fielder than he was a left fielder last year, which is remarking plenty. Frank Demaree showed

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Will Detroit's Tigers, present world title holders, repeat their pennant performances of 1934 and 1935? Will Boston's Red Sox, the money bags of the outfit, justify the bank roll spent by Owner Tom Yawkey to put 'em together?

The above appear to be the important items up for consideration of possible happenings in the American league race which gets under way next Tuesday.

There also are some other angles, which as the race progresses probably will loom importantly. Just now they are being neglected because opinion expressers are too busy arguing whether the Tigers can successfully defy the long standing superstition that it is next to impossible to win three flags in a row and whether a flag machine can be built from highly priced odd parts.

Without making allowance for the three in a row jinx the experts incline to the belief that the Tigers are headed for another world series effort. This isn't because the Tigers constitute a great team. They merely make up the best entry in the field so far as can be determined in advance. They succeeded over a two season stretch by being able to dodge serious injuries. They'll need the same store of luck this year.

Simmons Past Peak.

Whether Al Simmons, purchased from the White Sox, will bolster a shaky outfield is a question that, until the returns are in, can be answered only by guess. Simmons is well past his peak. He has no financial worries. His one big concern, and he has admitted this, is to avoid serious injury on the ball field. But now that he has been flayed severely for his miserable flop last season he may toss caution to the winds and attempt to show up his critics.

Boston's pennant chances can be covered in a few words. First of all, Manager Joe Cronin will have to be a far better shortstop than he was last season. One other infield post may be weak. The only outfield standout is Cramer, the ex-Athletic. Manush, who is regarded as the left field regular, is said to have gone back as the result of physical infirmities. The money bags team will need a pitcher to aid Grove, Ferrell, and Marcum.

Yanks Real Dark Horse.

The real dark horse, and this is the angle not being given much attention, is the Yankees. With their star pitcher, Lefty Gomez, a bust last season, and the team otherwise riddled by injuries, the Yanks were regarded as just another entry. Everybody seems to have forgotten that with all their bad luck the Yanks were only four games behind the Tigers at the finish. Had the Tigers suffered even

U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM CLINCHES MEXICAN SERIES

Houston, Tex., April 11.—(AP)—Capt. Wilmer Allison took an hour off from his golf today and teamed with John Van Ryn as the United States' Davis cup doubles team to clinch the North American zone series with Mexico.

Admittedly playing the "best doubles tennis we have played in a year," Allison and Van Ryn made amazing power shots to defeat Flavio Martinez and Antonio Marco Mestre, 6-0, 6-1, 6-2.

The victory placed the United States in the zone finals against Australia at Philadelphia late in May.

Only a short while after he had 18 holes of near par golf, Allison stepped on the courts, played the tennis that won him top ranking in the United States, then went back to the golf course for another nine holes. There he started by making a birdie on the long, par four first hole.

The Americans won the first ten games, but Martinez, a husky youth, finally won his serve, a streaking drive Allison lauded as one of the hardest he ever had tried to handle.

A. A. U. Olympic Boxing Trials Will Open on Wednesday

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The second qualifying tournament for the United States Olympic boxing trials will be held at Cleveland Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday when the finest contestants of the National Amateur Athletic union will assemble to determine 32 candidates for the Chicago meet which will be sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. From these Chicago bouts, which start May 7 at the International Amphitheater, will come 16 boys who will represent America next August against the nations of the world at Berlin.

The Olympic trials will be held May 7 and 8 and the field will be reduced to the 16 finalists. These successful contenders then will meet for the American Olympic titles at the Chicago Stadium May 20. The eight American champions will have first call on the positions, which will bring them into conflict with the best amateur boxers in the world. At least eight other boys will be chosen as alternates. These may be the runners-up in the Chicago tournament, or they may be chosen from the trials

DETROIT BEATS LEAFS, 3-2; WINS STANLEY CUP

TORONTO, Ont., April 11.—(AP)—The Detroit Red Wings tonight won another trophy for the city that already has a monopoly on champions, when they defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3 to 2, in the deciding game for the Stanley cup, emblematic of world hocky supremacy.

It was the fourth game of the three out of five series, the Leafs having won Thursday night's contest after coming from behind, then scoring in overtime.

Come from Behind.

A crowd of 14,000 watched Detroit, regarded as one of the greatest teams in modern hocky, spot Toronto a goal in the first period and then step out to dominate play from there on. The Wings, who had won the league championship with three straight victories over the Montreal Maroons and then downed Toronto twice before the Leafs rose up to win the overtime game, went into action after Joe Primeau put the Leafs into the lead with a brilliant individual effort in the first period.

Kelly Clinches Cup.

Midway through the third period Pete Kelly, utility forward, made victory certain when he took a pass from Herbie Lewis, the little Wing who held Charlie Conacher scoreless throughout the series, and drove it home. Bill Thoms scored again for Toronto, but from there on Detroit took charge of the game and was forcing the pace when the game ended.

STRATTON AND PHELPS ALLOW ONLY SIX HITS

Even Spring Series Before 4,500.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox, getting back to an old custom they had neglected a bit in Los Angeles a month ago, yesterday defeated the Cubs with the greatest of ease and verve. The score was Sox, 5; Cubs, 1; and the outcome evened the spring series between Chicago's major league teams at two each, with the rubber contest scheduled for Comiskey park at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The victory was the fourth straight Jimmy Dykes' hopefuls have scored over National league foes and the defeat was the first the Cubs have suffered in five games against American league opposition, their four victories having been against the American's one-two-three finishers last year.

Stratton Is the Answer.

There were several explanations for the White Sox victory other than age old precedent. The best answer is that youthful Monty Stratton was a much better pitcher than Lachrymose Larry French. In fact, Stratton was in excellent trim, while Larry was just fair—not good, not bad.

Some idea of Stratton's mastery may be gathered from the knowledge that he did not allow a hit for four and two-thirds innings.

After walking Galan to start his assignment he retired the next three batters on a couple of grounders and a fly. In the second inning the Cubs were bowled over on three puny infield efforts. Two infield outs and a fly made it three straight in the third and three more infield taps made it twelve in a row by the time the fourth inning was finished.

Rip Gets Lost.

Two more rollers started the fifth, Monty's last inning. Then Stanley Hack lined a single to center. Jurges followed with an easy fly, which dropped for a double when Rip Radcliff completely lost his sense of direction. That was all the damage the Cubs did to Monty, for he ended his day by striking out Pinch Batter Tuck Stainback on three pitches.

Babe Phelps finished up. He allowed the Cubs only four hits, two of which were doubles by Gabby Hartnett and Hack to give the Cubs their only run after two were out in the seventh.

Middle Men Cause Trouble.

All the scoring and most of the productive hitting was done by the Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5 men in the Sox batting order, Kreevich, Haas, Washington, and Appling.

Kreevich and Haas scored two runs each and Washington the other one. Appling drove in two runs, Washington two and Dykes one.

The main reason the Sox failed to make progress in the first inning was the inability of Kreevich and Washington to see where French was throwing the ball. After Radcliff had been thrown out by French, Kreevich fanned. Haas walked midst Cub protests after a three and two count, then Washington fanned.

In the Cub half Galan walked and reached third on Herman's and Klein's infield outs. The inning ended with Hartnett's fly to Washington.

Piet Doubles Off Wall.

After Appling had lined to French to start the second inning Piet doubled against the right field screen as Klein failed in an attempted graceful catch. Tony went to third while Jurges was throwing out Dykes and died when Sewell bounced to Hack.

Two were out before the Sox started to romp in the third inning. Stratton had flied to Demaree and French had thrown out Radcliff the second time. Kreevich then singled to right and Haas walked. Washington bounced a slow one toward first,

INDIANS DEFEAT GIANTS, 4 TO 0, TO LEAD SERIES

Three Cleveland Pitchers Yield Five Hits.

Cleveland, O., April 11.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians put some fine pitching on display today as they defeated the New York Giants, 4 to 0, in a preview before 1,000 chilled fans.

Mel Harder, Willis Hudlin and Oral Hildebrand, each working three innings, yielded only five hits. Hal Schumacher, the Giants' opening hurler, had little to puzzle the Indians. He was touched for only four hits in the four innings he worked, but handed out five passes and uncorked a wild pitch to give the Indians all of their runs. Fred Fitzsimmons checked Cleveland with two hits the rest of the game.

The victory gave Cleveland a 7 to 6 edge in the series, the final of which will be played here tomorrow.

which Grimm fielded cleanly, but Washington outran French to first, credited with a single, which filled the bases. French threw three wide ones to Appling, then two strikes. When Larry came in with the next one Appling socked it into right for a single, Kreevich and Haas scoring and Washington taking third. Demaree ended the uprising by going to the wall for Piet's drive.

More Grief for French.

The Sox hopped on French for three more runs in the fifth. Kreevich led off with a walk and went to third on Haas' single to center. Haas promptly stole second, and when Washington smashed a double off Grimm's shins Kreevich and Haas scored. Appling then walked, and, after Demaree had again made a good retreating catch off Piet's bat, Dykes singled to right, Washington scoring and Appling taking third. French tossed out Sewell.

The Cubs made their first hit of the afternoon after Demaree and Grimm had been retired on grounders in the fifth. Hack lined a single to right. Jurges lifted a high fly which Radcliff misjudged as completely as he might have had he been blindfolded. The ball dropped for a double, Klein stopping at third. Stainback batted for French and struck out on three pitches.

Mike Settles Down.

Kowalik went in to pitch at the start of the sixth and was wild at the outset. He passed Stumpf, who batted for Stratton, and Radcliff, and they moved up on Kreevich's sacrifice. Then both lost their bearings on Haas' grounder and were doubled as they wandered around third base.

Phelps got the Cubs out on three infield taps in his first inning, the sixth, but was nicked for the lone Cub run in the seventh by the aforementioned doubles by Hartnett and Hack.

DEBORAH VERRY WINS FINAL OF PINEHURST GOLF

Pinehurst, N. C., April 11.—(AP)—Deborah Verry, Worcester, Mass., captured the north and south woman's golf championship today with a 19 hole victory over Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., in the final match of the 34th annual tournament.

By winning, she made a sweep of the two major women's tournaments of the Sandhills resort season, having previously won the mid-south tournament at Southern Pines. Miss Verry will sail for England next week to play in the British tournament.

Not more than one hole separated the finalists as they battled evenly over the 18 hole route. Three times Miss Verry was 1 up, and twice Miss Bauer held that advantage.

From the tee of the extra hole Miss Bauer hit into a bunker and Miss Verry lashed one down the middle. Miss Bauer found her ball in a poor lie up against a slope with no chance for distance and, after chopping it out with a niblick and playing five, conceded to Miss Verry who had put her third four feet from the cup.

Kennedy Pitches Against Carleton in Today's Game

The so-called "city series" will shift to Comiskey park today for the fifth and rubber game. The count on the informal spring meeting between the old south and north side rivals now is two victories apiece. Vernon Kennedy will start for the Sox today and Tex Carleton will do the pitching for the Cubs. The starting time is 3 p. m.

The crowd yesterday was announced as 4,500 and, judging by the raspberries dispensed, it must have been made up of about 75 per cent White Sox constituency. Either the weather or the early starting time, or both, was considered responsible for the slim turnout.

The White Sox board of strategy, after watching Augie Galan at the plate during the three games at Los Angeles last month, decided how he could be stopped as a hitter. Their theory is that a pitcher should refrain from feeding him fast balls.

Manager Charley Grimm had arranged to take his Cubs to St. Louis tonight, thus assuring them an opportunity to work out there tomorrow before opening the season against the Cardinals. Last evening the plan was revised. The Cubs now will leave here tomorrow noon over the Wabash.

The Sox will work out tomorrow morning on their own lot, and then await the arrival of Rogers Hornsby's St. Louis Browns for Tuesday's inaugural. Whether Zeke Bonura, the late holdout, will be able to win back his first base job by Tuesday remains doubtful.

A room at one end of the Wrigley field offices has been set aside for the use of the baseball writers. The scribes have a table on which to work, if they should happen to feel that way, and lockers in which to secrete their paraphenalia. Meanwhile Lou Comiskey is planning a string of social events for the scribes in the palatial fourth estate room at the Sox park. The round of luncheons will start this noon with roast of beef the piece de resistance.

YORK TIES FOR FIRST IN ST. LOUIS RELAY CARNIVAL

St. Louis, Mo., April 11.—(AP)—York High school of Elmhurst, Ill., tied with the University City, Mo., track team for first place in the relay division of the Maplewood track carnival today. Each scored 26 points.

Four new meet records were set. Clark Shaughnessy Jr., son of the University of Chicago football coach, soared over the pole vault bar to a height of 12 feet 5½ inches, better by two inches than the old mark set by Kingsley, Winnetka, Ill., in 1934.

John Cannon, Jerseyville, Ill., half miler, jogged around the rain soaked track for a new 880 yard record of 2 minutes 5.1 seconds. Robert Waldram, perennial javelin winner from Washington, Mo., surpassed his own mark with a 186 foot 10 inch throw. Joe Finch, University City, topped the 120 yard high hurdles for a new mark of 15.5 seconds.

York High got two firsts—the 440 and 880 yard relays. The team in both events was the same, Monahan, Linard, Kopitke, and Darmstadt. The school also was second in the mile relay.

COLUMBIA CREWS SWEEP REGATTA WITH MANHATTAN

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Columbia crews made a clean sweep of races with Manhattan college in informal competition on the Harlem river today.

Hippo Vaughn, Former Cub Star, Can't Wait to Play Again

"Brevity looks like the tops in the Kentucky Derby this year, don't you think?"

Jim [Hippo] Vaughn, former Chicago Cubs southpaw pitcher, settled comfortably in a big chair in his home on the north side yesterday and scanned the sporting pages of a newspaper. Vaughn, star of the Cubs' pitching staf for nine years and idle this winter, celebrated his 46th birthday last Thursday, but remarked that he felt like a rookie and was "itchin' to get out on the field."

Since leaving the major leagues, Vaughn each season has joined a semi-pro team. This year Manager William G. Harley of the Mills has asked the big southpaw to pitch for the west side semi-pros. A five year contract at $50,000 by a Beloit, Wis., team lured Vaughn away from the Cubs in July, 1921.

Vaughn Sticks to Sports.

An interview with Vaughn reveals that he confines all his reading to sports sections of daily newspapers. Important news developed during the week, which made headline stories in all journals throughout the country, fail to stir any comment from the 230 pound pitcher.

"Did you notice that Al Horan joined Gov. Horner?" he was asked.

"Yeah, but it looks to me like the Cubs will win the pennant again," Vaughn said.

"What do you think about Nellie Granger, heroine of the airplane disaster at Uniontown, Pa.?

"Quite a stunt she pulled, but, say, do you think Charley Root will have another good year?"

Root Is Jim's Favorite.

Root, veteran of the Cub's staf, is Vaughn's favorite pitcher and at almost every opportunity he visited Wrigley field last year to watch Root pitch. Charley's comeback last season when he won fifteen games was one of the outstanding performances in the National league, in Vaughn's opinion.

"I got a big kick watching Root win last year," he said. "You know, a fellow pitches with his arm for a long time, but then his speed disappears and he's got to pitch with his head."

Vaughn then turned back to the racing page of his newspaper. During the winter months when there is no baseball news, racing occupies his attention. Occasionally he makes a small wager. However, in the spring and summer he returns to reading all baseball stories.

He's Quite a Cook.

No one has to fix Jim's meals. He proudly boasts of his omelettes, which he says are "the finest in town." When not reading Vaughn is in his kitchen preparing choice dishes.

"Yes, sir. That Brevity must be a great horse," he continued. "If he runs like he did in the Florida Derby, he's a cinch to break Twenty Grand's record of 2:01 4-5 in the Kentucky Derby. You haven't heard of a hot one lately, have you?"

Vaughn joined the Cubs in 1913 after short terms with the New York Yankees and the Washington Senators. In his last year with the Chicagoans he received $12,000. Then in the summer of 1921 came the big offer of $50,000 to perform for Beloit in an industrial league.

Remains in Beloit Six Years.

He remained in Beloit for six years and since then has pitched for Chicago semi-pro clubs. His best year in the majors was in 1918 when he won 27 games to help the Cubs win the National league pennant.

Vaughn moved slightly in his chair and turned the pages of his paper. He stared at a headline on the city series between the Cubs and the Sox. Perhaps his memory went back to a game at Wrigley field in May, 1917, when he and Fred Toney of Cincinnati hooked up and each had a no hit game at the end of nine innings. Two hits and two errors in the tenth inning robbed Vaughn of victory that day, the Reds and Toney triumphing, 1 to 0. He moved again and remarked:

"Guess I'll call up Bill Harley and find out when I have to report. I feel like I want to toss a few down the alley."

White Sox Pay Indians Cash for Clint Brown

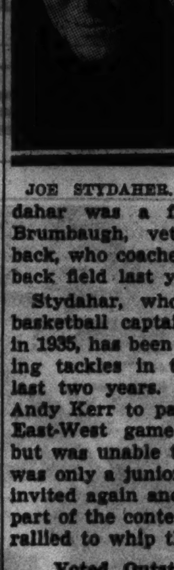
Clinton H. Brown, right handed pitcher who had been with the Cleveland Indians continuously since 1928, barring a bit of seasoning at New Orleans, was purchased last night by the White Sox. In making the announcement Harry Grabiner, vice president of the south side club, said that it was a straight cash transaction. The amount was not revealed.

Brown pitched only 49 innings last season, winning 4 and losing 3. He was kept out of action for most of the year by an eye injury, incurred when a fire cracker, thrown on the field by a spectator, exploded.

Brown, who is 33, made his start in organized ball at Rochester, N. Y., in 1926. He is expected to report tomorrow.

Bears Sign Joe Stydahar, Tackle Star

Joe Stydahar, giant University of West Virginia star, has been signed by the Chicago Bears, Owner George Halas announced yesterday. Stydahar is a tackle. He weighs 220 pounds and is 6 feet 3½ inches tall.



JOE STYDAHER.

With the Bears Stydahar will be a teammate of Bill Karr, the outstanding end in football last year, who was a star at West Virginia while Stydahar was a freshman, and Carl Brumbaugh, veteran Bear quarter back, who coached the West Virginia back field last year.

Stydahar, who was football and basketball captain at West Virginia in 1935, has been one of the outstanding tackles in the country for the last two years. He was invited by Andy Kerr to participate in the 1934 East-West game at San Francisco, but was unable to accept because he was only a junior. Last year he was invited again and starred in the last part of the contest in which the East rallied to whip the West.

Voted Outstanding Athlete.

Coaches and sports writers voted him the outstanding athlete in West Virginia last year, for which he received the Gov. Kump award. He has been a varsity football and basketball player for three years, setting a Southern conference basketball scoring record of 100 points for eight games in 1935.

Stydahar set a record for blocking kicks in his junior year, crashing through to block punts which eventually led to touchdowns in games against West Virginia Wesleyan, Duquesne, Washington and Lee, and Temple. In the Temple game Tod Goodwin, who starred at end for the New York Giants last year, fell on the ball for a touchdown. The blocked kick in the Duquesne game gave West Virginia a 7 to 0 victory.

Brumbaugh Praises Ability.

Brumbaugh, who followed Stydahar in all his games last year, says he has the ability to become the best tackle the Bears ever have had. He has the size and stamina of Link Lyman and the speed of Ed Healy. He played throughout his sophomore year without a substitution.

Stydahar is a senior in the college of agriculture. His home is in Shinnston, W. Va., where he was an all-state high school full back for two years and an all-state tackle for two.

improvement from a bad start in the exhibition season, and Chuck Klein, who looked great in California, was helpless in Florida. George Stainback, still a great kid, dreams on and on, and Johnny Gill is pretty good except when his puppies bark. If there were no prejudice against playing in bare feet Johnny would be a wow.

Now, about the Cardinals. The Deans are the reason you can't laugh off the Cardinals. The Deans and Joe Medwick and Pepper Martin and Ripper Collins. But who's going to play second when Ol' Frankie Frisch swoons under the August sun? One can't be facetious about Charley Gelbert's leg, and everybody hopes he'll be able to play in every inning of every game. But will he?

The Cardinals big four pitching staf is the Deans, Bud Parmelee, and Wild Bill Hallahan. The Giants kissed off Parmelee because of a lame arm and Hallahan has had his aches and pains these last two years. Will their fine Florida form prevail? There are some other Cardinal pitchers, Bill Walker, this iron man Ryba, and others, but think nothing of it.

Giants Picked for Third.

The Giants will finish third. The Giants have the best outfield in the league, a fine infield and a good catcher. They have the best lefty, Carl Hubbell, in the league. The comeback of the great Hal Schumacher is not assured, and after Hubbell and Schumacher all is chaos in the Giant pitching department.

The Pirates? Don't let their showing against the White Sox fool you. The Pirates are suffering from gray whiskers in the pitching sector. Cy Blanton is youthful and good, we'll grant you. But who ever won a pennant with one pitcher?

The Cincinnati Reds will top the second division on good pitching and hustle.

The Brooklyn Dodgers are picked for sixth on the same basis, but they may fall clear out of the league if Earnshaw reverts to his true form, the laziest man in baseball, and Mungo has that finger blister.

The Phillies' manager thinks they are going to head the second division. If they do, come in and the first twenty who arrive will be awarded new hats.

AMERICAN PRO FOOTBALL LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Eight Cities Are Granted Franchises.

New York, April 11.—(AP)—The American Professional Football league formally organized today, granted franchises to eight cities in six states and drew up plans for opening its first season Sept. 13 or Sept. 20.

one extensive mishap to one of their important members the Yanks probably would have been four or more laps ahead instead of that much in arrears at the finish.

There is every indication that the Yanks will kick off next Tuesday with a team considerably stronger than the combination of a year ago. Even if Rookie Joe Demaggio is a bust the Yanks still will have a passable outfield. The probable comeback of Gomez might be enough in itself to mean a pennant. The infield may be none too good. Then there is the little but important matter of Manager Joe McCarthy reverting to his former sternness. Success, financially and otherwise, is said to have mellowed him a bit.

Indians Do Well in Own Park.

For the last half dozen years it has been the habit of some to hang the winning of a pennant on the Cleveland Indians. The Indians will be in on what promises to be a four cornered race and they might beat the field to the wire, but to do that they will have to come up with items they lacked last season. The Indians are powerful in their own park, which is made to order for their hitters, but what they gain at home they lose on the road.

Jim Dykes' White Sox, who startled the league by their showing early last season, probably are doomed for nothing better than fifth place, which they occupied last fall. On paper they are better fixed than at the start of 1935, but there remains a tendency toward weak defense such as finally wrecked them after their brilliant splurge of a year ago. The addition of a worthwhile outfielder would make a vast difference in the strength of Dykes' layout.

Watch Out for Hornsby.

After his success with the Browns during the last half of the 1935 race, Manager Rogers Hornsby will bear watching. His is the team the White Sox will have to keep under control if they hope to retain fifth place or something better for themselves. The two remaining positions in the race are open for the Washington Senators and the Athletics.

The 124th Field Artillery team of Lieut. Don Rice, Capt. Romeo Mura and Capt. William S. Everett last night won the Metropolitan polo league championship by defeating the Shamrocks, 13 to 5, at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

Previously the 124th players had won the league senior title and the Shamrocks the junior crown. It was the first time in league competition that the two divisional champions had met.

Rice Leads Scorers.

Lieut. Rice carried off the scoring honors with seven goals, while Capt. Mura had two.

The Shamrocks earned a net of only one goal. They scored twice and were victims of two fouls. Their other four points came to them by handicap awards.

In the first period the Shamrocks' four point lead by handicap was reduced to 3½ on Lieut. Schuh's foul. Meanwhile, the 124th trio scored five times and Capt. Mura fouled once for a lead of 4½ to 3½ at the end of the period.

Artillery Gets Four in Second.

The Artillery scored four more times in the second chukker, Lieut. Rice getting three and Capt. Mura the other. Lieut. McAnulty made the Shamrocks' first goal in this period.

Capt. Mura scored the only goal made in the third period, and it was partly nullified by Capt. Everett's foul. The Shamrocks lost half a point on Lieut. Schuh's foul.

In the final chukker Lieut. Rice and Capt. Mura each scored twice for the 124th Artillery. Lieut. Schuh counted once for the Shamrocks.

Fort Sheridan defeated the All-Stars, 10 to 8½, in the first game, which was decided when Maj. George P. Hays scored two goals in the final chukker. Maj. Hays scored six during the contest.

The All-Stars led only once when Bill Fergus scored near the end of the third period.

DID RED SOX WIN? SAY NOTHING—IT MAY BE ILLEGAL

Boston, Mass., April 11.—(AP)—Customers at Fenway park, home of the Red Sox, will learn when the season opens next week that henceforth it may be illegal to tell one's wife, small boy, or neighbors who won a game at the park.

An inscription on the tickets reads: "By the acceptance and use of this ticket, the holder agrees that he will not directly or indirectly transmit or aid in the transmission of any report, account, or result [either partial or complete] of the baseball game or exhibition."

The idea is to give the park management a legal weapon against tipsters employed by gamblers.

Mangrum Posts 289 for Second Place.

Richmond, Va., April 11.—(AP)—Jimmie Thomson, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware pro, who learned to play golf here ten years ago, returned to win the $3,000 Richmond open today with a sub par 285.

Second in a field which included some of golfdom's best performers was Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, who took a 289 in the 72 hole combat against par over the James river course of the Country Club of Virginia.

A three way deadlock resulted for third position with the two veteran Chicago campaigners, Harry Cooper and Frank Walsh, and Richmond's Bobby Cruickshank finishing with 290's.

Horton Smith Cards 291.

Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., who came here after a brilliant finish at Augusta to capture the masters' tournament, was plagued with misfortune in the final round today to card a 291.

Thomson, who entered today's play with 141, encountered more than the usual troubles of a tournament leader, but he seemed to thrive on adversity. On the out-going nine of the final round this afternoon, where a slip might have cost him the tournament, his bullet-like drives dropped into difficult plots of rough, and his approaches invariably were parked on the very edges of the greens, but in spite of it all, he still managed to keep under regulation figures.

Mangrum Turns in 69.

Equally as remarkable was the work of Mangrum, who entered today's play with a 151. He blazed across the course in 69, three under par, this morning and repeated this feat in the afternoon to clinch the $450 second place purse.

Amateurs had little success, with Johnny Dawson's 303 leading the field. Ed Meister Jr., Cleveland, and Bobby Riegel, Richmond, southern amateur champion, were tied for second with 309's.

BREVITY IS HOPE OF WIDENER TO END DERBY JINX

Turfman Sees Victory Ahead After 24 Years.

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 11.—On they trudge—Joseph E. Widener, the fashionable turfman, and his trainer, Pete Coyne—in their attempt to breed, raise, and send a horse to Churchill Downs that is able to win the Kentucky Derby.

For years they have been trying to do it and have failed. Yet the public still has faith in this combination. It demonstrated it when it made Mr. Widener's colt, Brevity, trained by Coyne, the shortest priced future betting favorite in Derby history.

This it did in spite of the Derby jinx that has consistently trailed Owner Widener and Trainer Coyne for these many years.

It Started Back in 1912.

The Derby jinx first camped on the trail of Trainer Coyne in 1912.

Coyne was training a colt by the name of Free Lance for the Derby for George J. Long. Everybody from Coyne to the grooms and exercise boys pushed in their stacks of blue chips.

Another horse, Worth, won the race. Freen Lance was not even in the money, yet in the Latonia Derby a few weeks later the colt again hooked up with Worth and actually ran away from the Kentucky Derby winner.

Fifteen years later came the Widener-Coyne hookup. That was in 1927, and that year in the Widener barn was a colt named Osmand, which Trainer Coyne proceeded to point for the Derby.

Unbeatable Before Derby.

Osmand turned in such spectacular workouts that he was considered unbeatable two weeks before Derby day. Onto the scene stepped old man jinx. With the Derby only ten days away Osmand stepped on a nail while walking from his stable to the Churchill Downs course for a training drill.

It wasn't a serious mishap, yet Osmand missed a couple of important workouts. After leading nearly all the way he was beaten by a head in the Derby by Whiskery. Those two workouts which he missed no doubt would have put him in the condition that would have made it possible for him to stick it out for the whole route.

This Widener-Coyne combination was not back in the Derby limelight again until 1934. Peace Chance was their Derby hope on this occasion. A few days before the Derby he won a mile race at Churchill Downs in the track record breaking time of 1:35 4-5.

Old Man Jinx Returns.

"There's the Derby winner," everybody who had watched the sensational performance shouted.

Old man jinx had bought himself a round trip ticket. Back he was on the trail of Widener and Coyne on Derby day. Peace Chance was all but left at the post. Along came champion Cavalcade to win the Derby and Peace Chance was out of the money. Later on that year Peace Chance proved when he won the mile and a half Belmont stakes that he was the best long distance racer among the 3-year-olds, although he didn't get a crack at Cavalcade in the Belmont.

The scene now shifts quickly to the last Derby, which was won by Omaha at Churchill Downs last spring. The future book favorite during all the early betting was Chance Sun, owned by the same Mr. Widener and trained by the same Mr. Coyne.

Chance Sun Goes Wrong.

Mr. Jinx didn't wait until Derby day to get after them this time. He arrived a few days early, made sure that Chance Sun would go wrong in training and would not get to the post in the Derby. Then Mr. Jinx went merrily along his capricious way.

Last week Trainer Coyne and his newest Derby favorite, Brevity, moved in, bag and baggage, at Churchill Downs to await the next Derby on the afternoon of May 2.

Brevity now is at 5 to 2 in the betting. He will be ridden by Wayne Wright, just now called "Lucky" Wright. On Derby afternoon, if all goes well, he probably will be at 8 to 5 in the wagering.

And what everybody would like to know is whether Mr. Jinx is in Addis Ababa, Timbuctoo or out on the fringe of Churchill Downs waiting to make another unfriendly call on Owner Widener, Trainer Coyne and their favorite, Brevity.

DAY TO BATTLE JOHNNY DURSO ON DERBY EVE CARD

Louisville, Ky., April 11.—(AP)—The Derby eve boxing card was about completed today with the announcement that Davey Day, Chicago lightweight, and Johnny Durso, Louisville, have been matched for one of the three eight round supporting bouts.

With Jack Dempsey as referee, Barney Ross, welterweight champion, will box Chuck Woods, Detroit, in the ten round main event. Ross' title will not be at stake.

Maj. Griffith to Speak at Pageant of Progress

Prominent figures in the sports world will be on the program of the Women's Pageant of Progress which will open at Navy Pier Saturday and continue daily through April 26. Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Big Ten, will deliver one of a series of addresses.

LEADING THE WAY TO BOWIE PAYOFF POST

Distracting crosses the finish line well ahead of Eddie Wrack in the first of yesterday's races at the Bowie track. This was the concluding program of Bowie's spring meeting. Rain and cold weather tended to keep the attendance down and track officials reported that receipts and betting handle did not come up to expectations. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Run Dead Heat in Three Mile Steeplechase

Monkton, Md., April 11.—(AP)—Sporting Print, owned by Mrs. Francis P. Garvan, New York, and Justinan II., owned by Stuart S. Janney, Baltimore, ran a dead heat today in My Lady's Manor point-to-point steeplechase.

The racers, after a gruelling battle in the stretch, finished nose to nose in the fashionable three mile race over 19 difficult jumps. It was the first tie sportsmen could remember in the 38 year history of the historic steeplechase.

Tres Bon Tosses Rider.

Mrs. Garvan's Tres Bon finished next, but had tossed its rider, and third place went to Dan McGee, owned by Benjamin L. Behr, Chicago.

Primero, owned by James Piper, Eccleston, Md., was fourth, and Be Happy, owned by B. H. Griswold III., Baltimore, fifth and last.

Five of eleven original entries were scratched before the start of the event, run on a heavy turf before 4,000.

Dan McGee Starts Fast.

Dan McGee got away first, trailed by Tres Bon and Be Happy. Tres Bon lost its rider near the end of the first mile.

At the start of the last mile the field was quite well bunched, but within the last half, Sporting Print and Justinan II. forged ahead and went over the final jump as one horse.

The My Lady's Manor topped a card of three jumping races and a flat race on the estates of J. Myers Pearce and Leslie K. Kieffer.

CHILIAD had plenty of speed but tired badly in last sixteenth. TELL IT failed to show any speed. SUN ALLEY ran well for five furlongs.

LOVELY GIRL broke good but dropped right out of all contention. She was lengths back going into far turn, but began to close ground, got through on inside entering stretch, closed gamely and won going away. PATSEY BEGONE had plenty of speed and held on well. NOUVEAU RICHE, well up and kept out in the best going, ran good race. TORITA never a factor. MISS TWINKLE had early speed.

THIRD RACE—Purse $800. [Claiming price, $1,250. Three year olds and up. Six furlongs. Start good. Won driving, place easily. Went to post at 3:45, off at 3:46. WAR SAINT, showing a decided liking for the muddy going, followed pace to the stretch, where he closed gamely and won going away. NALITA J ran into lead at furlong pole, but weakened suddenly. PRINCE TURLEY opened wide gap early, saved ground and ran a good race. CURRANTS performed badly, being outrun in early part, closed some ground in stretch. MERRIWEATHER had no mishap.

FOURTH RACE—The Bowie Kindergarten. Purse $1,500 added. Two year olds. Four furlongs. Start good. Won ridden out, place driving. Went to post at 4:14, off at 4:17. IRREPRESSIBLE got away well in motion, raced WHISCENDA into defeat, drew away, but boy rode her out. SCINTILLATOR moved up very fast on the outside around the turn, was taken to the inside in stretch and held on well. BALKANESE broke very slow, was forced to make up a lot of ground and finished fast. WHISCENDA was used up racing the winner. LITTLE SHAVER appears to have lost his form.

FIFTH RACE—The Southern Maryland handicap. Purse, $5,000 added. Three year olds and up. Mile and one-sixteenth. Start good. Won galloping; place easily. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:47½. Two dollar mutuels paid: Purple Knight, $7.90 straight, $7.10 place, $4.40 show; Good Harvest, $7.10 place, $4.40 show; Steel Cutter, $5.60 show.

PURPLE KNIGHT got away well, was under stout restraint for entire trip, moved up fast entering stretch, and was only galloping at end. GOOD HARVEST was sent to the front with a rush, opened wide lead, saved ground, and was an easy second. STEEL CUTTER was hard ridden the last half mile and made a game effort. LYNX EYE closed a big gap. NEW DEAL was kept well up and had no mishap. BRIGHT LIGHT made his bid turning out of backstretch, but faltered badly in last quarter mile. CHATMOSS had no excuse. PERADVENTURE was being eased up at end.

CINAR followed pace to the middle of the turn, where he moved up and outgamed MANAGER BILL. The latter was rushed into a long lead, displayed good speed, and held on well. COMING BACK was unprepared for the break, went in the air, and was last away. He closed big gap gamely and might have won but for being left. THE SINGER ran his race. ROCKY PRINCE was almost knocked down just after the start.

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $800. [Claiming price, $1,250. Four year olds and up. One mile and a furlong. Start good. Won easily, place driving. Went to post at 5:48, off at 5:49¼. Martinez Signs to Box Matthews in Return Bout

St. Louis, Mo., April 11.—(AP)—Promoter Lew Raymond tonight announced he has signed Emilio Martinez, Denver light heavyweight, for a 15 round return match here April 28 with Allen Matthews, St. Louis colored boxer. Martinez, conqueror of John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion in a nontitle bout, lost a close decision to Matthews recently in a 10 round engagement.

A. G. VANDERBILT HORSES TAKE TWO STAKES AT BOWIE

12,000 See Irrepressible, Purple Knight Win.

Baltimore, Md., April 11.—[Special.]—Irrepressible, Purple Knight and Good Harvest enabled Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, owner of one of the largest strings of thoroughbreds in America, to sweep the afternoon's stakes at Bowie today.

It was the final session of the Bowie meeting, and neither mud nor rain deterred many in a crowd of 12,000 from strongly backing bearers of the cerise and white diamonds.

Run One, Two in $5,725 Race.

Vanderbilt ran one, two with Purple Knight and Good Harvest in the $5,725 Southern Maryland handicap, immediately after Irrepressible had captured the $1,960 kindergarten.

The latter turned the tables on Townsend Martin's Balkanese. These two victories brought the Vanderbilt score to nine for the meeting, not counting second and third places. Vanderbilt appears well started on his way to the distinction gained last year of top money winner in the United States.

The attendance apparently did not suffer from the weather. The mutuel handle was estimated to be close to $400,000, again surpassing the equivalent figure of a year ago.

Vanderbilt Entry Is Favorite.

The Vanderbilt entry was the favorite in the Southern Maryland, although considerable backing also developed for Bright Light and Lynx Eye. Yet it was Steel Cutter, a long shot and a surprise, which ran third to the entry at the end of the mile and a sixteenth.

He was beaten six lengths for second by Good Harvest. Steel Cutter is a stable mate to Balkanese, which was made favorite over Irrepressible because he had beaten her earlier in the week. The Vanderbilt luck, however, held in even this.

Because the entry ran one, two, the payoff across the board on Purple Knight and Good Harvest was $7.90, $7.10 and $4.40.

Purple Knight's Run Surprises.

Knapp let Purple Knight run through the stretch, and it was a surprise to many to see him get up and beat his stable mate a head for the main prize of $3,975. The winner carried 113 pounds against 117 for Good Harvest, and was timed in 1:50 1-5. Steel Cutter was up to get third a length and a half before Lynx Eye.

The value to the winner was $1,435 in the kindergarten, which is the stake that pointed out Bright Light last year to eastern racegoers as a two year old of ability. Because of the decisive manner in which Balkanese defeated Irrepressible on the occasion of their first meeting, the former was made a decided favorite at 3 to 2.

Arlington Downs, Tex., April 11.—[U. P.]—The Long Run stable's Marynell, with J. Nolan up, won the fifth and feature race, the $5,000 frontier handicap, at Arlington Downs today before a crowd of 18,000.

The winner ran the mile and a sixteenth in the fast time of 1:43 2-5.

Marynell took the lead at the start and held it throughout the race. The victory was worth $4,170 to the Long Run stable.

Sarada, ridden by E. Porter, did most of the threatening at the stretch to finish second. The favorite, Ariel Cross, was third, a nose behind Sarada. D. Brammer rode the show horse.

Marynell awarded her backers $26.10 straight, $13.70 to place, and $3.80 to show. Sarada paid $47.30 and $9.30, while Ariel Cross returned $2.60.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

PONTIAC ENDURANCE DRIVER

Ed Clark (left), endurance driver, receiving congratulations from George Fleming, secretary of the "Keep Chicago Safe" council after he had finished 100 hours of nonstop driving through the city streets of Chicago in a 1936 Pontiac. He averaged 24.19 miles per gallon of gas.

OUTER DRIVES LOSING VALUE IN EXPRESS TRAVEL

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago has reason to be proud of its outer drives, but engineers are now beginning to doubt whether high speed automobile trafic on the lake front is desirable.

This pride, it might be pointed out, is based mainly on the fact that the outer drives are the city's only facilities approaching the demand for pavements to accommodate rapid movement with safety. The engineers' doubt is based on the detraction and handicap to recreational usage of the water front.

Urges Conversion of Lagoon.

Otto K. Jelinek, trafic engineer for the Chicago park district, has this new thought in mind in urging the conversion of the Lincoln park lagoon from a little used water pool into a depressed boulevard with continuous grade separation north from North avenue. The present pavement at the water's edge, labeled on maps as Beach drive, would be converted into a parking area for a new beach.

Beach drive, under present conditions, is losing its value as a through trafic facility. Cars park on the east curb for a view of the lake, a pleasure that cannot reasonably be denied. Groins have been built into the lake to cause the waves to form a beach. When the beach is formed, attracting more pedestrians, the pavement will be dangerous for express travel.

Similar Situation on South Side.

There is a similar situation on the south side where outer drive trafic is brought to the water's edge. Parking and bathing do not associate safely with fast motor travel.

Dr. Miller McClintock, head of the Harvard university bureau of trafic research, in his study of Chicago's automobile transportation problems three years ago proposed that the outer drive be continued south from 55th street on a landscaped embankment at the western edge of Jackson park to connect with an elevated highway of the trestle type in Stony Island avenue. It might also be suggested that a similar parklike pavement of continuous grade separation, segregated from pedestrians, could be built on the east side of the Jackson park lagoon to connect with South Shore drive.

In the new section of Lincoln park from Montrose avenue to Foster avenue, the outer drive is separated from the water's edge by a half mile or so of made land. This may be the other extreme in park planning. When the public begins to use the new Wilson avenue beach this summer there may be complaints that the beach has been moved so far east that it is difficult for children and for street car patrons to reach it. Motorists will find convenient parking accommodations.

Did Not Forsee Trafic Volume.

The late Daniel H. Burnham, in his famous plan of Chicago published in 1908, described the lake as Chicago's most valuable recreational advantage and urged that a pavement be laid at the water's edge. He did not foresee today's heavy volume of fast motor trafic that, on a pavement such as he proposed, would destroy this recreational advantage.

Dr. McClintock, in his more modern study, suggested the continuation of the development of parked speedways on the lake front, but urged that these pavements should be physically separated from all pedestrians, cross trafic, and parking. He also urged elevated highway construction directly north and directly south from the western edge of the central business district.

The Milwaukee branch of the Northwestern railroad has been considered as a route for the elevated highway to the north. On the south side Dr. McClintock has also suggested an elevated structure to connect Indianapolis boulevard with South Chicago avenue and thence with Stony Island avenue.

Westerly Route Should Be First.

Much has been written and many civic meetings have been held urging elevated highway construction for the west side. Routes to the northwest and to the southwest are also receiving active consideration from civic interests if not from politicians. It is obvious from congestion and accident studies that a westerly route should be the first of the elevated structures to be erected, but it is also well to bear in mind that the outer drives are not the ultimate in trafic facilities for the north and south sides.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Chevrolet sales in March, 126,119 units, were the highest for any month in the history of the company, it was announced at the factory. A new record was set also for first quarter sales, which totaled 272,149, a gain of 97,839 over the same period last year. The previous high record for a single month had stood ever since May, 1928, totaling 122,437. The largest previous first quarter record was 248,875 units in 1929.

J. E. Fields, president of the sales division of the Chrysler, last week painted a very bright picture of the future of the automobile business. Mr. Fields said that the industry is now in a cycle of prosperity that he feels certain will last at least through 1938.

The President coupe of 1936 is occupying an increasingly prominent place in the roster of 1936 Studebaker sales. Built upon a wheelbase of 125 inches, the President is powered with an eight cylinder, 115 horse power engine. Equipped with over drive, the President produces 90 miles an hour.

According to regional manager, Lee Cosart, deliveries of Dodge and Plymouth passenger cars by dealers of the Chicago region during the week ending March 28, amounted to 971 units. During the same week the dealers also delivered 149 Dodge commercial cars and trucks, making a total of 1,120 new vehicles delivered at retail.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

PARKING LIGHTS NOT FOR DRIVING.

Chicago, April 8.—Here is a suggestion for automobile engineers for more safety. Eliminate the small parking lights, such as are on some fenders, and use the headlamps only.

Some motorists use these small parking lights for city driving, which is against the law. It causes many accidents. Motorists can not judge distances on a car with these small lights. Near sighted pedestrians don't see them. They are not as noticeable to children.

FRANK FRANEK.

FOR ELEVATED HIGHWAYS.

Chicago, April 7.—Evidently the politicians have again evaded the question of responsibility for the 1,000 lives that are lost annually in Chicago because the city has not received the elevated highways that could be built with revenue from the present taxes paid by motorists. There's a primary election next week and none of the candidates has expressed himself on this problem that is surely more vital than most of the issues that have been raised. I hope that in November the nominees will be forced to pledge themselves for this safety measure.

STANLEY RENEWICK.

HAZARDS OF WIDENED STREET.

Chicago, April 9.—May I call your attention to the fact that since Canal street has been widened and paved from 18th street to Roosevelt road it is being used as a regular speedway. People trying to cross the street between 4 and 6 p. m. at 14th place or 14th street do so at the risk of their lives.

On March 8 one of our watchmen was very badly hurt at 14th street and Canal. On March 14 three persons were hit there, two later dying, I understand.

The employés of the Burlington railroad at this point number 200 or more and they are asking for a stop and go sign at this point.

ARMS OUT CAR WINDOWS INVITE SERIOUS INJURY

This Is the Season of Increasing Accidents.

BY HAL FOUST.

The season is here, at least according to the calendar, to roll down the windows of your car to enjoy balmy breezes while driving over the boulevards or over country roads. Not so pleasant to contemplate, it's also the season of increasing accidents.

The lowered windows bring an additional danger that can be avoided by the thoughtful. This refers to the habit of some drivers and some passengers of riding with an arm outside the car.

The manufacturers in the last few weeks have strengthened the bodies of the vehicles to give a maximum of protection to the occupants in any crash. This protection, quite obviously, does not extend to any arms hanging or sticking from a window.

Yet it's not uncommon to see a driver with a hand idly dangling from a left window. This is especially true of smokers who do not use an ash tray inside the car. This is annoying to other motorists because it's sometimes misunderstood as a signal of intention to turn or to stop.

On the other side, the right side of the car, bare armed women or men with their sleeves rolled up sometimes hold the top of the car with one hand to expose some skin to the sun or merely for the restful position. It's a strap hanger's pose assumed by automobile passengers while seated.

Children, who can't be expected to know any better, sometimes play with whirlygiggs or improvised flags held outside the car while riding with parents, who should be expected to know better.

In any sideswipe collision these arms outside the windows are unwittingly reaching for death or permanent injury. With one steel vehicle scraping against another, the exposed limb is crushed. If the car is turned over in some exigency the arm is smashed as it is caught between the pavement or ground and a ton or two of machine.

Of course these folks with their arms thoughtlessly extended from a window aren't expecting any accident. That's when many accidents happen.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY

INDIAN BROOM BREAKS WORLD 1 1/8 MILE RECORD

Whips Top Row by Seven Lengths at Tanforan.

San Francisco, Cal., April 11.—(AP)—Indian Broom raced to a new world record and a victory over Top Row in the first running of the $10,000 added Marchbank handicap at Tanforan track today.

The 3 year old, owned by Maj. Austin C. Taylor of Vancouver, B. C., ran a mile and one-eighth in the phenomenal time of 1:47 3-5 to defeat Top Row by seven lengths, with Azucar a charging third.

Takes Lead at Start.

With Basil James, 16 year old apprentice rider from Sunnyside, Wash., in the stirrups, Indian Broom broke fast and snatched the lead from his four foes in the first few strides. Then he started out to make turf history while 25,000 watched him.

Indian Broom opened up daylight on his field rounding the first bend, widened his command to two lengths going down the backstretch. Running in smoth, faultless fashion, the chestnut son of Brooms-Kawida increased his lead to four lengths when he flashed by the half way pole.

R. A. Moore's Thursday was second, with Top Row going easily a length and a half farther back. Then came Jovius. Trailing him three lengths was Azucar.

Top Row Makes Move.

Going around the lower turn Indian Broom was still four lengths in front, but here Jocky Wayne Wright began to move with Top Row. "Here he come!" the crowd shouted as Top Row moved up on Thursday, gradually went by and set sail for the leading Indian Broom. It was a brief and futile bid for the 4 to 5 favorite.

Wins By Seven Lengths.

Indian Broom's fractional time was impressive. He ran the quarter in :24 2-5; the half in :48; the six furlongs in 1:11 2-5, and the mile in 1:35 3-5, and then on to the new world's record of 1:47 3-5.

Second choice in the wagering, he paid $7.40, $2.60, and $2.40 across the board in the pari-mutuels. The handle on the race was $73,048.

The victory brought Indian Broom's owner $8,450, with $2,000 going to Top Row and $1,000 to Azucar. Thursday's share for fourth place was $500.

BEATING THE SANTA ANITA CHAMPION AND A WORLD'S RECORD

Missing Meal WorthWhile to Crappie Fisher

BY BOB BECKER.

Fly fishermen anxious to get a string of crappies in northern Illinois waters can usually connect with fish at this season if they go to the right places, but like as not they will miss their dinners the evening that the fishing game occupies their attention. The trouble is that the crappies on the move early in the season are shy and may not start their march from deep water into the canals, lagoons, or creeks until around sundown. So the patient fly rod angler has to wait 'em out. That means late evening fishing and no dinner at home.

Hundreds of fishermen have been enjoying the bluegill and crappie fishing with fly rods this spring. Most of them have concentrated on the famous Ditch, a stream connected with Pistakee lake and winding out from the lake into the middle of a slough. The panfish come out of the lake and enter this stream. Here the fly fishermen stand on the banks and toss their flies.

Ditch West of Long Lake.

The Ditch is due west of the town of Long Lake. The highway is concrete until you cross the north and south highway into Fox lake. Then one follows the gravel [west] for several miles until the south end of Pistakee lake is reached. Here the road crosses the Ditch—the rendezvous of the fly fishing gang.

Fishermen who haven't tried their luck fishing with a fly rod and an assortment of lures should try it this spring if they want to experience a new kind of fun in fishing. There are a number of casting clubs in Chicago where one can learn how to toss a lure in an hour or two, or a beginner can visit one of the crappie and bluegill fishing spots and learn the game right on the grounds from some of the expert casters that invariably are there with their outfits.

It's Fun with Light Tackle.

We saw what some fishermen miss in not using a flyrod the other day when we were at the Ditch. On the bridge over the creek were a number of fly rod fishermen tossing a varied assortment of flies at the bluegills. It was a lot of fun to join the party. The light whippy rods . . . the way the scrappy bluegills bent the rods and darted around when hooked . . . the quick rises of fish on the surface to take a fly . . . the way the fishermen coördinated eyes and muscles to hook a striking fish . . . these and other features in the fly fishing picture were attractive and a lot of fun because light tackle was involved.

The league race has been a three cornered fight among the O'Keefe Coals, Mineralites, and Blazek Tailors, all season and as the teams turn into the home stretch the O'Keefe's hold a three game lead which assures them of at least a tie for the championship. The Mineralites are tied with the Blazeks for second and third places with 55 won and 32 lost.

Bill Lenzen of the O'Keefes has clinched the individual championship with the only 200 average in the league. His mark is 203.20 for 84 games. Next are Joe Fliger of the Mineralites with 199.79 and Sykes Thoma of the O'Keefes with 199.42.

A postponed series between P. J. Westers and the Goldammer Milfords will be rolled today at 2 p. m. at the Bryn Mawr Recreation. These teams are tied for third place.

Randolph League.

Although their series was mediocre, the Mary Ann Breads broke the tie for second place in the Randolph league by winning two out of three from the Budweisers. While this cut throating was going on the Mineralites increased their lead to ten games by swamping the Cyrilla Cigars, who shot three 1,000 games. Traubenik of the Birk Brothers topped the individuals with 715. Trailing him were Bunning, 695, and Wright, 686, both of the Mineralites; Bartock of Roosevelt Brewing, 683; Johnson of Cyrilla Cigars, 661, and Fligers of Mineralites, 661.

DUSETTE MEETS SCHNABLE IN MAT BOUT AT ARCADIA

George Dusette, world light heavyweight wrestling champion, is matched with Hans Schnable of Germany in the windup of Fred Kohler's mat show Wednesday night at Arcadia Gardens.

Dusette wrestled to a 90 minute draw last Wednesday in the north side arena, but that did not interfere with his engaging in several more matches between now and Wednesday, when he again has a hard contest—with Schnable, who outweighs George by 20 pounds.

Jack Schmelling, another German, will be on Wednesday's card. Schmelling meets Ernie Peterson, Marquette, Mich., light heavyweight. Whitey Walberg faces Mike Kilonis in a 30 minute bout. There will be two other bouts.

MAYOR TO TOSS THE FIRST BALL IN POLISH PIN MEET

Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Ald. Joseph P. Rostenkowski and Frank E. Konkowski will attend the opening ceremonies of the ninth annual Polish-American bowling tournament at the Stack & Ryan alleys tonight. The mayor will toss the first ball to start hundreds of Polish-Americans in quest of 1936 championships.

Blue Rock, 2 Yr. Old Racer, Breaks Neck in Workout

DOUBLE POINTS GIVEN TONIGHT ON AUTO CARD

Added purse money and double points will spur on the auto racing drivers tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory, Fifty-Second street and Cottage Grove avenue, with an Easter sweepstakes topping the program.

Added money and double point awards are expected to bring about the hardest competition of the season, as the drivers continue their bids for the 1936 indoor auto racing championship. The sweep is a seventy lap test, divided into three heats of ten, twenty, and forty laps, with the fastest time trial driver getting the pole in the first heat.

The balance of the card will include four handicap races and an Australian pursuit race. The handicap races will find the drivers lined up inversely to their time trials, while the same placing prevails in the pursuit race. In this event a driver is automatically eliminated if passed. A comedy feature will be another leadfoot derby in which pilots drive four laps and foot race one lap in the five lap event.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 11.—(AP)—Fred Cady, coach of the American Olympic diving teams, expressed belief today United States swimming stars will defeat the defending Japanese champions this summer. Cady said a new stroke developed by the Japanese, and involving a quicker arm recovery, should give the Americans little trouble.

Red Wings Take Cup in Four Games Review of Week's Sports

Having won three games in a row from the Montreal Maroons to win the National Hockey league championship, the Detroit Red Wings set out to duplicate the feat against the Toronto Maple Leafs and win the Stanley cup last week. On Sunday night at Detroit they ran over the Leafs, 3 to 1, and on Tuesday night went on a rampage to score nine goals and take the second game, 9 to 4.

On Thursday night the two clubs moved to Toronto. The fire that had characterized the Leafs' sensational spurt into second place in the Canadian division during the regular season and its victories in the first two playoff rounds in which they conquered the Boston Bruins and then the New York Americans seemed gone entirely. Detroit scored once in the first period, once in the second, and once again in the third to take a 3 to 0 lead in the third period. Then something happened. Toronto shoved in a goal, followed it quickly with a second. Still Detroit led, 3 to 2, and was out in front by that margin with only 42 seconds left to play.

But, with the Stanley cup all but wrapped up and delivered, Detroit wavered. Pep Kelly shot home the tying goal for the Leafs in 19:48 of the third period and shortly after the overtime period had started Buzz Boll rammed home the winning score for Toronto and sent the series into the fourth game, played last night at Toronto.

Toronto took a 1 to 0 lead in the first period, but the Wings were not to be denied. They rammed home two goals in the second period, another in the third to win the game, 3 to 2, and the series, 3 games to 1.

Horton Smith Wins Masters' Golf Tourney.

Rain that had delayed the opening of the Masters' Golf tournament for one day broke loose again on Sunday and inundated a large part of the course at Augusta, Ga., for the second time. Harry Cooper of Chicago had sailed through the first two rounds with 139 for 36 holes and a five stroke lead over the field and appeared a certain winner.

But, in the drizzle and the cold winds of Monday, Cooper lost some of the magic of his touch. He came home with 71 for the morning round of 18 holes, still apparently safe enough, but his hands were benumber by cold in the afternoon and he slipped to 76 on the final round, winding up with a total of 286.

Horton Smith of Oak Park, who had trailed by six strokes at the close of play on Saturday, was improving his game meanwhile. He shot 68 on the morning round to whittle three strokes from Cooper's lead. In the afternoon he shot even par 72, gained four more strokes and the championship, his 285 beating out Cooper by one stroke. For his brilliant rally Smith won $1,500, Cooper $800 for second place. Gene Sarazen, who was tied with Smith at 145 at the end of the second round, shot 70-72 the final day, wound up with 287, third place, and $600 in prize money.

Rain Sends White Sox, Cubs Home Early.

Having devoted the first half of their spring training course to getting into condition, the White Sox started out on the second half to play baseball. They had lost six out of seven games to Pittsburgh's Pirates on the first half of their tour. Beginning last Sunday, they won three in a row, began to look like a major league baseball club when rain and cold weather caused them to abandon their trip on Wednesday and return to Chicago without finishing out their schedule against the Pirates.

The Cubs, having encountered only good weather in their tour of the south, met the tail end of a tornado in Birmingham on Sunday, shivered through a game at Birmingham on Tuesday, shivered without a game Wednesday, gave up a game at Nashville on Thursday because of cold, and came on home to meet the Sox in the second phase of their intra-city rivalry.

Cold and rain awaited them in Chicago and Friday's opener at Comiskey park was canceled.

Twice this season the McPherson [Kas.] Oilers, National A. A. U. basketball champions, had defeated the Universal Pictures five of Hollywood. With a record of 37 victories in 40 games, the Oilers appeared to have little cause for worry when they met Universal for the third time in the finals of the Olympic trials at Madison Square Garden, New York, last Sunday night. Universal, however, put on the pressure in the second half and won, 44 to 43.

The defeat, however, made little difference to the Oilers, since seven men from the winner's squad and five from the second place squad will be included on the American Olympic team.

George T. Dunlap Jr. of New York defeated Sam Friedman of Tuscaloose, Ala., 4 and 3, Sunday at Pinehurst to win the North and South golf championship for the fifth time.

A Western All Star polo team defeated the East, 7 to 6½, Tuesday to conclude the indoor polo tournament at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

In 35 years of American Bowling Congress history only four men have won the all-events championship with a score of more than 2,000 pins. On Wednesday Johnny Murphy, a 21 year old Indianapolis pin boy, shot 2,006 and seemed reasonably sure of winning the championship.

As a final tune-up for the first Davis cup matches Bryan Grant of Atlanta defeated his team captain, Wilmer Allison, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4, 6-0, at Houston Tuesday to win the River Oaks championship. Against Mexican competition in the first day's play of the North American zone matches on Friday, however, Grant had more difficulty. After Don Budge had whipped Esteban Reyes, Mexico's No. 1 star, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1, in the first match, Grant met Daniel Hernandez and was pushed to the limit to win, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

TILDEN TENNIS TROUPE TO PLAY AT NEW TRIER

Big Bill Tilden and his troupe of professional tennis stars make their final indoor appearance of the season in immediate Chicago territory in a three match exhibition at the New Trier High gymnasium school in Winnetka on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold and Jane Sharp, the 1935 national indoor champion, are included in the troupe.

Bruce Barnes, Texas internationalist, will furnish the opposition for Tilden, with the latter teaming with Miss Sharp and the former pairing with Mrs. Arnold in the mixed doubles. The matches are scheduled to start at 8:15 p. m.

PASTOR TO MAKE CHICAGO DEBUT IN NEW ARENA

A new face and a new club will be introduced to professional boxing fans in Chicago this week when Bob Pastor, New York university graduate and Golden Gloves champion, meets Art Sykes, Elmira, N. Y., heavyweight, at the Chicago Arena, 333 E. Erie street, on Wednesday night.

Pastor and Sykes will head a seven bout at the Arena, formerly the Chicago Riding club, which has been transformed into a general sports promotion center. The new club will seat 7,000.

Wins Reputation as Amateur.

Pastor established a national reputation as an amateur, winning 44 of 87 fights by knockouts as he fought his way to two New York Golden Gloves championships. Against the Chicago team in the intercity bouts in 1934, he defeated Otis Thomas, hard hitting southpaw.

Sykes has been working out here since his return from California where he beat Bob Roper, knockout conquerer of Art Laskey.

The Pastor-Sykes windup will be supported by a six round semi-windup between Eddie Boyle, of Dayton., and Adam Smith, who won the Golden Gloves championship in 1932. They are light heavyweights.

McNulty Meets Silverstein.

Scalba has been appearing before Chicago fans ever since he fought amateur bouts some years ago in the Western stadium.

Waling has yet to meet defeat in the Marigold arena. Waling beat Armanda Sicilia twice in his last two appearances.

Jack Moran and Tony Zale, middleweights, are in a five rounder at 165 pounds. Harold Brown of the west side meets Henry Shaft of Minneapolis and Tony Muscarello faces Art Brewer. Two more bouts complete the card.

A. A. U. OLYMPIC BOXING TRIALS OPEN WEDNESDAY

Winners Will Fight in Chicago in May.

on May 7 and 8. The squad of 16, in their daily practice prior to sailing and after reaching Germany, will fight it out for the final selections.

Army, Navy Represented.

This tournament, which already has attracted a record entry from the associations in the United States and Hawaii, will make the largest contribution to the Olympic trials in point of entries. Chicago's eight Golden Gloves champions already have qualified for the trials and the National Collegiate Athletic association named 21 boys from its tournament last month at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va. This number, according to Hugo Bezdek of Penn State, chairman of the N. C. A. A., probably will be augmented later. The A. A. U., however, will name 32 boys for the Chicago meet.

In addition to these groups, the army and navy will be represented in the Chicago Olympic tournament. Ten men already have been chosen in eliminations conducted by the army and this team will sail from Honolulu April 22.

The Golden Gloves champions in New York's tournament, who recently fought Chicago to an 8 to 8 tie in the ninth annual intercity tournament in Madison Square Garden, also are eligible.

Action now centers on the national A. A. U. meet in Cleveland. The central association, which comprises Illinois, will have at least ten, or perhaps a few more, in that tournament, which will be sponsored by the Cleveland Plain Dealer, long a member of the Golden Gloves family. From this entry list several Chicago or Illinois boys are expected to place in the Olympic trials. Several of these youngsters missed only by one bout of winning Golden Gloves titles, which would have qualified them for the Olympics.

Scrivani May Reach Trials.

An excellent example is Andy Scrivani, Catholic Youth organization lightweight. In 1935 Andy won the Golden Gloves 126 pound championship but this year he was beaten by Pete Lello of South Bend, Ind. But Scrivani won an inter-city championship in New York and is considered one of the outstanding contenders in the National A. A. U. meet.

Twelve boxers have been selected to represent the Central association, which comprises the state of Illinois, in the national tournament. They are: Sam Zaczek, Chicago, 112 pounds; Frank Kainrath, Chicago, 118 pounds; Tony Carlucci, Chicago, 126 pounds; Andy Scrivani and Vern Patterson, Chicago, 135 pounds; Elwood McReynolds, Dixon, Ill., and Johnny Martin, Peoria, Ill., 147 pounds; Paul Frazier and Hiner Thomas, Chicago, 160 pounds; Herman West, Buckner, Ill., and John Hawthorne, Chicago, 175 pounds; Arthur Oliver, Chicago, heavyweight.

The Golden Gloves champions, selected from a field of 17,000 competitors in THE TRIBUNE's ninth annual Tournament of Champions, who are eligible for the Olympic tournament, are: Jackie Wilson, Cleveland, 112 pounds; Johnny Brown, Chicago, 118 pounds; Ted Kara, Cleveland, 126 pounds; Pete Lello, South Bend, Ind., 135 pounds; Chester Rutecki, Chicago, 147 pounds; Milton Shivers, Detroit, 160 pounds; Carl Vinciquerra, Omaha, 175 pounds, and Paul Hartnek, Omaha, heavyweight.

Here's List of University Men.

TAX HUNTERS TO DARE COURTS ON STOCK DIVIDENDS

Seek to Prevent Evasion of Surplus Levy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—Members of the house ways and means committee considering President Roosevelt's 699 million dollar corporate tax program decided today to risk invalidation by the Supreme court and make stock dividends taxable, both as to normal and surtax rates.

The Supreme court has held that dividends paid in the form of stock do not constitute income and are not taxable. However, Representative Samuel B. Hill [Dem., Wash.], chairman of the ways and means subcommittee considering the tax proposals, said the members interpreted that decision to apply only to stock dividends which did not increase the taxpayer's interest in the corporation.

It was not made exactly clear how stock dividends could be paid without increasing the taxpayer's interest in the corporation.

Punitive Measure.

Members of the committee admitted that such a tax would be a punitive measure designed to prevent corporations from escaping, through the payment of stock dividends, the proposed graduates taxes on undistributed earnings.

Cash dividends already are taxable under the surtax but not the normal rates. However, the committee has agreed upon a plan to repeal the existing normal tax exemption on cash dividends, and from this measure alone the treasury experts estimate there will be a yield of $263,00,000.

Representative Hill said that any obligation assumed by corporations in lieu of cash, or any payment made in kind, would be taxed on the ground that it constituted distribution. Thus it was clear that although one of the asserted purposes of the corporation tax reform is to force the distribution of earnings to stockholders, the stockholders were not to escape.

"There is no estimate on the yield from the stock dividend tax," Hill said, "but we can catch a lot unless the corporations change their stock dividend methods."

Drop Treasury Formula.

The committee members also decided today to wash their hands of the famous algebraic formula for determining corporate tax liability brought up by the treasury experts. Members of the committee struggled with the esoteric formula for days, but finally concluded that they were not Einsteins. Instead of it they will write into the bill the schedule of rates that corporations must pay, according to their earnings and the percentage of distribution.

The proposed tax on undistributed corporate earnings, it is estimated, will yield 67 million dollars less than the existing income, capital stock and excess profits taxes on corporations which are to be repealed. This is based on the assumption that an average of 30 per cent of earnings will be retained, as the law would permit at low rates, to form a "cushion" for emergencies. While there would be this decrease in the yield from corporations, the stockholders would pay $658,000,000 more than at present.

Plan Confiscatory Levy.

In addition to the net of $591,000,000 it is thus hoped to raise, the program includes a confiscatory tax on the processing taxes refunded to corporations under the Supreme court's AAA decision, which is expected to raise $100,000,000.

Members of the committee expect to conclude the drafting of a bill about the middle of next week, at which time the senate finance committee will take it up and begin public hearings.

ALLAN HOOVER GOT $4,800 AAA CHECK, HE SAYS

Bakersfield, Cal., April 11.—[U. P.]—Allan Hoover, son of the former Republican President, today confirmed reports that he had received $4,800 in AAA benefit payments under the Democratic New Deal.

"I hold a minority interest in the Greenfield ranch, just south of Bakersfield," young Hoover said. "I received a $4,800 AAA payment under the cotton agreement.

"In the first place I was complying with the law and tickets for the sale of cotton could not be issued unless the ranch owners signed the agreement.

"Although the owners did receive this AAA payment, they sustained a loss of $25,000 as a result of unconstitutional acts under the AAA affecting other crops."

Young Hoover also said he had received "$2.50 and some mills" as his share of another AAA payment.

"This was my share of a payment to the Kern County Land company," he explained. "This company got a $29,000 payment.

"The company has 100,000 shares of stock. I own ten shares."

4 Re-elected by League for Hard of Hearing

Dr. Austin A. Hayden, Stanley E. Heyard, Miss Anna Juergens, and Miss Irene Hubbell were reëlected directors for three year terms of the Chicago League for the Hard of Hearing yesterday at the league's headquarters, 64 East Lake Street. Mrs. F. A. DuBridge and Mrs. William S. Hefferan were elected for one year to fill unexpired terms. The directors will elect officers next Thursday. Dr. Hayden is now president.

SHOT; BLAMES HIS WIFE.

Brook Smith, 38 years old, colored, 3130 South La Salle street, was in serious condition in the county hospital yesterday with an abdominal bullet wound inflicted, he said, by his common law wife, Nina May Turner. Police started a search for her.

WOUNDED POLICE OFFICER WINNER OF HERO AWARD

Kills Paroled Bandit in Attempted Holdup.

Shortly after 1 o'clock the morning of Feb. 27 Patrolman Patrick D. Beckham of the Fillmore police station entered the Playmor café, 3824 West Madison street, to wait while his friend, Charles Vito, 3862 West End avenue, owner of the café, locked the place for the night. Beckham was off duty and was dressed in civilian clothes. A bandit attempted to rob the café. The policeman, although wounded twice by the gunman, shot and killed him.

For this act of courage, which occurred outside the line of duty and which brought to an end the career of a paroled convict and a potential murderer, Patrolman Beckham has been awarded THE TRIBUNE hero award of $100 for the month of February.

When Beckham entered the restaurant Vito, a porter, James Lambert, 214 South Campbell avenue, and a male customer were in the place. Vito told the customer it was time to close and asked him to leave. The man went to the washroom, where he remained for several minutes. When he came out he held a gun in his hand and announced it was a stickup. Beckham made no attempt to draw his gun because both Vito and Lambert were in the line of fire.

Policeman Shot Twice.

The bandit herded the trio into the washroom. Beckham was the last to enter. He waited until the gunman's attention was diverted momentarily, then drew his gun and ordered the robber to drop his gun. The man recognized Beckham for a policeman, cursed him, and fired, striking the patrolman twice.

Officer Beckham then opened fire. He fired four shots, all of which took effect. The gunman fell to the floor and was dead almost instantly. He was taken to the county morgue, where it was found that Beckham's bullets had struck him three times in the abdomen and once in the jaw.

Beckham was removed to the County hospital. Examination revealed he had been wounded once in the left shoulder and again in his left arm. Capt. John P. Ryan, Beckham's commanding officer, who recommended him for the award, said he examined the policeman's clothing and found powder burns where the bullets had entered, indicating that the shooting occurred at close quarters.

Paroled in 1935.

The dead man was identified as Frank McNally, who was sentenced to Joliet penitentiary Jan. 21, 1927, for robbery with a gun and assault with intent to kill. He was paroled on Nov. 4, 1935.

In recommending Patrolman Beckham for THE TRIBUNE award Capt. Ryan said: "It was an exceptional act of bravery when the officer, though twice wounded, shot and killed a potential murderer. He showed cool courage in a desperate position."

Officer Beckham was surprised when told he was the recipient of the hero award.

"There isn't much to say about the shooting. Even though I was off duty, I felt it my duty to stop that holdup," he said. "As a matter of fact, I didn't even realize I was wounded until after it was all over."

GERMS ARE ONLY CAUSE OF COLDS, OHIOAN INSISTS

Toledo, O., April 11.—(AP)—Dr. J. A. Doull, director of the department of hygiene and public health of Western Reserve university school of medicine at Cleveland, attacked a few time-worn teachings about common colds in an address today. He spoke before the medical science group of the Ohio Academy of Science here. According to Dr. Doull:

You catch cold, Dr. Doull said, by infection only.

Know Numbers to Punch; Win $50; Are Arrested

Walter Stack, attendant in a filling station at Hillside, became suspicious Friday when two strangers took two punches on a punch board at his stand and won $50. Stack jotted down the license number of their automobile and notified Chicago police, who arrested them yesterday at Madison street and Hoyne avenue. The men, Milton Rehark, 38 years old, and Morris Kelfon, 40 years old, both of Cleveland, admitted they knew the right numbers to punch from a friend who distributes the boards. Police said they are wanted also in Akron, O.

Hammond Leads 54 Towns Covered in Survey.

Building activity in the Chicago suburban area during March was the greatest for any month since July, 1931, according to a survey covering 54 communities in the district. The value of the March permits totaled $2,732,621, compared with $1,067,550 for March, 1935, a gain of 156 per cent. The July, 1931, figure was $3,819,310.

One of the most significant aspects of the survey is an indication that residential construction has been resumed on an important scale, since most of the communities reporting permits issued in sizable amounts are home areas such as Evanston, Highland Park, Lake Forest, Oak Park, Wilmette, and Winnetka.

The survey, which was conducted by the Straus Securities corporation, discloses that the suburbs led the city of Chicago in building enterprises, city permits totaling only $1,937,118 during March.

A Sharp Recovery.

Comparisons with other periods indicate the extent of the building recovery in this area. The total reported for the first six months of 1932 was $2,639,000; the last half of 1932, $2,875,000; the first half of 1933, in which the banking holiday occurred, $1,925,000; the last half of 1933, $2,213,000. The March, 1936, figure approximates the $2,861,000 total for the first half of 1934. Since that time there has been a considerable gain in suburban construction.

Hammond, industrial suburb, led the district, with Joe P. Guy, building commissioner, reporting a March total of $645,679. Except for July, 1935, this was the best month since January, 1931. Guy expects the April total to exceed the March figure by at least $1,000,000. The March total includes a permit of $524,000 for the new Edison public school.

Elgin Is Second in List.

Second in the list was Elgin, with a total of $200,565. A. J. Nichols, building inspector, said $180,000 represents a new waterworks. Highland Park, third, had a volume of $189,362, of which $75,159 was accounted for by ten new residences and $108,878 by two new sewerage disposal plants.

William O. Paape, building commissioner, reported that Lake Forest had a total of $176,490, of which $160,000 was accounted for by seven residential permits. Paape said in addition there is $205,000 for a bridge and retaining wall for the grade separation of route 22 and Deerpath avenue.

	March, 1936.	March, 1935.	February, 1936.
Aurora	$140,777	$9,367	$9,728
Barrington	1,000	4,500	None
Batavia	120	600	None
Berwyn	29,575	5,655	350

MARSHALL FIELD TO SPEND $220,000 MORE IN MART

Marshall Field & Co. announced yesterday that $220,000 will be spent in refinishing more than 119,000 square feet of space on the twelfth floor of the Merchandise Mart for housing the lamp and shade industry.

Work on the project will be completed by July 1, according to Percy Wilson, general manager of the Field company's real estate division. A large share of the expense in this refinishing project will consist of the instalation of a new air ventilating system. The electric wiring is also being especially designed for the requirements of the lamp exhibitors.

Other projects at the mart include $80,000 being spent in refinishing the south half of the thirteenth floor for the purpose of houseware displays and $40,000 worth of refinishing is being carried out on other floors, chiefly for converting south exposure spaces into office quarters.

BAIRD & WARNER SALES IN MARCH BEST SINCE 1929

The number of real estate sales made by Baird & Warner, Inc., during March was the largest for any month since 1929, Stewart B. Matthews, vice president, reported yesterday.

"Our organization averaged better than a sale a day during the last month," Matthews said. "The dollar volume accordingly has increased substantially. The number of homes leased was smaller than in March, 1935, because there is beginning to be a real scarcity in the number of homes available for rent. Business to date in April makes us believe that a continued active market will exist through this month.

"The dollar amount of sales in the first quarter of this year has been much larger than in the like periods of 1935 and 1934, as we are finding increased interest by buyers of means for larger homes and income properties. For this reason we expect a much larger dollar volume for 1936 than we have experienced in any year since the depression."

Start Work in Wilmette on Cape Cod Type Cottage

Work has been started on a six room Cape Cod type house by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kneipple at the northeast corner of Linden avenue and Ridge road, Wilmette. Blume Brothers have the general contract. Kitchen, lavatory, and bathrooms will have linoleum covered walls.

AYRES BOAL JR. MADE PARTNER IN FATHER'S REAL ESTATE CONCERN

Ayres Boal, veteran in the Chicago real estate business, announced yesterday that he has made his son, Ayres Boal Jr., a partner in his real estate firm, located at 122 South Michigan avenue. The son will specialize in management.

AYRES BOAL JR.

Ayres Boal Jr. is a Dartmouth man. After leaving college in 1928, he was employed by the Northern Trust company for more than two years, afterward entering his father's office. Among his recent duties has been the management of the Spanish Court properties in No Man's Land, between Wilmette and Kenilworth. Before entering the business world Boal Jr. spent a year in Labrador with Sir Wilfred Grenfell. He is married and lives in Winnetka.

MILLS NOVELTY LEASES LARGE PLANT ON PALMER

The Mills Novelty company has entered into a long term lease with the Merlin-Rockwell corporation of Jamestown, N. Y., for the industrial property formerly occupied by the Strom Bearing company at Palmer street and the North Western railroad. The property contains seven acres of ground, with a building fronting 288 feet on Palmer street and extending back 300 feet.

The Mills company will use the Palmer street plant for the manufacture of counter ice cream freezers and auxiliary equipment. It is located about a mile from the company's main plant at 4110 West Fullerton avenue to which a factory extension and an administration building were added last fall. J. J. Harrington & Co. negotiated the lease.

Realty Firm to Put Taxes in Rent Bill

Paul Caspers of the real estate firm of Swan, Lorish & Caspers, Inc., announced yesterday that starting in May the 7,100 tenants of the company will receive bills which will show what portion of the rent goes to the landlord and what part goes to the tax collectors.

Caspers cited the situation at a building at 824-32 East 53d street, containing sixty 2½ room apartments renting at an average of $30 a month. Taxes, billed for 1934, totaling $2,340, amount to $15.60 per room, or $3.25 per month per apartment.

A Sample Bill.

Each apartment renter on May 1 will receive from the firm a bill for the month's rent similar to the following:

On account of rent	$26.75
Total rent due	$30.00

"Real estate interests for years have been fighting high taxes on real estate," Caspers said, "but they have been handicapped by the lack of general concern over the increase in public expenditures. Therefore, this firm has designed this innovation in real estate practice to make the rent payer conscious of the excessive amount of his rent that goes into taxes and to focus the public attention on the burden saddled upon real estate by public spending.

A Jump in Taxes.

"As we began to analyze the situation we found that 1935 taxes would probably be 25 per cent higher than the 1934 bills and that this increase would mean an increase in rentals a year from now. So we decided that a system of billing taxes pro rata to each tenant was vital. If taxes increase and rentals go up correspondingly we want the responsibility for the higher rents to be laid at the doors of the tax spending agencies and not attributed to a grasping landlord or owners of defaulted real estate bonds who may have acquired the property."

REPORTS MANY WHOLESALE AREA LEASES CLOSED

Arthur Rubloff & Co. reported yesterday that they have closed a considerable number of leases in the Chicago wholesale market district. Several of them follow:

Roy L. Feuerstein of the Chicago Maid Garment company, lingerie manufacturer, has taken 6,000 square feet of space at 412 South Wells street. Louis and Max Ornstein of the Western Trading company, general merchandising jobbers, have taken new headquarters at 330 South Franklin street.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of April 3 to 9, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 46, with a combined cost of $1,327,498. For the corresponding week last year there were 33 contracts totaling $543,300. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $7,825,286, compared with $6,148,064 for the same period last year.

NEW SOUTH SIDE THEATER WILL BE STARTED SOON

Rhodes to Be of Stadium Type; Cost $250,000.

Construction will be started shortly on a new talking picture theater for Warner Brothers' Theaters at the northeast corner of 79th street and Rhodes avenue, James E. Coston, zone manager for the theater company, announced yesterday. Named the Rhodes, the new theater will be completed by Oct. 1.

The Rhodes, which will cost in excess of $250,000, will be of fireproof construction and will seat about 1,600 persons. The building plans call for a number of shops on the street sides. C. W. and George L. Rapp, Inc., architects, designed the theater building.

Outside Walls at Back.

The architect's plan provides for the setting back of the exterior walls, making possible an interesting treatment in indirect lighting of the façades. An additional feature will be the placement of bands of neon around the exterior in contrasting colors.

Another new development is the laying out of the auditorium on the stadium plan, an arrangement which has been found successful at the Beverly, another Warner Brothers theater recently completed. In the stadium type of auditorium there is no balcony.

Seats to Be Widely Spaced.

The spacing of the rows of seats will be in excess of ordinary requirements. Equipment to aid partly deaf patrons will be installed. A completely automatic year round air conditioning plant will provide 30 per cent more pure air than is required by the recently enacted building code.

J. W. Snyder & Co. are the contractors. Loren D. Sexauer of Sexauer & Kreuger acted as broker in acquiring the building site and he will represent the theater company in the management of the property.

Business Film Company Leases Opera Club Building

The Chicago Film Laboratory, Inc., producers of commercial and educational motion pictures, has leased for a term of years the entire Opera club building at 18 West Walton place. The building will be remodeled for use as a motion picture producing studio.

Review of the Week: Chicago: The Nation: The World:

Foreign

France vs. Britain.

Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, lost his temper again last week. The other results of a diplomatic field day at Geneva were a series of postponements and a deadlock between France and Great Britain. France wanted the league of nations to punish Germany for rearming the Rhineland and trade penalties against Italy lifted. Britain wanted the league to force Italy to stop its Ethiopian conquest and no trade penalties against Germany. Either's gains were negligible.

When Adolf Hitler sent troops to the Rhineland on March 7, violating the Locarno treaty, he offered a peace plan calling for a series of two power peace treaties between Germany and its neighbors. Great Britain, France, Belgium, and Italy, the Locarno signers, met and offered a counter plan calling on Germany to make concessions for its violation of a treaty. Hitler replied to this with another plan which conceded but little. Last week Foreign Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin of France produced a fourth plan.

This demanded [1] that the league of nations consider punishing Germany, since it had already found it guilty; [2] that the Locarno powers prevent German fortification of the Rhineland; [3] that Hitler's proposed two party treaties be rejected in favor of a collective security treaty signed by all European nations; [4] that the league of nations punish treaty breakers with trade penalties, and [5] that all treaty members form a league of nations army to guarantee obedience. All this was scoffed at in Germany. It was disclosed that Germany already had built concrete pits for machine guns and light artillery along the French border.

Great Britain, however, was worried about its prestige in the eastern Mediterranean and also about Italy's occupation of Lake Tsana, source of the Egyptian Blue Nile. It called the league committee of 13 [the league council without Italy] into session at Geneva on Wednesday.

Eden arose to protest Italy's use of mustard gas in violation of the rules of war. He had plenty of evidence to prove his charge, and wanted an investigation. Flandin countered by charging that the Ethiopians were using dumdum bullets, also a violation. France has been defending Italy to obtain its active support against Germany.

Then Eden lost his temper. He said Great Britain wanted united pressure to stop the Ethiopian war because Italy had invaded a league member's territory. He said Britain would not join in trade penalties against Germany because it had not attacked France, merely violating a treaty.

Mussolini told the league yesterday that Italy is observing the law of war in its African campaign. Ethiopia protested against the delay in peace moves. [See main news section.]

A subcommittee of jurists further upset Eden by ruling that the committee of 13 was not qualified to investigate the gas charge. Eden also sought an immediate beginning of the league's Italian-Ethiopian peace conference. But Mussolini replied that after Easter was time enough. On Friday the committee of 13 adjourned until next Thursday, ordering Salvador de Madariaga, conciliations chairman, to get the Ethiopian and Italian delegates together Tuesday.

Flandin called a meeting of the four Locarno powers Friday. Eden agreed to ask Hitler some exacting questions in order to delay France's cry for action against Germany. The sum of the questions was "What does Germany offer to guarantee it will not endanger the present boundaries and governments of Europe?" The meeting was adjourned until May 11 with the provision for consultation if Hitler begins open fortification of the Rhineland. The Locarno powers agreed to submit the French and German peace plans to the league May 11. This Wednesday they will begin military meetings to discuss defense against a German attack.

Ethiopian War.

Talented Benito Mussolini fiddled happily in Rome last Sunday at a fencing hall dedication while his army completed its rout of Haile Selassie's imperial guard at Quoram, Ethiopia. British military experts charged that illegal use of poison gas has caused the collapse of Haile Selassie's defense. While Capt. Eden cried at Geneva on Wednesday for stronger pressure against Italy, Mussolini called for "total annihilation" of Ethiopian forces without delay. Ethiopia's first rainy season is due in about three weeks.

Last week, however, the Italian army faced no such obstacle. Marshal Pietro Badoglio pushed his troops along the 250 mile motor road from Quoram to Addis Ababa. On Friday the Italians were reported within 60 miles of Dessye, previously the emperor's field headquarters. Crown Prince Asfa Wosan was said to have been there during a bombing raid last week. Badoglio announced on Friday that 3,000 tribesmen had revolted and killed 2,000 of the emperor's fleeing troops. Yesterday he reported that 400 more Ethiopian defenders were killed on the northern front.

An Italian war correspondent wrote that Haile Selassie had shaved off his famous beard to avoid capture by rebels.

Italian officials said yesterday that an announcement abolishing slavery in the areas occupied by Italian troops would be posted today. [See main news section.]

Seething Mexico.

A dynamite bomb blew up the Paso Grande bridge beneath a Vera Cruz-Mexico City passenger train Monday night, 50 miles from Vera Cruz. Thirteen persons were killed and 15 injured. Two sleeping cars directly over the explosion plunged into the 40 foot ravine and the engine and oil, mail and express cars crashed down on top. Flames, fed by the oil, consumed the wooden cars.

Federal authorities and the Railroad Workers' union blamed political terrorists seeking the death of three candidates for Vera Cruz state governor. All, however, were riding in the last car, the only one which remained on the track. The left wing of the Mexican government accused former President Plutarco Elias Calles and his followers, charging a plot to overthrow President Lazaro Cardenas.

On Friday Calles and three colleagues were arrested and ordered to leave the country. The others were Luis Morones and Luis Leon, former cabinet members, and Rafael Ortega, former Guanajuato governor. They were taken to Brownsville, Tex., by plane. Calles, in ill health, denied any part in the dynamiting or in a revolt plot. The four exiles arrived in California last night by plane. Calles plans to live with his daughter in San Diego, Cal.

Japan vs. Russia.

China, Japan, and Manchukuo last week protested to Russia against its March 12 treaty agreeing to defend Outer Mongolia against attack. Russia immediately rejected China's protest.

The Chinese government at Nanking charged that the soviet-Mongol treaty violated the Chinese-soviet agreement of 1924. [Russia then recognized Outer Mongolia as a part of China. Outer Mongolia in recent years has become a soviet republic.] Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov at Moscow replied that the new treaty did not violate China's claim of sovereignty in Outer Mongolia and that it was not directed at a third party, such as Manchukuo, Japan's puppet kingdom. He said Russia is imperiled by Manchukuan attacks on the Mongols. The official soviet newspaper Izvestia blamed the border battle of March 29-31 on the Japanese military command in Manchukuo, charging the officers ignored the Tokio government's caution.

Two clashes of Russian and Japanese patrols were reported last week on the Manchukuo-Siberia frontier.

Strange

A report of the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., told of a woman who attempted suicide by aiming a pistol at her heart. The bullet missed because, it was found later, her heart was not in the normal position.

In the tornado at Tupelo, Miss., a 9 months old baby girl was blown 1,200 feet from her home. Her only injury was a scratch on the nose.

City officials of Galesburg, Ill., tried to drive away a rookery of blackbirds by using a fire hose, shotguns and fireworks. All failed. They then decided to cut down the trees in which the birds were roosting.

Edward Poulton, 18, swallowed a half dollar. It lodged in his throat. In a Hutchinson, Kas., hospital, he told physicians that if he missed school that day he would spoil an 11 year perfect attendance record. The doctors pushed the coin into his stomach. Edward attended classes.

A father, mother and their small child were ejected from Poland on the ground they are Czechs. They were refused admittance to Czechoslovakia on the ground they are Poles. They took refuge in a wartime trench in the Carpathian mountains.

A cow at Coldwater, Mich., gave birth to twin calves, one of which has six legs, two of them growing from the breast.

Fred Dishard, Los Angeles sanitary inspector, was called to a home where a bulldog was reported acting strangely. When he arrived a bee flew up his trouser leg. As he slapped his thigh the dog bit him. The dog had rabies.

Washington

Decision.

In a decision handed down on Monday the Supreme court blasted the dictatorial activities of another New Deal agency—the securities commission—and slapped all New Deal would-be dictators with a solemn warning that "our institutions must be kept free from the appropriation of unauthorized power." [See Black Inquisition.]

The case was that of J. Edward Jones, who a year ago registered with the securities commission a proposed issue of participation trust certificates. The commission cited Jones to appear with his records to answer the charge that he had made untrue statements about the proposed issue. Jones withdrew the registration and asked dismissal of the proceedings. The commission refused and appealed to the courts to force Jones to appear. The lower courts upheld the commission. The Supreme court reversed these decisions, holding that Jones had the right to withdraw the registration.

In lengthy 6 to 3 decision the majority justices said, in an opinion prepared by Associate Justice Sutherland, that unless dictatorial agencies of government are curbed "we shall in the end, while avoiding the fatal consequence of a supreme autocracy, become submerged by a multitude of minor invasions of personal rights, less destructive but no less violative of constitutional guarantees."

AAA.

On Thursday the senator disclosed that he was meeting resistance from bureaus and departments other than those under Mr. Wallace. He said he had received no answer to an inquiry sent 10 days previously to the Indian bureau asking whether Thomas Campbell, Montana "wheat king," had leased lands from it. It was disclosed in other quarters that Campbell received more than $50,000 from the AAA for not raising wheat on land rented from the Indians.

Vandenberg said he also had failed to get a reply for many days from the treasury department concerning the name of the person to whom a certain bounty check was issued. When he finally received an answer he was requested to ask Secretary Wallace for the information.

Wallace on Wednesday said he expected the senate would pass Senator Vandenberg's resolution calling for a list of all who received AAA bounties of $10,000 or more. He said the list was being prepared.

Black Inquisition.

Senator Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] and his fellow inquisitors of the committee which seized thousands of private telegrams, won a temporary victory Wednesday. Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat of the District of Columbia Supreme court refused the plea of William R. Hearst, publisher, to enjoin the committee from seizing his telegrams.

The ruling immediately raised the question of how far congressional investigators may pry into the private affairs of citizens without violating the constitution. It was considered certain the question will be determined eventually by the Supreme court. [See Decision.]

Elisha Hanson, attorney for Hearst, announced he would appeal from the decision. The case will be heard next by the Circuit Court of Appeals. "We'll go as far as necessary," said Hanson, "to halt the nefarious practices of these investigations."

A representative of a group which is on the Black committee's prescribed list said in Washington on Tuesday that his mail had been seized and opened in transit by the inquisitors.

A principal witness before the committee during the week was Fred G. Clark of New York, national commander of the Crusaders.

Clark told the committee his organization opposed New Deal measures but had never engaged in lobbying. He said the Crusaders have appealed to public opinion in opposing certain New Deal laws and "everything else destructive of sound popular government."

Congress.

House Democrats began on Wednesday to draft the corporation tax bill to raise approximately 800 million dollars in additional revenue. At the same time proceedings before the appropriations committee were interrupted by the appearance of Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's chief spender. He urged the committee to give early attention to Mr. Roosevelt's demand for a new 1½ billion dollar relief fund.

The work of drafting the new tax bill was in charge of the ways and means committee, which on Wednesday closed public hearings on the proposed measure. In previous days the committee had listened to many business men offer bitter criticism to the proposed bill, which would levy a graduated tax on the individual surplus of corporations.

Representative Roy O. Woodruff [Rep., Mich.] summed up the nine days of hearings. He said:

"In favor of this bill we have heard only from treasury department officials, a representative of the Communist party and a federal communications commission attorney posing as a New York tax lawyer. Against it have appeared representatives of a great many small businesses. It is noticeable that big business has failed to protest, indicating that the program will drive the little fellow to the wall."

President.

Back in Washington on Friday, Angler Roosevelt resumed the duties of chief executive of the nation after three weeks of fishing off the coast of Florida. While he was away his most important legislation, the tax program and the $1,500,000,000 relief bill, made little progress in congress.

Capital Notes.

Sitting as a trial court the senate last week heard evidence against Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of Florida, accused of evading income taxes and violating the judicial code by awarding a former law partner exorbitant receivership fees. The law partner, A. L. Rankin, was a principal witness. The house prosecutors rested their case Thursday after calling only 11 of their 28 witnesses. [See main news section.]

The failure of six New Deal subsistence homestead projects, on which more than 9 million dollars was spent, was revealed Tuesday when Resettlement Administrator Tugwell opened negotiations to turn them over to private corporations. Among the projects was that at Red House, near Charleston, W. Va., on which $1,035,000 was spent. The largest project, at Crossville, Tenn., cost $3,700,000.

Politics

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho took the spotlight in the national political scene last week. He arrived in the middle west on Sunday for an intensive campaign speaking tour in behalf of his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination. On Monday night he spoke in Milwaukee. On Tuesday the Republican voters of Wisconsin elected 21 out of 24 Borah instructed delegates to the party's national convention.

With this, his biggest success of the campaign so far, under his belt, the Idaho senator plunged into a tour of downstate Illinois to contest with Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, for the Illinois delegates to be chosen in the April 14 primary. Borah spoke Wednesday night at Peoria, on Thursday at Springfield and Decatur, on Friday at Champaign-Urbana and Danville, and yesterday at Fairfield, his birthplace, and at Carbondale.

While Borah went ahead in Wisconsin the candidacy of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, frequently mentioned as the leading Republican candidate, gained impetus in Minnesota. Republicans of that state, meeting on Wednesday in seven district conventions, made plans, considered favorable to Landon, for the Minnesota delegation at the Cleveland convention. Landon was certain of the support of delegates from the districts centering in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

On Tuesday Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve system under President Hoover, said at Topeka: "It looks like Gov. Landon will be nominated by the Republicans for the presidency."

Political experts predicted yesterday Landon would go to Cleveland with from 300 to 400 delegates supporting him. [See main news section.]

A straw in the national political wind was a local election on Tuesday in the Chicago district. Cicero voters chose a town president in one of the most hotly contested elections of recent years. The Democrats won by a slim margin of 675 votes. Four years ago they won by a landslide.

This election and Senator Borah's victory in Wisconsin were cited on Wednesday by Harrison Spangler, director of western G. O. P. headquarters, as definite signs of a re-awakened fighting spirit in Republican ranks. He asserted there has been a "tremendous shrinkage" in the Democratic New Deal vote, in spite of the golden tide of relief money, corn hog checks, and alphabetical pay rolls.

Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, announced on Thursday in Washington organization of a group of fair minded authorities to combat the "politically ambitious professors on the federal pay roll." This group, composed of 50 professors, experts, and statisticians, will be headed by Olin G. Saxon, professor of business administration at Yale university. Saxon said he had voted for President Roosevelt in 1932 to his regret and that some of the men who would serve with him had been lifelong Democrats.

Mr. Fletcher said it would be the research group's duty to "explain to the ordinary man what the New Deal has been doing to the country in the last three years."

Postmaster James A. Farley, national chairman of the Democratic party, tried in vain last week to patch up a truce between the Tammany organization and the New Deal. Tammany is indifferent to Roosevelt and it is reported the powerful New York Democratic machine seeks revenge for three years of broken promises, hostility, and abuse from the Washington administration. It was understood as early as Monday that Farley virtually had given up hope of trying to change either the organization or sentiment of Tammany hall.

Norman Thomas, twice the Socialist candidate for the presidency, aired his views on the present campaign in Washington on Tuesday. Labor, he asserted, would be fooled if it thought there was any real difference between the programs of either major party since both, in his opinion, were equally ineffective. The Socialists, Thomas said, might throw their support to the Farmer-Labor third party movement at the Socialist party convention in Cleveland in May. "We are going to attack the New Deal as an expression of capitalism," he said.

A vigorous attack on New Deal expenditures was made last week in Chicago by Frank E. Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher. Gannett was Senator Borah's running mate for the vice presidency in the Ohio presidential primary. "Every one knows," he asserted, "that the government is spending billions of dollars—much of it wastefully; that the administration is not balancing its budget; that hundreds of positions in the government are being filled without any suggestion of civil service eligibility. They are being filled by Farley supporters."

Rebuke No. 2 for Judge.

Last month the Illinois Appellate court reversed Judge Joseph B. David's award of $5,000 in a damage suit against a landlord who mistook a tenant for a burglar and killed him. It reprimanded the Superior court judge for discourteous remarks and for preventing a fair trial.

Last week the Appellate court reversed another of Judge David's cases and sent it back for retrial. This was a divorce suit brought by Motorcycle Policeman James E. Gorman on grounds of cruelty. His wife, May, filed a cross bill demanding separate maintenance. Judge David threw the case out of court and both defendant and plaintif appealed. The Appellate court quoted Judge David as follows:

"You haven't much chance to get a divorce, I'll tell you that [before any evidence had been offered]. . . . I am not very keen on this business of granting a man, a physically powerful policeman, a divorce from this frail woman on the grounds of cruelty. . . . I haven't seen one case in 18 years of charges of cruelty against a wife that amounted to anything. . . . He happens to have a good position and she wants to hook him for the balance of his life. . . . [Attorneys for both sides suggested a change of venue to another court.] I could send you to the west side for making that statement, but I won't."

The Appellate court declared it was Judge David's duty to transfer the case after making such remarks, adding: "It is highly improper for the court to allow his personal views on the subject to prevail in advance of the hearing."

City Notes.

The attempted suicide of Betty Barnard last week reunited her on her 20th birthday with Mrs. William E. Radtke, who adopted the girl when she was 2 years old. Mrs. Radtke adopted Betty from Mrs. Frances Klem but a man who said he was Mrs. Klem's husband had the adoption annulled a year later. He afterward disappeared and Betty lived with Mrs. Klem and her subsequent husband, Roy Bernard, until she was 18. She left them then and became a housemaid but recent lack of work led her to turn on the gas in her Chicago rooming house. An inhalator squad revived her. Mrs. Radtke, who lives in the east, saw a newspaper account of her attempt and flew here. "Small as she was," said Mrs. Radtke, "Betty told me in court when Mrs. Klem took her that she would come back to me."

Two collisions of automobiles with trains brought Cook county's 1936 accident death total to 245 on Wednesday. Ivan Donohue, 28, was killed when his car struck a Chicago and Eastern Illinois train at the 107th street grade crossing. Wilbur Olsen, 21, of Glenwood, was killed when an automobile driven by his companion, Gerit Jager, 37, hit the last car of a Baltimore and Ohio freight train crossing the Glenwood Dyer road. Police said warning lights at both crossings were working.

Tornadoes

Whipping along at 350 miles an hour, tornado winds tore through northern Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia on Monday. Four hundred persons were killed. Whole towns were leveled. It was the worst spring windstorm the south had experienced in many years.

Adding to the horror were dozens of fires raging through the wreckage of houses and business buildings. The towns hardest hit were Tupelo, Miss., and Gainesville, Ga. Scores of victims in these small cities were literally buried alive in the débris. Many others, trapped, were burned to death.

Emergency hospitals and Red Cross centers were set up to care for thousands of injured men, women, and children. Searchers were still combing the wreckage yesterday searching for the bodies of missing persons.

Group burials of the dead were general in the stricken areas. In many cases whole families were buried together.

Flood waters of the raging Ohio river continued to cause alarm last week. Anxiety was general on Friday at Cairo, Ill. There the flood reached a crest before passing into the Mississippi river.

Foreign Notes

Baron William Tyrrell, president of the British board of film censors, last week banned public showing of a peace film, sponsored by the league of nations, until the war office at London ruled on it. The war office is conducting a recruiting campaign in English theaters. Tyrrell objected that the film was controversial. British pacifists protested and Author H. G. Wells declared: "If we cannot talk about peace we will never get it."

Army officers at Bucharest charged last week that revolutionary students of Rumanian universities have formed four "death groups," each assigned to assassinate certain public officials.

The London Daily Mail last week predicted that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin would resign shortly after Whitsuntide [week of May 31]. According to the report, Baldwin had intended to continue as prime minister until King Edward VIII. was crowned in May, 1936, but growing deafness has made difficult his leadership in the house of commons. Baldwin, now 68, has been prime minister three times. Neville Chamberlain, 67, chancellor of the exchequer, was declared the likely successor. The Daily Mail foresaw Samuel Hoare, former foreign secretary, as the new treasury head, and the transfer of Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, to another department.

The Jewish Scientific institute at Warsaw, Poland, reported last week that the world population of Jews is 16,240,000, distributed as follows: United States, 4,450,000; Europe, 10,000,000; Asia, 500,000, and Australia, 30,000. Poland has 3,150,000; soviet Russia, 3,080,000, and Rumania, 1,000,000. World Jewry increased 1,300,000 in the last ten years, although the birth rate is declining.

Denounced by Premier Julius Goemboes of Hungary as arrogantly impertinent for criticizing the premier's foreign diplomacy, Tibor Eckhardt, leader of the peasant party, challenged Goemboes to a duel with pistols at 25 paces. This, although against the law, followed the best tradition among the dueling statesmen of Budapest. The offender and challenger met in a cavalry barracks with their seconds and physicians. They chose their weapons, stood at the measured distance and fired at the count of three. Both missed. They were unreconciled.

A Nuremberg, Germany, court sentenced a Jewish cattle dealer to six weeks in prison for wearing brown trousers which might be confused with those of Nazi Storm Troopers. The defendant pleaded that he, like all cattle dealers in the district, had worn brown pants for many years.

Nazi Germany's 98 per cent vote for Adolf Hitler on March 29 had an anti-climax last week for the 2 per cent of the electorate who voted "no" or didn't vote. The Nazi German labor front ordered employers to discharge every employé who had been an election "slacker." Dr. Hugo Eckener, noted Zeppelin commander, was said to be in official disfavor for not voting. The ministry of the interior ordered that those who did not vote be considered of non-Germanic race. Jews were barred from the polls. The election simplifies the complex task of telling who is "Aryan" and who is not.

The Association of German Hausfrauen [housewives] believes in modern time saving housekeeping. The Nazi Frauenwerk [women's work] on the other hand is founded on the belief that the woman's only place is in the home and, thus, of what need are time savers? The Hausfrauen have opposed absorption in the Frauenwerk run by Frau Gertrude Scholz-Kink, chief of Nazi womanhood. Their honorary president, Frau Louise von Papen, wife of the former Chancellor Franz von Papen, now German ambassador to Austria, called for a vote which resulted in a display of independence. Last week the German secret police raided the Hausfrauen Berlin headquarters when the association refused a demand to disband voluntarily. Several groups in other cities experienced similar breakups. Old women of independent clubs have become political suspects.

When President Niceto Alcala Zamora of Spain dissolved the parliament at Madrid last winter a general election was necessary. This was held on Feb. 16 and the united radical party, Socialists, communists, and Left Republicans, won control. Last week the new deputies ousted President Zamora, 238 to 5, for illegally dissolving parliament.

This action reflected Spain's trend from monarchism to communism. Zamora founded the republican government which deposed King Alfonso in 1931. But practically the same deputies who voted for him in 1931 voted against him last week. Back of their ouster was the charge that Zamora, a liberal, was hampering the "republican revolution." Premier Manuel Azana and the Socialists, in addition, never have forgiven him for giving the priests power, thus provoking the Asturias revolt in 1934, and then stamping out the revolt.

Many deputies who were political exiles under the previous government returned to power in the last election. Martinez Barrio, speaker of parliament and a moderate leftist, was appointed temporary president until a new one is chosen on May 10.

The little entente—Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania—last week protested to Austria against its new law compelling military service in violation of the treaty of St. Germain. The three governments pointed out the league of nations on March 17 had condemned Germany's similar treaty violation. The Austrian foreign office said there would be no reply and that recruiting would not be delayed. An official Vienna newspaper said: "Austria has decided to boss its own house." Paris observers were convinced Mussolini had encouraged Austria to arm because the little entente steadfastly has opposed his Ethiopian war and applied league trade penalties. Austrian commentators believed remilitarization would lessen support given the Austrian Nazi movement.

Labor

Striking musicians of New York's Tin Pan alley, where most of America's popular songs are written, gained some headway last week in their demands for increased wages. Eighteen music publishers granted the increase. This left 74 firms still holding out against the musicians' union. More than 300 strikers, carrying signs, paraded through Tin Pan alley on Tuesday.

For months a union strike has been in progress at the John Morrell Packing company plant in Sioux City, Ia. Fifty persons were injured in riots there last July. Yesterday violence flared anew when workers and picketers battled. Three persons, one of them a woman, were injured. Police dispersed a crowd with tear gas and arrested two union officials. The dispute started originally over seniority rights.

Fifty men, calling themselves representatives of the American Federation of Labor, stopped all road paving between Ashboro and Brazil, Ind., on Tuesday. The paving is a relief project, employing many men not members of a labor union. Officials of the company doing the work said the 50 union representatives used terrorist tactics.

Dan Hoan.

Daniel Hoan, for 20 years Socialist mayor of Milwaukee, saved his own job last Tuesday but after the most bitter campaign of many years most of the Socialist power in the city council and county board was wiped out. The mayor lost his most influential aldermen and supervisors in the Milwaukee election and the nonpartisans gained enough members to overthrow the mayor's veto.

Mayor Hoan was opposed by Sherif Joseph J. Shinners, whom he beat by something more than 14,000 votes. The defeat of the rest of the Socialist ticket was taken as proof of a decisive trend against radicalism in Milwaukee. Hoan's vote was in a measure considered a personal victory.

Dawn Joyride

Peter Kramer, 25, stood Monday in the Stockyards police court. "This man is charged with stealing a street car," the prosecutor told the judge. Peter admitted it might be true, but he added that his memory was a bit hazy. Members of a Brighton Park police squad supplied the details. They arrested Peter about dawn

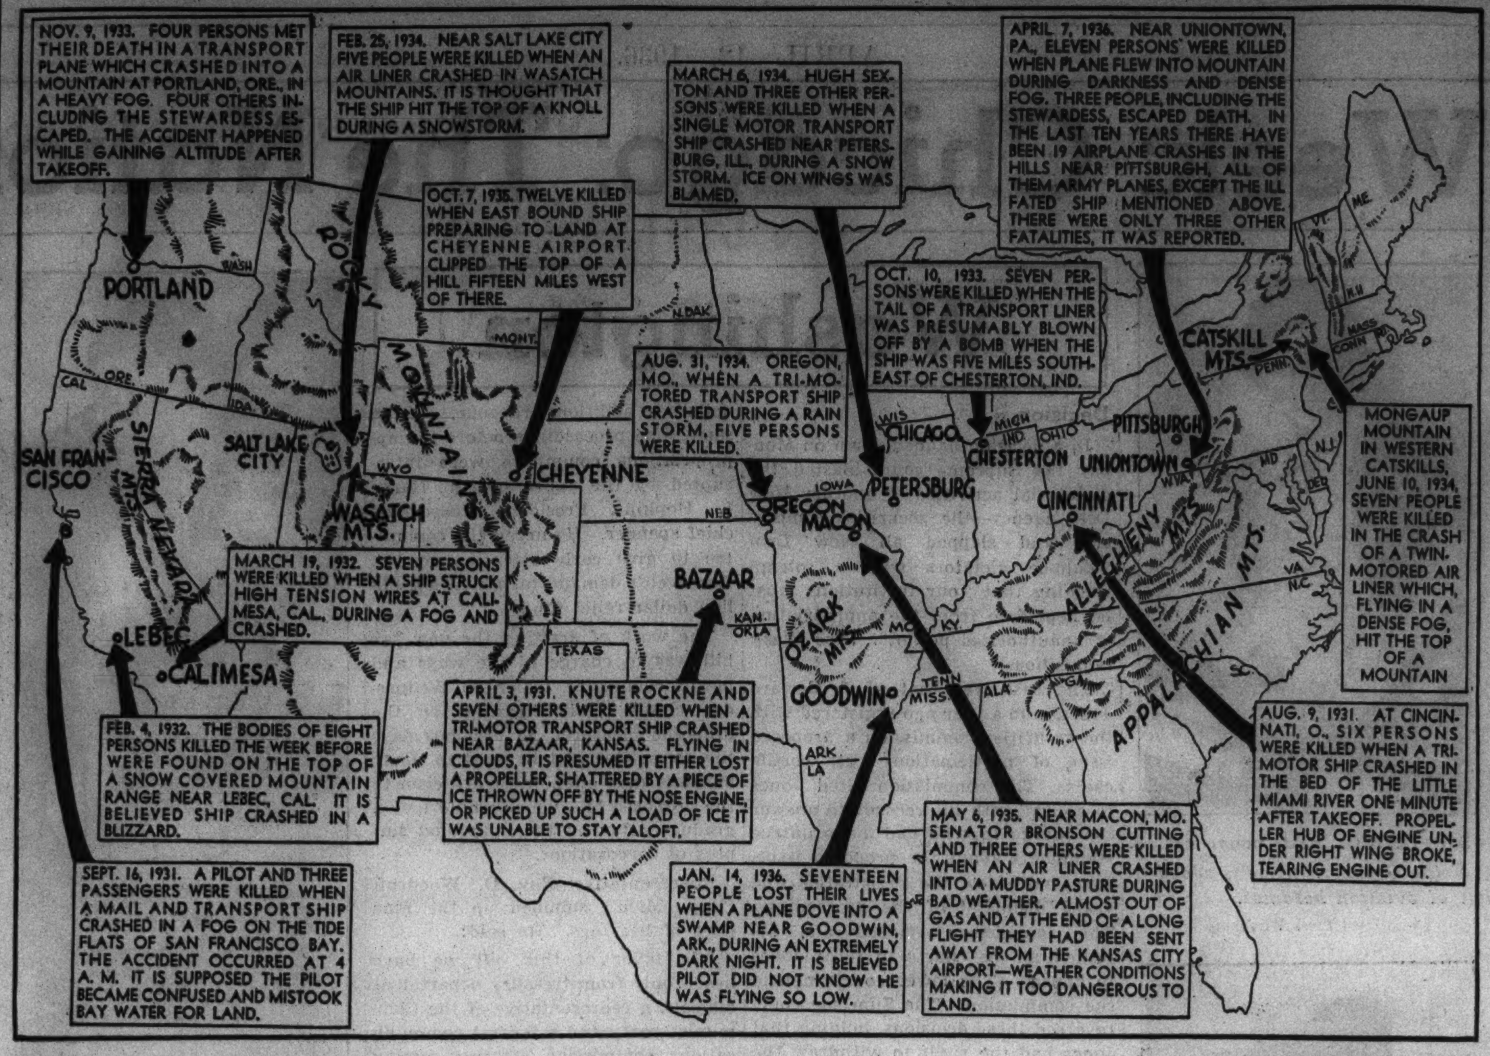
Sunday, they said, after he and a companion, who escaped, had taken a street car from the car barns at 38th and Rockwell streets. Kramer's friend, at the controls, ran the car at full speed until it jumped a switch at Archer and Western avenues. There the squad arrested Kramer. His friend fled. "Case continued until April 23," said the judge. "I want the friend brought in here."

Aviation Strives to Conquer Weather



A review of the major air transportation accidents during the last six years discloses that the industry's chief safety problem lies in conquering fog, heavy rains, sleet, and snow. Virtually every fatal crash within recent years occurred while pilots were fighting adverse weather conditions.

The accompanying map shows clearly that accidents have been widely spread throughout the country—that there is no one dangerous area. Many crashes, it is true, have occurred in mountainous regions when planes flew into mountainsides while pilots were attempting to fly "blind."

Each year, however, the performance record of the commercial air lines has improved. Radio, giro instruments, and automatic pilot devices have been added to help crews, and both the speed and range of transport planes—important safety factors—have been increased greatly.

The air line operators know that their great problem is weather, and they are concentrating upon discovering ways and means to prevent the fatalities of the past from being repeated in the future.

During 1935 air lines in the United States flew slightly more than 320,000,000 passenger miles. The average was nearly 22,000,000 miles per passenger fatality. These statistics show that a person may travel by airplane 24 hours a day for three and a half years before incurring the risk of being involved in a fatal accident. Actuaries now rate an air line passenger as twice as good a risk as a passenger traveling in a private automobile.

Medicine

Epidemic Mystery.

The brief epidemic which troubled the intestines of 120,000 Milwaukee citizens disappeared last week, and with it the principal chance for first hand diagnosis of the unknown cause. The epidemic had been called a form of intestinal influenza, but physicians pointed out there was no evidence to prove this.

Said Dr. John P. Koehler, city health commissioner: "No analysis of afflicted persons was made so far as I know." He explained that equipment was lacking for a study of bacteria associated with the disease.

Likewise, there was no evidence that the city's drinking water had caused the malady. No chemical tests were made to determine if the disease was a form of poisoning. Dr. Koehler on Tuesday ended his order to boil all drinking water. Then he announced that an extensive scientific inquiry would be started.

The general opinion was that pollution of the drinking water by sewage had caused the epidemic. When Dr. Koehler first gave the "boil water" order, on March 29, the bacteria count per cubic centimeter was 84. Last week it was down to 2.

Milwaukee obtains its water, which is chlorinated, from a Lake Michigan intake. Its $4,000,000 sewage disposal plant also empties into the lake. John Fowles, secretary of the sewerage commission, said that the 170 million gallon plant left about 130 million gallons of sewage untreated during heavy rains or fast melting snows. Suburbs empty untreated sewage into the lake. Milwaukee is now building a $5,000,000 water filtration plant for operation in 1937.

Said Henry P. Bohmann, superintendent of the city water department: "If the treatment of beer were as unsanitary as that of our city water has been, not a brewery in town would be operating. Filtration will be the only permanent purification means."

Medical Notes.

Rats which did not have enough vitamin D not only had rickets but intestinal sluggishness. Rats that ate enough of the vitamin not only were cured of their rickets but showed contrasting intestinal activity. This was shown in 1,000 X-ray photographs made of the rats' digestive tracts by Prof. John W. M. Bunker at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., last week. Since children who have rickets are generally constipated, the conclusion was that vitamin D might relieve the intestinal sluggishness of humans.

Dr. A. T. Andreasen and Dr. I. Bakhsh of Calcutta, India, last week reported, in a translation made by the Journal of the American Medical association, that alcohol injections relieved pain in pneumonia. A 20 to 33 per cent solution in sodium chloride ended all discomfort in six cases within three days.

Barrow, Alaska, near where Wiley Post and Will Rogers crashed in a plane last summer, was again in the news last week. Dr. Henry E. Greist, in charge of the Presbyterian mission and hospital at the little Eskimo outpost, which received the bodies of Post and Rogers, said he had been informed the federal government would take charge of the hospital this summer. The Presbyterian board of national missions is withdrawing from medical work.

Debunker Quits

In Springfield, Mass., a favorite legend is the tale of Johnny Appleseed, who, after the revolutionary war was said to have wandered about the country scattering apple seeds. The story is so generally believed that a Springfield park was named for him. On Friday the story of Johnny Appleseed was challenged by Harry A. Wright, historical director of the Springfield tercentennary committee, who announced, at the same time, his resignation. He quit, he said, because of some of the "weird tales" sponsored by the committee.

The Appleseed story, Wright said, "seems to have originated in the minds of or at least is fostered by some nice old ladies whose real knowledge centers around the knitting bag and the kitchen pantry."

Science

Bacteria at Work.

Use of bacteria not only to eliminate industrial waste but to furnish industrial power was keynoted last week in a report of Drs. A. M. Partansky and H. K. Benson of the University of Washington to the National Academy of Sciences.

The two Seattle scientists were called on when Pacific northwest paper mills sought to eliminate wastes which polluted streams and ocean water and killed fish. They obtained bacteria from mud and placed them in gallon jars with water and the waste liquid. When heated to 96 degrees Fahrenheit the bacteria gave off as much as 500 cubic centimeters of methane gas daily during a two months incubation period. This gas, when burned, produced 18,730 horsepower hours per ton of pulp paper manufactured. [A horsepower hour is a unit representing the work performed or energy consumed in one hour at the rate of one horsepower.]

The experiment was compared in commercial importance to the use of coal tar in the dye industry. Coal tar was once a waste product of oil refining.

200-inch Eye.

A special train drew to a gentle stop in Lamanda Park, near Pasadena, Cal., Friday and while the crew looked on, a giant wrecking crane lifted a round, heavily padded object from its nest in a specially built car. The train crew sighed with relief. It had fulfilled its obligation to transport safely from Corning, N. Y., the 200 inch reflector for the world's largest telescope. The big mirror was taken at once to the laboratories of the California Institute of Technology, where it will be ground and polished, preparatory to installation in the telescope atop Mount Palomar. The grinding will require about two years.

Science Notes.

Stefan Witkowski, Polish engineer, at Geneva, Switzerland, last week demonstrated an invention which enabled a standard motorcycle to operate on both mineral and vegetable fuels. The motorcycle ran at about 50 miles an hour using variously gasoline, gas oil, kerosene, fuel oil and alcohol. Witkowski said that even olive oil could be used. He said he had used the same invention on a standard French automobile for 60,000 miles. Special pistons were required. The invention substitutes for the carburetor what the inventor called an "injector," working with a pump.

Prof. Selim Hassam last week reported discovery of the mummy of a princess in a limestone tomb near the pyramids of Giza, Egypt. The mummy, lying in bridal garb and decked with a crown and other gold jewelry, was believed to be the daughter of Cheops, who built the second pyramid about 3700 B. C. An Englishman, W. B. Emery, found an empty tomb 10 miles south of Cairo. It was believed to be that of an Egyptian nobleman of about 5300 B. C., the time of the earliest civilization of Egypt.

AGOG OVER OIL.

There was real excitement in St. Charles, Ill., Friday night. Scores of residents hurried to the city hall as the cry, "Oil, they've struck oil!" ran through the town. The mayor, Dr. I. G. Langum, proudly displayed three jars of a dark brown fluid. He told the townspeople the fluid was crude oil. Drillers of a deep water well struck the oil pocket Friday afternoon.

Religion

Millions of Christians throughout the world attended special pre-Easter church services last week. In most churches of the United States conventional Lenten and Good Friday services were conducted. There was some spectacular religious activity, however.

The crucifixion of Christ was reenacted in scattered mountain fastnesses of the southwest by members of Los Hermanos de Sangre Cristo—Brothers of the Blood of Christ. The brothers gathered at their homes of sunbaked brick where they submitted to incisions across the back. On the night of Holy Thursday the Christus and two others elected by the brotherhood, shouldered heavy crosses and were escorted barefoot by the brothers to hill summits. On the way the brothers lashed each other with thongs. The crucifixion was concluded by the lashing of the Christus for almost an hour.

On Thursday evening the second annual Passion play of the Zion Christian Catholic Apostolic church at Zion, Ill., was presented by members of Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva's congregation. The play will be enacted 20 more times, on Thursday evenings and on intervening Sunday afternoons and evenings. Sixty-five thousand persons saw the play last year.

For the first time in recent years the churches of Mexico were crowded with worshipers throughout Holy week. The government, which has pursued an anti-church policy, relaxed its vigilance.

Deciding that the "meek" and the "peacemakers" of Christ's Sermon on the Mount was not strong enough language for hardy Nazis, Dr. Ludwig Mueller, former German national bishop, last week issued a new Germanized version in Berlin. Dr. Mueller's sermon on the mount accented peace among comrades rather than among all people. It preferred courage as the reward for "suffering manfully" to comforting for "they that mourn."

Declines Bounty

payments. Justice Van Devanter concurred with the majority when the Supreme court outlawed the AAA. He said he did not believe he was entitled to a bounty, in view of the court's AAA ruling.

Flying

Two passengers and a steward on the giant airliner Brazilian Clipper were drowned yesterday when the big plane collided with a fishing boat in the harbor of Port-of-Spain, Trinidad. Many others were injured, among them José Iturbi, famous pianist and orchestra conductor. [See main news section.]

A new name was added to the list of aviation heroines and a new chapter in the tragic history of airplane crashes was written Tuesday. A transport liner of Transcontinental and Western Air lines crashed Tuesday against a mountainside near Uniontown, Pa. Nine passengers and the two pilots were killed. The stewardess, Miss Nellie Granger, injured, saved the lives of two passengers, one of them a woman. Then she stumbled four miles through mountain woods and underbrush to summon aid. Her heroism was rewarded. She will become hostess of the Sky Chief, New York to Los Angeles luxury transport, after an aerial vacation in Panama.

Federal, state, local and company investigations of the crash were begun immediately. Aviation experts throughout the country speculated that the exact cause might never be learned.

Fog, arch enemy of flyers, was undoubtedly a factor. Ice forming on the wings might have been another. Chiefly, however, air experts thought it probable, after a thorough investigation, that the constant stream of radio signals along which a transport plane travels—the "radio range beacon"—had failed. The pilot had been flying on the course of these signals until shortly before the tragedy. One supposition was that ice had "shorted" the plane's aerial, putting its radio out of use.

On Thursday Paul E. Richter, vice president of TWA, said expert pilots of the line had flown the course to test the beacon and had found it in good order.

What the official investigators discovered at the scene was kept a closely guarded secret. Their examination of the wreck was completed Thursday and the wreckage of the big two motored monoplane was destroyed to keep curiosity seekers away.

Bad weather conditions, experts pointed out, have been responsible for a majority of the nation's major air catastrophies. [See map.]

Residents of Friedrichshafen, Germany, staged another zeppelin celebration Friday. With cheers and flying flags they welcomed the huge zeppelin Hindenburg as it returned from its maiden round trip voyage across the Atlantic to Brazil. Some concern had been expressed for the ship Thursday, when two of its four motors were disabled. The commander, Capt. Hans von Schiller, obtained permission to fly over France, the shortest course home, because of this trouble.

Five army airmen were killed Monday when a bombing plane crashed near Pottstown, Pa. In a spectacular collision of two planes in the air, near Roosevelt field, N. Y., Tuesday, a student pilot was killed and two other men were injured.

Russian soviet authorities announced Tuesday that a small, automatic, radio balloon sent up from the Novosibirsk meteorological station had reached a height of more than 26 miles. They said this was the highest a man made instrument had ever ascended. The exact altitude registered on the balloon's instruments was 42,200 meters—138,451.16 feet.

BROADWAY TARS.

Authorities at the Brooklyn navy yard have been annoyed by the activities of "dry land sailors." Dressed in snappy navy uniforms the "Broadway tars" hang around subway stations. They strike up acquaintances with real sailors and trick them out of money. The swindlers are civilians or former navy men who have been dishonorably discharged.

TEACHERS' OATH.

Teachers in Massachusetts must continue to take an oath to uphold federal and state constitutions. The state legislature last week refused by a vote of 133 to 88 to repeal the teachers' oath law. Many of the state's educators opposed the law on the ground that it was unnecessary class legislation.

Crime

Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, authoress and wife of a National Broadcasting company executive, was assaulted and strangled to death Friday in her New York home at 22 Beekman place. The murderer placed her body in a bathtub. Meager clews yesterday started a search for a youth seen visiting the apartment building in which the Tittertons lived. [See main news section.]

Residents of eight eastern states were warned Friday to beware of suspicious packages in the mail. At Wilkes-Barre, Pa., one man was killed and five persons were seriously injured by the explosion of bombs concealed in packages which looked like Easter presents. Six or more of the packages were mailed. Five of them, including the two which exploded, were located. The postoffice department rushed additional postal inspectors into the Wilkes-Barre area. Gov. George H. Earle and other state officials were closely guarded by state police.

The bombing victim killed was Michael Gallagher, 70. He opened a package he believed was a box of cigars. His son-in-law, Clinton Lehman, was critically injured. Earlier in the day, Thomas Maloney, president of a disbanded mine union, opened a similar package. He and his two children were seriously injured.

Police and postal inspectors were inclined to believe the bomb plot was inspired by labor strife. One bomb, located before it was opened, was sent to Harry Gouldstone, official of a coal company.

Death in the electric chair will be demanded for Mrs. Betty Fobert Martin, 33, who shot and killed her husband Thursday night, it was announced Friday by the state's attorney's office. Mrs. Martin waited for her husband, Andrew, in a south side tavern. When he came in she fired five bullets into his body. Then she waited for police. When they arrived she said she was maddened with jealousy because she suspected her husband of associating with other women. She was held to the grand jury on a charge of murder following an inquest Friday.

Chief of Police Richard H. Bailey of Maywood and two county highway policemen were wounded Friday in a gun battle with a robber who escaped. He was one of a gang of four which had committed a $928 holdup in a Maywood industrial plant. The gang was forced to abandon its automobile because of a flat tire. Yesterday Chicago police seized two of the gang, who confessed and named their companions. [See main news section.]

For a full week following the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann a week ago Friday in Trenton, N. J., prison, the case continued to make news. Gov. Harold G. Hoffman on Wednesday invited a thorough federal investigation of the entire Lindbergh kidnaping case. Such an investigation, including an inquiry into Hoffman's activities, had been demanded from various sources. Federal officials in Brooklyn continued to investigate the charge made by Paul H. Wendel, disbarred attorney, that he was kidnaped and tortured in Brooklyn until he signed a "confession" that he killed the Lindbergh child. Wendel remained in the Mercer county, New Jersey, jail awaiting grand jury action on the charge against him. The jury was expected to return a "no bill."

Two of the four young robbers who confessed killing Dr. Silber C. Peacock pleaded not guilty when they were arraigned Tuesday before Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle in the Criminal court. They are Emil Reck and Michael Livingston. The other two, Durland Nash and Robert Goethe, pleaded guilty. All were represented by Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach. Dr. Peacock, a specialist in children's diseases, was lured from his home by a fake call to care for a sick child on Jan. 2. Yesterday sanity examinations were ordered for the four prisoners.

husband, son of a Chicago clergyman, has parted from her husband, James C. Tyler of Detroit. Mrs. Tyler was married a few weeks after Mrs. Root was tried and convicted.

Troops were ordered to Danielsville, Ga., yesterday to quell a mob of armed men who were intent on storming the Madison county jail to seize and lynch a wounded Negro prisoner. The Negro, Lint Shaw, had attempted to rape two white girls and stabbed two policemen who arrested him. [See main news section.]

All winter long Detective Thomas P. Mason of the New York police posed as a soldier at Fort Hamilton, N. Y. His assignment was to learn the source of doped cigarets being sold to soldiers. Thomas gained the confidence of two soldiers and learned the name of the cigaret salesman. At a bar in Brooklyn last Wednesday Thomas bought 60 doped cigarets from Thomas Brakfield, 24, in the presence of two plainclothes policemen. Brakfield was seized.

Mrs. Leah Rosenstein, ill in bed in her New York home, looked up to see two men enter her room on Wednesday. One of them carried a large bouquet of roses. They ordered Mrs. Rosenstein to pull the bed covers over her face. Then they bound and gagged her maid and nurse and left with $5,000 worth of jewelry.

Education

Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, was honored in New York Sunday. He was given the gold medal of the Holland Society of New York in recognition of "his distinguished service in the field of education." Dr. Hutchins said: "I am particularly gratified to receive it because one of your members has raised its value by devaluing the gold dollar." The audience believed he was referring to President Roosevelt, whose ancestry was Dutch.

Fraternities at the University of Michigan will no longer observe "hell week"—the informal initiation period for pledges. An investigation of hell week activities by the interfraternity council ended Sunday with resolutions abolishing it. Two chapter houses, Beta Theta Pi and Sigma Nu, were ordered closed for varying periods.

Wage cut restorations for nearly 2,000 University of Wisconsin employés seemed certain last week. An opinion of the attorney general approved the use of funds for the purpose. Approval of the university board of regents had already been given.

Spring registration at the University of Chicago totals 5,252, an increase of 339 over the corresponding registration last year, it was announced last week. Of the total 3,265 are men. Registration at the University college, downtown department, was 1,032, for a total of 6,284.

Striking high school students at Holdenville, Okla., on Thursday invaded the school seeking support and injured three grade school pupils. The strikers demanded that the school board reëmploy Ben J. Foster, dismissed as superintendent.

SUICIDE SONG.

New York music publishers looked with some misgiving recently upon publication of a song entitled "Gloomy Sunday," translated from the Hungarian. In Hungary the tune is called the "suicide song." It was said to have inspired so many suicides that the Hungarian government prohibited its sale. Last Sunday at Sturgis, Mich., Floyd Hamilton Jr., 13, committed suicide. A copy of "Gloomy Sunday" was in his pocket.

DEFINITION.

What is burlesque? This question was decided on Wednesday by the Massachusetts Supreme court, which described burlesque as "a place to display good looking girls in unappropriate dress—sometimes in nudeness." The ruling was in favor of Fofo Louka, 24, Greek tragedienne, who sued a Boston burlesque theater for displaying her picture in the lobby, along with those of burlesque cuties.

STILL FIGHTING AT 85.

David Ogilvie, 85, a native of Troy, N. Y., attempted to enlist in the world war. He was rejected because of his age, then 66. He tried again with the British and was accepted. After the war he was given a soldier's homestead in Australia, but returned to the United States in 1934 to live with a brother. Last week the immigration department ruled he is an alien and ordered him to return to Australia. Ogilvie prepared to fight deportation proceedings.

SILVER POLICY BUILDS FORTUNE FOR FOREIGNERS

Americans Heavily Penalized.

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—Enormous fortunes have been made in silver speculations on foreign markets since the treasury department embarked upon its silver price juggling policy following the nationalization of the white metal, in August, 1934, according to widely credited reports in Wall street.

Four London bullion brokers are said to have netted close to a million dollars in commissions alone on treasury orders executed in that market. What additional profits they and their associates may have reaped from short sales and other operations in foreign exchange in anticipation of an impending change in the treasury's buying price, no one today would presume to guess. The opportunities for such profitable speculation, however, are conceded to have been "practically unlimited," it was said in more than one informed quarter.

Purchases Strengthen Pound.

Moreover, purchases in behalf of the treasury on the English market have been paid for in British currency, it was pointed out, thus strengthening the pound.

The four bullion brokers, McOtta & Goldsmith, Pixley & Abbell, Sharps & Wilkins, and Samuel Montague, enjoyed a virtual monopoly of the government's foreign silver buying business from the time the silver purchase act went into effect in the summer of 1934 until last December when the treasury suddenly switched its foreign orders to Mexico and Canada, it was said in informed circles. During that time the price was boosted steadily, rising from an average of 48.99 an ounce in August, the month of the "nationalization" decree under which the government took over all stocks of the white metal held in this country, to a high of 81 cents in April of last year.

Statistician Rules Market.

The upward trend was irregular, however, varying from day to day and apparently depending almost entirely upon figures set by some statistician of the moment in the treasury offices at Washington.

So completely dependent were the market's gyrations on the current whim of this unknown individual that the opening of the London exchange had to be postponed on more than one occasion pending the belated receipt of the day's all important opening bid of the American government. By October, 1934, following the "nationalization" decree the price had been advanced to an average of 52.37 cents and by the end of December it had attained a monthly average of 54.39 cents. In March it climbed to a level of 59.05, and in April rose to its new high of 81 cents. In December, 1935, the treasury withdrew support from the London market and the price of silver there suddenly dropped below 45 cents an ounce.

The treasury's orders to the four favored firms, estimated to have totaled well over a billion ounces, have gone over the cables through the agencies of federal reserve banks.

Americans Are Penalized.

The silver purchase act imposed a 50 per cent tax on profits earned by American citizens or corporations on silver purchased in foreign markets, and bullion brokers and banking house spokesmen alike agree that this penalty has had the effect of discouraging American speculation to the minimum. The only way in which a citizen of this country can lawfully evade this restrictive penalty, it was said, would be to establish legal residence abroad.

The sudden swings of the stock market immediately in advance of some important New Deal move having a market bearing over the last three years have been too many and too obvious for serious doubt that speculators have had inside "tips" from Washington it was declared. Brokers say that the "tips" went to swell the bank accounts of foreigners—or at least foreign bank accounts—rather than to the augmentation of American fortunes.

Many Ways to "Cash In."

There were numerous ways for "cashing in" on the ups and downs of the treasury's uncertain moves in the game, not all of which brokers are willing to advertise under the present order of things. Up to some eight months ago it was possible for a speculator operating on the London or Montreal exchanges to buy silver at forward discounts and sell it at spot-on-hand prices to the government.

Inasmuch as the London purchases were paid for in British currency, operating brokers enjoyed the advantage of being able to cleanup on their foreign exchange dealings in connection with the order, through sterling purchases in Tokio, Hongkong, or elsewhere. That such possibilities have been widely utilized no one in authority is inclined to doubt. The result, however, has been near ruin for foreign exchange business here, making London the world exchange market as it was made the world's silver market — taking the honors away from New York in both cases.

World Awaits French Action on Currency

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Paris will be the center of interest of the financial world on Tuesday when European banks and markets reopen after the long Easter holiday. It is generally believed that events on that day will disclose whether or not France will devalue her currency.

The threat of devaluation of the franc has grown considerably during the last two weeks. Latest figures released by the Bank of France betray an increased flight of French capital to London, a private hoarding of gold and paper currency on a broader scale, and growing distrust of the obligations of the French government on the part of its own citizens.

French People Hoard Gold.

During the last three weeks there have been steady increases in the amount of gold withdrawn from the Bank of France and the amount of currency in circulation. Last week 111 million dollars worth of gold fled the Bank of France. Some of it was transferred abroad but by far the larger part remained within France, indicating that the run on gold was being carried on by the French people themselves for hoarding.

Quotations on the franc in foreign exchange transactions failed to reflect the near panic in French finance because the British managers of the equalization fund were operating to steady the situation by purchasing francs in Paris and then converting them into gold at the Bank of France, the gold being earmarked for the account of the British.

Hold Elections April 26.

The precarious financial situation is rendered especially acute by the uncertainty concerning the parliamentary elections scheduled for April 26. Edouard Herriot, leader of the strongest party of the anti-Fascist front, which is generally expected to increase its power in the coming elections, gave out what was meant to be a reassuring statement, but which only added to fears of impending devaluation.

Although saying that he was opposed to devaluation and pointing out that France's economic situation is improving slightly, Herriot admitted that he might favor devaluation "on the hypothesis of a general stabilization of currencies." He insisted, however, that such stabilization would have to include other major nations because "if the franc were devalued, who is going to tell me sterling will not drop anew, even if it is only due to the sale of pounds against francs."

Fears Tarif Reprisals.

Herriot said he was also worried lest devaluation of the franc be followed by a raising of customs barriers by other nations whose foreign trade might be hurt by debasement of the franc. He also warned that, although devaluation of the franc would result in a paper profit for the Bank of France, it would stimulate a rise in commodity prices which would encourage speculation and reduce the purchasing power of the wage earners' and investors' money.

Monetary experts on this side of the Atlantic express the opinion that political extravagance is the chief cause of the crumbling of confidence in the franc. Even after the heavy withdrawals of gold from the Bank of France during the last few months the remaining stocks of the metal are ample for all ordinary needs. France still has the second large reserves of gold in the world. The foreign trade situation is not a serious threat to the currency.

Deficits Peril Franc.

Doubts concerning the stability of the franc arise largely from the nation's continuing deficits and the apparent inability of the government to get its budget into shape. The political spending in excess of revenues has forced repeated recourse to borrowing from the Bank of France and has so undermined confidence that government obligations have been hard to sell even at high rates of interest.

Financial interests in the United States were somewhat surprised by the failure of the Bank of France to raise its rediscount rate on Thursday, a procedure which usually accompanies an emergency such as the present one. It was pointed out, however, that with the holidays intervening there will be only two business days before the directors meet again next Thursday.

The chief interest of Americans in the French situation centers around the possible effects upon American markets and currency in the event that France backs into devaluation. Some experts fear that debasement of the franc might lead to another international currency depreciation race with a further reduction in the gold value of the dollar. Others argue that after France devalues, if she does, French people who transferred their funds here for fear of devaluation will take a large part of them back home to realize their profit, in which case there might be substantial selling of stocks listed on American exchanges.

COMMODITY PRICES GENERALLY HIGHER DURING LAST WEEK

An upward price trend developed last week in most of the principal commodities. Cotton, grains, sugar, rubber, butter, and eggs registered moderate advances as compared with the level prevailing a week ago.

May cotton futures in New York rose 11 points to 11.36 cents a pound in the face of the government preparations to liquidate the government holdings. Crop developments and an unfavorable government appraisal of the wheat outlook accounted for the upturn in wheat prices.

Exceptions to the advancing trend were coffee and hides, which closed slightly lower.

A CHEAP STOCK FOR LARGE PROFIT
A little over a year ago we advised the purchase of HOUDAILLE-HERSHEY "B," pronouncing it "one of the most attractive low-priced speculations in the entire list." It was then selling at 6¼. In less than a year it sold above thirty. This demonstrates the unusual profit possibilities in some of the low-priced stocks.
We have selected another issue which may duplicate the performance of HOUDAILLE-HERSHEY. It is a stock in which you might, in the months ahead, secure greater-than-normal profit. It is a well-known issue listed on the New York Stock Exchange. It is a stock in which we have great confidence. Still it sells for less than $10 a share.

Court Orders Sale to Unify Traction Lines

The foreclosure sale of the Chicago Surface Lines properties as one of the final steps in bringing about unification under the Abbott reorganization plan was set for 11 a. m. on May 29 by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday.

The Chicago Surface Lines, Inc., set up to take over the various properties is expected to be the only bidder at the sale. Under the program securities of the three separate companies making up the surface lines would be exchanged for securities in the single successor company. The new corporation will issue $72,718,350 of first mortgage bonds, 931,139 shares of $50 par value preferred stock, and 526,572 shares of common stock for present securities.

Mortgage Debt to Be Assumed.

The mortgage debt to be taken over is distributed as follows: Chicago Railways company [north and west side lines], $41,741,250; Chicago City Railway [south side lines], $27,644,550; Calumet and South Chicago Railways, $3,332,550.

While a preponderant proportion of the security holders has assented to the plan, several groups have voiced strenuous objections. Judge Wilkerson promised all objectors a full hearing when the master in chancery comes into court after the sale to ask its approval. Thomas J. Peden was appointed special master in chancery to conduct the sale, which will be held in the county building.

"All questions about fairness of the plan of reorganization will be heard when the master submits his sale for approval," said the court. "At that time all parties desiring to be heard will be given a full hearing.

Dissenters' Rights Safeguarded.

"The order of the sale does not affect the right of dissenting bondholders and other interests to come in and be heard."

Several of the objectors have contended that the surface lines should be reorganized under section 77B of the new federal bankruptcy law rather than under the old bankruptcy foreclosure procedure. The foreclosure decree was obtained May 11, 1931.

The present program was drawn by a committee headed by W. Rufus Abbott, former president of the Illinois Bell Telephone company. It is the third reorganization proposed since the first receivership in 1926. Both earlier plans, based on consolidation with the elevated lines, collapsed.

Some Leading Commodity Markets Remain Closed

WHEAT SPURTS 2 CENTS ON U. S. CROP FORECAST

Figures Are Smaller than Expected.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Wheat rose 2 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday on the strength of the federal government's forecast, issued Friday, that the country will harvest a winter wheat crop of less than 500 million bushels. The government's estimate for a crop of 493 million bushels was a decided market upset in that earlier private forecasts had indicated that production would run forty to fifty million bushels more.

When the market opened all future contracts in wheat were quoted 1½ cents a bushel above Thursday's final prices. As speculators hastened to cover short sales executed before the government's figures became known the market advance was extended and prices shot up 2 cents a bushel or more as compared with Thursday. Later the peak prices were shaded and when the trading ended May wheat was selling at 96⅝ cents a bushel, up 1⅝ cents; July wheat was quoted at 87⅛, 1⅝ cents higher, and the September contract was 1⅜ cents up at 85⅝ cents a bushel.

May Wheat Hits 96⅜ Cents.

May wheat reached a high price for the day of 96⅜ cents a bushel. The new crop futures, calling for delivery in July and September, were quoted at high 87⅜ and 86⅛ cents respectively.

Closing prices on July futures of wheat and other grains, with comparative quotations, follow:

	Yesterday.	Thurs.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	87⅛	85½	84¼
Corn	60	59¼	59¼
Oats	26⅛	26¼	25⅞
Rye	53	52⅝	51⅝

The government forecast for comparatively small crop was met with skepticism in some quarters. Ordinarily the official estimates stir up a controversy. Nat C. Murray and B. W. Snow, private forecasters, who had made more favorable appraisals of the situation pointed out that their methods of computations differed from that of the government statisticians.

Murray said that the private estimates were based entirely on the condition of the crop on April 1 without an attempt to discount the crop developments between that date and the harvest. The government attempts, he said, to give effect in their forecast to the probable future crop conditions.

Forecast May Be Upset.

"Anything may happen," Snow said, "in the months to come, either abnormally favorable or abnormally unfavorable, but it seems to me that it is common sense to accept developments as they occur from day to day instead of attempting long range weather forecasts as a basis for crop estimates."

The market effect of the government's report was tempered by the favorable turn in weather conditions that had taken place in the producing belt since the close of the market Thursday. Beneficial rains fell in several sections of the belt. It is conceded that the size of the crop will be determined by the amount of moisture received between now and the harvest period. Favorable growing conditions would boost production considerably in excess of the total estimated by the department of agriculture. Lack of sufficient rainfall would bring about another failure.

The buying that came into the wheat pit yesterday was regarded principally as short covering. There was no sign that the government pessimistic appraisal had brought any substantial public demand into the market.

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Auto Production Increases—Quarter's Output Near Record—Business Records Further Gains—Bond Financing Extremely Large—Stock Trading Shrinks, Prices Irregular

Automobile manufacturers, after boosting production of new cars further last week, checked back over first quarter records and found that output for that period of the year had been exceeded only twice in the industry's history. This occurred despite the fact that first quarter assemblies in previous years had been unusually heavy because of work on new models. Introduction of the new cars last year was pushed ahead from January to last October.

Members of the Automobile Manufacturers' association, which includes all major companies with the exception of Ford, produced 820,186 cars during the period, a figure topped only in the boom years of 1928 and 1929. A year ago the output was 704,935 units. The March production was placed at 323,160 cars and trucks, against 220,581 in February and 280,758 in March, 1935.

The industry continued the pace last week, turning out 112,000 units, compared with 108,500 a week earlier and 119,562 in the corresponding period a year ago.

Standardization.

Meanwhile, efforts were intensified to achieve further standardization. Despite the industry's ability to restore operations to a profit basis with increased production it has found the buying public extremely apathetic to price advances. Only through reduced operating costs, leaders reason, can additional profits be obtained.

It was largely through standardizing parts and developing interchangeable driving assemblies, body units, wheel rims and other parts that manufacturers have been able to cut expenses in the production division and consequently maintain low prices with which they sought to stem the recession in consumer demand that continued from 1930 to 1933.

When the industry, two years ago, tried to increase prices on all models, retail demand fell off immediately and the announced increases had to be recalled. The immediate reaction was a return of buying interest. Since then no attempt has been made at horizontal advances.

Instead, manufacturers have reduced production costs and at the same time have maintained employment at steadier levels.

Changes.

While the number of parts in the modern motor car has been reduced, the variety of body styles has increased. Body builders have developed styles which make certain parts interchangeable.

All manufacturers produce several types or series of cars to cover the various price ranges that competition has made essential and even those models of varying horsepower and wheelbase now use some standardized parts.

Standardization, it is said, has been the most important single factor in the development of production on a basis that has made widespread distribution in specific price ranges practical. Only a few years ago assembly divisions used so many different kinds of nuts and bolts that each manufacturer had to carry enormous supplies for replacements. Parts replacement departments still occupy a large part of the service division in the industry, but compared with conditions a decade ago, half the space cares for twice as many cars.

Oil.

The approaching summer automobile touring season finds the petroleum industry in what many authorities declare is one of the most favorable positions in years. Increased travel is expected to reduce surplus stocks of gasoline built up during the recent period of cold weather.

Last year gasoline consumption amounted to 17½ billion gallons, the highest in history, according to the American Petroleum institute.

Banking.

As the result of action taken Friday the First National Bank of Chicago will become the first large metropolitan bank in the United States to gain its independence from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Directors voted to buy back $15,000,000 of preferred stock sold to the RFC two years ago, and to sell 50,000 additional shares of $100 par common stock at $200 a share to provide $10,000,000 toward the retirement. The balance of $5,000,000 will be taken from "internal reserves." At the same time the board announced its intention of lifting dividends from $4 to $6 annually.

the Democratic national committee and chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, announced his bank does not plan to retire $50,000,000 of preferred stock owned by the RFC at any faster rate than that called for under an existing agreement. A minimum of $3,000,000 of the stock will be retired this year from earnings.

Radio.

Radio Corporation of America adopted a plan for recapitalizing its financial structure, devised by Joseph P. Kennedy, first chairman of the securities and exchange commission, who resigned that post last fall. Kennedy told stockholders at a meeting in New York he received $150,000 for his efforts. The plan provides for redemption of outstanding 7 per cent class A preferred stock at $55 a share, exchange of class B preferred for one and one-fifth shares of new $3.50 cumulative preferred stock and one share of common, and elimination of unpaid dividends on the B shares.

Business.

Business lengthened its stride during the first full week of the second quarter and registered gains on many fronts, which carried most indices to levels prevailing in mid-February before severe cold weather and floods temporarily curtailed activity.

Steel production bounded 3 points to cross 66 per cent of plant capacity. For the first quarter of the year output totaled 9,363,731 gross tons, equivalent to 54.7 per cent of capacity, a gain of 10 per cent over 1935. Backlogs, it was said, are sufficient to hold mill activities close to current levels for the remainder of April.

Production of electric power again increased. Business transacted by checks continued about 20 per cent above last year. Car loadings increased. Bank clearings were higher. Easter retail trade was termed the largest in six years. United States Steel corporation reported its shipments in March were the best since June, 1934. General Motors' consumer sales for the same period were the highest in eight years.

Improvement in capital goods lines has persisted into 1936, Business Week reported yesterday. Purchases of rails in the first quarter were 113 per cent ahead of 1935. A total of

STOCKS COVER AIMLESS COURSE AMID HOLIDAYS

Early Gains Offset in Late Trading.

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—Sandwiched between two trading holidays and with many of its supporters absent from their posts, the stock market found little incentive for activity in any direction in today's abbreviated week-end dealings. Volume was slightly below the 800,000 share mark and the list showed no striking tendencies at any time in any department.

Movements for the most part were irregular. Some of the leaders bucked up as much as a point in the first few minutes of trading, but few of them were able to add anything further to their showings and a good proportion of them eased in the last half hour or so.

Several Issues Rise Sharply.

Exceptions included Atchison, which finished the session nearly 3 points above its previous level; American Car and Foundry, which scored a net gain of 2 points; Vulcan Detinning, up 2; Minneapolis Honeywell, up 3¼; Columbian Carbon, with a jump of nearly 5 points; Jewel Tea, up 3, and Johns Manville, up 2¼ points.

Farm implement shares were not able to make much capital out of the sharp advances in wheat prices in the Chicago pit. J. I. Case trailed the general list most of the session, finishing more than a point lower. Deere eased fractionally.

Chemical issues came in for a flurry of buying during the first hour. Both Allied Chemical and du Pont rose about a point, but most of their gains were wiped out by later selling.

U. S. Steel Is Pacemaker.

U. S. Steel was something of a pacemaker, opening a point higher on an initial transaction of 2,500 shares and holding all but a minor fraction of its gain. Other steels, including Bethlehem and Youngstown, also showed bullish tendencies. Standard Oil of New Jersey was an outstanding weak spot among the market pivotals, receding $1 a share on comparatively light selling.

Coppers contributed importantly to the day's activity, with Kennecott registering a new top on a gain of a point and Anaconda duplicating its previous high for the year. Calumet and Hecla also sold at a new high price peak.

In the motor division Chrysler and General Motors were conspicuously strong, each finishing substantially higher. Considerable interest was also shown in some of the lesser lights of the group.

Utility shares were less favored. Consolidated Edison backed down appreciably and other notables of the sector had their troubles.

19 Favorable Dividend Changes Voted in Week

Favorable dividend changes during the week totaled 19, against 22 the preceding week, according to Standard Statistics company. Four were increases, two resumptions, eight extras, and four initial payments. Only one unfavorable change was compared with two in the previous week.

VIEWS RUSSIANS SEEKING RETURN TO SOUND MONEY

British Banker Analyzes Soviet Experiments.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 11.—An authoritative survey of the development of soviet Russia since the revolution is published in the current issue of the Lloyds bank monthly review.

Remarking that "financial circles in London and Paris seem to have been considering the possibility of granting the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics the privilege of being admitted to the list of authorized long term borrowers," the author, R. J. Truptil, British banker, expounds the facts of the Russian reversion to sound money principles and to an accountancy which, if it does not measure success in terms of profits to shareholders, yet does put on record whether industries are being run at a loss and so render possible discrimination between what does and what does not pay.

New Order Begins with 1921.

The history of modern Russia begins in 1921, states Truptil, when, with the country broken by revolution and war, Lenin decreed a new economic policy in order to achieve a return to "monetary discipline" and some measure of recovery.

In the early part of the revolution the Russians tried to get rid of money altogether, deliberately rendered the old ruble valueless and relied on political discipline instead of the desire of gain as an inducement to production, while distribution was arranged for the benefit of politically favored classes graded according to their importance to the régime.

But the attempt to get rid of money "failed spectacularly," according to Truptil. In the period of the "new economic policy" a beginning was made for a return to monetary discipline.

New Paper Currency Tried.

A new state bank was formed in 1922 and entrusted with the issue of a new paper currency, the chervonetz, against a gold backing. The chervonetz was to be worth 10 gold rubles but was not successfully maintained at this value, as the treasury meanwhile continued to issue competitive 20 paper rubles.

In subsequent years and especially from 1929 to 1932 the soviet productive system specialized in the output of capital goods and the purchasing power of Russian currency or currencies sharply diminished. In the second five year plan more attention was devoted to light industries and about 1933 the productive system was turning out a greatly increased volume of consumption goods. There was less need of preserving them for the enjoyment of special classes.

Seek to Unify Prices.

In the following year the soviet government made great progress toward unifying prices. Bread cards and cereal food cards were abolished and in 1935 shops for specially privileged people were abolished. The last ration cards were withdrawn in October, 1935, and, says Truptil, "since Feb. 1, 1936, price unification has become complete."

At the same time that the currency was thus again made a medium of exchange regardless of the owner's class or standing, the value of the currency was deliberately raised. The external depreciation of the chervonetz was for the first time recognized and the ruble was declared equal to three French francs—about 20 cents instead of 50. In terms of this money, it has been possible to "place industries on a profit making basis and deprive them of the possibility of falsifying their accounts," states Truptil.

Fix Credit Requirements.

When an industrial concern requires extra credit it can be seen "whether the additional credit is required because the cost has been in excess of the estimate or because the goods produced are of bad quality and have been either lost or sold at a loss."

After thus demonstrating that Russia is now conforming to these traditional economic standards and not neglecting to point to its $180,000,000 annual gold output, Truptil emphasized that the Russian system is still socialistic.

Ludlum Steel Declares Dividend of 25 Cents

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Directors of Ludlum Steel company today declared a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, payable May 16 to stock of record May 5. The distribution was declared out of first quarter earnings.

EGG MARKET IS STRONG; BUTTER FUTURES ADVANCE

Strength in the spot egg market, with prices ¼ to ½ cent per dozen higher, led to more aggressive buying of futures on the Mercantile exchange yesterday, and the latter closed ¼ cent higher, with October at 21⅞ cents, while the May delivery finished at 20 cents per dozen, a new high for the season. During the last week fresh eggs advanced ½ cent. Sales of futures aggregated 80 cars.

While trade in butter futures was light, prices were up ⅛ to ⅜ cents, with November closing at 26⅝ cents per pound. An advance of ½ to ¾ cents in the spot market had some effect on futures. Sales of the latter were 3 cars. Prices:

STRENGTH IN GRAIN, HEAVY RAINS BOOST COTTON HERE

Chicago was the only world's leading cotton market open yesterday, New Orleans, New York, and Liverpool being closed for the Easter holiday. Strength in grains and further heavy rains in parts of the southeastern cotton states led to scattered buying of futures, with the close on the active deliveries at the best prices of the day, with net gains of 2 to 3 points. [A point is equal to 1-100 cent.] Prices in cents per pound follow:

QUARTER'S AUTO PRODUCTION IS CLOSE TO RECORD

General Business Gains; Financing Heavy.

8,913 freight cars was ordered against 850 in the 1935 period, and locomotives were purchased against 9 a year ago.

Farm implement production continued to expand. Shipyards were building more vessels March 1, than months before. Private construction increased and home appliance sales were larger.

Securities.

Trading volume on the New York Stock exchange fell to the lowest level of the year. Railroad and utility shares moved higher, but industrials declined.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem rose to highest levels since 1931. General Motors and Chrysler touched new tops since 1929. Despite profit taking these issues held part of their gains.

Utilities were active and strong, rails picked up late in the week, coppers advanced, and silvers enjoyed a speculative whirl. Aviation issues suffered a setback when a giant plane of the Transcontinental Western Air fleet crashed with a loss of 11 lives. [See Flying: Review section.] Douglas and TWA each dropped several points.

Financing.

The week recorded one of the largest totals of bond financing on record—$427,666,000. The largest single flotation consisted of 180 millions of federal land bank 3 per cent bonds. National Dairy Products corporation marketed $62,545,500 of 3¾s, Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., sold 70 millions of debentures and California Oregon Power company sold $13,500,000 of 4s, lifting the public utility financing to $83,500,000.

Eggs.

Pre-Easter business of Bunny Rabbit, Inc., was well above a year ago. A new all-time high record for sales of Easter eggs was established during March in five leading cities of the country. Consumption in Chicago, New York, Baltimore, Boston, and Philadelphia last month amounted to 27,840,000 dozen, a gain of 56 per cent over 1935.

Railroads.

Railroad news bulked large in the week's grist. The Atchison announced it had placed an order for a streamlined, light weight passenger train which will travel the 2,225 miles between Chicago and Los Angeles in 39 hours 45 minutes, an average speed of 56 miles per hour. The North Western will add two fast trains between Chicago and Milwaukee April 26 which will run the 85 miles in 9[illegible] minutes.

In Chicago, Patrick H. Joyce, president of the Chicago Great Western, announced his road will launch a coordinated rail-truck service between Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Omaha and Kansas City with Keeshin Transcontinental Freight Lines, Inc. A joint rate will cover the service. In Washington, the Burlington, North Western, and Union Pacific roads asked authority to purchase the truck line properties of the Union Transfer company, operating in Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota, for $150,000. The action was a step in the creation of a trucking service to supplement rail lines. Cost of setting up the system was placed at $600,000, although the North Western said the cost of "developing a complete and comprehensive trucking system" in the territory served by the three roads would be $6,000,000.

Eastern carriers on Monday filed a petition with the Interstate Commerce commission asking for an 18 months' delay in new low passenger fares, which were ordered to go into effect June 2. The commission had ordered a basic rate of 2 cents a mile in coaches, against 3.6 cents currently charged. Next day the roads hinted of court action if the delay was not forthcoming.

Probe.

Originally scheduled to resume April 14, public hearings in the federal investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph company were postponed to April 20. The action was taken at the request of Walter S. Gifford, A. T. and T. president. The hearings recessed recently to give FCC investigators time to examine the company's records in New York.

Wheat.

Production of winter wheat this season will fall below the 500 million bushel mark for the fifth consecutive year if estimates of the government made Friday are borne out. Basing predictions on April 1 condition, department of agriculture forecasters fixed probable output at 493 million bushels. The indicated harvest is 60 million bushels in excess of last year's return. Estimates of private forecasters a few days ago placed production at 537 million bushels.

Spending.

During March the state of Illinois enjoyed total income of $12,523,996 but spent $18,910,568, an excess of expenditures over income of 50 per cent.

Chicago Purchasing Agents' Association Names Officers

The Purchasing Agents' association of Chicago elected the following officers at its annual meeting recently: President, John H. Mohr of John H. Mohr & Sons; first vice president, R. W. Morrill of the Bowman Dairy company; second vice president, G. R. Zeiss of the Wahl company; F. J. Heaslip of Fairbanks, Morse & Co. was reëlected secretary. LARD RISES 5 TO 10 CENTS AS TRADE REMAINS LIGHT

Strength in grains was reflected in an advance of 5 to 10 cents in lard futures yesterday. Aggregate trade, however, was light and the upturn was regarded as due more to lack of offerings than to aggressive buying. The forecast for small receipts of hogs for all this week attracted considerable attention from the trade. Owing to the small production of lard it is expected local stocks of lard will show a moderate reduction during the first two weeks of the current month. Clear bellies closed nominally unchanged.

Cash lard closed at $11.12; loose and leaf at $10.50, and clear bellies at $15.10 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

MEXICAN LABOR STRIFE BIG BLOW TO INDUSTRIES

Yankee Companies Hurt; Investments Halted.

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—Labor difficulties and the trend toward radicalism in Mexico, which for some time have caused much concern to executives of American companies operating in the southern republic, show no signs of improvement, according to those familiar with developments there. With the deportation last week of President Calles, who had been outspoken against the trend toward radicalism, the fear is expressed here that the more radical element in the Mexican government will become more insistent in its demands.

This trend, coupled with the large increase in the number of strikes, it is asserted, not only has stopped the further investment of foreign capital in Mexico but has virtually paralyzed industry there.

In 1935 a total of 458 strikes was reported in Mexico, and so far this year it is said that they have been running at a much higher rate. Because of strikes, the Standard Oil company of New Jersey had to close its crude oil producing properties in Mexico.

L. L. Anderson, vice president and general manager in Mexico of the Huasteca Petroleum company, the operating subsidiary there of Standard of New Jersey, who arrived here a few days ago to confer with executives, said today that "a broad general forward movement of labor is under way in Mexico today and is being encouraged by President Cardenas."

"The government's objective is an improvement in the standard of living," Anderson said. "The oil industry is in complete sympathy with the movement and in an endeavor to coöperate consistently has maintained its scale of wages well above that of other industries in Mexico."

Increase Oil Wages.

"As an example we increased wages by 30 per cent early last year. Later we voluntarily advanced our minimum wage by 25 per cent. On top of this the government decreed a decrease in gasoline prices of 17 per cent. Unfortunately, our well-intentioned efforts have resulted in additional strikes, with demands equivalent to an increase of 252 per cent in wages.

"The result of the many shutdowns in the last eighteen months has, of course, been a serious loss in revenue to both the government and to the companies. The government has lost the tax revenue on the oil that would have been produced and, besides their losses, the oil companies have been unable to make the capital investments budgeted."

FEE PROPERTY BRINGS HIGHEST PRICE SINCE 1928

Utilities Building corporation yesterday paid the highest price since 1928 for loop fee property when it purchased the fee title of the Utilities building, 327 S. La Salle street, and the fee under part of the Atlantic hotel, 316 S. Clark street. The buyer was the owner of the leasehold on the Utilities building.

The indicated price for the entire purchase was $500,000, of which $175,000 was for the Mendel fee, the northeast corner of Van Buren and La Salle streets, and $325,000 for the Keep fee, which extends a hundred feet on La Salle street and is about 214 feet deep.

The Keep fee rental had been $14,000 a year, or $14.78 a square foot. This put the purchase price on a 4.3 per cent basis [ratio of rent to value], marking the purchase price as the highest for a loop fee since 1928.

The sale was financed by a $450,000 4½ per cent ten year first mortgage placed by Fort Dearborn Mortgage corporation. Leo Hogan, of Hogan & Farwell, was the broker.

CROWN CORK CO. OBTAINS GLASS MAKING PATENTS

New York, April 11.—(AP)—Charles E. McManus, president of Crown Cork and Seal company, Inc., in the annual report issued today, said the company has obtained options on glass making patents. This step was taken, it was explained, to round the company's developments in the container business. The process will be developed in the initial unit of its glass division which it is expected will be in operation this year.

The report disclosed that Crown Cork will pay $650,000 for all the outstanding stock of the Acme Can company of Philadelphia. Of this amount $65,000 was paid as of March 25. The balance is payable over a period ending Oct. 1, 1936.

On Feb. 27 Crown Cork advanced $200,000 to Acme for the purchase of a parcel of land in Philadelphia. Acme will improve the land with buildings to be equipped for can manufacture.

BALTIMORE BANK SUES CHASE OVER U. S. BOND SALE

Action Seeks Recovery of 1¼ Millions.

New York, April 11.—[Special.]—Charging there had been an "illegal" delivery of $1,250,000 par value United States treasury bonds and notes to two high officials of the war department about the time of the Maryland banking holiday of 1933, the Baltimore Trust corporation sued in federal court today to recover the value of the securities from the Chase National bank of New York City, through which they were sold.

The trust corporation declared that "certain officers" of the Baltimore Trust company, its predecessors before it was reorganized in 1934, without authority and unlawfully, turned over the bonds to the then secretary of war and to the chief of insular affairs of the war department.

Security for Deposits.

"Said assets," the complaint set forth, "were so delivered for the express purpose of securing the safekeeping and prompt payment of certain deposits made with the said trust company, which said deposits were not deposits of the United States government, or of any county, city, town, or other political subdivision of the state of Maryland."

The war department officials were alleged to have in turn delivered the bonds to the Chase bank, which sold them for $1,262,552. The war officials and the bank, the complaint said, knew of the bank holiday, that the trust company was then under the control of the Maryland banking commissioner, and that all of its assets constituted a trust fund for the benefit of all its creditors and stockholders. The action placed the government in the position of preferred creditor.

Counsel Explains Action.

Baltimore, Md., April 11.—[Special.]—Referring to a suit filed in a New York federal court today by the Baltimore Trust corporation to recover $1.250,000 from the Chase National bank, G. Ridgely Sappington, council for the Baltimore Trust, explained here today that this was an effort to recover treasury bonds which the old Baltimore Trust company had been required to put up to secure a deposit of the treasurer of the Philippine Islands. When the trust company went into the hands of receivers the treasury bonds were sold and the treasurer of the Philippines lost nothing.

I. C. C. TO PROBE FREIGHT CHARGES AND PRACTICES

Washington, D. C., April 11.—[Special.]—A full investigation of the charges and practices of railroads in their carloading and freight forwarding business was ordered today by the interstate commerce commission to determine whether present methods were "'inconsistent with honest, economical, and efficient management."

The investigation was undertaken on the commission's own notion and all railroads subject to its jurisdiction were made respondents. It will be directed, the I. C. C. said, to "the transportation of freight in consolidated caroads, and the relationships between said common carriers and persons or corporations engaged in the carloading and freight forwarding business."

BUSINESS DONE BY CHECK LOWER FOR LAST WEEK

Business transacted by checks fell sharply in the week ended April 8 from the preceding week, but maintained a substantial gain over last year, banking statistics disclosed yesterday.

Debits to individual account in the 12 federal reserve districts totaled $8,404,032,000, compared with $10,558,251,000 in the week ended April 1, and $6,957,642,000 in the corresponding period of 1935.

In the Chicago district volume of withdrawals was $1,134,576,000, compared with $1,572,314,000 a week previous, and $845,498,000 in 1935. Chicago debits totaled $702,642,000, against $486,864,000.

Bank clearings in Chicago for the week ended yesterday amounted to $279,100,000, compared with $309,400,000 in the week ended April 4, and $235,500,000 in the 1935 period.

DOLLAR MAKES FURTHER GAIN ON FRENCH FRANC

New York, April 11.—[Special]—The dollar continued to rise against French francs in the foreign exchange market today although dealings were restricted by the influence of the general holidays abroad. The franc fell to 6.58 11-16 cents and closed at 6.58¾ cents, off ⅛ point net and still below the gold export point. At this price it showed a net loss for the week of ⅜ point. The dollar rose to 100.70 cents against francs from 100.68 cents yesterday.

Sterling dipped ¼ cent to $4.94¼ and was off 1½ cents in the week.

PLAN TO REDUCE ESTATE TAX TOLL IS ADVOCATED

Spreads Total Gifts Over Period of Years.

Sharp reduction of the toll of new high estate and gift taxes through spreading gifts over a period of years to reduce estates gradually is suggested to clients by banks, insurance companies, and trusts. In some cases, it is pointed out, the shrinkage of an estate due to taxes can be cut in two.

The effectiveness of the plan lies in the individual's deciding on the disposition of an estate while still in the prime of life. By parceling out his holdings in small amounts over a number of years, he can turn over the bulk of his estate to his heirs by gifts which fall in the lower tax brackets.

Gifts Made Through Trusts.

The gifts, as a rule, are made through irrevocable trusts to prevent improvident heirs from dissipating money and securities obtained.

Estates are exempt from taxation up to $40,000, while exemption of another $40,000 is provided if that much of the estate consists of insurance. Similarly, the law permits a gift of as much as $40,000 without tax, with additional gifts of $5,000 annually free from levies.

This plan has a distinct advantage over disposal of the bulk of an estate in a single gift, because the tax toll increases progressively as the size of the gift increases, it is pointed out.

Use of Insurance Urged.

Utilizing insurance in gift plans is being urged for the added tax exemption it gives and also for the cash it provides. Because of lack of cash and the necessity for settling taxes within fifteen months, heirs often are forced to dump the best securities on the market or sell a family business at a sacrifice.

On a $500,000 estate, for example, a widow would receive approximately $335,000 after taxes and probate costs. If there were two children, each of them would receive $145,000 after their mother's death. The shrinkage in this case is $210,000 or more than 40 per cent. Under one plan of making small gifts to the wife and children over a period of years, the taxes could be cut to $54,100, eliminating the major part of the shrinkage of the estate.

New York, April 11.—(AP)—The bond market idled away the brief two hour session today without getting very far in either direction from closing levels of the previous business day.

Fractional changes, with a slight majority on the upside, were the rule in all classes of domestic corporation bonds. United States governments moved within a range of 1-32nd to 3-32nds, and other than minor losses in some of the Italian and German obligations, there was little change in the foreign group.

Volume Below Week Ago.

Transfers of $6,310,000, par value, compared with $7,059,000 last Saturday. Of this amount governments accounted for about $230,000.

Warren Bros. convertible 6s were bid up 3¼ points and the receipts were 2½ higher. Inland Steel 3¾s went into a new high for the year at 104½, up ½ point, and St. Louis-San Francisco railway 4s improved a point. Other issues selling higher included Allis Chalmers 4s, Anaconda 4½s, Lehigh Valley 4½s, and International Telephone 4½s.

Pure Oil Bonds Weak.

Pure Oil 4½s with warrants dropped 1½ points, International Hydro Electric 6s lost 2¼ and fractional declines were shown by Baltimore & Ohio 4½s and Bush Terminal 5s.

Treasury 3s of 1951 were the most active government issue and gained 2-32nds. Several other long term bonds were a trifle higher, while most of the nearby maturities were either unchanged or a shade lower.

In the foreign department, German 5½s and Italian 7s were fractionally lower. Little change was recorded by others.

The Bonus.

Next July veterans of the world war will receive "baby bonds" ranging in amounts up to $1,500. These bonds will be cashable any time at face values. If the bonds should be held to maturity they will bear 3 per cent interest for the period. If cashed when received there will be no interest. If held for an intervening period the interest rate will vary in accordance with the length of time held.

If current needs for funds are not pressing him the veteran should regard his bonus bond as savings and not as income to be spent. Under the theory on which the bonus law was passed the bonds actually represent forced savings.

It is contrary to good investment practice to use savings for current needs.

The veteran's problem will be the question of what to do with the bonds when he receives them. If he follows sound investment practice he will keep the funds invested.

It is difficult to prescribe a good investment for all persons of a broad class. Nevertheless, there is little question that the best investment for most bonus bondholders will be the very bonds which they are to receive.

The soundness of the bonds, so far as assurance of payment of principal and interest is concerned, is unquestioned. The yield, in comparison with high grade municipal obligations and listed government bonds, is high. There is a third factor, however, that places the bonds virtually in a class by themselves. They are payable on demand, very much like a savings account.

This makes them a better investment than listed government bonds. The hesitancy of many large investors to purchase long term government bonds is not the doubt as to payment of interest or principal at maturity; it is the uncertainty as to future possible fluctuations in market prices.

The holder of a soldiers' bonus bond, however, need never worry about the market price of government bonds. Even with a repetition of the experience of 1928, when 3 per cent government bonds hit a low of 86, there would be no cause for concern. The holder of the bonus bond will always be able to obtain a hundred cents on the dollar from the government at any time. The "baby bonds" to be given to veterans are not negotiable and, therefore, have no market. They can, however, be turned in for cash at par at any time by the holders.

CHICAGO STOCKS FIRM DESPITE SLOW TRADING

Good Friday Holiday Cuts Turnover.

The Chicago stock market closed its dullest week in four a one-half months yesterday with prices slightly firmer after irregularly lower quotations most of the week.

Trading volume was cut down by the Good Friday holiday, but totaled only 273,000 shares, compared with 374,000 the preceding week and 163,000 a year ago.

Twenty-Two Set Years High.

The week's summary showed 180 issues traded, with 53 up, 79 down, and 48 unchanged. This compared with the better tone the preceding week, when 87 issues advanced, 54 declined, and 32 were unchanged. Twenty-two issues touched new 1936 highs, however, only four less than the preceding week.

Prices a little more than held their own yesterday, when 32 issues advanced, 28 declined, and 31 were unchanged.

Five stocks rose to new highs, with the seldom traded Northern Paper Mills gaining 2 points. The other highs, by Godchaux Sugar B, Northwest Engineering, Oshkosh Overall, and Penn Gas and Electric, were scored on fractional gains. Penn, with 900 share turnover, was most active of this group.

Cord Active and Lower.

Cord was the most active issue on the board, with 1,700 share trade. It eased ⅜. Cities Service and Middle West were next in volume, both crawling up ⅛.

Libby slumped ⅞ in 1,000 share volume as selling struck after publication of the annual report a few days ago. Other active shares, none of which changed more than a minor fraction, were Lindsay Lighting, Bendix, and Chicago corporation.

FIRST NATIONAL SHARES ADVANCE IN ACTIVE TRADE

First National stock led trading in the Chicago bank stock market last week, closing 6 points higher at 300 bid, 305 asked, after sales at 318, a new high since 1931.

Last week's high sales were in anticipation of the announcement of retirement of the preferred stock and issuance of rights to subscribe to additional common stock, and the stock eased after the announcement was issued. Rights to the additional stock, when issued, closed at 17½ bid, 18 asked. They will not be issued until stockholders grant their approval at a special meeting on May 26.

Trading in Continental Illinois stock was light at a loss of 1 point for the week. It closed at 164 bid, 166 asked. Northern Trust company dropped 15 points to 810 bid, 825 asked. Harris Trust held firm at 360 bid, 375 asked.

KASPAR BANK TO PAY ANOTHER 5% OF DEPOSITS

Five per cent of the $1,800,000 waived by depositors to enable the Kaspar American State bank to reopen Jan. 15, 1935, will be freed Tuesday. The total sum returned to depositors since the bank closed June 23, 1933, will then be $2,085,000. Repayment during receivership amounted to $920,000, with an additional $1,075,000 released at the time of reopening.

The directors said liquidation of the assets set aside against the frozen deposits is proceeding steadily. The bank also announced an increase of more than $400,000 in deposits during the last year.

LAMBS HIGHEST IN YEARS, DUE TO DROUTH AND AAA

Output Curtailed by U. S. Killing Program.

Lambs continued to advance in the Chicago market yesterday, climaxing a week of active demand which carried prices 75 cents a hundred pounds higher. Buying was abnormally heavy because of the seasonal Easter demand for lamb. Supplies were sharply below normal. Chicago receipts last week totaled 47,500 head, the smallest for the season in many years.

Freshly shorn stock weighing 94 to 103 pounds each, sold at $9 a hundredweight, while one load of 100 pound wool stock brought $11.15, a new high mark for that weight. Eighty-eight pound stock touched the highest level in seven years when $11.15 a hundredweight also was paid. The average price for the week was $10.60, a gain of $2.25, or 26 per cent, above the same period last year.

New Crop Lambs Soar.

An acute shortage prevailed in new crop native milk fed lambs, used principally for Easter religious festivities. One group of this weight averaging 40 pounds each, sold at $20 a hundredweight, the highest level since 1931. Most offerings in this class brought $13 to $15.

The shortage in lambs has been caused primarily by drouth and government slaughtering schemes to raise prices. Production of both wool and lambs has been below domestic needs. In 1934 and 1935 the United States imported 299,781,000 pounds of wool, equivalent to 42 per cent of the wool clip in this country, compared with 156,245,000 pounds in the two preceding years, when imports equaled 22 per cent of the American clip. Current wool prices are 7 to 18 cents a pound above quotations prevailing at this time last year.

Cattle and Hogs Advance.

Other live stock also advanced during the week, cattle climbing 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight and hogs advancing 16 cents.

Butcher stock recorded sharper upturns than steers, with many hefers advancing 50 cents for the week. Top hefer prices reached $9.25, the best price paid for yearlings was $10.25, and the highest for steers was $11.00.

The average price for hogs was $10.60. Arrivals at Chicago totaled 53,500 head for the week, the smallest with one exception since the middle of October and a new all-time low mark for this season. With the exception of one week during the storm markets in February, farmers' net returns from hogs last week were highest since last September.

DEVOUT CELEBRATE EASTER TODAY

Republicans Battle to Regain Second.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Perhaps the hardest of all the Republican battles over congress in Tuesday's primaries is being waged in the Second district, traditional G. O. P. territory—the old James R. Mann bailiwick—which elected a Democrat to congress for the first time two years ago. P. H. Moynihan, former congressman, Robert L. Hunter and Frank J. Mackey are leading contenders in a triangular struggle that has become intense in the final week.

Hunter and Mackey are "new bloods" in politics. They have been putting on campaigns of a type that has made old school politicians sit up and rub their eyes. Hunter, a man of powerful physique—he was Big Ten wrestling champion—has been speaking at as many as fourteen or sixteen meetings in a single day and night. On many of his tours he is accompanied by Mark Love, radio and opera star, who has been singing and speaking for Hunter.

Mackey has been making addresses before clubs and in churches and has been developing a card index of pledge cards. One wrinkle he has introduced is devised to fit the new political technique of some of the political clubs. Some of these voters' organizations allow three to six minutes to each candidate, then "whang" goes the gong a la Major Bowes.

Beats Them to Bell.

Mackey beats them to it by saying they all know him, he's raised his family among them, and will make no speech but will answer any questions they want to shoot. He started it a week ago before a university group and for twenty-five minutes they forgot the gong.

Hunter, a lawyer, is active in civic affairs. He heads the sports council of the Y. M. C. A., is chairman of the Good Will center at 3334 South Paulina street, and is national president of the Junior Republic.

Mackey, an author and publisher of classroom books, is director of the Disabled American Veterans' rehabilitation department. One of Mackey's innovations is looked at somewhat askance by old school politicians, to whom it has been giving the shivers. Mackey at the outset said he will finance his campaign himself. He says he has returned $4,363 of checks sent by business men and friends desirous of aiding his campaign fund. A few days ago he exhibited a check for $1,083 sent him for his campaign by the Los Angeles Disabled American Veterans, and had his picture taken sending the check back with thanks. When some of the practical politicians heard of campaign contributions being returned they were fit to be tied.

Veterans Aid Campaign.

This week Sergt. Richard W. O'Neil and Joseph McQueen, past commander of the D. V. A., campaigning with Mackey, have spoken before 22 veterans' meetings.

Hunter, who is indorsed by the Crusaders, the Republican Citizens group and part of the Deneen forces, has groups of young men supporting him. In a recent meeting, Roy O. West, former secretary of the interior, said:

"This district needs a congressman with guts instead of a rubber stamp."

Hunter during the last week has been indorsed by the Roseland Taxpayers' association, the Lithuanian Republican Business Men's association, the Kenwood Ladies' club, the Hyde Park Ministers' association, and the Axel G. Seeder group in the Ninth ward.

Mr. Moynihan, veteran South Chicago politician, known in the district for more than a quarter century, has the backing of the George Harding organization which is powerful.

All three in the triangle declare they have the long leg of it. Moynihan's supporters say a divided opposition should be to his advantage. Mackey argues the situation aids him as he has no entangling factional alliances.

Three Other Candidates.

Three other Republican candidates are Emily Reichert, 6842 Dante avenue; Dr. LeRoy Bernard, secretary of the Chicago Baptist clinic and physician to the Johnston Myers breadline, and Benjamin F. Morrison, lawyer and former civil engineer who helped prepare specifications for Wacker drive.

Before the Hyde Park League of Women Voters Mr. Morrison argued his training as an engineer would stand in good stead in congress when projects such as Grand Coulee dam and the Passamaquoddy bay tide harnessing dream come up again. "Many of these projects are useless," he said, "and the plans for others will have to be changed."

THIRD DISTRICT

Both political parties have fights over congressional nominations in the Third, an old G. O. P. district which has had a Democrat in congress since 1930.

On the Republican side Frank M. Fulton, indorsed by most of the ward committeemen, appears to be leading six other candidates. Ross Lee Laird,

For They're the Grandest Couple in the Easter Parade

A fair elfin beauty and her dark, handsome gallant—quite the grandest couple in the Easter parade, but distrustful of spring's capricious weather, Jimmie and Jinnie chose the conservatory in Washington park for their promenade. Christened Virginia Nell, Jinnie is the 3 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. McManus, 5451 Hyde Park boulevard. Jimmie, who is 5½, signs his name James Mitchell Moran. Easter and Passover Bring Jew and Christian Together

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Today holds deep meaning for Jews as well as Christians. While the Jew, of course, does not observe Easter, yet only calendar differences prevent annual coincidence of the Christian festival of Easter and the Jewish festival of the Passover. Christ observed the Passover meal with his disciples the night before his death and that meal, as reinstituted, became the enduring Easter feast of all Christendom.

While the Christian ages have observed this coördination of feasts of the two religions, yet coöperation between the two faiths in any form whatsoever has only recently been attempted. During the last two years the Chicago Round Table of the National Conference of Jews and Christians has grown to influential proportions under the general Chicago chairmanship of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, and vice chairmanships of Judge John P. McGoorty, Fred W. Sargent, and Albert D. Lasker.

Now Widely Known.

The Chicago Round Table is affiliated with the national council, which during the last eight years has become so widely known among Christian and Jewish leaders that it is now generally referred to as NCJC. Local and national groups conduct educational seminars dealing with problems of racial antipathies with a view of establishing at least tolerance if not actual coöperation between racial and religious groups. The next Chicago meeting will be at Mandel Brothers, Monday, April 20, ance."

Answer to Klan.

"When the Ku Klux Klan was at its height in 1922 and 1923, a small company of thoughtful Protestants asked the question, 'How do people get that way?'" said Dr. Yard. "Their inquiry resulted in action by the Federal Council of Churches in the formation of a committee on good will between Jews and Christians.

"In 1928 the time arrived when a permanent, independent conference seemed advisable, bringing Protestants, Catholics, and Jews into consultation as American citizens. It was then that NCJC came into being with the function of 'justice, amity, understanding and coöperation among Protestants, Catholics, and Jews.'"

PARK DISTRICT TO GIVE REVIEW OF FOLK DANCES

As a part of its plan to unite the several folk dance rings in the city into one organization, the Chicago park district will present a folk dance review Tuesday evening at Mark White square, 30th and Halsted streets.

More than 100 dancers from Humboldt, Douglas, and Hamilton parks, the Henry Booth Settlement house, and the House of Happiness will join with those from Mark White square to give a program of 28 national dances.

West Pullman Methodist Men Will Have Dinner

The Brotherhood of the West Pullman Methodist church will give a potluck dinner at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening in the church parlors, 120th street and Normal avenue. The women of the church will serve. The following committee has been appointed to plan the brotherhood's third annual frolic which will be held in May: H. E. Bragg, O. A. Richmond, and Dr. H. A. Welcher.

Chicago Heights Kiwanians Will Give 'Headlines Revue'

The theme and title borrowed from the fourth estate, "Headlines Revue," the fifth annual minstrel show of the Chicago Heights Kiwanis club, will be presented on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings in the Washington school auditorium. A special performance for children will be given Tuesday evening.

The opening scene finds Keith Kappmeyer, editor, engaged in making up his paper. His first consideration is the children's page which comes to life before his eyes in the persons of Barbara Burtt and George Michael.

Following comes the magazine page with Arnold Bauer featured as soloist. Others who fill it with lively interest are Miss Elizabeth Leising, Miss Kay Cummings, Miss Billie Lennertz, Miss Hazel Carlseen, Miss Teresa Lennertz, and Miss Kay Woodward.

Acrobats Take Part.

After a humor filled theater page, the sports section is made up. Most of the news centers about the antics of a troupe of acrobats. They are Miss Ruth Terranova, Miss Barbara Westphal, Miss LaVerne Schrohe, Miss Irene Toepfer, Miss Betty Barzlaff, Miss Jean Groom, Miss Dona Beggs, Miss Lillian Holtz, Miss Edna Holtz, Miss Dorothy Taylor, Miss Thelma Miller, and Miss Irene Domurat.

Futuristic Dance Number.

A glimpse into the future is found in a special feature, "Futuristocratic," which turns out to be a dance fantasy. Performers will be Miss Marjorie Lorenz, Miss Eleanor Smith, Miss Anita Rippe, Miss Marjorie Heilman, Miss Edith Flexman, Miss Frances Guy, Miss Grace Baker, Miss Dolores Swingler, Miss Clara Smith, Miss Lavina Hoecker, Miss Anna Niemszak, and Miss Olga Corradi.

Another group which will appear includes Miss Marjorie Reardon, Miss

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

IT will be an especially jubilant Easter at the Union Avenue Methodist church, for it will mark the Rev. J. Franklin Clancy's return to the pulpit after an absence of six months, his first public appearance since he was injured in an auto accident last November. His congregation has planned a special service for the occasion, a notable feature being the erection of a huge white cross from hundreds of blocks prepared by the members. Dr. Blair S. Latshaw, district superintendent, will speak, and the Rev. Mr. Clancy will officiate at the ceremony to receive new members.

Our Town is most appreciative of a note received last week from Mrs. E. R. Meyers, principal of the Barnard Experimental school. She wrote that John A. Campbell, curator of the Vanderpoel galleries, visited her school recently to witness the final performance of "The Knave of Hearts," a play for which Maxfield Parrish painted a set of illustrations, one of which now hangs in the galleries. It seems that Mr. Campbell saw the picture announcing the play in THE TRIBUNE, and so took the original painting over to Bernard for the children to see.

FROM all reports the Englewood Kiwanis first ping pong tournament was a hilarious success. Bill Lain emerged victor and was awarded a "handsome gold tin cup." The second prize, a silver cup of the same vintage, went to Harry Himmel, and Ben Bassford carried home a "cute baby blue ping pong paddle" in recognition of his superb form.

The M. A. A.'s annual sport dance will have a rainbow theme, according to the announcement made by Miss Mary Kozak, 8036 Avalon avenue, who is chairman of the Mercy Athletic association's major social event of the year.

Plans are under way for a big celebration to mark the 55th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Traffley tomorrow at their home, 919 Eaton street, Hammond.

TO add another wreath to their already well crowned heads, Miss Margaret Badger, daughter of William M. Badger, 5529 Blackstone avenue, and Edward Powers, son of E. J. Powers, 8012 Langley avenue, were recently elected [illegible] Beta Kappa at Lawrence college in Appleton. Powers is president of the college student body and a member of the varsity basketball squad. At the senior class dinner, Miss Badger was voted one of the four best liked girls in the class and is president of the Women's association.

A special bulletin from Mercy hospital announces the arrival of William Carrol III., who came to make his home with Mr. and Mrs. William P. Carroll Jr., at 8253 Ellis avenue. His mother will be remembered as Miss Loretta Poynton, a Brainerd belle.

The St. Rose sodality of St. Rose of Lima parish will give a dance Wednesday evening at the Sherry hotel, 53d street and the lake.

HOOSIER SALON PATRONS TO OPEN WOMEN'S EXHIBIT

The Hoosier Salon Patron's association will open an exhibit of works by women artists with a tea on Thursday afternoon in the Hoosier galleries, 221 West Wacker drive, at which the exhibiting artists will be guests of honor.

Ireene Wicker, the Singing Lady of the W-G-N radio station, will be the guest speaker. She will tell of the methods she employs in creating art appreciation among children.

Following are the south side artists whose painting will be on display: Mrs. Glada T. Lockhart, Miss G. May Watkins, Mrs. Ethel Thornberg Wimmer, and Miss Bertha Seefert.

BISHOP TO PREACH AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB SERVICE TODAY

The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, will preach the Easter sermon tonight before the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. At the 7 o'clock service Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of Chicago Theological seminary, will speak on "The Inevitables of Easter," while the bishop's address is "An Easter Message."

BISHOP STEWART.

The musical program will contrast the medieval and modern expressions of paschal joy. For the former, Edgar Nelson has selected "Alleluia, Today Christ is Risen," by Gallus Handl, a Bohemian composer of the Sixteenth century. The anthem was discovered by Clarence Dickinson who was the first director of the Sunday Evening club choir. The modern example is written by Van Denman Thompson of Greencastle, Ind., and dedicated to the choir of De Pauw university in that city.

RIVALS FOR WARD POSTS WIND UP VOTE CAMPAIGN

Massmeetings to Climax Battle Tomorrow.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

Campaigns in the south side wards for the party office of committeeman, the term of which has been lengthened to four years, are drawing to a close with the fury of the battles unabated. Candidates have tomorrow in which to fire final salvos, and then their pleas will rest with the voters for decisions on Tuesday.

In many of the south side wards the fights have been bitter and spectacular, particularly among the Republicans. The Democrats have added some dramatics in the races between sitting committeemen and Horner-supported candidates, but ward observers declare there is little likelihood that any incumbent will be turned down at the polls.

Battle in 5th Ward.

Outstanding on the Republican side is the scrap in the 5th ward between Committeeman John Leonard East and Jacob D. Allen. East is a lieutenant of George F. Harding, one of the original sponsors of Wayland Brooks for governor, while Allen is the right hand man of Charles S. Deneen, former United States senator.

The prominence of their connections with the two Republican leaders has brought this campaign more than local interest.

East is running on his record of six years as committeeman. He points to his fights against coalition of the judicial slate and dishonest elections, for the elimination of Republican leaders dominated by the Democrats, and for recognition of the younger element in Republican politics.

Now G. O. P. Harmony.

The committeeman declares that there is more harmony among Republicans in the ward than ever before. Only the National Republican organization—the Deneen group—is not in the harmony combine, he says.

Prominent Republicans in the ward are divided. Among East's indorsers are Charles S. Eaton, former alderman, and Attorney William B. Gemmill, both of whom were candidates against East in 1932.

Allen has stressed the importance of the ward committeeman through his various powers in determining the policies of his party, the purity of the administration of justice, and the honesty of elections.

Puts Down Klan Rumor.

At one meeting Allen was faced with a sign alleging that in the past he had some connection with the Klu Klux Klan. He promptly squelched the rumor, and since in local advertisments has stated his opposition to intolerance and has condemned the spreading of stories calculated to fan racial or religious passion.

East is with Brooks. Allen's organization hasn't indorsed any candidate for governor, but has indorsed Deneen candidates for congress, the state legislature, county and city offices.

The South Shore district—Seventh ward—has been treated to vigorous campaigns in both parties. On the Republican side Committeeman Charles L. Gerds, who is with Brooks, has in opposition several elements of the party in the ward with the Deneenites in the front. The candidate of the opposition group is Franklin E. Ramsey.

Loughran Not in Running.

The Democratic campaign in this ward was the warmest until the election board knocked out the committeeman petition of State Senator Francis J. Loughran. The only remaining opponent of Committeeman James W. Ryan is the Horner candidate, Dr. Adams S. Mioduski, a chiropodist.

A bitterness of years' standing among factions behind the stockyards has kept the fight for Democratic committeeman in the Fourteenth ward in the limelight. Committeeman James J. McDermott leads the regular Democratic forces, while Thomas J. O'Grady, former alderman and state representative, is the Horner manager. O'Grady's candidate for committeeman is Stephen S. Samuel, liquor dealer.

A close finish in the Ninth ward for Republican committeeman is predicted by the local politicians. The contest is for a vacancy. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell, acting committeeman, is in the Brooks' camp, is supporting Charles W. Secord. Axel G. Seeder has considerable support, and the race is between Secord and Seeder. A third candidate is William A. Kipper.

Massmeetings Today.

The Second and Third wards, as usual, are bustling with activity up to the last minute. Massmeetings are being held today, and in the churches of the Third ward statements are to be read, according to Ald. Robert R. Jackson, that favor his candidacy for committeeman against the incumbent, Oscar De Priest.

The main issue as Jackson sees the campaign is that if De Priest is sent to congress again he won't be in the ward to serve his constituents. De Priest answers that he'll have a capable representative at home while he is in Washington, but Jackson replies that a substitute couldn't carry out the work as well as the elected committeeman.

Brooks is getting support from both candidates. De Priest was with Brooks from the first, and a majority of the Jackson organization is backing Brooks' candidacy.

King Joins Brooks.

The fervor of battle in the Third ward is matched by the contest in the Second ward. Here, the incumbent, William E. King, state senator, has led his organization into the Brooks' camp after finding the sentiment in the ward favoring Brooks. His opponent is Ald. William L. Dawson, whom King defeated two years ago.

Patrick Sheridan Smith, former city clerk, who is the Cook county campaign manager for Brooks, has his organization working night and day in the Sixth ward to reelect him as committeeman. Smith's chief opposition is coming from George P. Nelson, an electrical engineer, who is a newcomer as a candidate.

Nelson favors the candidacy of H. Wallace Caldwell for governor, and has the support of Ald. John F. Healy. A third candidate is Austin L. Munsell.

Fasan Has Workers.

In the Twelfth ward Charles M. Fasan, Brooks' worker, has speeded up his organization for a finish that his men declare will spell defeat for Committeeman Felix F. Kucharski, who is in the following of Len Small for governor. Fasan came uncomfortably close to Kucharski two years [illegible] on top.

It is a three cornered fight. The other major contestant is Harry I. Parsons, a Deneen man, who ran second two years ago, Fasan being a close third. The other candidates are John T. Parsons and Mrs. Barbara Becker. According to ward reports, Harry Parsons has dropped out of the Caldwell camp and the brunt of carrying on the Caldwell campaign has been shouldered by Mrs. Becker.

Uses Telephone Book.

Two good fights are being put on by the acting committeemen in the Fifteenth and Eighteenth wards, both of whom are with Brooks. Richard DeKoker, who is acting in the Fifteenth, has put out copies of telephone book addresses of his two opponents, Ernest Geissler and State Representative Michael A. Ruddy, that he claims shows that both live outside the ward. George M. Fisher, who is acting in the Eighteenth, also has two opponents, James L. Brogan and Charles M. Palmquist.

Outside the city limits battles are being waged in both parties for township committeeman, a new party office created by the Illinois general assembly last year. Formerly committeemen were elected in each precinct in the suburban area.

OFFICE SEEKERS MAKE 11TH HOUR ASSEMBLY PLEAS

BY PERCY WOOD.

Last minute pleas for nomination are being made by south side candidates for the legislature. As a whole, Republican contests were the more interesting, aspirants apparently feeling next fall will provide the best chance for G. O. P. success since 1928.

The battles start in the First district, which includes the loop and a large part of the colored section on the near south side. There is no house contest on the Democratic side, but six Republicans are fighting for two nominations. Former Representative Maurice J. Clarke is attempting a comeback which, if successful, may lead him to buck Senator Dan Serritella in 1938.

Clarke, a real estate man, is backing Brooks for governor and is preferred by the Legislative Voters' league, as is Representative Harris B. Gaines. Ernest A. Greene is backed by Senator William E. King of the Third district, while Serritella is behind Representative Arthur T. Broche. Former Representative Charles A. Griffin is also in the race.

In the Second district, where Senator Joseph Mendel, Democrat, is running for renomination, the L. V. L. is behind Nicholas A. Pope against Mendel. Four candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination are led in political prominence by William Parillo, committeeman of the Twenty-fifth ward, who has the L. V. L. preference.

The Third district is largely colored and presents a knockdown, drag out house fight between candidates backed, respectively, by Senator King and Ald. William L. Dawson of the Second ward. Two will be nominated and King is supporting Representative Charles J. Jenkins and Attorney Richard A. Harewood. Jenkins is indorsed by the L. V. L. and Harewood appears to that body to be "well qualified."

Dawson is behind Adolphus N. Gordon and Irene B. Moore. Mrs. Sadie W. Douglas, widow of Warren B. Douglas, who died after being elected to the house in 1934, is a fifth candidate with some support.

Miss Perry Indorsed.

In the Fifth district the L. V. L. recommendations went to Miss Josephine Perry, Republican, who served two terms in the house before being defeated in 1934, and to David X. Meyers, Democrat, who is supporting Gov. Horner.

None of the sitting members in the district was approved by the L. V. L. The Republican, William J. Warfield, who is colonel of the 8th regiment, Illinois National Guard, has top place on the ballot, but his strength with the colored people is being cut into by two others of his race who are making strong campaigns.

Caswell W. Crews, one of them, is supported by George F. Hardin and is managing the campaign of Oscar De Priest, former congressman, running for the Republican nomination again.

Graham In Race.

The second strong colored candidate against Warfield is Elwood Graham, a Republican precinct captain in the Sixth ward.

Representatives Louis G. Berman and Bernard J. Kewin are the sitting Democrats. Both are supporting Dr. Herman N. Bundesen against Gov. Horner.

Republican leaders in the Seventh district declare sentiment indicates Representatives Bernice T. Van der Vries of Winnetka, and Frank E. Foster of Harvey, will be renominated. There is a third candidate, Arthur Olsen of Chicago.

On the Democratic side seven candidates are fighting for two nominations. The L. V. L. is backing David M. Molthrop of River Forest.

Backed by Organization.

Former Democratic Representative Emmett McGrath of Brookfield, and the present Democratic member, Frank G. Ring of Harvey, are receiving most of the organization support, but this is tempered by the backing of Richard L. Creedon of Broadview, by Joseph Lelivelt, Sherif Toman's chief deputy.

Although Representatives George A. Fitzgerald and Michael A. Hannigan, Democrats, have organization backing and are supporting Dr. Bundesen, John C. Doyle, a law student, running as the Horner candidate is expected to poll a respectable sized vote.

Another stirring fight is being waged in the Eleventh district where Roland H. Bradley and John H. Clancy, Republicans, are backing Wayland Brooks while the third prominent candidate, D. Elwood Davis, who has the support of the retiring Republican representative, David I. Swanson, is not taking a hand in the governorship race. Davis and Bradley have the indorsement of the L. V. L.

Among the other Republicans in the field of 17 is Charles F. Wills, manager of the Federation News, which is published by the Chicago Federation of Labor. He is indorsed by the Chicago and Illinois labor federations and by several individual unions.

Weeks First on Ballot.

Another candidate is William Krueger, real estate man and president of the Lawn Building and Loan association. Former Representative Calvin T. Weeks has first place on the ballot.

In the Thirteenth district, the Republican field is almost as crowded as in the Eleventh. There are thirteen candidates and the only one on whom bets to win are being placed is Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, longtime Republican leader.

Other Strong Candidates.

Schnackenberg and George R. Hillstrom, who is backed by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell of the Ninth ward, have been approved by the L. V. L., but there are several other strong candidates. Among them is Timothy H. Klapperich who is indorsed by the Eighth ward Republican Young Men's organization.

Attorney Henry J. Schintz, formerly with the Illinois Central railroad, is also making an active campaign, talking, among other subjects, for permanent registration. Harry E. Fisher, secretary of the East 75th Street Business Men's association, is another candidate to pledge a vote for permanent registration.

On the Democratic side, two organization stalwarts, Representatives William W. Powers, committeeman of the Tenth ward, and John G. Ryan, are conceded the best chance over their three opponents, although Daniel R. Murphy is making a strong race as a Horner supporter.

HALF CENTURY TOGETHER

In the midst of the celebration last Tuesday evening in the Thornton village hall that marked their golden wedding anniversary Dr. and Mrs. Nelson E. Oliver were found "sitting out" in a quiet corner. Dr. Oliver has practiced in the community for more than fifty years and Mrs. Oliver is a native daughter, her father's farm now being part of the Glenwood Manual Training school grounds. MIDLOTHIAN TO HAVE WATER FROM CHICAGO WITHIN FOUR MONTHS

Within four months Midlothian residents will be drinking water pumped from Lake Michigan through the Chicago water system, according to Paul T. Klenk, village attorney. Contracts necessary to procure a $12,000 PWA grant for the project are being executed by Blue Island and Chicago officials.

The project calls for $40,000 worth of water pipes and equipment to convert Midlothian's three systems, now supplied by wells, into one system which will connect with the Blue Island water main at 139th street and Sacramento avenue. At that point a master meter will be placed to measure water consumed by Midlothian.

Midlothian will pay Blue Island the Blue Island water rate which is approximately 50 per cent above the price charged for water by Chicago. Klenk states the minimum monthly bill per family in Midlothian will be $1.50.

PWA officials say Chicago and Blue Island must contract for the water to be consumed by Midlothian before the project can be approved. Midlothian will receive its water during the night, storing it in tanks now used by the present systems. Thus it will not be necessary to build a pumping station there as the water will be received at Chicago pressure, stored in elevated tanks and distributed by gravity.

Blue Island officials also are contemplating the erection of a 1,000,000 gallon storage tank estimated to cost $80,000, for which they plan to request a PWA loan and grant.

THORNTON FETES DOCTOR AND WIFE ON GOLDEN DAY

Village Has a Holiday for N. E. Olivers.

The village of Thornton donned its holiday attire on Tuesday evening and strolled down to the town hall to help Dr. and Mrs. Nelson E. Oliver celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. An old friend, Charles Flack, was master of ceremonies and Dr. W. C. Goddard of the First Methodist church in Harvey conducted the ceremony at 9 o'clock when Dr. and Mrs. Oliver renewed the vows made 50 years ago.

It was in her father's farmhouse, which stood on the land that is now the grounds of the Glenwood Manual Training school, that Miss Margaret Ellis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Ellis, became the bride of the young doctor on April 7, 1886. The doctor had come to Thornton four years before just after his graduation from the Rush Medical college.

Recall Doctor's Day.

Immediately after their marriage, Dr. and Mrs. Oliver established their home in the rooms adjoining the doctor's office in the business district of Thornton. Four years later they built the residence on Hunter avenue that since has been their home.

In the early days Dr. Oliver drove a horse and buggy when making his visits. Old residents will recall the little white spitz, Bruno, who accompanied him for many years and waited as he made his calls. The horse and buggy long ago were replaced by an auto and Dr. Oliver is his own chauffeur.

Has Fishing Trophies.

As a younger man, Dr. Oliver was an ardent sportsman. Fishing still is his favorite sport. His den is filled with trophies of the woods and stream and he delights to tell of the abundance of game found in the community in those days. Thorn creek then was the habitat of large black bass, catfish, silver bass, and some northern pike. He also remembers bagging 35 prairie chickens in one day. Snipe, plover and ducks too were plentiful.

Later he turned to collecting old firearms as a pastime. Among the museum pieces in his possession is a long gun of European manufacture, possibly two centuries old. It is decorated with solid gold inlay and the stock is ornamented with minute filigree work.

The hobby exhibits, which will be entered in almost two hundred classifications, will be judged in the afternoon. In the evening the achievement contests will be held.

Republicans Battle to Regain Second District.

a former assistant state's attorney, is making a campaign from his bedside. Last month Laird was injured in an automobile accident in which his wife lost her life, and his supporters have been redoubling their efforts.

Laird's 6 year old son Roger has appointed himself to the campaign staf and is busy in Englewood asking every one he meets on the street and in the stores to vote for his father for congress. Laird has been indorsed by the Cook County Wage Earners' league, ex-service men's Republican organizations in the district, and other civic and religious organizations.

Fred L. Steers, old University of Notre Dame athlete and community and civic worker, is charging that the direct primary law has become an auction block and that support of some ward committeemen goes to the candidate with campaign funds to distribute.

Indorsed by Crusaders.

Steers is making an active campaign and is indorsed by the Crusaders. He is general chairman of the Ridge Civic council, composed of twenty-nine organizations in the Beverly Hills and Morgan Park area. He is a lawyer. He is a member of the executive committee of the American Olympic association and was manager of the women's events for America in the Olympic games at Amsterdam in 1928 and Los Angeles in 1932, and is slated for the same post in Berlin in 1936.

Mr. Fulton, age 55, has lived in the district since 1884 and is a son of the late Henry D. Fulton, who was a member of the house at Springfield in the days of the old Band of Hope. He is one of the largest distributors of gasoline in Illinois, having paid the state $240,000 in gasoline taxes last year. His place of business is on the site of the coal business established by his father half a century ago. He was nominee for congress two years ago and was defeated by Congressman Edward A. Kelly in the Democratic landslide that carried nine of the ten districts in Cook county.

Backed by Manufacturers.

Hayes Robertson, a descendant of President Hayes, a lawyer and a graduate of George Washington university, was originally sponsored by the Chicago Heights Manufacturers association, with 40 industries employing more than 5,000 men. He is vice president and attorney of a manufacturing company in Chicago Heights.

Edward C. Longfellow, a descendant of the poet, is a world war veteran and has been in turn a newsboy, jocky, cowboy, farmer, railroad man, law clerk, accountant, and official of an iron corporation. He is now a dean of instructors of the American school of organizing. In 1932, running in the primaries against the late Lieutenant Governor Fred E. Sterling, he rolled up 68,000 votes at a total compaign expense of $7.17.

James O. Koontz of Calumet City and Karl H. S. Haugen are other candidates.

On the Democratic end, Congressman Edward A. Kelly, who has the support of the Nash machine, is being attacked as a "rubber stamp" for the New Deal by Thomas M. Poynton Jr., a lawyer, 26 years old, who has indorsed Father Coughlin's program.

George C. Hilton, a former Springfield house member, sponsor of the Illinois mother's pension act, is attacking the machine forces which beat the honest elections bill. A fourth candidate is D. Wilber Anderson.

FIRST DISTRICT

FOURTH DISTRICT

Mrs. Irene A. Tomas is expected to win the Republican nomination for congress in this normally Democratic district. She has the support of the committeemen in the leading wards. She has two opponents, August Saldukas and Alexis L. Galezewski.

Congressman Harry P. Beam has five opponents. They are Phillip Pawlowski, Matt Rooney, Joseph Szykowny, James F. Hillock, and Leonard L. Serdiuk. Beam has the organization support.

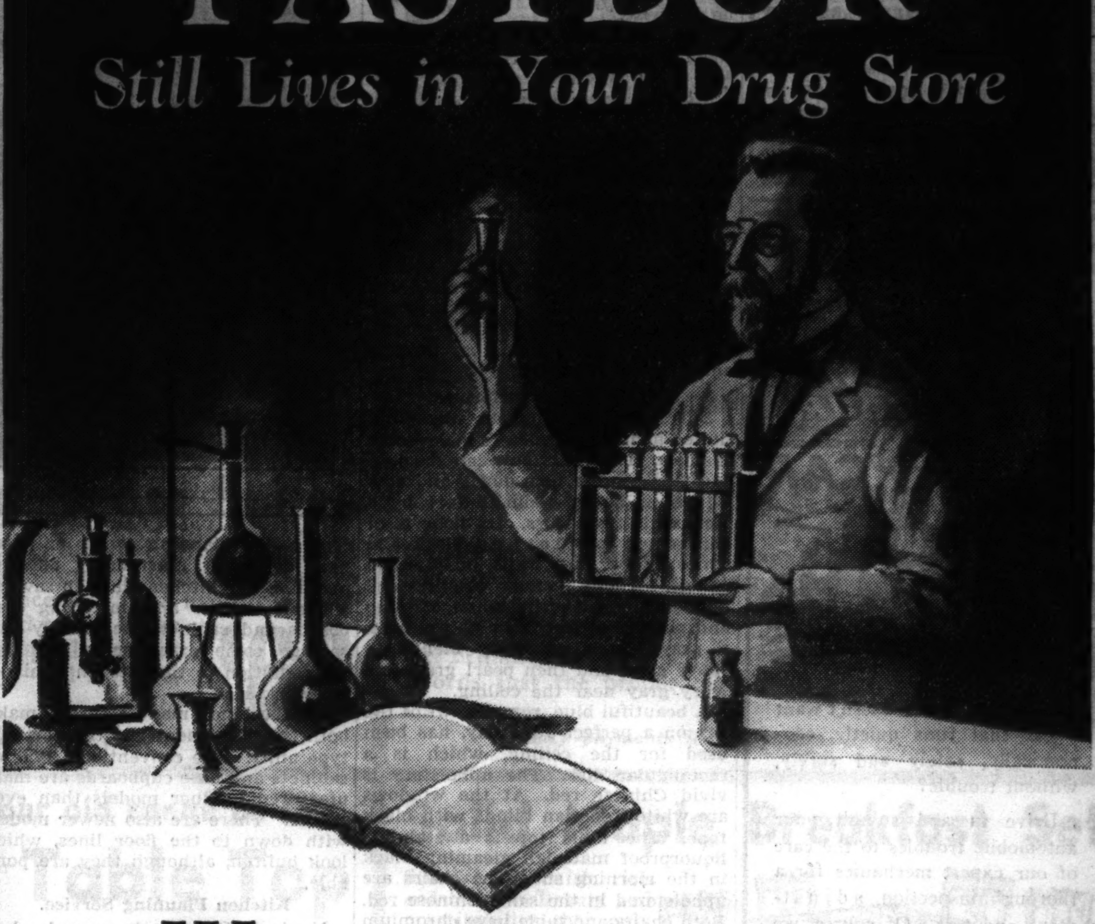
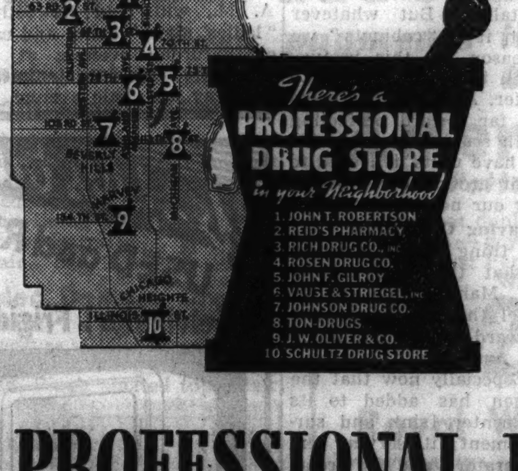
PASTEUR
Still Lives in Your Drug Store



WITH his microscope he explored the world of infinitely small organisms—this brilliant French chemist and biologist, LOUIS PASTEUR. Today his fame outranks Napoleon's, because of his great contributions to humanity.

Starting first with his research on the diseases of wine, his study of germs extended to the cause and treatment of the silkworm disease that threatened ruin to the French silk industry—chicken cholera—and the deadly anthrax plague that killed off whole herds of French livestock.

Most famous of his brilliant achievements was his discovery of a treatment for hydrophobia, a disease hitherto always fatal. Pasteur founded in 1888 the Pasteur Institute to continue the great research begun by him in the modern germ theory of disease and the study of contagious diseases.



PROFESSIONAL DRUG STORES, by supplying vaccines . . . serums . . . precious biological products needed by the medical profession in preventing and treating countless diseases, carry on in the tradition of the great Pasteur. They, too, contribute their services in the great cause of human health and happiness.

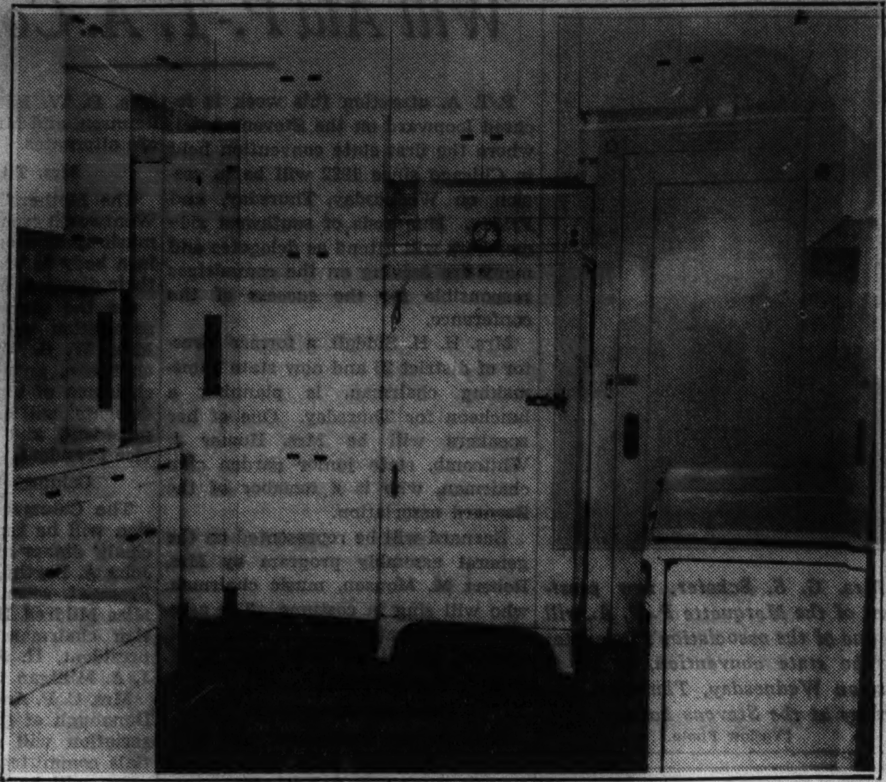
A STUDY IN CONTRASTING COLORS



The modernized kitchen in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Irving J. Solomon, 6828 East End avenue. A smartly tailored, all white kitchen, with Chinese red Venetian blinds, black trim, and a handsomely patterned black and white rubber floor.

KITCHEN TODAY IS LABORATORY FOR STEP SAVING

Science Lightens Work for Housewife.

(If you are interested in bathroom modernization, write for new booklet by Louise Bargelt: "New Beauty for the Old Bath." It is 2 cents at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 3 cents by mail.)

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

I only wish we could reproduce in color the modernized rooms pictured today! For there are few souls with a similar setup in their own apartments who wouldn't yearn to "go and do likewise."

Take the double service breakfast room. By day it's a refreshing spot for early morning snatches, noon luncheons, even dinner repasts. By night it transforms itself into an enticing corner for cards and coffee, lemonade, or cocktails.

Only a few months ago it presented quite a different face to the world. Instead of being a colorful bit of beauty and immeasurable usefulness it was only a long, narrow passageway, and an old fashioned pantry . . . the kind of pantry and passageway which were once considered standard equipment in our best and nicest apartments.

Old Pantry Transformed.

But ideas were put to work and skilled hands proceeded to make some changes. The walls between the hall and pantry were torn down, and now we see a happy room, 6 feet by 9 feet, with two doors. Its floor is of handsomely patterned black and white rubber, its walls of plywood panels. These panels are divided horizontally with chromium striping and painted a deep gray at the base, a gray which gradually blends to silver gray, and then pearl gray, and ivory gray near the ceiling.

A beautiful blue, reminiscent of the sky on a perfect June day, has been used for the ceiling, which is a rectangular disk. The upholstery is vivid Chinese red. At the windows are white Venetian blinds with black tape. The table top is a stainless liquorproof material, gleaming black in the morning sun. The chairs are upholstered in the same Chinese red. Both chairs and table have chromium trim. The lighting is indirect.

One wall contains an artfully concealed cupboard. When closed it is invisible behind its sliding paneled doors. When open it reveals all manner of fascinating little shelves and drawers for glassware, silverware, shakers, and even bits of china.

Black, White, and Red.

The kitchen modernization is no less happy and successful. It is a very smartly tailored kitchen, all white save for its rubber flooring of black and white, its black trim, and its Venetian blinds of Chinese red with black tapes. All of the equipment is new; refrigerator, range, built-in sink, lighting, and ventilation.

Its cabinets reach from floor to ceiling, fitting perfectly and logically into their assigned places. All of the wall space is now cabinets and cupboards.

In the last few years we have gone in for kitchen cabinets and cupboards in a big way. Sometimes we want them portable, sometimes permanently installed. But whatever type we select, it is "cabinets" we want. The reason for this is twofold. They spell immense comfort to the homeworker. And manufacturers have gone so far toward perfecting them that with scarcely any trouble at all we can have units delivered to our door to fit around our existing equipment—or our new equipment.

Space Saving Cupboards.

One nice thing about existing kitchens is that they are usually large enough! Many people are beginning to feel that we have gone far enough toward making our kitchens "compact and small." Maybe a bit too far! Especially now that the modern kitchen has added to its cleaning up center [sink and surrounding equipment], its serving center [the refrigerator], and the preparation center [the stove], a fourth center—the planning center or planning desk. By rearranging and replanning our kitchens in step saving, efficient fashion and installing cupboards and cabinets we usually can salvage some extra space for this new addition to the kitchen family—the work desk.

Most cabinet manufacturers make both the permanent and the portable type units. The conventional type of cabinets and base cupboards are manufactured in finer models than ever before. There are also newer models with down to the floor lines, which look built-in, although they are portable.

Kitchen Planning Service.

No inch of space is wasted when cabinets are installed with continuous working spaces reaching completely around a room. Even the space under the sink, which once was about as much used as a cooling system would be used in Alaska, is now filled with different varieties of cupboards and drawers, garbage receptacles, and house pails.

A book could be written on the modern cabinets and cupboards which are being offered today. And another volume or two on the newest in sinks, refrigerators, and ranges. But the manufacturers of all of these hosts of units which keep our kitchens running smoothly and make our tasks so much easier and pleasanter are doing more than merely offering us this equipment; they are also offering service in kitchen planning.

FENGER HIGH'S ALL-STAR SHOW OPENS THURSDAY

3 Performances to Be Given by Cast of 75.

It was the school engineer's idea, but there is scarcely one of the 4,000 pupils who has not had some part in carrying it out. As a result, Fenger's all star amateur show will "go on the air" Thursday afternoon and evening and Friday evening from the school auditorium, 11220 Wallace street.

More than 500 pupils responded to the call for talent and 75 of them were found to be too good to eliminate. So they may all appear, there will be a different show at each performance.

Harry Beals—he is the engineer—took charge of the stage crew and installed a microphone, which will be presided over by Gene Weil. Among the star performers will be Miss Jean De Cook, Miss Lorraine Spuck, and Miss Pauline Rudnick, dancers; Victor Vallenari, accordionist; Richard Ferrari, banjoist, and Miss Ruth Barron, violinist.

Also Pass Auditions.

Other musicians who passed the auditions, presided over by Neil Trimble, are Albin Romba, Harry Lind, Arthur Hitterman, Harry Ose, Miss Betty Ver Hook, Miss Viola Du Putt, Miss Helen Horn, Miss Ruth Pierson, Miss Genevieve Woicik, Miss Shirley Shallcross, Peter Broehl, Theodore Koziokis, John Baer, Jim Parker, Miss Mary Larkers, Ray Jankowski, Eddie Koppers, Delbert McNally, and Martin Schmidt.

Among the vocalists selected from the group who auditioned before Miss Mary Lusson are Fred Kommers, Miss Olga Washko, Miss Shirley Mullins, Miss Marion Rodgers, Renzo Mora, Ingrid Fjildheim, and Stanley Paul.

Other dancers who will participate are Miss Jane Sullivan, Miss Valerie Lewis, Miss Phyllis Troughton, and Miss Lily Mae Shovline, who will give a tap quartet; Jack Robinson, Miss Doris Mae Sands, Miss Betty Jane Walker, Miss Rita Zeh, Miss Jeanne Woodward, and Miss Marion Waldman. Mrs. Jessie Anderson had charge of the dance preliminaries.

Masked Magician.

Star of stars in the novelty division is Alfred Rogers, the masked magician and the only performer who will appear at all three shows. His act and others of that classification were selected by William Reich.

Proceeds will be used to purchase uniforms for the high school band, which is directed by William Burnham, acting as general chairman of the show. A unit of the band will accompany each performance.

Pupils whose talents do not tend to the stage helped in other ways. Notable among these were the art classes, which conducted a poster contest to provide an advertising medium. Honors in the competition were won by Edward Pokorski, a freshman at the Mount Vernon branch. Second place went to Miss Ruth Ralnik and third to David Whale.

The Tri-Hi-Y girls will add the money they make from their candy sales during the show to the band uniform fund. They are directed by Miss Mildred Carleton.

More than ten city R. O. T. C. units, members of the organization, are expected to participate, according to Maj. Paul O. Franson, who is handling entries.

South side and suburban entries in the contest include boys' and girls' teams of the Englewood Y. M. C. A.; two teams from Morgan Park Military academy, and Gary High school, Gary. Howe Military school at Howe, Ind., also is entered.

Other squads which will participate will come from Joliet Township High school, Joliet; Marmion Military academy, Aurora; Evanston Township High school, Evanston, and Waukegan Township High school, Waukegan. Entries from more distant points are Northwestern Military and Naval academy, Lake Geneva, Wis., and St. Thomas Military academy, St. Paul, Minn.

MEMORIAL CHAPEL
MUSIC HATH CHARMS
THE finest organ of any chapel in Chicago.
The finest quartet and soloists without additional cost.
No funeral director furnishes funerals at less cost than Skeeles-Biddle, as the jury of public opinion well knows.
Constantly we have remarks made to us such as:
"Why, you are less expensive than so and so who advertises low prices!"
"Of course we are!"
"How else would we keep faith with our friends."
We originated the one price funeral at as low as $110, including everything complete. And we are told that our complete funerals at as low as $110 are really complete, whereas others skimp.
For sixty years Skeeles-Biddle have led in prestige. This means prestige of the best of everything at the lowest prices.
Satisfactory financial terms may be arranged without any trouble or embarrassment.

AIR REPORTER'S SUNDAY IS DAY OF MUCH LISTENING

Lasts the Clock 'Round, Touches 4 Continents.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A Sunday with a radio reporter: Up at 10:15 a. m. and listening to Carveth Wells' travel talks while dressing. Peter, the family's feathered friend, is restless, awaiting the Singing Canaries to follow Mr. Wells. Soon as Edna Sellers begins playing the theme he bursts into riotous song, beating his professional competitors by 20 seconds.

After breakfast an hour or so of shortwave tuning. Stumble into Maj. Bowes Capitol family by accident on an American short wave station and find it much better entertainment than his famous amateur hour. DJD, Berlin, and GSD, London, coming in moderately well side by side. A few South Americans but it's a dull hour and so back to the broadcast band to sample the American Pageant of Youth, a sort of combination of Harold Teen and Maj. Bowes amateurs—very effervescent and yeasty. But, then it's sponsored by a yeast concern!

A graphic reënactment of the work of hams during the recent flood. Well done, but not so well as the March of Time did it a fortnight earlier.

Incidentally, Phil Wrigley is to be commended for the restraint of the commercial continuity on the March of Time. A great relief from the long winded harangues of the previous sponsor.

Concerning the Politicians.

And speaking of haranguing the politicians are doing plenty of that on local stations, with the exception of W-G-N and WBBM. Wish that candidates who require their man Friday to read their radio speeches on the air would also require him to learn the pronunciation of "sycophant," "hypocrite," and such other favorites.

Magnificent singing on the Radio City Music hall. Then, Opal Craven who is pleasing. So on to Alice Blue's rippling piano melodies and Ralph Ginsburg's always refreshing periods.

A footnote to Musical Footnotes: Vivian della Chiesa is singing better than ever. But the program was taken off the air last Sunday.

Followed then Eddie House, a singing organist. WBBM goes in for this combination. Milton Charles is another. And so to Frank Wilson, "the Voice of Romance," a top tenor who has something. [Windy and extravagant advertising claims on this show.]

Magic Key Opens Big Door.

The "Magic Key" tries hard each week to impress listeners and last Sunday it succeeded with its 12 minute "armchair world tour." In rapid succession one heard native voices from Buenos Aires, Stockholm, Berlin, Basle, Paris, Madrid, Kankok, Manila, and Tokio speaking many tongues and then English as it is done in those lands. For clear, lucid English the palm should have gone to the young Japanese radio operator from Tokio. From oriental capitals the speakers reminded us that it was Monday there instead of Sunday, and from Buenos Aires that fall instead of spring was at hand.

Toscanini, as always, directed the Philharmonic superbly. . . . A bit later enticing [though recorded] dance music by Xavier Cugat who is to open at the Stevens hotel this week.

Another Radio Infant.

Funnybone Follies always has a surprise or two. This time it was Little Audrey who has something in common wtih Ray Dooley, Snoonie, Fannie Brice, and other ladies who portray waifs with whimsy on the air. Henry Hoople always does a nice job as Elmer Svenson and Harold Stokes gives the show a lift.

So on through Wayne King, Freddy Martin, Kay Kyser, and Phil Spitalny's Hour of Charm. And rightly named the latter is, too. Phil's girls may have borrowed some of their ideas from Fred Waring but they do choral work perhaps a shade better than he does.

Tried Eddie Cantor and found him boresome, so switched to Jack Benny, who seemed better than usual. His satiric tabloid presentation of the Fred Allen show was a pip.

Passed up Maj. Bowes and listened in to the 700th anniversary of the Edison Symphony concert, under Morgan L. Eastman on the auto radio on the way to view the first Jack Hylton show on NBC. Through the years Mr. Eastman has provided good music on this series and Sunday, with Cyril Pitts as soloist, was no exception.

Hylton Show Interesting.

You get a kick out of watching a Hylton show. The second Jack turns from the band to speak into the microphone, Billy Ternent, his chief arranger assumes command—complete command. You may catch him sometimes shooting some instrumentalist a ten pound look. [Billy plays every instrument in the band.] But the moment Jack turns back Billy fades swiftly out, and you are hardly conscious that he is still about. Melle Weersma, No. 2 arranger, is always to be noted somewhere in the background, too—often in the control booth. Alec Templeton sits quietly with his father, waiting his turn. Pat O'Malley and Effie Atherton put a lot of drama into their comedy songs. Young John Weigel, CBS announcer, and Pat's stooge, looks strangely out of place in NBC studios. There's an air of electric excitement about this show. It moves so fast and is so "tight," in radio parlance, that applause is ordered shaved almost the moment it gets started. You wonder whether it will finish on the nose. It does!

Briton Homesick for Chicago.

Afterwards to a supper for the Hylton folks, sponsors and guests at the Tavern club. Jack confesses that he became homesick for Chicago after a five day sojourn last week in New York. He saw four shows and liked best "Dead End," he says. He talks about Sonja Henie, the skating marvel, whom he has known and admired since she was a youngster. Soon someone comes to remind him that he must hurry back to the studios to put on his midnight broadcast for the west coast.

And so out into the rain and homeward while listening to Ted Weems and wishing that he might play "The Martins and the Coys"—but he doesn't!

Topped off the night with a chuckle over one my partner recalled which she called from the Trafic Court broadcast:

Judge—Whose car were you driving?
Man at the bar—Andrew Jackson's.
Judge—I thought he was dead.
M. at B.—No, he's in the hospital, though.

THE NEW "SUPER-SOFT" HIGH-POLISH PEPSODENT!

Just Out —No increase in price

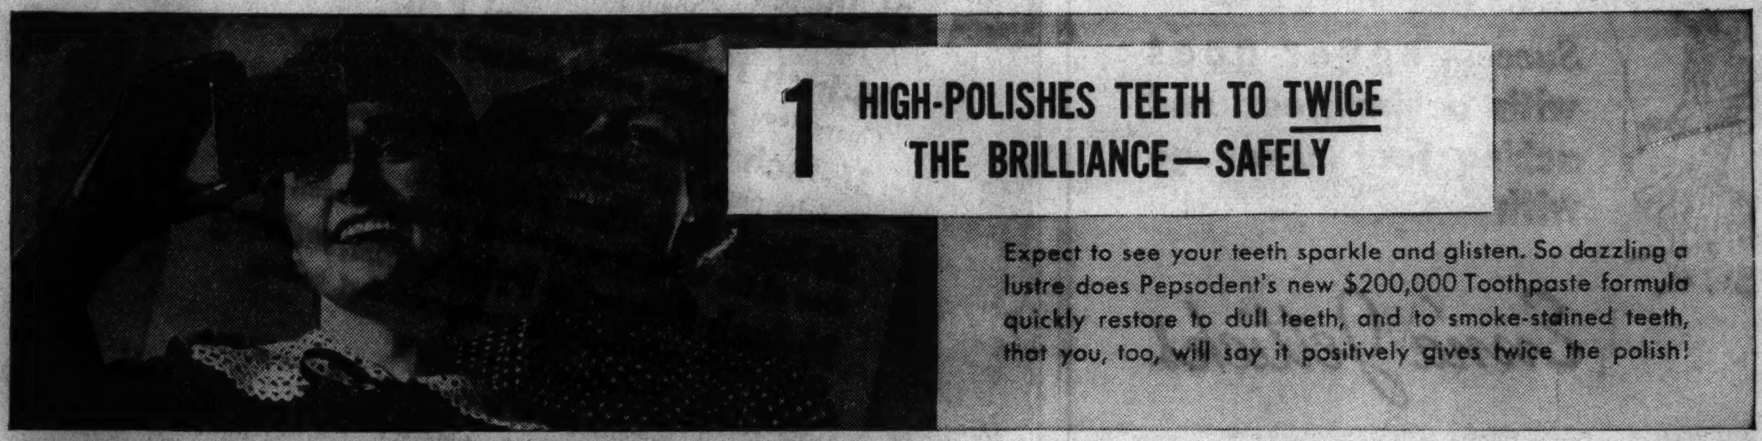
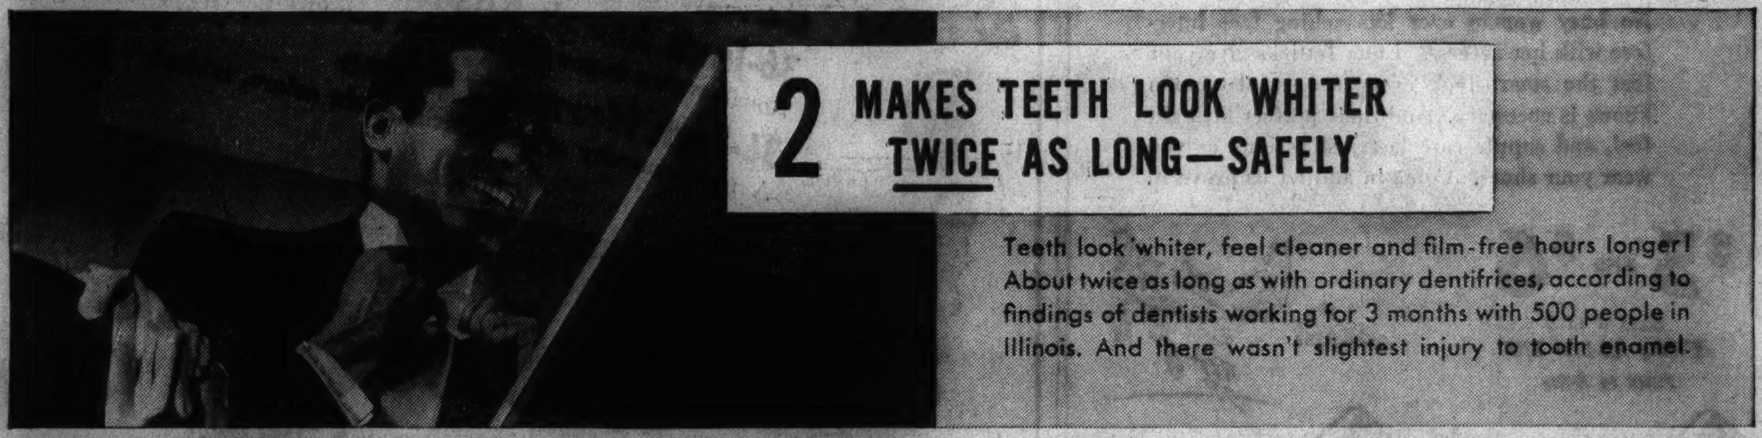
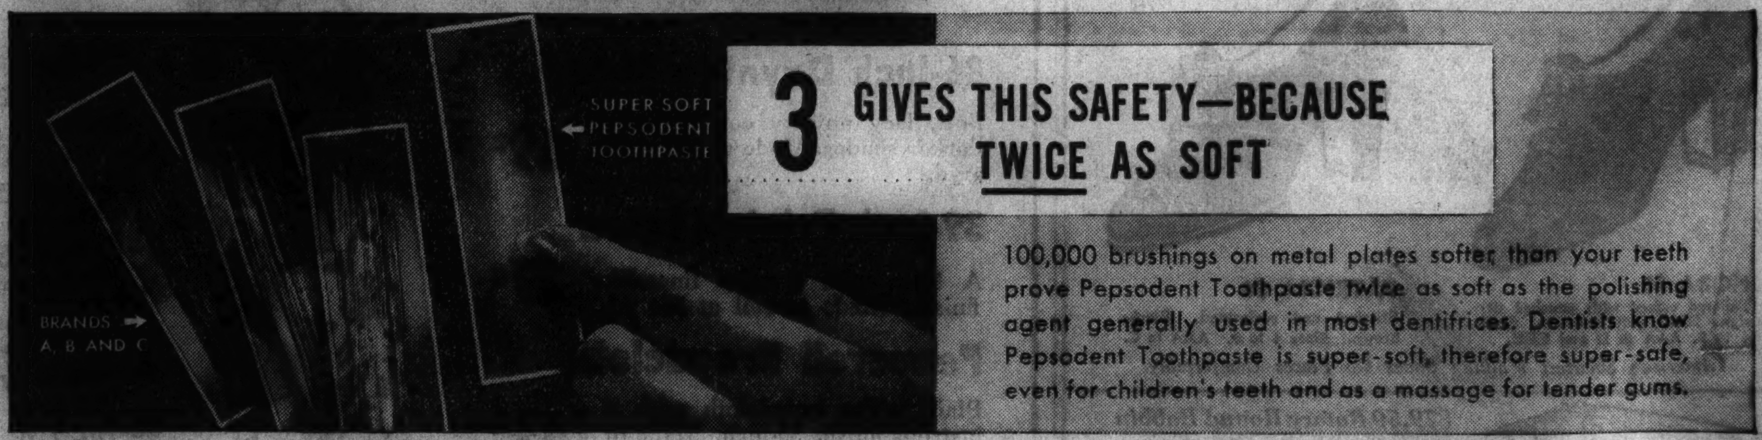
The world over there's nothing remotely like Pepsodent's new $200,000 toothpaste formula. Contains sensational new ingredient—utterly different in its cleansing power—utterly exciting because it gives your teeth the most brilliant polish ever discovered—and it is Super-Soft!







See the difference when you really High-Polish your teeth!

● The scientists shook their heads. "Not both," they said. "Not Super-Soft and High-Polish. Toothpastes don't come that way. You're asking for a miracle. We'll keep on looking, but . . ."

Keep on they did—for 14 years. Spend money they did—$200,000. And found at last the thing they said they couldn't find—the miracle! The new Pepsodent! A toothpaste both Super-Soft and High-Polish. A toothpaste that gives your teeth the greatest lustre ever known —and does it with double safety!

Pepsodent scientists found this way to make teeth sparkle and glisten with greater brilliance . . . and without slightest danger of injury to tooth enamel . . . when they discovered an amazing new ingredient. One never before used in a dentifrice. One contained only in Pepsodent.

New Ingredient the Secret

This ingredient is the secret of the astounding polishing powers, the phenomenal cleansing action of Pepsodent's new toothpaste. It polishes teeth twice as bright . . . keeps them looking whiter, film-free, twice as long. And yet tests definitely prove it's twice as soft, hence doubly safe on precious tooth enamel.

Does Everything Better

What's more, this new ingredient, in combination with Pepsodent's other ingredients, provides an improved gum massage. You'll see loose, flabby gums firm up remarkably when you use Pepsodent with regular and brisk finger massage.

We say it! You see it! New Super-Soft High-Polish Pepsodent Toothpaste gives three times the value of any ordinary dentifrice. Get a tube today—look for the words "New High-Polish" on the Pepsodent Toothpaste box.

THE SPLIT WIRE .. OR, HOW MELVIN PURVIS CAPTURED THE McMANUS TRAIN ROBBERS
MELVIN PURVIS, formerly the ace G-Man of the Department of Justice . . . who directed the capture of Dillinger, "Pretty Boy" Floyd, "Baby Face" Nelson, and scores of other public enemies. Mr. Purvis reveals here the methods used in capturing desperate criminals. For obvious reasons, the names of the characters involved have been changed. This inside story of the capture of typical law-breakers is herewith published as clinching proof that CRIME DOES NOT PAY.
WHILE WE'RE DRIVING TO THE GROCERY FOR OUR POST TOASTIES, PLEASE TELL US A STORY, MR. PURVIS!
ALL RIGHT, PAUL AND JOAN, I WILL.. OUR MEN HAD BEEN ON THE TRAIL OF THIS BAND OF TRAIN ROBBERS FOR A LONG TIME
YES, TELL US ABOUT HOW YOU CAPTURED THE McMANUS TRAIN ROBBERS
. . . . WE FINALLY GOT A TIP-OFF THAT THIS GANG HAD THEIR HEAD-QUARTERS SOMEWHERE AROUND A LITTLE WISCONSIN TOWN. I HAD JUST LOCATED THE GANG'S HIDE-OUT. I HOPED THEY HADN'T "SPOTTED" ME, BUT AS I SENT WIRES CALLING IN THE G-MEN...
SAY, WHO'S THAT LUG COMIN' OUT OF THE TELEGRAPH OFFICE.. I AIN'T SEEN HIM AROUND TOWN BEFORE!
MAC, I GOT A HUNCH THAT BIRD MAY BE ONE O' TH' FEDS LET'S TAKE 'IM FER A RIDE!
DON'T BE A SAP! HE PROBABLY AIN'T A G-MAN. LET'S FIND OUT WHAT HE SENT IN THAT WIRE.
OKAY, MAC! WE'LL STICK UP THIS TELEGRAPH OFFICE SOON AS IT'S DARK!
ENTERED THE TELEGRAPH OFFICE....
STICK 'EM UP, BUDDY!
AND HAND OVER COPIES OF ALL THE MESSAGES YOU SENT TODAY!
HEY, WHAT'S THIS? IT DON'T MAKE SENSE!
I'LL BET THAT'S WHAT WE WANT! IT'S IN CODE, BUT "JIM THE GENT" OUT AT THE HANG-OUT CAN DECODE IT — HE'S A SHARK AT THAT STUFF!
WHAT THE GANGSTERS FOUND
TEIHMNTETNGTUVS
I'VE BEEN AT IT FOUR HOURS, BOYS, AND I CAN'T GET THE HANG OF THE THING!
THAT'S THE FIRST TIME
WHY THE GANGSTERS WERE BAFFLED BY MELVIN PURVIS' WIRE: Melvin Purvis had sent two wires, by different telegraph companies—and had sent alternate letters from his message in each wire. The two telegrams looked like this:
MWT3EATNOIHPRI
Which, when decoded by the "alternate letter" method, read:
HAVELOCATEDMCMANUS
MENATTENTONIGHTPURVIS
STICK 'EM UP THERE, McMANUS! THAT HOLD-UP OF THE TELEGRAPH OFFICE
THE G-MEN!, YUH CAN'T GET
WELL, PAUL AND JOAN, WE ROUNDED UP THE WHOLE GANG.. AND NOW, LET'S ENJOY A GOOD HEARTY BOWL OF POST TOASTIES — IT'S JUST WHAT A G-MAN NEEDS, YOU KNOW!
BELIEVE ME, I'LL NEVER MISS MY POST TOASTIES FOR BREAKFAST!
I'M GLAD YOU TOLD US ABOUT POST TOASTIES, MR. PURVIS, BECAUSE THEY TASTE

Corn Flakes
MICKEY MOUSE TOYS ON BACK AND SIDES
A BREAKFAST TREAT THAT CAN'T BE BEAT
Crisp, Crunchy Post Toasties!

And when you first taste those delicious, crunchy-crisp Post Toasties—you'll agree with him! Mm, what a breakfast treat! Post Toasties, you see, are made from the tender, sweet little hearts of the corn, where most of the flavor is. And each golden flake is toasted double crisp so it will keep its crunchy goodness longer in milk or cream. No wonder folks everywhere call Post Toasties "The Better Corn Flakes!"

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Easter on the Farm

April 11, 1936.

WITH wabbly legged little lambs in the sheepfold, much activity in the poultry yard, and songbirds on the farm singing about the new life that comes at this time of the year, Easter Sunday on the Tribune experimental farm seems to be keeping in step with the spirit and significance of this day.

There is something about the arrival of the spring lambs that always marks in our mind a noteworthy transition from the lifeless, cold winter to the more animated, happier outdoor season. No longer is the sheepfold a quiet retreat for the sheep and the birds that fly in and out, because the lambs are there in numbers.

It's hard to keep track of these little fellows because they are coming so fast. The flockmaster is being kept on the jump looking after the little fellows that seem to complain every minute. One day this week we counted eleven new arrivals between morning and late afternoon.

Noisy Twin Lambs.

By far the noisiest pair of twin lambs that we heard broadcasting this week was the pair temporarily separated from their mother while a picture was being made. The little fellows were just a day old at the time . . . still uncertain about their leg work and very pathetic in their desire to be with their mother. When they were obliged to leave their parent for a few minutes they made the rafters ring with their ba-a-ing. And the old ewe wasn't exactly quiet when she saw her offspring being taken away.

Cold Halts Nesting.

The cold weather and snow last week retarded the nest building activities of the water birds on the pond. As soon as snow covered the foundation of the black swan nests the birds decided they had better call off operations until the weather got warmer.

The old turkey hen that started laying eggs in her "penthouse nest" high up on top of a strawstack has given up her exclusive rights to the place since the snow covered it. This bird had a fine idea, and it worked out perfectly for a while. But she couldn't "take it" out there in the open when the cold winds began to blow. Now this bird has moved inside the barn and is laying her eggs in the nest of another hen turkey. Right now we're wondering if the penthouse nest will be occupied again this season.

The Cleanup Brigade.

The herring gulls are acting as a cleanup brigade around the big pond. Along Chicago's lake front they perform a good service as scavengers. Here on the farm they have been busy on a similar job by feeding on the fish that were killed by suffocation under the ice.

Quite a few bullheads in the pond died during the winter due to a lack of oxygen in the water. When the ice went out the gulls saw these fish and immediately got busy. We have seen as many as 15 or 18 on the pond at one time. But their "spring cleaning" is nearly done, so they should be moving on shortly.

Ducks at Home on Pond.

The ducks that have come to the pond for their annual spring visit are finding it a pretty hospitable place. Not only is the pond a sanctuary but it also gives the birds a chance to get a few meals. The mallards, teal, and other wild ducks join the parade of swans and geese at feeding time and boldly pilfer some of the food for themselves.

Five Brilliant Creations for Your Wardrobe

By CLOTILDE.

FOR the first time in the popular history of Clotilde patterns they are presented here in color, in order to illustrate, through the expressive nuances of fashionable shades, the foremost in American style trends which these patterns interpret.

Because of their chic, practicality, and simple sewing requirements, Clotilde fashions have been a tradition with Chicago women for many years. Their popularity is revealed in the fact that women readers of The Tribune purchased 352,973 Clotilde patterns last year.

The models illustrated today take their cue from style details prominent on the fashion horizon of late spring and early summer.

Pattern No. 2874—Three piece sports ensemble, including shirt with raglan shoulder, shorts, and detachable skirt, an ideal outfit for cycling and tennis. Style No. 2874 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern No. 2708—Afternoon frock featuring plaits from neckline to hem, and a draped collar which becomes sleeves in the back. This model is graceful in soft silks and sheers. Style No. 2708 is created in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern No. 2823—Colorful cottons and tub silks may do the honors for this daytime frock worn at afternoon social events or for spectator sports. Huge buttons, contrasting with the color of the frock, lend tailored charm. Style No. 2823 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with 2 yards of ribbon for the belt.

Pattern No. 2825—Bows lend triple chic to the dress, which doubles as an ensemble with the addition of a bolero jacket, brief in length but ample in charm. Style No. 2825 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with 1⅛ yards of 36 inch contrasting fabric.

Pattern No. 3328—The perfect answer to the need for dainty attire on summer days, a simple frock in colorful cotton sheer. Tiny revers, graceful jabot, and shirring beneath the raglan shoulder line are fashionable. Style No. 3328 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 of this attractive frock requires 3⅞ yards of 35 inch material.

Cashew Nuts Lend Delicacy to New Dishes

By Mary Meade.

"THE cashew are a funny nut," began a school child's essay. More specific in description was the hurried metropolitan commuter, who was ordered to bring home a pound of cashews. In despair at forgetting the name of the nut, he blurted out: "I want some of those peanuts with the 'bends.'"

Both of the describers would have been filled with greater wonderment had they seen the cashew growing on its native heath. The nut hangs from a quincelike cashew "apple" exactly like an earring. Originally a native of South America, the nut was taken to India back in the 15th century by traveling Portuguese missionaries, and it's been a staple item on the national Indian bill of fare for almost five centuries.

Newest comer among nuts in the United States, the cashew, surprisingly enough, now is second in popularity only to peanuts. We're not nibbling them only between meals, either. Clever American cooks are whisking them right into the kitchen, and capitalizing on their rich flavor and crispness in all sorts of elegant new dishes. Just for example:

CASHEW NUT ROLL.

¾ teaspoon double acting baking powder.
¼ teaspoon salt.
6 tablespoons sifted sugar.
6 tablespoons sifted cake flour.

Combine baking powder, salt, and eggs in a bowl. Place over a smaller bowl of hot water, and beat with rotary egg beater, adding sugar gradually until mixture becomes thick and light in color. Remove from hot water and fold in flour and vanilla. Turn into a 13 by 9 inch pan which has been greased, lined with waxed paper to within one-half an inch of edge, and again greased. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 13 minutes. Quickly cut off crisp edges. Turn cake out on cloth sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Remove waxed paper, spread with cashew nut filling, and roll immediately. Wrap in cloth and cool on wire rack.

CASHEW NUT FILLING.

1 cup chopped cashews.
3 tablespoons butter.
3 tablespoons milk.
1 cup confectioners' sugar.

Cook nuts slowly in melted butter until well toasted, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and add milk. Add sugar gradually, beating until smooth, then vanilla. Cool until thick enough to spread.

Nuts Have Special Role in Refrigerator Cookies.

Next the rich nuts take a turn at refrigerator cookies.

CASHEW REFRIGERATOR COOKIES.

1 cup shortening.
2 cups sugar.
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed.
2 eggs.
4 cups sifted flour.
3 teaspoons double acting baking powder.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 cup chopped cashews.
1 tablespoon vanilla.

Cream butter and add sugars gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add the well beaten eggs, nuts, and vanilla, and beat well. Add the sifted dry ingredients, flour, baking powder, and salt, gradually, mixing well after each addition. Shape into small rolls and wrap in waxed paper. Chill until firm enough to slice. Bake on ungreased baking sheet at 425 degrees F. for five or six minutes.

Pralinelike Cakes Also Tempt the Sweet Tooth.

CASHEW CRUNCHES.

1 cup light brown sugar, firmly packed.
¼ cup water.
2 tablespoons butter.
1 cup cashews.

Combine brown sugar, water, and butter in saucepan. Place over medium heat and stir constantly until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue boiling, without stirring, until a small amount of sirup becomes brittle in cold water, or the candy thermometer registers 290 degrees F. Remove from heat. Add nuts and vanilla. Drop from tablespoon on greased surface, spreading with wet spatula to form four inch circles. Let stand until cold. This recipe makes nine or ten crunches.

Delicate Little Meringues Are Perfect at Tea Hour.

Delicate little meriques, to be served with tea or alongside simple spring desserts, offer still another suggestion.

CASHEW WHIMSIES.

1 egg white.
½ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed.
1 cup broken cashews.

Beat egg white until foamy. Add sugar gradually, beating after each addition. Then continue beating until mixture stands in peaks. Fold in nuts and vanilla. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees F. for 10 to 12 minutes, or until delicately browned. This recipe makes two dozen.

Cashew Muffins, Piping Hot, Delightful with Fruit Plate.

Tiny cashew muffins, served piping hot, complete a fruit plate luncheon in truly delightful style. They're made so.

CASHEW MUFFINS.

2 cups sifted flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
2 tablespoons sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
½ cup chopped cashews.
1 egg.
1 cup milk.
4 tablespoons melted shortening.

Sift flour, measure, then sift again with baking powder, sugar, and salt. Mix with nuts. Combine well beaten egg, milk, and melted shortening, and add to flour mixture. Beat only enough to dampen all the flour. Bake in small greased muffin pans in hot oven, 425 degrees F., for about 25 minutes. This makes two dozen small muffins.

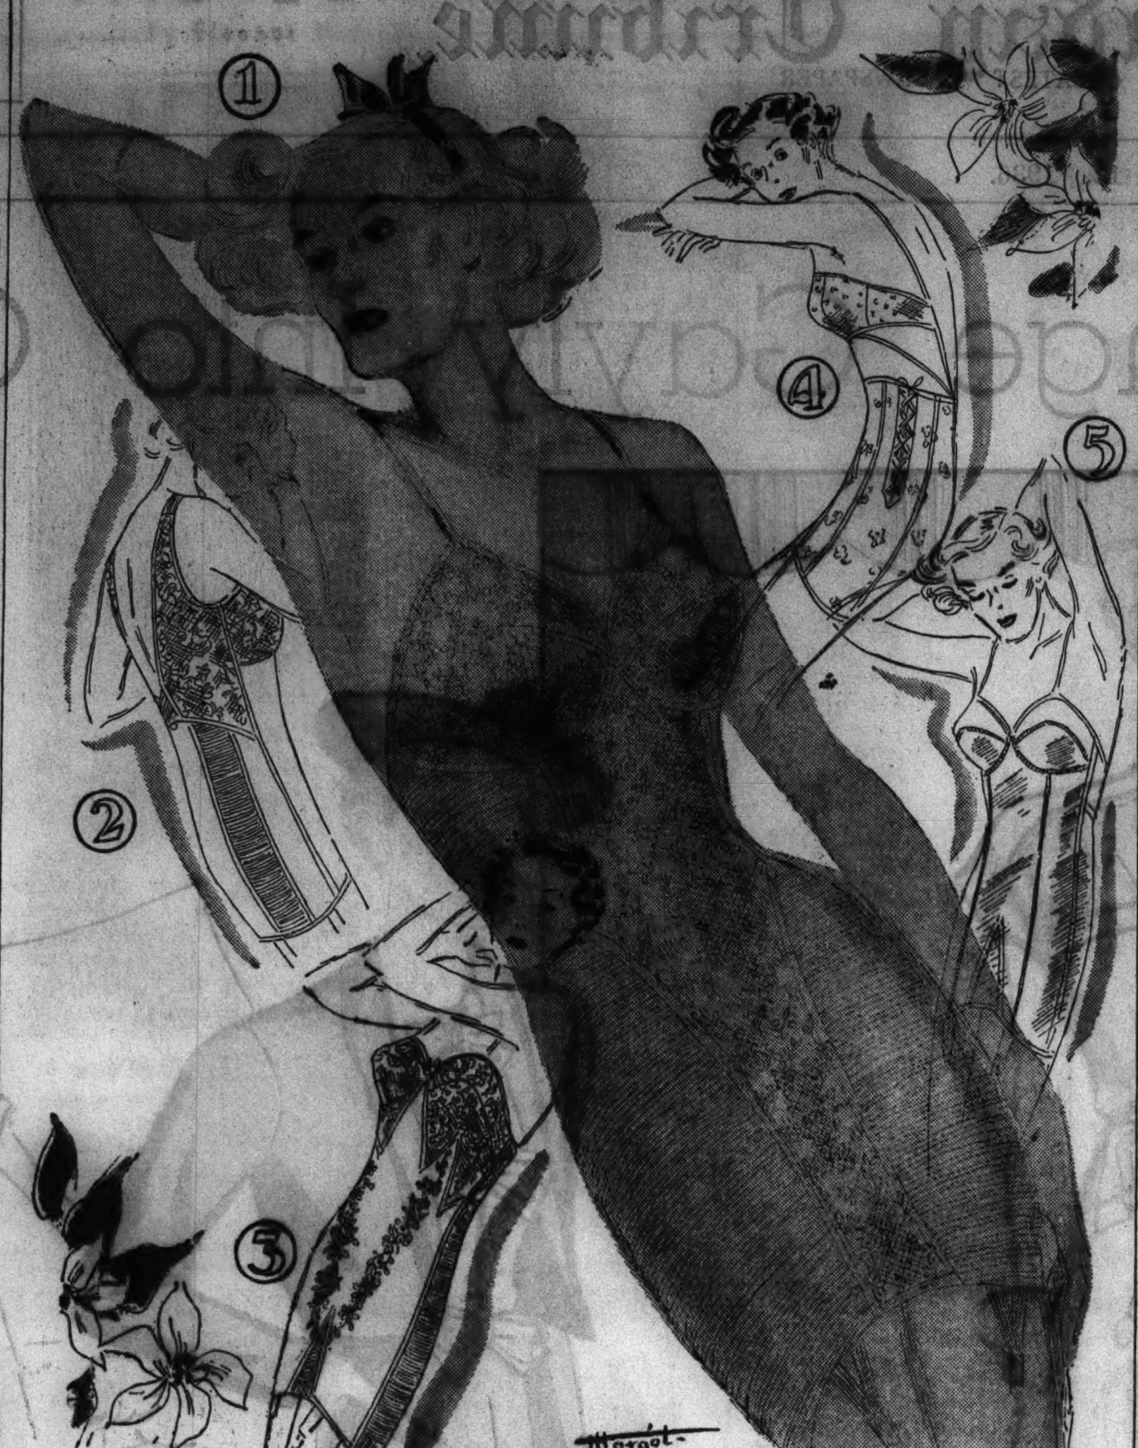
FIVE MODELS FOR MODERN STREAMLINE



● 1. A tricky all-in-one lastex with lace trim. ● 2. The find of the season for difficult figures. ● 3. A perfect foundation garment for a wedding gown. ● 4. To wear with a backless gown. ● 5. Features new satin "power lastex."

Clothes Must Fit Perfectly to Be Smart

New Foundation Garments Give Flattering Lines to Spring Silhouette.

By Rhea Seeger.

AN inside story of successful spring outfits features the newest underlayers . . . underlayers that suavely control, smooth, and fit like skin, the better to accentuate the newest of spring streamlines. With "nipped-in" waistlines an exciting reality, with coquettish, very short jackets fitted over the ribs and flared smartly in the peplum, with picturesque party dresses showing huge full skirts and tiny scraps of bodice tops, correct foundation garments are as vitally important to the clothes collector as the dress itself.

So much of the snap of a tailored suit, the charm of soft, dressmaker afternoon costumes, the flair of colorful printed silk dresses, and the glamor of filmy party clothes depend upon the body line. Meticulously cut and tailored suits are designed to fit flawlessly—if the bulges show, the most expensive two piece outfit is spoiled. Softly draped clothes—rapidly becoming so important in sheer wools, lustrous silk crêpes, and heavy clinging silk satins—use the gleaming and lovely fabrics very simply, draping instead of trimming, but such lovely draping that it relentlessly reveals the slightest incipent curve or wrinkle.

Garments Comfortable Yet Serviceable.

Modern corsetry accomplishes miracles . . . gone forever are the stifling creations of bones and lacings that constricted and made the average woman look pounds heavier. Foundations fit perfectly, they keep the flesh evenly distributed, and what is most imperative they assure complete control without the slightest suggestion of constriction.

We are not all mannequins with exquisitely proportioned bodies. . . . The average figure needs such underlayers, no matter how well dieted. Even subdebs are buying and wearing the clever youthful body controlers, confections of satin, crêpe, and lastex—just enough of the stuff to keep the streamline in condition. Larger figures are supplied with skilfully designed models that do everything for body control and unwrinkled smoothness. True, these larger numbers do have a few bones, but they are unexpectedly supple and strategically placed so that one scarcely knows they are there.

Satin Staging a Gleaming Comeback.

All-in-one models come in large assortments, in many different combinations of silk or satin, with lace. Daytime models have medium gouged-out backlines. Evening creations, as exquisitely fashioned and designed as anything in French lingerie, feature waist deep lines at the back, and even the newest of deep cut bras to wear with the most revealing of evening gowns.

Satin is staging a gleaming comeback as the favored material for the newest underlayers . . . smooth satin with insets of satin elastic, so that little difference is seen in the fabric and elastic. Power lastex, a new idea, lives up to its new name. It's supple stuff that holds much more than the ordinary lastex, yet stays thinner than the rubber elastic, and added to that has the same shiny sheen of the satin.

New Models for Five Different Streamlines.

We've sketched five new spring models, made by a world famous manufacturer, and available in many Chicago shops. We illustrate all new models for five different streamlines. The large figure shows the tricky lace lastex, very unassuming off the figure, but capable of keeping the average form under complete control for the most trying of spring ensembles.

The following booklets on weddin[g] etiquet are available at the Tribune Public Services offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby or by mail from this department. Address mail requests to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune. "Planning the Church Wedding," 3 cents, by mail 5 cents; "Selecting the Trousseau," 2 cents, by mail 3 cents; "Correct Wedding Apparel," 2 cents, by mail 3 cents; "Small Weddings at Small Cost," 2 cents, by mail 3 cents; "Color Ideas for Spring and Summer Weddings," 2 cents, by mail 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

THE home wedding should be [a] subtle combination of informalit[y] and dignity. The details of th[e] ceremony itself, the processiona[l] and the rules concerning the corre[ct] attire are the same no matter wheth[er] the wedding is scheduled to ta[ke] place at church or at home. But ther[e] are some arrangements peculiar [to] the home wedding which we will ta[ke] up today.

The ceremony proper takes place [in] some spot in the house which wi[ll] provide a suitable background, be [in] view of all of the guests, and still b[e] in an accessible position for the brid[e] and the bridegroom to reach fro[m] their respective dressing rooms. Som[e]times this focal point is in front [of] a large window, in between two wi[n]dows, under a small archway, or i[n] front of the fireplace. If the arrang[e]ment of the rooms permits, this plac[e] should be accessible by two differen[t] entrances. Clergyman, bridegroo[m] and best man enter one way, th[e] bridesmaids, bride, and her father b[y] the other.

When the ceremony is to begin, th[e] clergyman, best man, and bridegroo[m] enter the room and take their place[s] at the improvised or imaginary alta[r] facing the guests. At the same tim[e] the processional enters, the bride[s]maids leading, followed by the brid[e] on her father's right arm. During th[e] ceremony the bridal party stands wit[h] backs to the guests, facing the clergy[man].

After giving his daughter away, th[e] father steps back to stand beside hi[s] wife. All of the guests remain stand[ing], of course, throughout the cere[mony]. At its conclusion the brida[l] couple turns and, standing in the sam[e] place, receives the good wishes of th[e] guests. There is no recessional. Th[e] clergyman usually leaves the room t[o] remove his vestments and then join[s] the guests.

After an interval of receiving felici[ta]tions there is a general movemen[t] in the direction of the dining room and the buffet. Food usually is o[f] the order of that served at a glori[fied] tea. The bride and bridegroo[m] and the parents do not eat until they have spoken to all of the guests.

Miss Mary Leigh and Fiance Are London Shoppers

Miss Mary Leigh, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Gerard Leigh, formerly Miss Helen Goudy of Chicago, whose engagement was mentioned recently, frequently is seen out shopping with her fiancé nowadays. The fact is noteworthy only because the couple attracts much attention wherever they go. Capt. Henry Garnett of the Royal Horse guards, the fiancé, is the tallest officer in his majesty's army. His height is 6 feet 8½ inches, and in a bowler he dwarfs even the tallest of Mayfair's tall commissioners. — LONDON

The wedding will take place this season, and it will be largely military in spirit.

Only Scrupulous Care Will Keep Floors Spotless

WHEN spring renovating of our house is in the air the floors come in for first attention and first aid. There is nothing that will mar the attractive appearance of a room more quickly than scuffed and shabby floors. Even a cracked ceiling won't create the down at the heels appearance of a cracked or a stained floor.

Stubborn stains may sometimes be taken out of a linoleum floor by a good scrubbing with hot soap suds and a stiff brush. If this won't do the work, a mild—very mild—scouring powder can be used. Or the spots may be scraped gently with a blunt knife. Then apply one of the water emulsion waxes which need no polishing. Unless, of course, there's a husky right arm to do the polishing, or you have an electric floor polisher. In this case a fine grade of paste wax can be used.

By way of prevention of ugly floors purchase some of the new glass cups for stove legs and table and cabinet legs.

Soft Wood Floors Amenable to Three Treatments.

If a house has old softwood floors of an inferior quality of soft wood there are three treatments which are efficient.

The first is to paint them. The second is to cover them with linoleum or rubber flooring, or some other composition flooring. The third is to lay a new floor of wood over the old floor.

Paint is probably the least expensive rejuvenating method to employ. It can transform the most battle scarred floor into an attractive surface. For a colonial or cottage type home, paint is also a highly appropriate treatment. One should be careful to use a paint especially suited to floors in order that it will hold up.

Before painting a floor the old gloss of varnished or shellacked finish should be removed by washing the surface with a weak solution of sal soda. If the wood has been stained, however, don't omit a coat of aluminum paint or thin shellac to prevent any possible bleeding.

Thick Stock Should Be Used for Relaid Floors.

If new floors are desired and are to be laid directly over the old, a rather thick stock should be employed. In many renovating jobs one-half or five-eighths inch boards are used. These boards can be as narrow as one-quarter inch or as wide as two inches.

In laying a new wood floor over an old one a one-half inch space should be left between board and base to allow for future expansion and settling. There is one point to note. Do not cut the boards too long. The molding will conceal any slight crack at the base or irregularity in the board lengths.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle

Excellent Powder, Rouge, and Lipstick Are Offered in Inexpensive Package.

Eleanor Nangle, "Through Her Looking Glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

INTERESTED in a beauty bargain as well as makeup accessories that flatter you? Then don't miss the trio of makeup aids, neatly assembled in a flat box the color of soft bronze, with turquoise lettering, that is to be seen at cosmetic counters all over town.

It's a dandy little box for the business girl to keep in her desk. There is a generous amount of a fine, famous face powder, available in a whole raft of carefully blended shades. Right in the center is a lipstick, and there, friends and countrywomen, is a delightful lipstick.

Then there is what seems to us an enormous helping of dry rouge. Not one of those little cakes the circumference of a nickel, but a big one almost two inches in diameter, with a puff of the same dimensions.

Lipstick and rouge match exactly, and the shades seem to us perfectly beautiful. We always have felt that the house which so thoughtfully offers these at a nice low price [and they'd be expensive to buy separately] has the soundest possible ideas about color harmony, plus the ability to produce good shades. They've made it easy to match powder shade to skin tone and to intensify natural cheek and lip coloring with their fine rouges and lipsticks.

If you've been wondering how to make your face as fresh as spring demands you can save yourself some expensive experimenting with this array of specially sized makeup aids. If you like them, and we wager you will, you will have made some beauty friends for life without having broken the family bank for the initial get-acquainted gesture.

The powder supply will last for several weeks; the rouge and lipstick for months. All three have the same fragrance, a gentle one that can be described adequately as "well bred."

A good beauty bet for the business girl. A flat box containing three fine makeup aids: a good powder, lipstick, and dry rouge, assembled in new, inexpensive sizes.

China Imitates Gorgeous Hues of Pottery

Earthenware Achieves Distinction with High Colors, Dynamic Lines.

"Learn About China Before You Buy," a booklet by Claire Winslow, serves as guide to the woman who wants to know the difference between porcelain and earthenware, and something about the world famous chinawares. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

AS colorful as the myriads of flowers that blossom on Easter day is a brand new line of American made chinaware now being displayed for the first time. It closely imitates the gorgeous colors of pottery and has no design on its surface except for interesting modern grooves and ridges that appear as borders. But it is earthenware, not pottery, and is therefore much lighter in weight and takes a high glaze.

Colors Can Be Strikingly Combined in One Table Setting.

Another pleasing feature, it is made to sell at prices considerably lower than that asked for the west coast pottery with which many of us are familiar. It is available in the following vivid, gay tones: red, green, blue, and yellow. Also, in a charming, soft, creamy tint called old ivory that will go with any color scheme.

HUMBLE WARE IN MODERN GARB

Fiesta, a brand new line of tableware, American made, is as gay in its colors as Easter blossoms. It closely resembles pottery, but is earthenware with a high glaze and comes in five vivid hues. It's sold in a number of Chicago department stores.

The shapes of plates, bowls, covered dishes, etc., are beautifully simple and satisfying. The tea cup has a perfectly round handle, while the smaller coffee cup has a single, branchlike one set on at a slight angle that makes it as convenient and practical as it is clever. The coffee pot and the cream pitcher have similar lifter-uppers.

Many women will find it grand fun to combine several colors in one luncheon service of this ware. For instance, you can place a creamy white soup bowl on a blue plate and under these a larger, red-orange plate. The effect is extremely gay and good looking. Or you can combine yellow cups with blue saucers, or green plates with yellow cereal dishes. There are as many possibilities for contrast as you can well work out.

Fiesta Comes in Wide Assortment of Pieces.

Most appropriately this new colored tableware is called Fiesta. It is ideal for the informal luncheon, for breakfast, for a buffet supper or meals al fresco on the terrace or in the garden. Following are a few of the many items this enterprising company is producing in Fiesta: plates, 10, 9, 7, 6 inch sizes; cream soup cups, covered onion soups, 5 inch fruit dishes, 6 inch dessert dishes, 13 and 15 inch chop plates, compartment plates, covered casseroles, 2 quart ice pitchers, 3 pint carafes, teapots, coffeepots, compotes, bowls in seven sizes, ash trays, relish trays, footed salad bowls, small vases, candle holders, salt and pepper containers.

The photograph today shows a group of Fiesta earthenware. You can get them by the piece in seven large Chicago stores.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

PERHAPS some of our readers who are apiarists can be of help to S. S. He is a man 74 years old, now living in a southwestern suburb of Chicago. Six years ago he lost his job and has been living on his savings since that time. His money is diminishng rapidly, and he now is looking for another occupation, although he finds that his years figure heavily against him. Friends gave him a few hives of bees and he is interested in obtaining books on the subject of raising them. He also would appreciate a small honey extractor if some reader has a discarded one. If you are able to help him this department will be glad to supply his name and address.

"Dear Miss Brown: I have an arrested case of tuberculosis and, through no fault of my own, have been unemployed for the last four years. After spending many months in a sanitarium I was discharged as cured, but ordered not to work for at least a year. During that time the county has provided me with a room and food, but I have been unable to obtain clothing. Consequently, my wardrobe now is entirely unpresentable, and while I believe my health soon will permit me to seek work I cannot do so unless I can find decent apparel. I need a suit, size 40; a lightweight overcoat, shoes, size 86 E; a hat, 7¼, and shirts, size 15, and shall be grateful for your help."—N. J.

Mr. J. is 53 years old, a mechanical engineer, and has worked for numerous Chicago firms. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 157 pounds. The address is on the north side of the city.

E. M., on the south side, also needs clothing. "Dear Miss Brown: I am a high school student, now in the senior class, and I would like to know if your readers have castoff clothing which would fit me. I wear size 16 or 18, and would appreciate anything that could be given to me, as my clothing is in bad condition. I am one of nine children and my father, who is a WJA worker, is unable to supply clothing for all of us. If I could have only a few blouses and a skirt I could get by."—E. M.

From a caseworker on the south side: "Dear Miss Brown: We are writing you in behalf of Mrs. S., one of our clients, who frequently has expressed her wish for a small radio. She is confined to her bed a great deal of the time because of an incurable disease. She has greatly enjoyed hearing, from time to time, the radio in the apartment above hers, but would, of course, have much more pleasure from an instrument of her own. If any of your readers has a radio which he wishes to discard we can assure you that it would be greatly appreciated by this woman, who is doing her best to be brave and cheerful in the face of serious illness and considerable suffering."

M. M. writes from a clinic: "I am writing in behalf of a family receiving medical care in one of our clinics. They have had a hard time during the depression and their baby boy, 8 months old, has outgrown the crib they were able to get for him. I wonder whether one of your readers has a child's bed with sides that no longer is in use and could be donated to this youngster?

"The father made a valiant effort to support his wife and two daughters, 8 and 7 years old, by working as a cab driver, but the family finally was forced to accept relief. Needless to say, they have no money for a bed. They are a self-reliant, deserving family and would be grateful for this assistance."

If you have a discarded 9 by 12 rug I know just the place for it. The K. family is fatherless and existing on an extremely small income. Their living quarters were inadequate and uncomfortable and, after much effort, they finally have been able to find a more desirable flat. The mother is anxious to make it as attractive as possible for her youngsters, and they are much in need of a rug of some kind for the parlor, as only the border of the floor is varnished and the remainder not in good condition. They will be glad to call for any offer.

"Dear Miss Brown: About five years ago I wrote to you for assistance and was so wonderfully helped that I am coming to you again as a court of last resort. I am a widow with six children. My income is only $40 a month, with no additional help, and I find it difficult to make ends meet. My oldest son has been out of work for quite a long time and has been unable to assist us. Our greatest need at the present time is wearing apparel, and any articles would be gratefully received. I wear size 50. The girls need sizes 14, 16, and 8 years; the boys, sizes 14, 16, and 38.

"I was forced to discontinue the use of gas some months ago and am using a little kitchen heater for cooking. If any one has a cook stove with an oven I will be grateful for it, as I am unable to buy even a second hand one. I have tried to avoid asking for assistance in the hope that my son would find work, but so far his search has been fruitless.—Mrs. A. B."

The address is on the south side.

Mother Uses New Slant to Correct Child

At Wit's End, She Takes Stock of the Situation, Changes Her Tactics.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

OFF and on for some time I've been telling you your small son or daughter needn't wreck your home and your nerves; that he or she can be a real delight if you'll just change your whole slant on what seems to you like nothing but naughtiness and contrariness. How one mother brought this change about in herself and a consequent return of happiness to her little family I will let her tell you.

"My Dear Mrs. Bevans: Your column in today's paper both interested and amused me and I felt compelled to write of my experience in the hope it might help some harassed, worried mother.

"Let me say first I am the mother of a little girl 2½ years old, an active, inquisitive youngster with a penchant for putting her adorable little nose into everything, and a little boy 13 months, who is fast following in sister's footsteps.

"Sister is a wiry, active child with a talent for getting into more mischief and more trouble than any ten children put together, or so it seemed to me. At first I took her naughtiness as a sign of jealousy of her baby brother, though I actually went out of my way to shower more attention no sister than on brother to avoid jealousy.

Punishments Were No Deterrents to Her.

"But still I couldn't fathom the persistent naughty streak which made her an almost impossible child to deal with and handle. Punishments such as spanking or scolding, or depriving her of her playtime had no effect on her destructive ways at home.

"One evening, after a few particularly strenuous and aggravating days in which she seemed to do deliberately everything she could do to annoy me, I sat down and took stock of the entire situation. I realized the child's spontaneous love for me was being slowly but surely turned to hatred and fear through my constant punishment of her, and I didn't want that.

"Thinking everything over, I suddenly realized she did all these things merely because I did them. She was just imitating me! And her little mind couldn't understand why, if it was all right for 'mommy' to do those things, she couldn't do them, also.

First Step Was to Secure Rest Period.

"My first step to readjust the strained fee'ing between the child and myself was to send her to my mother for a few days for a change of atmosphere, and to get a rest for myself. When she came home she was happy to be back, my nerves had been rested, and I had mapped out a plan of action.

"Instead of forbidding her to play with water, I invited her to 'help mommy wash dishes.' This gave her a chance to play with water under my supervision and still gave her an object in her playing and she pridefully told her daddy she 'helped mommy wash dishes.'

"The next thing I did was to move her little play table into the living room and also some dishes and pots and pans I had bought for her in her absence. Now when I prepare our meals in the kitchen she does the same thing with her dishes at her table and leaves my things alone.

"In the evening, before her bedtime, when her father and I sit in the living room and read, she sits at her table with a magazine or with paper and pencil and does just as we do. This eliminates the torn paper and scattered toys all over the house for me to pick up constantly.

Child Delights in Imitating Adults.

"When I shop and she is with me I refrain from handling anything and I find I no longer have any trouble with her. And I find the same thing happens when I take her visiting with me. Should I touch some object at a friend's house she does the same, but if I leave things alone so does she.

"My advice to overworked mothers is: Realize children are monkeys, imitating everything they see.

"Don't expect a child to be a paragon of all the virtues. You won't have a child then, but a prig.

"Be more tolerant in your attitude to the child and you will find that what were terrible faults will just be amusing incidents.

"A. B."

It's true. If you understand what goes on behind those wide blue or brown eyes, under that curly mop, or those soft, straight locks, you're practically certain not to have a real problem with your small children.

Miss Ballatine is the chic blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. Ray Ballatine of 7000 South Shore drive. It is to be hoped that one of the outfits she will model will resemble the smart black tailleur she is wearing in this picture. The skirt is of a striped material to contrast with the plain coat, and the ensemble is finished with a mannish shirt of white with a stiff collar and bow tie. A luncheon and card party, as well as the fashion show, are on the center's program for the afternoon.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

EXCEPT for the silver jubilee issue of last year, the British colony of St. Lucia, in the West Indies, has struggled along without a new stamp design for many years. In fact, the current issue of Georgian stamps was originally designed for the Edward VII. issue of 1902, and in 1912 the portrait was changed to that of George V. In 1914 or 1915 new designs were added for three new values—the 2d, 4d, and 2s 6d, and again in 1922 for a new 1½d stamp, but otherwise the designs have been unchanged since 1912. Prior to 1936 St. Lucia issued but one pictorial stamp. This was the single value placed on sale in 1902 to commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the island by Columbus.

The new pictorial issue, of which one value is shown on cover, contains twelve values from ½d to 10s, in seven designs. The ½d, 2d, and 4d stamps show Port of Castries; the 1d, 2½d, and 6d show Columbus square, in Castries; the 1½d and 3d Ventine Falls; the 1s Fort Rodney, Pigeon Island; the 2s 6d Inniskilling monument; 5s Government house, and 10s the crest of the colony and portrait of George V.

All the lower values show a medallion portrait of the late king, in the color of the frames. All are of large size in horizontal form except the 1½d, 3d, and 2s 6d stamps, which are vertical. The issue was engraved and recess printed on paper watermarked with the multiple crown and script C. A., by De La Rue & Co. of London.

The question of gum on unused stamps has been settled time and again in favor of preserving the gum, but the minority voice of the collectors who do not agree is so strong that the question will not stay settled.

Eventually those in favor of "no gum" will win the argument, for in time the gum, which is so vociferously defended by condition cranks today will destroy all stamps except those printed on exceptionally stiff rag paper. There are no United States stamps on a paper which can successfully resist the tendency of the gum to curl or stain but, despite that fact, few collectors have the nerve to soak their unused stamps, and as the years go by some of the stamps will stick themselves down, others will be thinned where hinged, and others will be cracked by the continuous curling and flattening which goes on when the album is opened and closed. Any one who has handled the gumless "Farley favors" can tell that the paper is less brittle in this condition. Perhaps the only unused stamps in good condition a hundred years from now will be those which lost their gum soon after being issued.

Permanent preservation may be obtained by mounting a stamp solidly in a space sunk in a card to prevent rubbing of the face, but the adhesive to be used and the quality of card are subjects to be carefully studied. If the adhesive is vermin proof it will be very likely to change some stamp colors, and if it does not contain a preservative, little bugs may eat their way from Abyssinia to Zanzibar. Shall collectors allow the gum to determine the value of an unused stamp? If the tail wags the dog it should be removed. Who will join the movement for stamps without gum?

U. S. Stamp Notes.

The recent proposal of President Roosevelt for a series of stamps to honor unsung heroes has brought forth long lists of military and naval personages. Many of these lists include the names of those great fighters Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson, and it occurs that Benedict Arnold, "Hair Buyer" Hamilton, Tecumseh, Admiral Cockburn, Santa Anna, and Sitting Bull, and perhaps others, deserve recognition, for these men taught the United States more of the arts of war in a shorter time and in a more convincing manner than could have been learned in any school of tactics.

Animals on Postage Stamps.

Under this title the Scott Stamp and Coin company of New York offers a new book for topical collectors by Otis Warren Barrett, D. Sc. Mr. Barrett had long been famous as a scientist in the field of natural history and therefore writes his stamp zoology as an authority. The book of almost 100 pages may be used as an album if desired and the stamps may be mounted directly over the illustrations. The price is $1.

The Kitchen Forum

Mrs. F. B., Chicago: "Can you tell me how to make a jelly roll that won't crack in the rolling? I have a great deal of difficulty with this problem."

The trick in rolling a jelly cake smoothly, without great cracks and crevices, lies in speedy work as soon as the cake comes from the oven. Turn the cake out onto a clean tea towel that has been lightly sprinkled with confectioner's sugar. Trim off about a half inch strip from each edge to remove the crusty, crisp part. Then spread with jelly or other filling, and roll the cake quickly before it has a chance to cool. When rolled wrap firmly in the tea towel to cool.

Mrs. A. F. D., Chicago: "I want to make a chocolate flavored sponge roll in which ice cream may be wrapped. All I have tried seem to break when rolled and, of course, it must be rolled when cold on account of the ice cream."

Making an ice cream roll is a bit more difficult than a regular jelly roll, but it is possible with this procedure: Remove the hot chocolate sponge layer from the oven, and turn out onto a towel sprinkled with confectioner's sugar. Trim off the crusty edges evenly. While still warm, cover the cake with an inch thick layer of ice cream, frozen firmly but not too hard to spread smoothly. Roll carefully, using both hands, and wrap immediately in waxed paper. Put in the coldest part of the refrigerator [in the freezing section, if possible], in order to prevent further melting of the ice cream. The sponge cake, if rolled in this manner before it is completely cool, will not break if handled carefully, and yet its warmth will not greatly melt the ice cream. If not to be sliced and served immediately, the ice cream roll should be placed in the freezing section of the refrigerator, or should be tightly wrapped, placed in a covered metal container, and packed in an ice and salt mixture.

Miss V. G., Chicago: "Does one use raw or roasted peanuts in peanut brittle?"

Roasted peanuts, unsalted, usually are used for peanut brittle. Some recipes specify raw peanuts, in which case they are shelled and heated in the oven for several minutes before being used in candy.

Four Business Women's Clubs Are to Merge

Consolidation of Groups Is to Aid Effectiveness of Civic Activities.

More news of Chicago clubs and club women will be found in the other Society section.

IN order to increase the effectiveness of their civic activities, four of Chicago's leading business and professional women's organizations are consolidating into a single unit.

MARY QUINN.

Groups which are uniting are the Chicago Forum of Business and Professional Women, headed by Mrs. Mary Berkemeier Quinn; the Fortnightly Business and Professional Women's club, with Dr. Grace McCarthy as president; the South Side Business and Professional Women's club, headed by Mrs. Marion Johnson, and the Chicago Business and Professional Women's club, with Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder as president.

The reorganization will take place at a meeting at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. National and state officers will be present. A constitution and bylaws will be adopted, and officers will be elected.

Select Title for the New Organization.

The Business and Professional Women's club of Chicago is the name 'lready selected for the new organization, which represents a desire of long standing among professional and business women for closer coöperation among leaders in their ranks.

A presidents' council representing all Chicago groups was formed as an initial step toward this end, following a union meeting during A Century of Progress exposition. At a meeting in February the presidents' council definitly decided to combine the various organizations into one. Mrs. Quinn is chairman of the committee which has worked out details of the consolidation.

City-Wide Council of Y. W. C. A. Is to Sponsor Fashion Revue.

Insight into the fashion secrets of a stenographer who dresses smartly on a weekly pay check of $22 will be afforded when a spring style revue, "Modes and Melodies," is presented Friday evening at the Harriet Hammond McCormick memorial, 1001 North Dearborn street.

The City-wide Council of Y. W. C. A. Business Girls is sponsoring the revue, which will feature only such clothes as fit into the business girl's budget. A questionnaire circulated among girls at the central, west side, and south side branches was the basis on which the clothes to be shown were selected.

Melodies to accompany the showing of the frocks will be supplied by the male octet of the First National bank, and Marian Lundien, soloist of the Swedish Choral society, will sing. Proceeds of the revue will be used to send Miss Mildred Allen, a business girl, as a delegate to the national convention of the Y. W. C. A., to be held April 29 to May 5 at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Annual Luncheon Party Will Aid Stevenson Memorial.

The annual spring luncheon and card party for the benefit of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson memorial will be held at 12:30 o'clock Friday in the grand ballroom of the Medinah club. There will be door as well as table prizes. Mrs. V. Farrington Timme is chairman of the party, with Miss Mildred Brasseur and Mrs. Irving Fox assisting.

One of the oldest refuges in the city, the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial home at 2412 Prairie avenue, is unique in that it offers temporary shelter and aid to needy mothers and their children until some permanent solution to their problems can be found. Last year 56,000 lodgings and 145,000 meals were provided, and a total of 20,000 days' care given children in the nursery. Miss Martha J. Moe of Evanston is president of the home.

The Mary clubs, which have as their particular interest young girls from the Juvenile court, are sending out an appeal for funds in the name of the officers and directors. Judge Mary Bartelme organized the clubs to provide girls from broken homes with a normal home life.

Mrs. Thomas R. King Is President of the Clubs.

Mrs. Thomas R. King is president of the clubs. Among others interested in the drive for funds are Mrs. Robert M. Cutting, Miss Frances B. Ford, Mrs. Harold Sippy, Dr. Phyllis F. Bartelme, Mrs. A. G. Becker, Miss Harriet Borland, Mrs. Roy L. Davis, Mrs. Charles A. Ford, Mrs. Grant Laing, Mrs. George V. McIntyre, Mrs. Leslie B. Olmsted, and Mrs. Louis Skidmore.

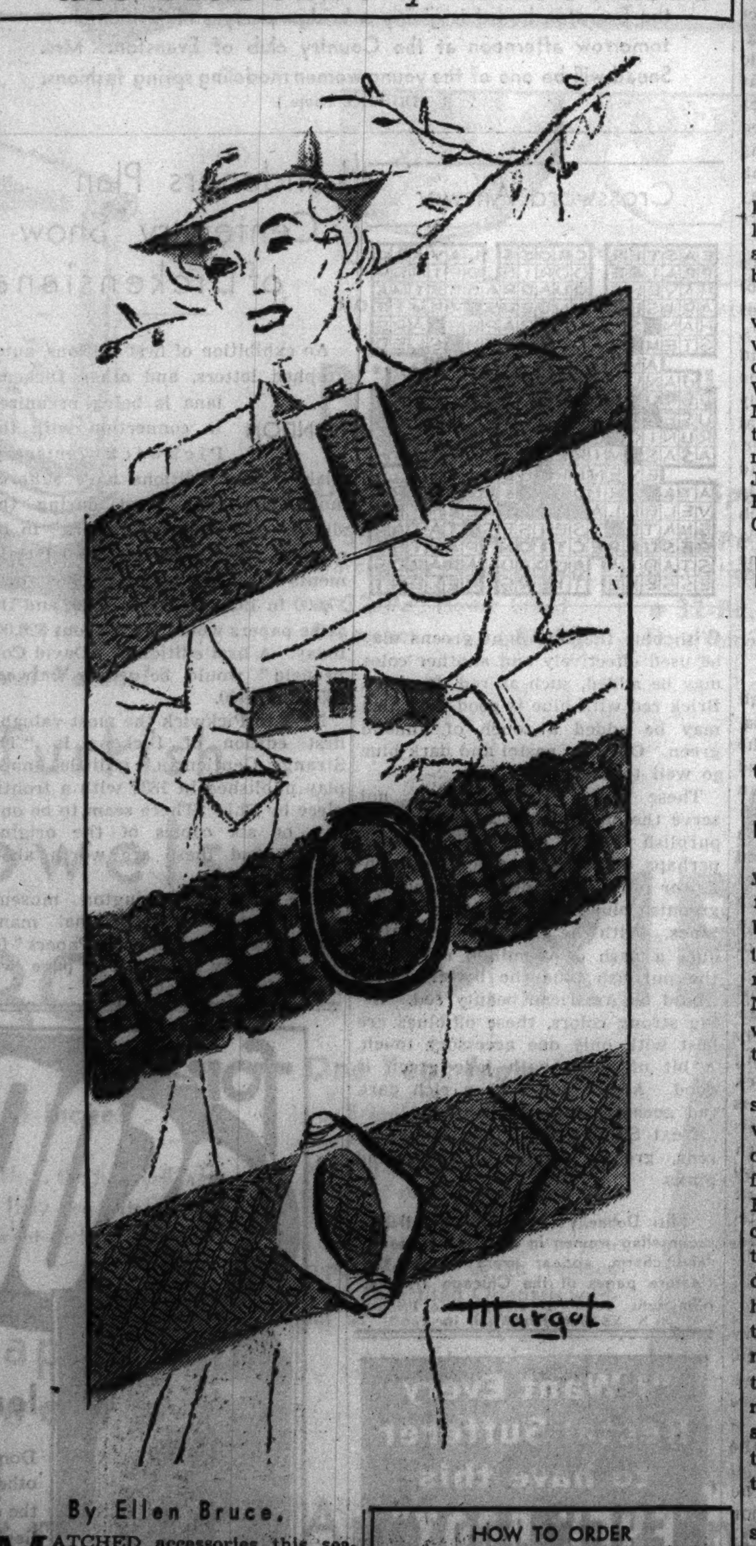
Hand Crochet Belts Join the Accessory Ensemble



By Ellen Bruce.

MATCHED accessories this season include hat, gloves, and belt, all in contrast to the ensemble. Hand crochet belts in simple yet effective patterns are a vital part of the accessory ensemble. Later in the month we shall have gloves and hats. The afghan stitch belt illustrated at the top of the group is one of the most interesting of the crochet stitches. It is often referred to as "crochet-knitting" and is especially adaptable for belts, scarves, braces, mufflers, and even shoe soles for infants' wear.

The second belt in the group is a combination of mesh and shell stitches and a trifle more elaborate than the tailored afghan stitch, while the third belt of the group is another afghan stitch, a diagonal pattern which is as attractive as the first. There are two of these belts because most of the spring tailoreds demand simplicity, and this type of crochet work is a perfect complement to fabric, knitted, or crochet suits.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instruction for crocheting the three belts illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Mrs. Harry Hughes to Have Dinner for Illinois Regents.

Mrs. Harry Hughes, elected state president of the Daughters of the British Empire in Illinois at their annual meeting in March, will give a dinner for the regents of the 27 Illinois chapters Tuesday evening at the House of Biggs, 50 East Huron street. Miss Amelia McFie will give an illustrated lecture on the southwest. The monthly meeting of the society will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday in the Republic building, 209 South State street.

MRS. HARRY HUGHES.

Other officers elected in March were Mrs. Olive Bradley Taylor, first vice president; Mrs. P. Mather, second vice president; Mrs. Luther H. Whittemore, third vice president; Mrs. Russel Walter, recording secretary; Mrs. A. W. MacCorquodale, corresponding secretary; Miss Elizabeth J. Harvey, organizing secretary; Mrs. Helen S. Cole, treasurer, and Mrs. George Cowan Jr., standard bearer.

Excavations at Tower of London Hint at New Lore

Every visitor to London goes to the tower, that enormous pile of hand hewn masonry which guarded the city of London for more than 1,000 years. In its turn a fortress, a royal residence, a state prison, remembered by visitors as the home of the beefeaters, everything about it reminding one of English history. Now there is something else about which the antiquarian may weave tales.

There was a subsidence in the small green where the sentry stands, where one usually sees the old black crow and looks with awe at the scaffold where Lady Jane Grey and Anne Boleyn lost their heads. It was decided to find out by excavating why the green had collapsed in the middle. When workmen found huge holes and iron work, it was decided to get excavators on the job. These men have found what they believe to be an ancient drawbridge. In the meantime, historians of the tower are searching records to find some mention of such a drawbridge and the time it was built.

It may take some time to work up some historical data about the new find, but doubtless it will be found and its importance will not be lessened a whit when the beefeater tells you about it next time.

According to the recent census of Turkey, the country contains 238,917 more women than men.

Besides having the right to vote, women in Cuba married to foreigners retain their citizenship.

Fathers Often Alienate Their Sons' Esteem

Bond of Affection Between Boy and Parent Is the Result of Understanding.

By Doris Blake.

DO you believe, with the quoted remark of a famous educator, that "most boys dislike their fathers?"

"Depend upon it, most boys dislike their fathers!" is the actual quotation.

If true, a shock surely for the parent who may be bursting with pride in his boy, retailing his conversations to friends, his progress in school accomplishment, etc.

Perhaps Nick, author of the following letter, presents a unique case in disharmony between parent and son. We can't believe that dislike of a father is entertained by most boys, as our educator would hint. But that fathers do cut off companionships early in a son's life is revealed in the following youth's confession. Other confidential communications that have reached these eyes reveal how father jeopardizes his place in a son's esteem.

Nick Tells Story of Father Who Never Uttered Approval.

Says Nick: "I never knew my dad, in all the years I have known him, and it is going on 18 years now, to throw me so much as one bone of approval. Not one. If it were not for my mother, I would have beat it off to the sea long ago. I recall that when I was around 11, I worked on a tool box for him as a Christmas surprise. It was as good a box as any boy my age could have made. Even if it hadn't been good, I still never could quite forgive him for his reception of the gift. He looked at it. Walked around it. Held it up and exclaimed: "Is that the best that a son of mine could do?" That's been the tenor of his criticism of me since the day I was born. I'll wager he asked, when my mother weighed me by the ounce in the very first days, "Is that the best my son can do?"

"I've been average in my studies, neither brilliant nor poor. I've heard that hated comment every time a report card was shown. And now criticism extends into everything I do. The girls I know come in for it. The boy pals I have get it. My clothes, my manners, the way I talk, nothing earns a word of approval. Encouragement is something he never knew. He's the worst wet blanket of a father ever known. The wonder to me is that my mother sticks to him. I'd beat it if I were she."

In large matters, certain fathers loom importantly because they have the hand on the purse strings and, consequently, are in a position to dictate. Because of the dictatorship rôle they assume in these large matters, they earn the dislike common to dictators whose decisions are made to suit their own egos. There is none of the fine affectionate companionship wanted between father and son, even though said parent may be magnanimous in his big gesture. An affectionate companionship between son and dad is built on more subtle grounds. It cannot be developed along about 18 years of age, when the boy's desire for a car is appeased with a check, say, or some other wish of the boy's is met with a generous response. The very "dad came across" stipulates precisely the situation between the two.

Mutual understanding with one's son can come only through affectionate companionship, the father is reminded in a current edition of "The Parent's Magazine," which companionship, however, may not be had for the asking.

Every day there is presented, in the feature columns of the Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

New Clothes Express Type of the Wearer

You Can Be Demure if You Choose, or High Powered and Tailored.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Fashions, these days, are not so much clothes as they are personal productions. Spring clothes of 1936 cast you for almost any part you feel like playing. You can look like one of those high powered women who go out and make strong men tremble in the lairs of big business, if you cast yourself in the men's suit and suiting fashions of the hour. You can be a modern Medici, male or female, complete with ruff, wasp waistline and puffed sleeves, though you may not have the black Medici heart under your skin-tight bodice.

You can be calm and Chinese in slithering streamline clothes, and a coolie coat that buttons up the back or side. Or you can be Yourself, a vibrating and stimulating vision with new lines and color.

Try One Outfit in Completely New Vein.

This means one completely new outfit, from toes to crown, chosen in colors you have not been wearing, and lines that are different from those you usually wear. It may mean several completely different ensembles, accessories tuned to the new rhythm, if your budget can stand the strain.

If you've worn a swagger coat recently, change to a coat that is fitted at least partly. The styles are cold to swagger coats this spring unless they're short or full length. You might wear a cape instead of a jacket if you feel one of the new fitted jackets, with rising shoulder lines or bolero lengths, does wrong by your figure. The Paris jackets and coats with high waistlines are another style that may give your personal clothes production charm and power.

Change Your Color Scheme This Season.

Change your major color scheme. If you wear brown, and your friends think of you in this color, wear dark blue, or gray, or black this season, and vice versa. If you like white touches on your daytime clothes, skip them this spring and wear details in some of the charming new colors like turquoise, orchid, or sulphur yellow.

If you've been addicted to the tailored suit, try a dress and jacket, cape, or coat this spring. Be different. If you've been wearing skyscraper heels, step out in lower heels and square toes. If you have shunned the suit because you're not the tailored type, get a suit, but a feminine one, and wear a sheer, soft blouse with it, a flower trimmed hat, and gay gloves.

Change your top lines. Get a hat that is cast in a shape you haven't been wearing. Study yourself in some of the new hats that are as different as possible from your usual headlines, and find one that is personally flattering to you. Wear a veil if you possibly can. Veils flatter every face, and they come in all forms.

Paris Buttons Chic Coats Up the Back.

The new Paris fashions come in editions that are completely different, yet wearable. Take the spring coat. Mainbocher, who dresses the elegantes of Paris, is making back that are entirely practical. Look at No. 2. From the front it looks like a trim dress with a high, turnover collar and simple, stitched belt. Seen from the side or back, you view the dashing swagger flare, beginning at the shoulder blades and going out to the hem. The coat fastens with two buttons at the back. With it goes a big, dead white straw hat, the brim cut away at the back. A bright red purse with this coat, matched by a flower at the collar, would make a color symphony of any gal.

Then there is the new full-skirted silhouette, done by Mainbocher in dark blue material, with a white piqué collar and big topped sleeves. This dress has a ruffled taffeta petticoat striped in pastel, blue, and white. It is worn with a pancake hat of sheer white straw with a big bow of blue slapped on top.

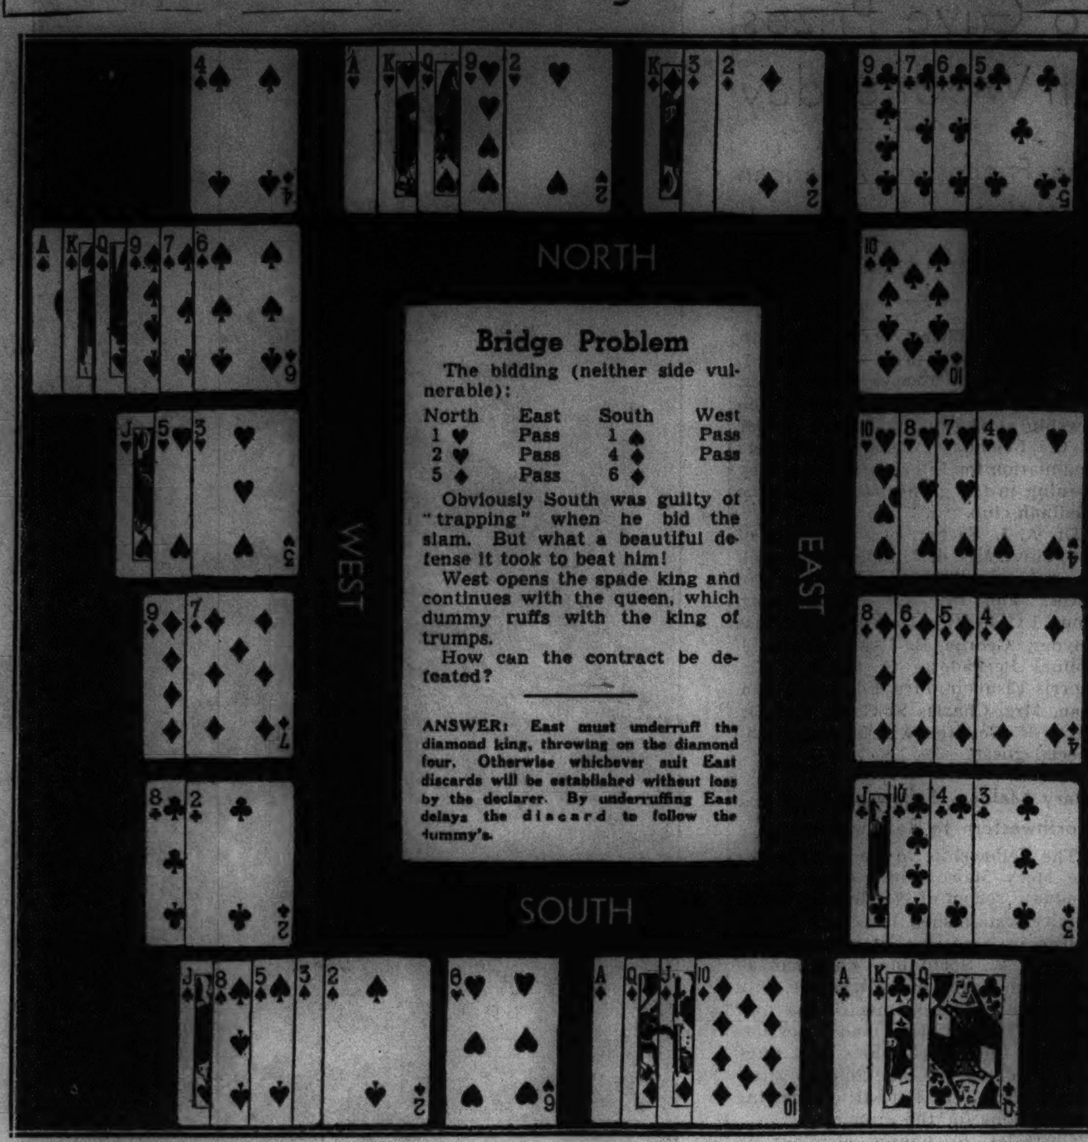
Mahogany Table in Chinese Chippendale Priced for Economy

MANY women are a little bit hesitant about shopping for that new table the living room needs. They are afraid it will be too expensive. Especially for them, then, is a beautiful, square, mahogany table with a charming little fretwork gallery about the top, in the Chinese Chippendale style. It looks high priced but it is so astonishingly cheap that the budget can afford two, one for each end of the couch.

A nice feature about this table is that it is larger than an end or lamp table. It can serve as a reading table, if you wish. It is sold by one of Chicago's oldest furniture stores.

Contract According to Culbertson



Bridge Problem

The bidding (neither side vulnerable):

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	6 ♦

Obviously South was guilty of "trapping" when he bid the slam. But what a beautiful defense it took to beat him!

West opens the spade king and continues with the queen, which dummy ruffs with the king of trumps.

How can the contract be defeated?

ANSWER: East must underruff the diamond king, throwing on the diamond four. Otherwise whichever suit East discards will be established without loss by the declarer. By underruffing East delays the discard to follow the dummy's.

By Ely Culbertson

MY DAILY mail becomes more and more sprightly. Here is a recent contribution with a pronounced political angle. Referring to the writer's comparison of President Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith, and myself, I wish to announce that I shall not be a candidate in the forthcoming presidential election.

Starkweather, N. D.

Dear Mr. Culbertson: The North and South hands illustrated below caused a near-riot and a friction in friendship as wide and as deep as the Grand canyon and as noisy and tumultuous as the celebrated ruction between two of your well known New Yorkers, almost as prominent as yourself, President Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith.

The writer was the hapless individual who dealt and held the South hand, and the poor worm in the North position is a young attorney who knows even less about contract than he does about law. Just between ourselves, Mr. Culbertson, he is a dastardly rascal with strong and pronounced socialistic, communistic, and anarchistic leanings and tendencies, and I strongly suspect that he eats garlic with his sausage.

NORTH	SOUTH
♠ K 9 2	♠ A 10 7 6
♥ Q J 10 5 2	♥ A K
♦ 7 4	♦ A K 9 8
♣ 6 5 4	♣ A K Q

Yours very truly,

M. P. COYNE.

With no attempt at persiflage (fearing I would meet more than my match in Mr. Coyne), I answer soberly that the correct bidding would be:

South	North
2 diamonds	2 hearts
4 no trump	5 diamonds
5 no trump	6 hearts
Pass

I strongly suspect that they reached a grand slam (for which only a very far-sighted and lucky squeeze play would avail) and went down a trick, hence my correspondent's spleen.

Radio and stage stars are an enthusiastic group of bridge players. Some of them are good and some are just enthusiastic. Phil Spitalny, I regret to report, is one of the latter class. An inveterate psychic bidder, he has probably done more to aid and succor the opponents than has any other single player. Phil, good-natured, jovial, and high-strung, is often the cause of hysterical scenes at the bridge table. He has one of those no-trump complexes, which sometimes results disastrously and other times makes me believe he sits in the lap of the gods.

Politics Creeps Into His Daily Mail

NORTH
♠ K J 6
♥ Q 10 8 7 5 3

♠ 9 4	♠ 3 2
♥ 2	♥ J 9
♦ Q J 9 8 5 4 2	♦ A 10 7
♣ A 8 3	♣ Q J 10 7 6 5

SOUTH (Phil Spitalny)
♠ A Q 10 8 7 5
♥ A K 6 4
♦ K
♣ K 9

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 N. T.	Pass
2 N. T.	3 ♣	3 N. T.	Pass
Pass	Pass

West's partner having passed originally, West opened the queen of diamonds instead of a club. East, after long deliberation, during which time the dew began to form on Phil's brow as he began to realize the terrible catastrophe that was facing him, decided not to give up his only reëntry and played low. Whereupon Spitalny, with a roar of glee, proceeded to run off six spades and six hearts for four overtricks.

Imagine what would have happened if East had gone up with the ace of diamonds and returned the club queen! East and West would then have run thirteen tricks against the declarer. It would have been a lesson that Phil would have remembered—until the next session!

The worst plays at the bridge table are those that have nothing to gain and everything to lose. A fair judge will not be too hard on a player who has made a bad play in the farfetched hope of gaining a necessary trick, but no sentence is too severe for plays without point. The hand below is an illustration:

♥ Q 6
♦ Q 7 5 2

WEST	EAST
♠ K 10 8 4	♠ —
♥ J 2	♥ A K 9 8 7 4 3
♦ J 10	♦ 9 8 6 4 3
♣ 10 8 7 5 3	♣ J

SOUTH
♠ A Q 9 5 3 2
♣ 9 6 2

The bidding (both sides vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♥
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Double (final bid)

West opened the eight of hearts and East cashed two tricks in the suit, after which he led a diamond. Declarer won and led a low trump up to dummy.

Now it was that West made a horrible error. It should have been perfectly obvious that he could never win more than two trump tricks, his king and ten, and with two heart tricks already home the very least he should have done was to protect these trump tricks. But, quite carelessly, he played the four spot to the first lead.

Declarer, it is true, still had to make a magnificent guess—he could hardly believe that West, holding K 10 8 4 of trumps, would fail to put up the eight to force dummy's jack. But, on the other hand, it looked even more unlikely, with all the top cards in the other suits accounted for, that he could have doubled unless he held those trumps! On this theory declarer played the six of spades from dummy, and to his joy East failed to follow suit. Thus only one trump trick was lost and the doubled contract fulfilled.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, April 13.

Spade the garden, working in a good quantity of well decayed manure. If the ground is intended for somewhat later use it may be left in the rough and raked later on. It is well to remember that if the soil is not in good condition the plants cannot be expected to give their maximum utility or beauty. Working in a quantity of humus-forming material will aid heavy soils and also sandy soils. Highly colored flowers should be planted in a sunny location, pastel shades will last over a longer period if given partial shade. Plant trees, shrubs, and hardy vines as soon as possible. Always give plenty of room for the roots, without crowding.

Tuesday, April 14.

Hedges that were fall planted should be cut back to within eight inches of the ground. The new true columnberry, a variety of barberry, is upright growing and clothes itself with good foliage from top to bottom. It is related to the new evergreen berberis mentorensis. For a low clipped hedge the fox barberry is suitable for small gardens as it can be easily kept at a twelve inch height. To prolong the life of the perennial border, work in a quantity of fertilizer by spading it into the lower layer of soil.

Wednesday, April 15.

Grow a clematis, but place the graft two inches or more beneath the surface of the soil. The silver lace vine will grow where few other vines will flourish. The plants are woody only at the base, but many new shoots will appear at the base each spring. The wild grape is well adapted to many situations, but must be kept in bounds. Seeds of the variegated hop vine may be sown. This is a fast growing plant, frequently growing 20 feet in a season. It needs support, but stands shade well. Sow Japanese morning glory seed in full sun for the finest flowers.

Thursday, April 16.

Plant strawberries as soon as the ground can be worked and the plants procured. Set 12 to 18 inches apart in rows three feet apart. They like a good, rich soil. Divide perennials as soon as they are showing well above the ground. Use division large enough to make a strong growth. Try a few new kinds of phlox, but do not allow seed to form. Lilacs and clematis like a little lime worked into the soil. There is still time to sow seeds of the dwarf dahlias in boxes in the house. Many fine colors are available, the single kinds being useful for cutting.

Friday, April 17.

Hardy lilies should be planted early. Plant the bulbs on a layer of sand and at the specified depths for bulb and stem rooters. Small, tender plants that are being grown for bedding should be hardened—off in the coldframe—outdoors. Make chrysanthemum cuttings for growing in the garden and for lifting and potting next autumn. A surprisingly good show can easily be had and without much trouble. Burn all branches that are pruned from rose plants as they may contain insects and disease.

Saturday, April 18.

Plant gladioli, tuberoses, and summer hyacinth as soon as the ground warms up. The side growths of home grown tuberoses should be removed before planting, as they hinder the rapid and strong growth of the main bulb. A flowering crabapple planted in the corner of the backyard often serves as a screen and it is beautiful when in flower. If vegetables are grown be sure to plant for a succession and avoid wasting ground. Sow peas every two weeks and make three sowings of sweet corn during the summer or select early and late varieties.

Dash of Color Dramatizes a Neutral Shade

Here Are Hints on Giving Sparkle to Blue, Gray, Black, Brown, and Beige.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

AS promised, today in our series on how to build beauty with color you are given suggestions for the new color combinations that dramatize clothes, also hints on makeup colors to complete the ensemble.

Black: Comes in many shades, from the dowdy, rusty, grayish, greenish, brownish blacks to the most distinguished of clear black tones. Ultimate smartness depends primarily on getting the good black tone. It has been said that in black a woman can be either dowdy, chic, or insignificant. Here's where makeup art must express itself with particular effectiveness. Lips must be bright and eye shadow cleverly adopted in one of the many new shades to compliment the eye coloring, preferably the gray blues and jade greens if you are other than a black-eyed brunette. The latter should stick to her dark eyeshadow and mascara, with little, if any, rouge on her cheeks, but a bright, warm lipstick would be her choice.

Daring White Ideal Accessory Note for Clear Black Garment.

With black choose clear and daring white for accessory notes. Organdy touches lose their clear whiteness against black, as compared with white pique, for instance. Black with vivid blue and white is good. Black with yellow is lovely. Molyneux made a leading fashion of separate yellow accessories, such as bag and gloves. Silver with black is excellent, either in jewelry or silver trim. In the latter event, add one touch of bright red or vivid green.

Gray: This is a cold color to be dared as a solid costume only by the young and the older woman whose vital coloring has been in no way dimmed by time. Again, let us remind you to avoid the muddy tones, the elephant-hide tones. Lay in your stock of new cosmetics for grays, because you'll need them. With them, however, and with the clear gray dress tone, you can be a silver dream. You want the warm tint of cherries and raspberries in your rouge and lipstick. You want the lighter tints on your eyelids, such as the new French blueing color, not the dullish browns, gray greens, and so on. You want life and vitality in contrast with the gay dress fabric.

Dark Blue and Gray Are Ill Suited to Be Linked.

Dark blue, commonly tied with gray, is not the best shade. Here you have two cold colors. Unless a woman is naturally vivid, the effect of the two cold colors is eye chilling. A more vivid blue with the dramatic flash of bright red is more potent than dark blue. Velasquez's canvases of gray with their splashes of red indicate the combination as living drama. With gray the strongest pink [lobster pink] and dark green may be used. Poppies against gray are beautiful.

Brown: From wood nymph to dispirited old dowd runs the effect of browns, with intermediary shades that may give depth to brown eyes, rich glow to auburn tresses, and glorious warm tone to skins. On the other hand, some browns are so ugly they may be charged with criminal assault with their coarsening, lethering, and deadening of skin, hair, and spirit. Nevertheless, when skillfully chosen for clarity and its pure rich color, brown can be a gorgeous background for accessory colors and the makeup tones that are peculiarly right accent.

Some Browns Are Lovely Without Accessory Contrast.

There are browns beautiful enough in themselves to need little dramatizing with accessory shades, as the rich warm brown that is almost red and the pure dark chocolate brown of cake-frosting familiarity. With brown a subtle almond green or a brilliant emerald green may be used effectively. With ivory [not white] as a third color note, you have a happy trio. With chocolate brown, a bright shade of yellow with flash of pansy purple is charming.

Tans and beiges: Being light shades in themselves, combining pastel tones with tan and beige is likely to prove anemic. A flash of strong color serves better. A soot black combined with beige to which is added more than a suspicion of vermilion red is beautiful. Brown with tan, so commonly used, is decreed by dress connoisseurs, unless a dark brown is used, such as the chocolate-cake frosting brown just described.

Flag Blue Preferable to Navy Blue with Tan.

Flag blue is preferable to navy blue with tan. For the dramatic note add a dash of raspberry red. When beige gets into the light tones you may use as accessory notes a dark brown with light green, or the third "interest" note with a bit of dark brown may be violet. The violet, beige, and green combination is most attractive.

Blues: Navy, with some women, has become their uniform and a universally becoming shade it is, with perhaps, more candid skin and eyes and hair flattery in its color composition than any other neutral shade. Still its popularity robs it of dash that might be restored with an accessory color out of the ordinary. Gray is a commonly adopted accessory color. Yet, here you have your two cold colors again. There's red [any clear red] which is excellent with blue, or red and white [again our flag colors, which are beautiful]. Or red and beige with blue is good.

With blue the soft light greens may be used effectively and another color may be added, such as red or violet. Brick red with blue is good, to which may be added a touch of almond green. Old rose pastel and dark blue go well together.

These same colors would not serve the off-blue shades, such as the purplish blues, more recognizable, perhaps, as bachelor button and cornflower blues. Nor do they serve the greenish blues, such as aqua and jade tones. With the greenish blue, introduce a flash of vermilion red; with the purplish blue the better choice would be American beauty red. Being strong colors, these off-blues are best with only one accessory touch. A bit of violet with jade green is good. A rich black or a rich dark red goes for the purplish blue.

Next Sunday we'll take up white, reds, greens, yellows, purples, and pinks.

Londoners Plan Centenary Show of Dickensiana

LONDON An exhibition of first editions, autographed letters, and other Dickensiana is being organized in connection with the Pickwick centenary. Dickens first editions have suffered much less than most during the slump. A "Pickwick Papers," in its original parts, with all the advertisments at the end intact, fetched about $7,000 in 1924, $25,000 in 1929, and the same papers would fetch about $20,000 today. A first edition of "David Copperfield" would be worth between $350 and $400.

Next to Pickwick the most valuable first edition of Dickens is "The Strange Gentleman," a little known play published in 1837 with a frontispiece by Phiz. There seem to be only five or six copies of the original extant, and these are worth about $2,500.

The South Kensington museum holds some of the original manuscripts of the "Pickwick Papers" for which nearly $25,000 per page was paid a few years ago.

London Plans Events to Have Role of Courts

Royal Mourning Prohibits Festivity, but Informal Functions Are Rumored.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON Britain's "business king" may be depended upon to see that, in spite of court mourning, the London season will be bright enough not to rob the luxury trades of their harvest.

With the return of the lord chamberlain to London after his health cruise comes the question of what functions, if any, are to be substituted for the canceled courts as an equivalent to presentations. The fact that something is likely to be substituted is of first importance. Substituted functions will not alter the fact that court mourning still continues and that Queen Mary probably will not take any part in them. But the 1936 crop of 300 to 400 debutantes must, in some way, be recognized. The London trades, some of which barely live from season to season, must be permitted to reap their usual harvest from the élite of the counties and shires who pay their homage annually to their sovereign, not to mention the wealth that pours in from foreigners and colonials who also make London the mecca of the spring.

There Are Rumors of Some Informal Evening Parties.

In well informed quarters I hear rumor of one or two evening parties which would be of a much more informal nature than the courts and, unfortunately, much less spectacular. It is more than possible that the duchess of York would be the king's hostess at such functions. He is fond of his sister-in-law and calls her privately "Queen Elizabeth." With so young a king, surrounded by so young and vivacious a family of dukes and duchesses, people look forward to a gay and eventful court life following the termination of court mourning.

Queen Mary still is living at Buckingham palace, but is finding much to employ her time supervising the preparations for taking up residence in Marlborough house. She pays frequently visits there with the princess royal, who has been staying at Buckingham palace with her mother ever since her father died. Her private rooms are being redecorated at the moment, and a quantity of furniture, pictures, and other items which were left to King George by his sister, Princess Victoria, at her death in November, are being moved into Marlborough house from the Coppins, Iver, Buckinghamshire.

King's Detectives Changed; Former Ones Walk Too Slowly.

The king, still living at St. James's palace, drives to his office in Buckingham palace every morning. He even walks there sometimes, and there is a story that there had to be a change in detectives who follow him, because the chosen ones could not walk swiftly enough.

Queen Mary and the king are not the only ones involved in the domestic shake-up of the new accession. Princess Victoria left the Coppins, Iver, Buckinghamshire, to the duke and duchess of Kent. So, as her things are being moved out to the queen's new home in Marlborough house, the duke's things are going in. This means, of course, the remodeling of the old house to include a nursery for the little Prince Edward of Kent.

Duchess of Kent Personally Supervising Redecoration.

The duchess of Kent is personally supervising the new nurseries and the redecorating is being done in the modern manner with just that display of good and lasting taste which makes her the joy of dressmakers and decorators. The duke and duchess expect to take up residence there in June. The big and profitable farm attached to Princess Victoria's estate is being rented to tenants. Her herds of fine cattle were sold some time ago.

The duke and duchess of York are expecting to take up a different residence as soon as possible. It is necessary for the duke, as next in succession, to keep up a bigger and grander establishment as heir than was necessary when he was once removed from the throne. This involves another royal move not yet decided upon. The duke and duchess of Gloucester seem to be the only settled ones, at Aldershot.

There are only a very few custom-built radios produced . . . but you must use them as the standards of comparison by which to judge this outstanding example of radio engineering. It was not built down to a price, but was designed to be the finest radio modern science could produce. We could write pages and pages about its many features, but nothing we could say would ever convey to you the engineering perfection, the precision construction of the chassis, the high fidelity of the tone and the beauty of the cabinet. So, again we say, you must come in and judge for yourself.

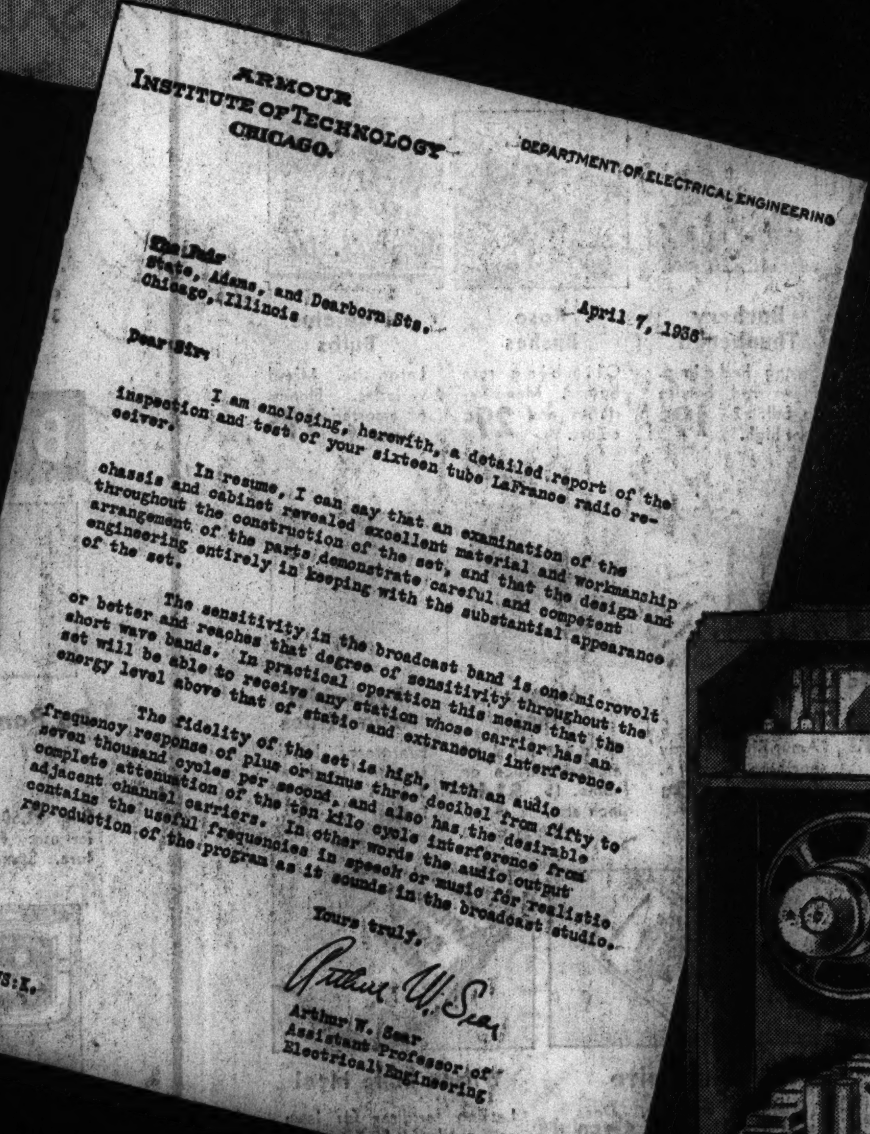
This Set Receives the Ultra-Short Wave Two-Way Police Calls



ARMOUR INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY CHICAGO. DEPARTMENT OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

The Fair
State, Adams, and Dearborn Sts.
Chicago, Illinois

April 7, 1936

Dear Sir:

I am enclosing, herewith, a detailed report of the inspection and test of your sixteen tube LaFrance radio receiver.

In resume, I can say that an examination of the chassis and cabinet revealed excellent material and workmanship throughout the construction of the set, and that the design and arrangement of the parts demonstrate careful and competent engineering entirely in keeping with the substantial appearance of the set.

The sensitivity in the broadcast band is one microvolt or better and reaches that degree of sensitivity throughout the short wave bands. In practical operation this means that the set will be able to receive any station whose carrier has an energy level above that of static and extraneous interference.

The fidelity of the set is high, with an audio frequency response of plus or minus three decibel from fifty to seven thousand cycles per second, and also has the desirable complete attenuation of the ten kilo cycle interference from adjacent channel carriers. In other words the audio output contains the useful frequencies in speech or music for realistic reproduction of the program as it sounds in the broadcast studio.

Yours truly,

Arthur W. Sear
Arthur W. Sear

Reproduced above is a letter received from the Armour Institute of Technology attesting to the mechanical superiority of this radio.

5 IMPORTANT FACTS

1. TREMENDOUS VOLUME. In actual tests this set was easily heard in all parts of the huge Chicago Civic Opera House. Thirty watts of undistorted output.

New Expedition Moves on Everest, Tallest Mountain

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

AGAIN the tallest mountain awaits the assaults of man.

On or about the 21st of next month the 1936 British expedition under the leadership of Hugh Ruttledge will launch a new and a superhuman effort to reach the peak of Mount Everest from camp No. 4 on the wind-swept slopes of giant North Col, 23,000 feet above sea level.

Members of the expedition believe that this time the mountain god will be conquered, that the awesome peak that has claimed at least fourteen lives will be scaled. They base their belief on the fact that this newest expedition, the fifth of its kind, is more thoroughly prepared for the task ahead than any of the others and that the men who will do the actual climbing over the last torturous thousand feet will be more certain of success.

Already the expedition is on its way to Everest, which lies in the remote kingdom of Nepal, just south of Tibet and just north of Bengal and the United Provinces of British India. The twelve Britons who will battle rare atmosphere, terrific winds, subzero temperatures, and the peril of death from a misstep on the lofty walls of the giant mountain left Darjeeling, India, on March 9. Their first stop was at Kalimpong, 30 miles from Darjeeling, where they rested a few days before setting off on the great adventure. From Darjeeling to Mount Everest the distance by air is only 90 miles, but the roundabout route being taken by Ruttledge and his companions, afoot and with pack trains along narrow, winding paths and through deep-cut valleys, is approximately 300 miles. The map in the lower left-hand corner of this page shows both the air route and the land route from Darjeeling to Everest, although it was impossible for the artist to depict every twist and turn of the last-named course, which make it more than three times as long as the distance that an airplane flies.

The expedition, including its British members and native guides and helpers, is expected to reach North Col, well up toward the crest of the mountain and little more than 6,000 feet from its highest point, about May 21. If the weather at that time seems favorable an attempt will be made at once to climb to the summit. If the weather is unfavorable there will be a delay.

If the mountain top is reached it will be by two men only, although four two-man teams will be employed in the assault upon the peak. One team will push as far up as possible within a given time and within the limits of its endurance, preparing a path as it goes, establishing a temporary camp, and then standing by as another team comes up and passes. A third and a fourth team in succession will storm up toward the crest. In this way the final few hundred feet will be the assignment of the last and supposedly freshest team. This is somewhat the same method employed by other expeditions in attempting to scale the mountain.

The business of selecting the members of the new Everest expedition has been carried out in a highly scientific manner. Candidates for membership last summer were tested as to their climbing ability and their fitness in other ways in brief forays into the Alps. Some were rejected and others chosen. While these trials were going on, Eric Shipton, a veteran of four Everest expeditions, was leading a preliminary reconnaissance on the lower reaches of the highest mountain, making notes to be used later and testing other candidates for membership in the 1936 expedition.

'Winterset,' Poetic Tragedy, Comes to Chicago

Drama Critics of East Voted It Year's Best

Maxwell Anderson Puts Spirit of Classics in Tale of New York Slums.

By Charles Collins.

THE arrival of Maxwell Anderson's drama, "Winterset," at the Harris theater tomorrow night means Chicago's opportunity to see the play that the dramatic critics of New York, sitting together in a mystic circle, have voted the best of the year. This fact does not impress me greatly, for I know that dramatic critics, in New York and elsewhere, have a habit of tossing their caps in the air, dancing in the streets and exhibiting other symptoms of emotional unbalance at least fifteen times every year over plays of no particular importance.

Moreover, the practice of issuing such proclamations of supreme excellence, by groups, gatherings, culture clubs, academies, university foundations, hotel keepers' associations, press agent coteries and bathing suit manufacturers is rapidly becoming a national vice. Therefore the verdict in favor of "Winterset" impresses me in much the same manner as the election of a new Atlantic City "Miss America," whose shape will be the same as that of her multitudinous predecessors.

I take a more lively interest in the fact that "Winterset" deals with a tragedy of contemporary American life, largely in the medium of verse. It boldly seeks to put poetry back upon its theatrical throne without using the trappings of the past and the glamor of a bygone historical period to sustain its lofty mood. This is a daring enterprise—an intrepid stroke of literary experiment.

Author's Hope for Poetic Drama.

Maxwell Anderson himself is the man who should speak on this aspect of "Winterset" in advance of its Chicago première. It happens that he has stated his intentions admirably in the preface to the printed play, and he deserves to be heard. Here, then, is the author's statement of his case, in part:

"I have a strong and chronic hope that the theater of this country will outgrow the phase of journalistic social comment and occasionally reach into the upper air of poetic tragedy. I believe with Goethe that dramatic poetry is man's greatest achievement on his earth so far.

"I have only that skill as a poet which may come from long practice of an art I have loved and studied and cannot let alone. When I wrote my first play, 'White Desert,' I wrote it in verse because I was weary of plays in prose that never lifted from the ground. It failed, and I did not come back to verse again until I had discovered that poetic tragedy had never been successfully written about its own place and time.

An Experiment in Modern Tragedy.

"There is not one tragedy by Æschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Shakespeare, Corneille, or Racine which did not have the advantage of a setting either far away or long ago. With this admonition in mind I wrote 'Elizabeth the Queen' and a succession of historical plays in verse, some of them successful, and immediately found myself labeled a historical and romantic playwright, two terms I found equally distasteful.

"'Winterest' is largely in verse and treats a contemporary tragic theme, which makes it more of an experiment than I could wish, for the great masters themselves never tried to make tragic poetry out of the stuff of their own times. To do so is to attempt to establish a new convention. . . . Whether I have solved the problem in 'Winterset' is probably of little moment. But it must be solved if we are to have a great theater in America."

Echoes of an Old Murder Trial.

The contemporary material with which Mr. Anderson deals in this drama is life in a slum street in New York under the shadow of a great bridge. The tragic theme is a young man's search for proof that his father, executed as a murderer, had been innocent—not merely to clear his family record of the stain, but also to purge his heart of the hatred against society with which it burns. The murder case in the background is plainly intended to be that of Sacco and Vanzetti—an incident which Mr. Anderson used in his "Gods of the Lightning," unsuccessfully staged eight years ago.

The central rôle is acted by Burgess Meredith, an actor of striking gifts, and the inevitable girl is played by a young Mexican who is professionally known only as Margo. Guthrie McClintic, Miss Cornell's husband, was the stage director and producer.

Tonight, at the Studebaker, two young Chicagoans, brothers, named Paul and Adolph Salvatori, will bravely make their début in the drama by staking a piece called "From Out of the Darkness," written by the former. Its announcements suggest a work of the murder mystery type. The cast is professional.

Last night's première of "At Home Abroad," a Broadway revue with Beatrice Lillie, Ethel Waters, and Mitzi Mayfair as stars, at the Grand Opera house, will be reviewed in tomorrow's TRIBUNE.

Cugat Opens at the Stevens Next Friday

Spanish-American Show Moves from Stage to the Continental Room.

NEXT Friday is the date set for the next opening in the Continental room at the Stevens hotel. The postponement from April 15 is due to Xavier Cugat's extended engagement at the Chicago theater. This Spanish-American orchestra and revue contains Ramon and Renita, dancers; Goff and Kerr, singers, and Carmen Castillo [Mrs. Cugat], prima donna.

● Evelyn Chandler, world's premier woman figure skater, and Roy Shipstad, called the "human top of the ice," rejoined the skating show in the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman last night with the opening of Abe Lyman and his Californians band. Lyman's entertainers include Pierce and Harris, ballroom dance duo; Rose Blane and Phil Neely, vocalists; Edgar Bergen, ventriloquist, and "Tiny" Wolfe, comedian and dancer. The ice skating show appears in new costumes.

● Jack Hylton, English director of the revue, now in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel, has given many command performances for royalty. Starting next Tuesday in the Drake rendezvous, Hylton will give the first of a series of "royal command" performances—the exact show he staged for the king and queen of England at his last command performance in London.

● Phil Levant's orchestra and singers are giving a new floor show in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. Roy, Rita and Roule, dance trio, have returned to the Walnut room after an absence of two years. Le Paul, card manipulator, also is featured. Levant's featured vocalists are Shirley Allen and Eddie Edwards.

● The Yacht club's show, starring Chick Endor and Charlie Farrell, has two new acts—Arlene and Norman Selby, dancing brother and sister team—and Ruth Delmar, singer. Dick Ware, master of ceremonies, and Eddie Smyth's band continue.

● The Easter week-end at the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms promises to be the gayest in many years. Today will find two orchestras at each ballroom. At the Aragon Freddy Martin's orchestra continues; the Trianon features Kay Kyser. Tomorrow will give Trianon dancers the opportunity of hearing both Kyser and Martin.

● Giovanni, comic "pickpocket," in the Palmer house Empire room's "Springtime Revue," will end his engagement next Wednesday evening. He will return to London to begin rehersals in a Cochrane revue. Bob Hall, the singing rhymster; Manya and Drigo, dancers; the Abbott Dancers, and Ted Weems' music complete the Empire room production.

● Margot Rebeil, whose musical comedy personality and operatic voice scored a definite hit when she made her night club debut last year, returns as star of the new floor show which opened last Friday night at Harry's New York cabaret. She has appeared in European operas and musical comedies. Also new in the show are Terry and Walker, a comedy dance team. Al Wagner and Billy Meyers, song duo, have also returned. Jack Irving, singing master of ceremonies, and the Beatrice Gardner Girls' chorus remain.

● Ted Lewis and his orchestra and floor show continue in the Terrace room of the Hotel Morrison. The engagement will end May 7. Sophie Tucker and her orchestra, directed by Jack Fulton, assisted by Ted Shapiro, will open in the Terrace room on May 8. This will be the first time that Miss Tucker has had her own orchestra.

SINGS IN FLOOR SHOW AT STEVENS

Kay Mayfield sings "torch" songs in the current cabaret show offered by the Continental room of the Stevens hotel. Xavier Cugat's Spanish-American band will begin an engagement on April 17.

Stowkowski Explains Art of Interpreting Score

Always Plays His Favorite Compositions

Believes Conductor Must Have Natural Affinity for Work He Directs.

By Edward Barry.

PLEASE do not turn another page until you have read this timely little article on Leopold Stokowski, the youthful, vital, white haired conductor who is to bring his Philadelphia Symphony orchestra to the Auditorium next Friday. Why should I turn out at dawn to intercept traveling maestros darting through the city on their way from one ocean to the other if you are going to skip right over this to the movie page? The maestros could be met quite comfortably, and at a civilized hour, on an actual concert date when they have settled down in Chicago for a day or two.

The old Dearborn station, important with the coming and going of trains, spread its low roof, one recent morning, over a knot of people who stood talking rapidly among themselves near the door of the main waiting room. From the middle of the group rose the tall, distinguished figure of the famous director. He was dressed in a quiet blue suit, with only the ribbon of the Legion of Honor to give it color, and wore neither hat nor topcoat. His right arm hung in a sling as a result of an accident en route.

The pale, serious, unsmiling face was intent on the subjects at hand. He spoke to the men and women around him of his orchestra, the two projected tours, his recent injury, American music.

Stowkowski Does the Interviewing.

There were introductions, with the Stokowski friendliness transmitted through the clasp of the unimpaired left hand, and, a few minutes later, a group of five or six of us filled a bulging cab for the ride to the doctor's office. An X-ray was taken immediately, and Mr. Stokowski resigned himself to another interview in the anteroom, while he awaited [rather nervously, of course, for a conductor's right wrist is a highly important part of his anatomy] the results of the pictures.

But, as it turned out, there was no interview after all. The atmosphere of the comfortable lounge drew the maestro out, and he spoke freely and fervently despite the inner tension from which he must have been suffering. My questions were of little importance in the sum total of conversation, except that they touched, briefly enough, on subjects in which he was deeply interested.

In other words, Mr. Stokowski took charge of the interview and used the questions, or some chance phrase or fugitive idea contained in them, as starting points for interesting talks on several phases of music. Will it help any in this almost impossible task of describing the flavor of an unknown personality to emphasize again the fact that he does not smile and that there is an almost religious fervor in his voice when his beloved art is under discussion? Mr. Stokowski interrupts a question when a word reminds him of something with which he is intensely preoccupied. These digressions composed the most interesting part of the interview.

Explains Phenomenon of Interpretation.

He described vividly the excitement of conducting a fine orchestra. Stokowski deprecates the value of endless rehersal of such things as nuance. The exaltation and the emotional urge of the moment of projection are, he says, the determining factors in the phenomenon we call interpretation. And interpretation is a big word, including in itself all the details of tempo, dynamics, phrasing, and coloring that go to make a finished performance.

I was interested in trying to find out something about the attitude of the eager and meticulous type of musician [as against the matter of fact Schnabel - Rachmaninoff - Milstein variety] toward works with which he has been dealing for years. Does the Brahms Fourth, for instance, get to be just another piece of music [time, 44 minutes; effectiveness, C plus; difficulty, B plus], or does it keep, through three or four decades of intimacy, the same fabulous beauty of early acquaintance? In other language, is the interpreter's seeming intoxication with its loveliness completely genuine after a hundred playings?

Only Directs Music He Really Likes.

Mr. Stokowski says yes, emphatically. He believes that the experience of projecting work of such grandeur is one of the greatest that can come to a man. The music floods through body and soul both—perhaps a phrase will sound as it has never sounded before, some new beauty will flash from an old familiar gem. The conductor lets the music play itself, using his huge orchestra and his own highly strung emotional nature as a great Æolian harp. Those of you who are busily engaged in organizing that Beverly Hills Symphony orchestra are asked not to use this method for a long time.

Closely related to the foregoing is another idea common to Stokowski and a great many other wise interpreters. He does not program music for which he has no natural affinity, because these highly flexible interpretations would, in that case, be an impossibility. Anton Bruckner is an example of a composer whom this dynamic conductor respects but does not love. His language is foreign, his esthetic ideas objectively good, but belonging to another type of art. Bruckner, if Stokowski had to play him, would be correct and musicianly, but incapable of igniting an audience. His first task, that of igniting the conductor, would be impossible of accomplishment.

Leopold Stokowski believes implicitly in the validity of music's immediate emotional appeal. He does not like to see people intently following scores and preparing to tell their friends that night that the diminuendo at the beginning of the fourth movement of Joe Blow's Twelfth Symphony ended one bar later than it did in last year's performance of the same work.

Starting Investigations in Sound Production Work.

The music will deliver its own message, he thinks, and details of its performance, even titles and background, are irrelevant. For this reason, possibly, he did not want to talk about the program to be presented in Chicago and turned all questions on the subject into other channels.

At about this point the director was called back into the doctor's office. He emerged a minute later with the news that the injury to his wrist was nothing but a minor sprain. Recent information from the east indicates that Mr. Stokowski will have regained full use of it in time for his Chicago concert.

On the subject of the sound production work for which he resigned his full time post with the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra [Eugene Ormondy of the Minneapolis orchestra is taking most of the Philadelphia programs next season] the maestro hopes that his investigations may open up some unthought of avenue of research, and that his efforts will result in a closer approach to perfect fidelity to the original in radio and recorded reproductions of various ensembles of instruments. The belief that some such avenue exists is very close to his heart, for it was one of the first things mentioned when the conversation switched to sound production.

Mr. Stokowski describes possible progress along these lines as a steady advance through three successive stages. In the first, the present one, the full tonal possibilities of an orchestra and the whole bewildering palette of colors can only be exploited perfectly in the concert hall. Some of the more delicate shades are lost in transmission, some of the less delicate are subtly changed in character. Even the relative values change slightly, for a combination of two colors, eminently satisfactory in an auditorium, may fail of perfect blend when reproduced by electrical means.

The second stage, which we are approaching, will find both the relative and absolute values the same, in the concert hall, in recorded music, over the air. Even the dainty harmonics of a violin, the gruff growl of the lowest octave on the double bass, will be transmitted through electrical media perfectly.

Publicity Hasn't Blinded the Genius of Maestro.

And, finally, the science of sound production will advance the cause of music through its ability to work out effects impossible in flesh and blood performance. The conquered kilocycles will yield up secrets that man could never have guessed unaided. New tone colors, strange to present day music, will be the result, and the expressive range of the art will be indefinitly extended. This last stage, somehow, does not sound any too attractive, although somebody said the same thing when that doughty Cro-Magnon dared to voice his heretical doubt that the boom of war clubs on taut animal skins was music's final development.

It is impossible to exaggerate Stokowski's enthusiasm and singleness of purpose. He has given his life to music and called it a good bargain. This gentle and inexhaustible art is still his greatest interest, and the glare of publicity, under which these last twenty years have been spent, apparently has not blinded those keen eyes to the essential worth of his craft. This craft, to put it simply, consists in playing on the most complex of musical instruments—the modern symphony orchestra—works of such importance and value that a sensitive, and understanding, and exact reproduction of them is sufficient to sound the emotional deeps of man. Stokowski does not play tricks with great music. His liberties are not liberties at all, in a strict sense of the word, but attempts to preserve the spirit of the original despite the radical changes in the modes of projection. This last refers primarily to Bach, of course, and to those Stokowski transcriptions of the old master which find a place on so many programs—including the one to be played in Chicago next Friday night. The whole first half consists of Bach, the second of Wagner. Only the latter's "Götterdämmerung" is represented.

Here are a few biographical details on Stokowski, which I shall crib shamelessly from a handy encyclopedia to save you the trouble. He was born in London in 1882, studied in that city and in Paris, came to America early in the century as an organist, became conductor of the Cincinnati orchestra in 1909 and of the Philadelphia three years later, and resigned from that post this season. There is some haziness as to whether he has really resigned or not, it seems, for next year's plans call for several concerts under his direction, and he will continue to have a great deal to say about the musical policies of the orchestra.

And some facts about the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra. It consists of 106 musicians traveling in a ten car special train on this, the most ambitious tour ever undertaken by such an organization. The total mileage will be about 8,000. A recent release sets the value of the instruments being toted along at $250,000, and the total weight of the 106 musicians at fifty tons. No revised figure has come through on this last item, so you can accept it as correct.

[in collaboration with Laurence Stallings], in 1924; "Outside Looking In" [about hoboes], in 1925; "Saturday's Children" [about young people who can't afford to get married], in 1926; "Gods of the Lightning" [in collaboration with Harold Hickerson], in 1927; "Elizabeth the Queen," in 1930; "Both Your Houses" [an attack on congressional corruption], in 1933; "Mary of Scotland," and "Valley Forge."

"Social" Drama.

"The Young Go First," staged by the Chicago Repertory group, will be repeated on April 19 at Foresters hall, 1016 North Dearborn street. This play deals with CCC camps.

Glorious Week for Chicago's Music Lovers

The Symphony Orchestra Will Close Its Season with Four Concerts.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra celebrates the approaching end of its season by scheduling four concerts in a row this week. A program for young people, Wednesday afternoon at 3:45, will feature a memorial number dedicated to the late William J. Bogan. D'Indi's Second Symphony, and the overture to "The Flying Dutchman" provide the frame for Nathan Milstein's appearances Thursday night and Friday afternoon, in Mendelssohn's violin Concerto.

NATHAN MILSTEIN.

Milstein has been known to America only since 1929. In that brief time he has established himself as a prime favorite in all the principal cities of the country. The man is of Russian birth, about 32 years old, and as highly thought of in Europe and South America as he is here. Milstein already has made one Chicago appearance this season, in an Orchestra hall recital some weeks ago.

The last popular concert of the year is scheduled for Saturday night. Beethoven's Seventh Symphony is its most spectacular item. In addition there are Lieberson's "In a Winter Garden," the "American Rhapsody," that was introduced here by its composer, Efrem Zimbalist, a month or so ago, and Massenet's "Scenes Neapolitaines."

The Symphony's season closes on April 24.

The North Park college auditorium, out on the northwest side, is the scene, this coming Tuesday evening, of a concert by Lucille Brogan, harpist; Harold Reever, pianist, and Kathryn Gutekunst, mezzo-contralto.

Cameron McLean, a Scotchman with an impressive collection of press notices from large cities of this country, sings a recital at the Chicago Woman's club Wednesday afternoon. His accompanist is Mabelle Howe Mabel, a pupil of Frank La Forge.

Max Bendix, one of Chicago's most colorful musicians, will be honored next Sunday night by a banquet and concert to be held in the Auditorium hotel. A large committee, which includes many persons active in the musical life of the city, is working for the success of the undertaking.

Mr. Bendix was Theodore Thomas' concertmaster for ten years. He held a corresponding post, at one time or another, under Van Der Stucken and Seidl. He has conducted at the Metropolitan opera, at several world's fairs which have featured symphony orchestras, and is now in charge of the Federal Music project's symphony orchestra, here in Chicago.

Pauline Goldberg and Ruth Grossberg, two Chicagoans, will play a program of music for one and two pianos at Kimball hall next Sunday.

In little Zeisler hall, at the Chicago Woman's club, Lillian Nathan, another pianist, plays a solo recital on the same afternoon. The program consists primarily of music seldom played in public, and promises to be refreshing and interesting for that reason. Beethoven's Sonata Pathetique and a Sonata in E minor by Haydn are examples.

Piano music fills every available cubicle in and around the loop on April 19. Harry Crismore will be up in the pleasant Auditorium recital hall, busy with a program that includes three of his own compositions. Another unusual feature will be a performance of two movements of the Chopin E minor Concerto, with the orchestral parts played on a second piano by Mae Doelling-Schmidt.

The hundred members of the Chicago Association of Commerce Glee club will assemble on the stage of Orchestra hall April 21 for a concert under Arthur Dunham's direction. There will be a boy soloist—the winner of the contest conducted by this organization in the public high schools of the city.

Dorothy Crost and Berenice Jacobson, duo-pianists of accomplishment, enlist the aid of Lilyan Sacks, a dramatic soprano of unusual range, in a program to be given Wednesday, April 22, in the Chicago Woman's club theater.

The famous St. Olaf Lutheran choir, one of the best organizations of its kind in America, sings April 24 at Orchestra hall. Under its distinguished director, F. Melius Christiansen, the choir will dare the complexities of a taxing program of unfamiliar music. Included are two works of Dr. Christiansen himself. The choir was in Germany in the summer of 1930 and brought back some enthusiastic notices. Its home is in Northfield, Minn.

Radie Britain, Chicago composer, has won first prize in the string quartet division of the American Pen Women's competition. The quartet will be played at the organization's national convention in Washington, April 15. Miss Britain has been invited to return to the MacDowell colony at Peterborough this summer for creative work.

"THE DIVINE FLAME"

This is Marta Eggerth, the Hungarian movie actress, as she appears in "The Divine Flame"—a foreign production now on the World Playhouse screen. Miss Eggerth came to America recently to make films in Hollywood.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Well, the marines have landed again!

But — one thing — person, rather—they didn't have well in hand was their own little buddy, that devil dog, Woody Davis!

Woody's propensity for getting himself and his loyal friends into scrapes finally bears most awful fruit . . .

In a café brawl—for which he isn't responsible, for once—one of his best loved pals is killed. This affair results in Woody's dismissal from the navy.

See him, then, hot on the trail of the brute who had shot Tubby Waters . . . trail that leads him into a nasty nest of Chinese insurgents . . .

Woody's bravery and initiative result at last—but we'll leave the rest of the story for the picture to reveal.

While "The Leathernecks Have Landed" isn't super film fare, it's a lively, lusty movie that brings home forcefully the fact that marines—even a mere fistful of 'em—are mighty handy to have around in time of need. . . . What a few of the boys do to that so-called "rebel army" of yellow gun runners, while protecting an oil and a mining company in the Chinese interior, is pitiful—for the prey.

Of course there's a woman in the case. It was "women" until Woody gets kicked out. Then a lady known as "Brooklyn" comes through in no uncertain fashion, winning the undying fealty of the regenerated Woody and, indeed, the entire navy.

The film has some authentic looking backgrounds and maneuvers, and is reasonably fast, fierce—and funny.

BitsaBOUTem

If you think that life is all a bed of roses in the life of a dancing star, you're mistaken, for Jessie Matthews, petite English dancer, proves that tapping, pirouetting, and swaying for the future entertainment of the movie public is hard work. Recently while filming "It's Love Again" she danced more than thirty full choruses while light poured down from more than 200 studio lamps, and the thermometers hovered around 90 degrees HOT—and all the while Miss Matthews was clad from neck to ankles in a skin tight gown of gleaming silver cloth—whew! . . . Errol Flynn, the young Irishman who rose to stardom in "Captain Blood," has completed his biography, titled "Beam End," part of which tells his experiences while traveling with six chums in a boat from Australia to New Guinea. Reports say it's a thrilling opus. . . . Marlene Dietrich and Charles Boyer have signed to co-star in the forthcoming technicolor film, "The Garden of Allah." Merle Oberon was originally chosen to play the feminine lead, but withdrew from the cast in order to play the leading rôle in "Dark Victory," after which she plans to appear in a production for Alexander Korda, to whom she is under contract. . . . A fan of Barbara Stanwyck's from Trinidad in the West Indies sent her a riding crop made from part of a whale's spine and mounted in sterling silver. Her initials are engraved in the bone. Now Miss Stanwyck's looking for a horse. . . . Matt Moore and Aileen Pringle, both stars of the "silents," have been going places together lately. . . . As soon as Carole Lombard finishes work in "The Princess Comes Across" she plans to move into her brand new house in Bel-Air. . . . "Why Don't You Marry the Girl?" is the title of Claudette Colbert's next film. The story was just completed by Vina Delmar. Production will start as soon as Miss Colbert returns from her vacation in New York. . . . Robert Montgomery intends to turn professional writer some day. To date he has a trunk full of manuscripts he has written, which no other person has ever seen. . . . Harry Carey star of the silent western films, is on the road to a comeback in pictures. Except for extra parts in pictures and some circus work, he had no film work since "Trader Horn" until he was cast in "The Prisoner of Shark Island" and "Sutter's Gold."

See you tomorrow.

Plan to Do "Parnell" on Legit Stage

Actor Considers Comedy Ideal Vehicle in Motion Pictures at the Present.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—A man can do a better love scene with his wife than he can possibly with a woman who is merely an acquaintance, says Melvyn Douglas, husband of the beautiful and versatile Helen Gahagan, and then he proceeds to explain why.

Mr. Douglas' statement, which is contrary to popular ideas about love scenes between actors and their wives, is made on the basis of experience. He has played opposite Miss Gahagan several times, beginning with "Tonight or Never" done on the stage for Belasco. They first met playing that show together. After a few months they were married.

Then came "Mother Lode," in which they played the lovers. After that he directed his wife in "Moor Born," Dan Totheroh's play of the Brontë sisters, making an even severer test of the marital good feeling under professional stress. At the moment there are some plans for doing "Parnell" on the legitimate stage, husband and wife again playing the lovers.

"I think it is possible for a husband and wife to do a better love scene for an audience than it is for a couple who are not well acquainted," says Douglas. "There is a perfect ease established not possible with a stranger. Strictly speaking this shouldn't be so. If there is time for a couple to become acquainted and to develop camaraderie and ease before being required to do their love scenes, very well, but there must be a rhythm in a love scene which can only be established if a couple have known each other well.

"On the stage this is accomplished through weeks of rehersal. On the screen it is a difficult matter for a stage actor to be his best, for the opening shot he makes in a story might be the important love scene which supplies the high spot of the film. And it may be with a woman he has never before seen. His only protection against such an emergency is to see all the pictures the lady has been in and study her methods so that he will know what to expect.

"My first experience making love to Mrs. Douglas before the public was in 'Tonight or Never.' Some months later, after we were married, a little old lady approached us after the show one evening and said with a happy smile, 'I see by the papers you two young people are married.' 'Yes,' we said, 'and we're very happy.' 'That's lovely,' she said, and started to walk away. Then she came back and with a twinkle volunteered, 'I'm glad you're married. You know it was the only decent thing for you to do after that love scene in the second act.'"

Relies on Knowledge of Theater to Gain Success.

"How about directing your wife—it seems that might be a situation fraught with potentialities for domestic or artistic disaster," we hazarded.

"On the contrary, I enjoyed it thoroughly. Mrs. Douglas is so sensitive and responsive to direction that it was a pleasure to work with her. It worked all right for us because we're both capable of being objective.

"Creative work means that you're putting your very soul into what you're doing, and of course you're bound to have disagreements with any one you're working with. It's how you settle these disagreements that determines your success in the venture. We keep personalities out of it, because to both of us our work is too important to indulge in pertness, and we respect each other as artists."

Douglas, who is a tall, well built man, handsome, but not in the conventional manner, with a head of light blond hair and expressive blue eyes with a heavy fringe of long, almost white lashes, is not in any sense the typical actor. One senses he realizes that his youth and good looks have a salable value in the chosen profession, but that he is not much impressed with these qualities in himself, relying, rather, on his knowledge of the theater and his ability to obtain success and satisfaction.

Considers Comedy Ideal Vehicle in the Films.

His four years in and out of films have culminated in a suddenly rising popularity with audiences. He will be remembered in Greta Garbo's "As You Desire Me." Recent films include "And So They Were Married," with Mary Astor, for Columbia. Douglas is to go into Joan Crawford's next film, "The Gorgeous Hussy" [Peggy O'Neill], in the rôle of a politician from a proud Virginia family. Douglas is the real love of Peggy's life, but loses her twice through his pride of birth.

His last three film rôles have been comedy which Douglas says he considers the ideal vehicle in films. "Limitations on films bar things that are too harsh or too realistic, and because of this I do not think there has been one really serious film made yet," he says.

"The way directors and script writers can sidestep serious issues in their film stories leaves me speechless with admiration at their dexterity, but this necessity does limit the screen. There is something to be said in its favor, however. In the matter of 'The Children's Hour,' released as 'These Three,' the omission of the objectionable material included in the stage play makes the film better artistically and increases the value of the drama. The material which the film found it necessary to discard was, I am sure, thrown into the stage play simply to appeal to the public; it did not seem necessary to the motivation of the plot."

Glenda Farrell Finishes Three Picture Schedule.

Glenda Farrell, like a breath of spring itself in an ashes of roses woolly suit, pixie hat to match, trimmed with a pert blue ribbon tied in a bow, stopped to talk on Sunset boulevard. Glenda has just finished three pictures without any time off, "Snowed Under," "Lawyer Woman," and "Unconscious"—her weariness on the last picture making the title very apt, she's afraid.

Now Glenda's having some time off and is full of excitement over planting hundreds of pansy plants, asters, and other blooming things in her garden. "It took a couple of osteopaths and several days in bed to get my back unkinked after all that unusual endeavor," says Glenda. "Of course, I have a gardener, but if I say it myself I have a much better eye for artistic arrangements that he has.

"I have a couple of fine fig trees, two orange trees, lemons, nectarines, avocadoes, and peaches in my yard. I'm looking forward to seeing the grafted peach grow that I got from my uncle and aunt up in northern California.

Conversation turned to the Dionnes and their piteous complaints that they don't get to see their famous children. "They get to see the kids more than we movie mothers do," says Glenda seriously.

It's not always just a thirst for a career that keeps a star working after maternity comes into her life. Glenda and her girl friend, Joan Blondell, work with the thought of their children's education and well being in mind. "I want to get enough out of making films to provide my Tommy with a really good education along whatever lines he wants to follow," says Glenda. Gail Patrick is doing the same with her 19 year old brother, Dick Fitzpatrick, with a college technical course in mind."

Gene Raymond gives his friends gifts of St. Christopher plaques to put on the dashboards of their cars. St. Christopher, patron saint of travelers, is supposed to provide protection against travel accidents.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bouquets for Mae and Her Review of "Bride Comes Home."

Dear Mae Tinée: I wish to congratulate you upon your fearless and decided, yet entirely human characterization of "The Bride Comes Home." I have read your movie reviews with approval more than once, and am acknowledging to you the worthiness of this particular review merely as an example of one of your best.

You are to be congratulated, Mae Tinée, first for being clear headed, secondly for daring to describe what you see without fear or favor, and courteously. And THE TRIBUNE is to be congratulated for having you as a movie critic.

Best of luck with your interesting column.

THOMAS H. SLUSSER JR.

Editor's Note: Thank you.

This Fan Disagrees with Mae About Colbert's Film.

Dear Mae Tinée: Why you should have underrated Claudette Colbert's recent picture is beyond me. In fact, it is beyond anybody's comprehension. Of all the catty, uncalled for remarks, yours were the worst. And about a picture which is entertaining all the way through! It may be a little light but, after all, heavy drama is tiring. My only criticism, and believe you me I am the world's most critical criticizer, was the eye makeup. That, I will admit, was a little too too much. However, it did not warant your terrific onslaught.

I wonder if you realize how many followers you have lost since this vicious and unfair attack on a general favorite?

If you could answer this letter you probably would say, "Sez you!" Eh What?

A LOST READER.

Editor's Note: No. That's not what I "sez."

A LADY KNOWN ONLY AS MARGO

The leading woman's role in "Winterset," which comes to the Harris theater tomorrow night, is acted by a Mexican girl who has been making a reputation on the American stage and screen under the name of Margo. The films in which she has appeared were "Crime Without Passion," "Rhumba," and "Robin Hood of El Dorado."

Elmer N. Rogers, 2947 N. 77th Ct., tells how he found a house and solved a rising rent problem

"WHEN our landlord informed us of another increase in rent, my wife and I decided that we were through paying rent, and that we would look around and buy a home of our own before prices got too high.

"We turned to the Tribune and read the want ad section carefully for several days. We picked out several interesting offers and drove out to inspect the properties on a Sunday. We found a home in Westwood, Elmwood Park, which had been advertised by William L. Wallen & Sons, 2900 N. 77th court, Westwood.

"Found What He Wanted"

"A representative on the premises showed us the place. It was a brick and steel six-room bungalow, built in 1928, with oil heat, canvased walls, garage, electrical refrigeration, and a thorough job of insulation. It was modern in every respect. As soon as we saw it we knew that we had found what we wanted.

"It was near good transportation—two blocks from the Belmont bus, and four blocks from the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad. The cash payment required was low and our monthly payments came to less than the rent we were asked to pay on our old place.

"A Sound Investment"

"When we first thought about buying, we were skeptical about being able to find the bargain that we did. We feel that we have found not only a very desirable place to live, but a sound investment as well."

if you could find an attractive, well-constructed one in the right neighborhood and at a price and terms which would suit your pocketbook?

Scores of modern bungalows, houses and two-flats are being offered at prices which are lower than present replacement costs.

SELLS 90 HOMES SINCE LAST JUNE WITH TRIBUNE WANT ADS

"With 48 years' experience in the building, renting and general real estate business, we do not hesitate to state that the Chicago Tribune classified ad section has brought us more desirable tenants and purchasers for the money spent than any other medium of advertising.

"Since last June 1st we have sold over 90 homes through the medium of the Tribune.

"We feel thoroughly confident that the spring selling season will bring us continued increase of sales through Chicago Tribune want ads. We have consistently used, and shall continue to use, your columns to sell our homes out in Westwood."

Highlights in the career of Benjamin Thompson (Count Rumford), whose researches first determined that heat was a form of energy.

Fast Travel Is Brain Child of Yankee

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

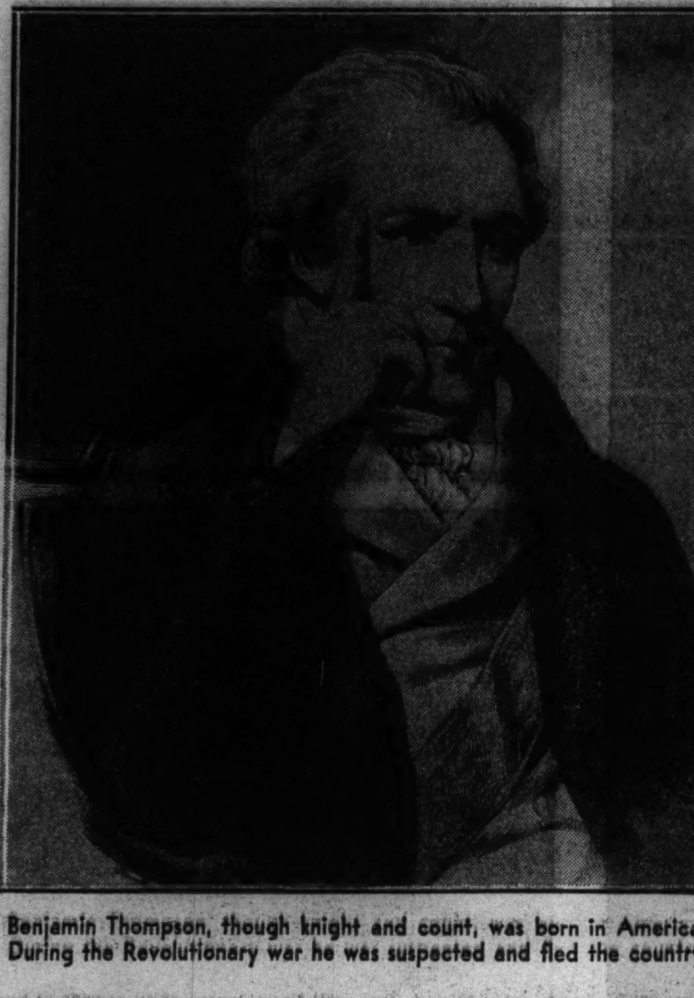
THERE are two kinds of scientists—those who discover some apparently useless scientific law or natural effect, and the inventors who make useful application of the aforementioned discoveries. Their relative importance is about the same as that of our two legs, in that one would not be much good without the other.

We Americans admire the practical rather than the theoretical and consequently have been inclined to honor our inventors at the expense of our equally important workers in fields of pure science. The name of Edison is better known than that of Langmuir. Hundreds have heard of Luther Burbank to every one who knows of Thomas H. Morgan, whose work on heredity, while of no immediate material value, probably will be of more value to man in the long run.

Our schoolbooks tell us that Samuel F. B. Morse invented the telegraph, but make little mention of Joseph Henry, whose basic discoveries made the invention possible. (In fact, Henry suggested the possibility of telegraphic communication, but did not take the time to develop the idea.) Most of us know that Robert Fulton invented the steamboat, but not very many are aware that Matthew Maury's pioneer work in mapping the ocean made modern navigation possible. Benjamin Franklin is remembered more for his invention of the lightning rod than for his discovery of the essential difference between positive and negative electricity.

Eighteenth-century America produced, in addition to Franklin, one other investigator who made an outstanding contribution to pure science. This was Count Rumford, who first demonstrated that heat is not matter, but a form of energy. It is a sad thing that our histories take so little notice of Rumford, as few men have ever been blessed with such versatile talents or had such an adventurous career.

As a matter of fact, there is considerable dispute over his nationality. For many years he was exiled from this country and in fact had been a citizen of four different nations before the end of his eventful life. But to the last he remained, in spirit at least, a God-fearing, money-loving, and thoroughly ingenious Massachusetts Yankee.



Benjamin Thompson, though knight and count, was born in America. During the Revolutionary war he was suspected and fled the country.

Rumford was born as Benjamin Thompson at Woburn, Mass., in 1753. He was the son of a moderately prosperous farmer and received such elementary education as was customary at the time. Because of his precocity his father decided on a mercantile career for him, and at the age of thirteen he was apprenticed to a Salem merchant.

Young Thompson devoted his spare time to studying mathematics and physical science, to such good effect that when fourteen years old he predicted a solar eclipse to within four seconds. In 1770 he moved to Boston to assist in a store. Shortly thereafter he quickly solved the problem of acquiring business capital by marrying a widow named Mrs. Rolfe, who was a dozen years older than he but well endowed with this world's goods. His position as a bright young business leader seemed assured, when suddenly disaster struck.

He had been made a major in the colonial militia in 1775, but apparently aroused the enmity of his superiors. He was denounced as a British informer, and while he was not convicted of the charge, suspicion concerning his alleged Tory sympathies forced him to flee to England in 1776. In viewing his subsequent actions it is well to remember that a large number of otherwise worthy Americans chose to support the crown during the revolution.

Thompson became a clerk in the office of Lord George Germain, the colonial secretary. He was soon promoted to secretary for Georgia and in 1780 to undersecretary of the ministry. He devoted his spare time to scientific experiments, in one of which he invented an ingenious contraption for measuring the explosive force of gunpowder, with the result that he was made a member of the Royal society.

In 1782 a change of administration deprived him of his position. He became a colonel in the British cavalry, but at the end of the war the following year was retired on a small pension. He also became Sir Benjamin Thompson. But one cannot eat a title, so in 1784 he left for Vienna to try to get a commission in the Austrian army.

On the way he stopped in Munich, where he happened to meet Maximilian, the elector of Bavaria. His highness was so impressed with Thompson's energy and shrewdness that he at once appointed him minister of war and later minister of police and grand chamberlain of the court.

In those days Germany was not noted for its cleanliness and discipline. Munich was a filthy and wretched place, notorious for its swarms of beggars who levied tribute on the slightly more prosperous citizens. The Bavarian army was a demoralized band of unhanged public enemies and a menace only to Bavarians.

Thompson reorganized the army and restored its discipline. He provided the soldiers with decent food, clothing, and equipment, as well as with workshops in which to release their excess energy. At the same time he eliminated all unnecessary expenditures, for next to idleness nothing distressed him more than an unbalanced budget.

In 1789 he persuaded the elector to give him permission to suppress begging. He had the army round up all beggars in sight—2,600 men, women, and children—and put them to work in a model factory making uniforms for the soldiers. In spite of their lack of skill at the beginning, he paid them good wages and in addition provided a cheap but nourishing meal as a bonus. When they protested at having to eat potatoes he made a special study of the best ways of preparing this vegetable and duly reported his results to the Royal society.

He invented a special soup for the poor man. It was made by cooking up a mixture of barley, peas, and potatoes, with a little salt and vinegar, and pouring it over pieces of bread. He reported it as delicious and costing but a fraction of a cent, and recommended the use of stale bread, which required more chewing and would accordingly seem more filling.

He also provided work for the unemployed who were not beggars. He kept an eagle eye on his subordinates to see that they did not turn any part of the government money to uses other than relief. Soon he had the workhouse showing a profit.

Yet he was no mere martinet. He had great sympathy for the poor. He insisted on good pay for them from the beginning, in spite of their inexperience, in order to restore their self-respect. The aged and crippled received full pay merely for reporting for work.

"To make vicious and abandoned people happy it has generally been supposed necessary first to make them virtuous," he said. "But why not reverse this order? Why not make them happy and then virtuous?"

The success of his relief administration made him a public hero. The elector raised him to the German nobility. He chose the title of Count Rumford, after the Massachusetts town where his wife's relatives lived. And in the meantime, while solving the Bavarian military and unemployment problems, he had not been wasting his spare moments. He invented a new kind of stove, as well as a lot of scientifically designed cooking utensils. He also found time to carry out his great experiment on the nature of heat.

The generally accepted belief had been that heat was a form of matter and that frictional heat was simply abraded from the rubbing surfaces. Rumford began to doubt this while supervising the boring of cannon at the Munich arsenal. He tested the idea by using a dull drill on the cannon and carefully measuring the heat produced. He found that the dull bit ground off very little metal and that there was no relation between the heat produced and the metal abraded. On the other hand, the rate of heat production was proportional to the power input (literally horse power in this case).

He concluded, therefore, that heat was not matter, but a form of mechanical work. He calculated that his hard-working horse could deliver enough energy to raise 26.5 pounds of cold water to boiling in two and a half hours. Translated into modern units, his results show a B. T. U. (the amount of heat necessary to raise a pound of water one degree Fahrenheit) to be equivalent to 670 foot pounds (a foot pound is the work necessary to lift a pound one foot). Considering the crudity of his apparatus, this compares quite well with the most recently determined value of 777 foot pounds to the B. T. U. It might be added that in his paper to the Royal society Rumford took care to mention that the experiment was made on a defective casting, so that Bavaria did not lose any money on it.

In 1795 Count Rumford returned to England, where he read a number of papers to the society on a variety of subjects ranging from the nature of light to the brewing of coffee. The visit was not a happy one, however. He was held up by a highwayman and his trunk was stolen. He gloomily predicted that this loss would permanently upset his mind and hinted that certain unnamed scientific rivals were back of it. Moreover, he was annoyed by the smoky London atmosphere and took time out to invent a new design for chimneys.

The following year the French invaded Bavaria, and Maximilian went into hiding. Rumford was hurriedly recalled from London to become dictator of Bavaria and generalissimo of the army. Although at a hopeless disadvantage, he succeeded in persuading the French not to occupy Munich. When the public danger was over he surrendered his power to the elector and left Bavaria for good.

Count Rumford rendered one more great scientific service in 1800 when he helped to found the Royal institution. He was personally responsible for the appointment to the chair of chemistry of young Humphry Davy, later destined to be the greatest chemist of his time.

In 1804 Rumford, now a widower, visited France, where he courted and wed the widow of the great chemist Lavoisier. Madame Lavoisier, it might be added, possessed a large personal fortune. The marriage was not a happy one, however, and the couple soon separated. The opinion of impartial observers, who seem to have been generally inclined to sympathize with the countess, was that Rumford had become haughty and domineering in his later years. In spite of this occurrence he continued to live in France until his death in 1814.

We have good reason to consider him one of us in spite of the claims of England, Germany, and France. Although long in exile, he always seemed to regard himself as an American. When he established the annual award of a medal for certain scientific work in Great Britain he offered a similar medal in this country. There also is the Rumford professorship at Harvard, which he endowed. And finally, when raised to the peerage of the Holy Roman empire, the one place in the world he chose to honor was that New England township where dwelt his in-laws.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Brittany and Clumber Rare in America

AMERICAN dog fanciers invariably take an interest in new (to them) breeds of dogs. Sometimes it is an old European breed, revived in popularity, that attracts favor. Other times it is a comparatively unknown and rare breed, originating in a foreign country and suddenly discovered over here, that draws attention. Hardly a year goes by that some breed of dogs doesn't stand out from all the rest in popularity. It may be a breed that is ideal for a pet. Or it may be a hunting breed that the sportsmen of America haven't used—although the breed may be extremely old and perhaps very popular in some parts of Europe.

The other day we got together two hunting breeds in that class—rare in this country but popular in some parts of the old country. We put side by side a Brittany spaniel and a clumber spaniel, two breeds that made a very striking contrast for us in view of the fact that we are extremely interested in sporting breeds and have used spaniels a great deal.

The Brittany spaniel (a young dog), that we saw take one of its first workouts, is owned by S. J. Walpole, president of the American Field Publishing company, an upland game hunter and dog enthusiast who has been doing a great deal to bring the Brittany to the attention of American sportsmen. The clumber spaniel, Carnforth Tobias, is ours, a recent importation from Surrey, England. Both of these dogs have been going through a training routine under the direction of Martin Hogan of Barrington, Ill., well known sporting dog authority. There probably are not more than fifty Brittany spaniels in the United States. As far as we know the clumber that we own and one of its kennel mates, Carnforth Mona, purchased by Lyman Barr of Libertyville, Ill., and brought over with ours, are the only two this side of Wilmington, Del., where S. Halleck du Pont has several imported spaniels of this breed.

Here are descriptions of these two breeds:

Brittany spaniel—A small dog compared to the clumber and the springer spaniels. Developed in France and very popular there. Tailless. Most Brittanys today are whelped either without any tail at all or a very short one. Weight of the dog is about 30 pounds, just about half the weight of the clumber. Points when on game. Stands around 19 inches high. Colors, liver and white or orange and white. Mr. Walpole's dog, the first we have ever seen and the only Brittany that we know of around Chicago, is orange and white. Body length is short—we would guess around 20 inches. Has a sweet character, very affectionate and friendly.

We saw this spaniel pick up the body scent of a pheasant the other afternoon when it was between 20 and 25 yards from the bird. No doubt about its good nose. Ranges wider than a springer, clumber, or cocker—sort of in between a springer and a setter. Original use in France was for woodcock, but the Brittany has been used very successfully in America on southern quail as well as grouse and pheasants.

We understand that it is not difficult to train. After seeing this young Brittany on one of its first field tests on pheasants under the direction of Martin Hogan we can't help but believe that sportsmen will like it. If we were to fault the breed from a personal viewpoint of likes and dislikes in pheasant dogs we would have just two points to bring up after seeing the dog in the field: It's a pretty light-weight worker for punishing pheasant cover, and it has a rather small muzzle for handling big birds. Naturally these points may be provocative of many arguments. We like big dogs for work in tough cover. So these were two points that came to mind when we saw the Brittany. But we are willing to hazard the guess that in the next ten years a lot of sportsmen are going to sing the praises of the Brittany for the dual rôle of pet around the house and a useful hunting dog.

Clumber spaniel—Origin, England. A long-established breed. The heaviest spaniel known (males weighing 55 to 65 pounds), rated slower than a springer spaniel in action. Very distinctive in type from any of the spaniels because of its heavy build, beautiful white coat with lemon tan markings on the head, large head, and heavy bone. Has a thick coat.

This is a new breed for us and apparently never heard of by many dog owners, judging from comments that we have heard. We note that the average comment on the breed by most dog authorities is that it is "better suited to foreign shooting conditions than to our own." But we do not agree, and confidently expect to prove that it is a very satisfactory upland game dog. We have done enough hunting with the breed to know that the clumber has an excellent nose, is persevering, a good retriever, and likes the water. It should prove to be a better water retriever than other spaniels, because it has more weight and more power. (We shall be able to tell more about this next fall.) Has the spaniel disposition—friendly, companionable, and devoted.

The clumber works like a springer—ahead of the gun, within shooting range, quartering its ground back and forth. It does not point. It "pushes" game out of the coverts like the springer. We are surprised at the clumber's pace, since we had been led to believe it was slow. The dogs so far have shown all that we wanted to see in the way of pace. We are not worrying about this dog being able to find game for us. Clumbers used to be very popular in England. Demand for more speed as exemplified in the springer caused the clumber to sort of fade out of the picture in field trials. However, many clumbers still are being used to hunt in England.

The question about these dogs that intrigues us is their future. Will they catch on in this country? We have a hunch that they will. But only time will tell. We are urging Mr. Walpole to have his Brittany finished and put in a trial this fall so that sportsmen may have a real look at the range, pace, and bird-finding ability of the little Frenchman.

THE QUESTION BOX

We have a male and female Scottish terrier. We are in a town where we have to groom our dogs because there is nobody here that knows how to do it. I understand that one can buy a small book or chart on how to groom a Scotty. Will you give me information on this?—Mrs. Fred S.

Yes, there is printed material that will help you learn how to groom a Scotty. The instructions will tell you how the dog must be trimmed to make it look neat and smart. We are sending you information on where to procure the material on grooming terriers.

I have an eight-week-old chow puppy. I was advised to feed him once in the morning (a cereal) and then a meat meal in the evening, and that is all the food he should get. Everyone I talk with, and your "Dog Book" also, advises me I am wrong and that the puppy should have more food. But I cannot understand why he eats small stones. Will you please advise me?—Charles L.

You are starving your pup. No wonder he eats stones. Your pup should have three or four meals every day right now. And give him some real food. He should be getting some raw or cooked beef every day, some prepared biscuit or ground meal food, milk, a little cod liver oil, and other approved foods. Follow feeding directions in the book or in the leaflet which has been sent to you. The reason your pup wants to eat things he shouldn't is because he is not nourished properly and his diet lacks much-needed ingredients.

My police dog cut a pad on his left front paw. It is very slow to heal and is hard to treat. I am afraid the cut may get infected. Should I put a boot on the paw?—L. A. M.

We have had trouble of this sort with our hunting dogs. In the case of very severe wounds we have found that if the paw is cleaned, treated, and then bandaged well the cut could get a start on healing. After putting on the bandage we have taken wide adhesive tape and wrapped it around to keep the bandage on and also to provide wearing protection.

I have a French bulldog. He has the mange. It is his second attack. I have been told that mange cannot be cured. Is this so? And is there anything I can do to cure it? I am applying an ointment given me by the veterinarian.—Mrs. Charles N.

The question is, has your veterinarian determined if your dog has sarcoptic or follicular mange? There are these two forms. The first is easier than the second. Any case of mange takes time, patience, and adequate treatment if it is to be cured. You must rely on the advice of your veterinarian.

Chicago Waters Offer Opportunity for Auto Ferries

Lake Trip to Benton Harbor Eliminates Long Drive

By HARRY A. LAIRD

TO A VISITOR the animated scene around the docks in a seaboard town is fascinating. Between a never-ending stream of railway box cars and shipside loaded hand and power trucks constantly move to and fro across giant sheds. The winches of the vessels rattle ceaselessly as the freight is hoisted from or lowered into the ship's holds. Three shifts a day, eight hours a shift. The work goes on with what seems absolute precision. An artist catches the spirit and entitles his painting "Commerce."

Yet to the steamship owner all port time is waste. A vessel that is costing from five hundred to several thousand dollars every day it is in service is earning nothing. Ships were built to run—not to lie at docks. Exporters and importers grumble. The cost of this seaboard transfer must be included in the price they will pay for transportation. The picture entitled "Commerce" should have been called "The Difficulties of Commerce." Why cannot someone invent an amphibian boat-box car?

The problem of waterways that interrupt routes of overland travel, and vice versa, is as old as civilization and has been only partially solved. Xerxes and the huge army with which he sought to destroy the Greeks crossed the Hellespont on bridges of pontoons. Alexander the Great built a causeway at Tyre. The Romans constructed their huge aqueducts and viaducts, and moderns continue to find greater and greater distances bridgeable. Obviously a huge trafic must have developed before prospective revenues waranted the expense of these costly structures. The same statement is true of tunnels.

Trafic cannot bear tolls any more readily than transfer expenses. As an example, the ferries between Detroit and Windsor and across the Hudson at New York continue to operate on a profitable basis in spite of both bridge and tunnel competition.

Poor old John Fitch, who perfected the steamboat long before Fulton, but finally committed suicide in the Kentucky hills because his neighbors thought him crazy, caught the amphibian idea. There is an authentic record that one of his first efforts at steam navigation, after moving up the Delaware against the current, actually crawled up the bank and moved crazily through the streets of Philadelphia. His idea progressed no farther than the alligators and tunnel boats of lumber companies that creep over sandbars. But the Portage railroad, now the Pennsylvania, received the acclaim of the whole population of the state when it developed its plan to cross the Alleghanies from the Susquehanna to the Ohio with a series of inclined planes up which canal boats, mounted on cradles that somewhat resembled railway flat cars, were pulled by stationary engines and cables. Families were moved from Philadelphia to Memphis in flatboats, despite the mountains.

Little do we appreciate what the railways accomplished in bridging rivers. Two cents a mile sounds like a reasonable cost for passenger travel, but what of crossing the Niagara bridges, that require the same maintenance outlay a year as twenty-eight miles of double-track main line?

The rail carriers also found bodies of water too great for bridging and, after transferring freight from box cars to ships' holds precisely as at the seaboard for a period of years, commenced to construct car floats in the narrower waters, as at New York, Wilmington, Norfolk, and Mackinac. Then of a sudden came the car ferry idea. Some of the Great Lakes—Ontario, Erie, and particularly Michigan—were decidedly in the way of through routes to Canada and the northwest. Why not build a boat of such sturdy construction that it could smash its way through winter ice to cross these lakes? Ingenuity developed stern loading and a "railway yard" below decks so that the vessel could be served by a switching engine.

Ship designers were consulted by the railways and figures were made to develop—what? That the cost of operating such a vessel would be cheaper than for a comparable mileage of rail! The obstruction became a boon. There are now twenty-five huge 'cross-lake ferries capable of carrying from 16 to 32 freight cars.

The idea is being carried further. Larger ferries, called sea trains, are operated from New York to New Orleans and from both New York and New Orleans to Havana to deliver United States freight cars to Cuban railways. The ardent internationalist can now visualize American cars on European railways.

The same waterway obstructions that impeded the early railways interrupted through highway routes, and where distances are too great to be bridged automobile ferries are developing. The automotive industry has increased travel in the United States tenfold, to say nothing of the 652 million passengers a year who ride intercity bus lines. The movement of new cars, trucks, and trailers over our highways, all of which will seek any short cut that may be made available, is tremendous.

Automobile ferries crossing the Hudson, St. Lawrence, and Mississippi rivers appeared early, but these for the most part were merely converted river craft. Perhaps the most spectacular attempt to create a "real auto ferry" is the streamlined Kalakala (ka-lock'-ah-lah), Chinook Indian for Flying Bird, operated by the Puget Sound Navigation company between Seattle and Bremerton, Wash. Driven by a 3,000-horsepower Diesel engine, it is capable of a speed of twenty miles an hour and will carry 110 automobiles and 2,000 passengers, who are thus saved a seventy-mile automobile drive through the good offices of a forty-five-minute boat trip.

Another special automobile ferry was placed in service between Cape Charles and Norfolk, Va., late in 1933. This interesting vessel, named the Delmarva from the three states that govern parts of the peninsula that lies between Chesapeake and Delaware bays, has six automobile runways with a capacity of eighty cars. The vessel is operated by the Virginia Ferry corporation and makes possible a coastline auto trip from New York and New England to Florida.

Milwaukee has enjoyed automobile ferry connection with the peninsula of Michigan for several years through the good offices of the Pere Marquette railway, which so designed its newer railroad car ferries that they will accommodate automobiles. Independent lines have also established 'cross-lake service with slightly altered lake steamers. Such attempts, however, cannot hope to produce the economy of vessels specially built for the service.

Chicago, too, has had an inkling of car-ferry convenience through the offers of the Chicago-Roosevelt and Gartland Steamship companies to carry automobiles to Benton Harbor or Muskegon on the passenger steamers Roosevelt, Missouri, and Illinois. In both instances, of course, the carriage of automobiles was merely incidental to the transportation of passengers and the number that could be accommodated was extremely limited.

The road distance from Chicago to Benton Harbor is nearly 100 miles. A large part of the drive, particularly for those living north of the loop, is made unpleasant by the vexations attendant upon getting out of a metropolitan area. An automobile ferry between these points, so constructed that its great capacity would allow the fixing of a fare comparable with the highway cost, would prove a welcome cutoff. The trip across the lake would be clean, comfortable, and a relaxation. At the same time the passengers would have their automobiles at destination and thus be able to continue their journey to the east or seek out a spot in the pleasant Michigan countryside for a picnic. Another result would be a certain thinning of the congestion on the roads leading southeast from Chicago, thus improving driving conditions for those whose destinations were intermediate to the Michigan port of the ferry.

The circumstances seem to offer a splendid opening for an aggressive vessel operator who is willing to pioneer in a new service with a new type of boat. The prospective patrons are legion and the route to be superseded one that has at one time or another been the object of the imprecations of virtually every motorist in the city. Transportation is a dynamic, not a static, field, and the shortcomings of one form father the opportunities of another.

New Expedition to Everest

Tallest Peak Again Goal of Britons

the expedition are P. Wynn Harris, Maj. C. J. Morris, and Smijth-Windham, signal corps officer. Ruttledge, the leader, was in charge of the expedition that tried to scale the mountain in 1933. Ruttledge will not be among those who will try to reach the crest of the mountain, for he is 51 years old and the task is one for younger men. The 1933 expedition included sixteen white men. The newest expedition has only twelve. Ruttledge cut the number to make the expedition less cumbersome and to reduce the transport problem.

That every one of the dozen fearless Britons now moving on toward the slopes of Everest is sanguine of the success of the expedition is putting it mildly. There has been so much preliminary effort expended. Every problem facing the mountain climbers has been considered from a number of angles. Nothing has been overlooked that might defeat the expedition. More than a year has been devoted to an intensive study of the job ahead and the collecting of proper equipment for the bold undertaking. And Ruttledge and his companions have the lessons of their earlier experiences to draw upon.

The battle to reach the summit of the mountain this year is planned as a swift, bold dash, far speedier than the advance of any of the previous expeditions. The expedition will move with lightest equipment possible, for long ago the men who tackled the tallest mountain learned that the climber who climbed the highest traveled the lightest. In earlier expeditions oxygen tanks were carried by those invading the highest altitudes so that they would not collapse from lack of life-giving breath. But those earlier climbers learned that the weight of the oxygen tanks more than offset the benefits derived. Men of the new expedition will depend entirely upon natural endurance, skill at climbing, courage, and the will to battle on when there is next to nothing left with which to struggle.

All this splendid confidence! All this superb courage! All this thorough preparation! What will it avail this latest expedition when it reaches the last thousand feet of the mountain that has turned man back for more than fourscore years—the mountain the summit of which, according to the simple Himalayan tribesmen, is guarded by a crew of jealous devils.

There is the firm belief among the superstitious Tibetan mountaineers and the semi-savages of Nepal that Everest never will be conquered by man. They hold that even the attempts made so far to climb to its summit have awakened the mountain's wrath and caused it to bring catastrophes down upon them. It was not until 1920, for that matter, that the Grand Lama in Lhasa gave his consent to any alien intrusion in his land for the purpose of scaling Everest. A great deal of dickering with Maharajah Tribhubana Bir Bikram, king of Nepal, has been necessary to insure the safety of the members of various Everest expeditions, including the present one.

Brig. Gen. Charles Granville Bruce's expedition on its way back from Mount Everest in 1922 after an unsuccessful effort to climb to the mountain's top. Bruce is the man in the center of the group.

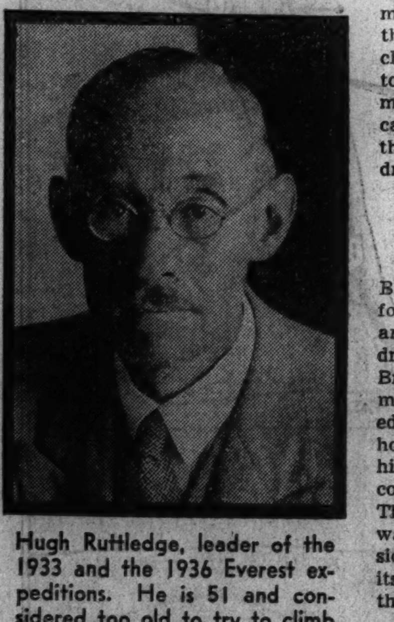
Capt. Maurice Wilson, a Briton who attempted to conquer Everest alone. He perished somewhere on its slopes in 1934.

The campaign to conquer Everest has been under way for 84 years, ever since it was discovered that that inaccessible peak in the Himalayas was the tallest mountain in the world. The story is told of that discovery that it was made by a native employé of the great trigonometric survey of India, who went rushing to his chief in 1852 with the astounding claim that he had found the highest mountain. Measurements made at a great distance with scientific instruments showed the mountain to be 29,002 feet in height. More recent and more accurate measurements have corrected the height to 29,140 feet. The mountain's name among the natives was Chomo-lungma, meaning "goddess mother of the mountains," but Englishmen changed it to Mount Everest, after Sir George Everest, famous British surveyor and geographer, a former chief of the survey, who had made a trigonometrical survey of the Himalayas in 1841.

For many years white men were unable to obtain any other than a distant view of the great mountain. In time they penetrated the wild country in its vicinity to within 50 miles of its base. Gradually through the years they moved closer and closer, all the while their aim being to mount to the top—to reach that mysterious summit perpetually capped with snow and more often than not wearing a plume of wind-driven mist or sleet.

In 1902 Francis Younghusband, a British army officer, reached the forbidden Tibetan capital of Lhasa, and two years later a treaty was drawn up between Tibet and Great Britain which opened the mysterious mountain nation to certain accredited outsiders. It was not until 1920, however, that the Grand Lama gave his consent to an invasion of his country by an expedition to Everest. The 1936 expedition, in like manner, was forced to obtain official permission from the Tibetan capital before its departure from Darjeeling for the great mountain.



Hugh Ruttledge, leader of the 1933 and the 1936 Everest expeditions. He is 51 and considered too old to try to climb to the top of the mountain.

The first expedition actually to attempt to scale the steep sides of Everest was that of 1921 under the leadership of Lieut. Col. C. K. Howard-Bury. It reached an altitude of 23,000 feet before being forced to abandon its efforts. A member of that expedition, Dr. A. M. Kellas, died during the march through Tibet.

The second expedition was led by Brig. Gen. Charles Granville Bruce. It penetrated Tibet early in the spring of 1922 and during the first weeks of May made its drive to reach the top of the mountain. On May 20 Dr. T. V. Somervell, Maj. E. F. Norton, and George Leigh Mallory ascended to a height of 26,985 feet, the highest point reached by human beings up to that time. Five days later Capt. J. G. Bruce and Capt. G. I. Finch crawled up to 27,300 feet, using oxygen tanks and fighting for their lives virtually every inch of the way. On June 7 the expedition met with disaster. The whole party of seventeen men, roped in groups of four and five, was swept down the face of the mountain by an avalanche. Two of the groups, one of four men and one of five, were carried over an ice cliff. Of the nine men only two were saved.

In 1924 General Bruce again attempted to lead an expedition against the mountain, but his health would not permit and he surrendered his command to Norton, then a lieutenant colonel, and returned to Darjeeling. On June 4 Norton and Dr. Somervell set an altitude record for mountain climbing by reaching a point on Everest 28,200 feet above sea level.

Four days later Mallory and A. C. Irvine set out from a camp at the 27,000-foot level, determined to reach the top of the mountain. Capt. Noel Odell watched the two from the camp as they slowly made their way up the treacherously steep approach to the summit. At what he believed was about 400 feet from the actual crest of the mountain he saw Mallory and Irvine vanish in a cloud of sleet or mist. Odell was the last to see the two men alive. Whether they reached the mountain top or not no one knows to this day. Two members of the 1933 expedition—Harris and L. R. Wagers—climbing at an altitude of about 28,000 feet, found an ax dropped by Mallory or Irvine on their fatal climb. If members of the 1936 expedition reach the top of the mountain or approach relatively close thereto they may find the bodies of those two who perished twelve years ago. The cold up there would preserve the bodies, and the fierce winds might keep them clear of snow.

The fourth expedition against Everest set out from India under the leadership of Ruttledge in the spring of 1933. Before it could make any great headway toward conquering the mountain, however, daring aviators from England looked down upon the up to now unattainable peak from on high. The marquess of Clydesdale and Lieut. Col. L. V. Stewart Blacker, in one plane, and Lieut. D. F. McIntyre and S. R. Bonnett, a photographer, in another, on April 3 flew from Purnea, India, over the summit of Everest at an altitude of 35,000 feet, returning to their starting point. They were in the air three and a half hours and encountered intense cold in their flight. On April 19 a second flight was made over the mountain, this time by the marquess of Clydesdale, Blacker, Air Commander P. F. M. Fellowes, and a cameraman named Fisher.

Marquess of Clydesdale, who flew over Mount Everest in April, 1933.

The Ruttledge expedition of 1933 was turned back by the mountain, as were all the other climbing expeditions. Smythe, who reached the highest point attained by any member of that expedition, was defeated at a little more than 28,000 feet.

In the middle of July, 1934, three native Indian porters trailed into Darjeeling with the story of another man's fatal attempt to win a victory over Everest. Capt. Maurice Wilson had entertained a plan to land a plane on East Rong Buk glacier, half way up the side of the mountain, and attempt from that point to climb to the summit. The Indian government refused him permission to fly over Nepal, so he stole out from Darjeeling afoot accompanied by the three porters. Reaching a point well up on the side of the great mountain, he told his companions to wait for him while he made the attempt to reach the crest alone. The three natives lost sight of Wilson at 23,000 feet. They waited two weeks before starting back to Darjeeling. Wilson was the fourteenth known victim of the mountain that is said to be guarded by jealous devils.

Poland's American Helper

Paul Super Is Honored for "Y" Work

By DONALD DAY

Warsaw, Poland.

TO THE Poles the name of the American Paul Super always will be linked with the story of the rebirth of the divided and war-shattered Poland. The story of his efforts to help this country and also of his success is also the story of Poland's progress.

He has a deep faith in Poland and believes that she is destined to become one of the great countries of Europe. Because he has lived in Poland for more than fourteen years, because he is an acknowledged authority on Poland's ancient and modern history, and because he has learned the language and numbers among his friends hundreds of Poland's present-day leaders, he is better qualified to speak about Poland than any other foreigner who has been resident in this country.

Paul Super is a Y. M. C. A. secretary. He had a distinguished record in America before he came abroad to engage in war work. There have been many attempts to persuade him to return to America during the last few years. He has been offered the post of general secretary in Washington, Philadelphia, Cleveland, and other cities. Among his colleagues in America he is regarded as one of the best "Y" secretaries ever produced by that organization. The Poles cherish toward him the same opinion. But he says that he and his wife have decided to devote the remainder of their lives to Poland. There also is a personal reason for this decision. They lost one of their boys here. He is buried in a Warsaw cemetery. But let him tell the remainder of this story himself.

"Fifteen years ago I was over in eastern Poland organizing 'Y' huts among the railroad workers," Super related. "I entered a tumble-down building which had been converted into a machine shop. There a group of Polish engineers and mechanics had gathered together scraps of American, British, German, French, and Russian machinery and were busy producing locomotives. When I saw what those men were producing with practically nothing I became sold on Poland.

"The problems faced by those mechanics typify the situation facing the Poles when the war ended. For more than 130 years their country had been divided between Germany, Austria, and Russia. It had grown apart economically, and an attempt had been made to divide it culturally. Poland's greatest task was to coalesce itself into a nation economically, socially, and culturally. This work has not yet been completed, and because of this heritage Poland is passing through another crisis today.

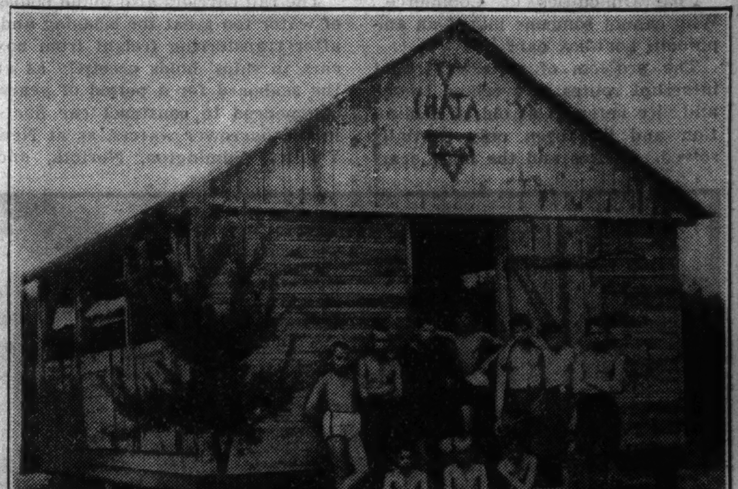
"Poland made an appeal to the American 'Y' to build up a Polish Young Men's Christian association. The Poles wanted a force which would show their people how it was possible for a nonpolitical agency to bind people together on a basis of citizenship without partisan political aims. They also wanted an organization which would help develop the country physically, for a generation of Poles had been stunted and starved by the war.

Ceremony in Lodz staged for the purpose of raising money for the Lodz Y. M. C. A. building

"Not another country in the world has given such support to the 'Y' movement as Poland. Even during the recent years of depression, when Poland was suffering far more than other countries, we succeeded in collecting some $400,000 in Warsaw, more than $20,000 in Krakow, and are realizing $200,000 in Lodz for our buildings in these cities. We are planning other buildings in Gydnia and Poznan, and shortly we hope to branch out into eastern Poland, where conditions are especially bad.

"Marshal Pilsudski made it one of his principles not to join any organization, but his widow, Mrs. Aleksandra Pilsudska, has led our honorary committee for many years. The president of the parliament and senate and the entire cabinet are also members, together with the rectors of Poland's five universities, the presidents of the five largest banks, the five ranking generals of the army, led by Inspector General Edward Rydz Smigly, and scores of leaders in all branches of Polish national life.

"This is evidence of the extent to which the Poles have adopted Y. M. C. A. ideals. They tell me they like our organization for three reasons: First, we are efficient and always accomplish what we set out to do. Second, we are honest and give a public accounting of every zloty we collect. Third, we are not burocratic, but do our work in a sympathetic and kindly way.



A Polish Y. M. C. A. camp for boys.

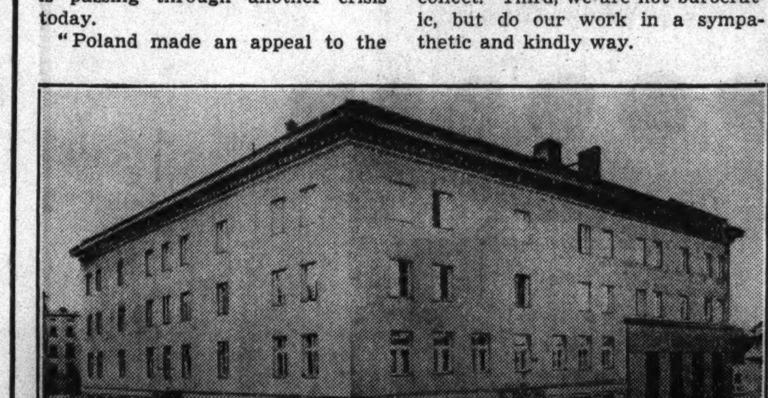
"What always has amazed me is the amount of effort and work of all of the Poles in our organization. When a Pole becomes a member of our honorary or finance committee he always asks what work we expect of him, and he gets right out and does it. The individual gifts we have received are not large, but the government also helps, and its support is considerable.

"Last night we held a meeting of our finance committee and were going through lists of names of possible givers. Names such as Walery Slawek, two years Polish prime minister; Alexander Prystor, another former prime minister, and still others were discussed. The members of the committee said it was useless to expect large gifts from these men, who had spent the greater part of the last fifteen years in public office. They are poor men, they declared. We might obtain 50 zloties ($10) from them, no more. This says a great deal for the type of men who have been governing Poland since Marshal Pilsudski established a nonpartisan government back in May, 1926.

"Poverty is both tremendous and general in Poland, and the Poles admire our work to help homeless boys. We have established clubs for them in several cities. We also have two of the finest boys' camps in Europe; one at Mazana Dolnas, in the Carpathian mountains, and the other on the River Pilica near Lodz.

"But these accomplishments are not achievements of the Y. M. C. A.; they are accomplishments of the Poles. The 'Y' organization is independent and autonomous in each country where it has been organized. Americans who visit our buildings are surprised to find in all of them a small icon of the Holy Mother and Child with a lamp always burning before it near the door. The Polish 'Y' is a Catholic organization, but it has no connection with the church.

"The 'Y' also introduced boxing, basketball, and volleyball into Poland and helped to popularize other branches of sport. We further brought the first trainer for track sports to this country. Today Poland has established a physical culture institute, training hundreds of men and women who are now developing physical education in this country.



Y. M. C. A. building in Krakow. Paul Super is responsible for the construction of three such buildings in Poland.

"Boxing is becoming more and more popular. Through The Chicago Tribune, which two years ago took a team of Polish boxers to Chicago to compete with the Golden Gloves champions, Chicago had a chance to see what kind of boys the reborn Polish nation was producing.

"I believe that Poland will successfully win through the present world depression. Her government has avoided all foolish financial experiments. It has followed a conservative policy from the beginning of the crisis in 1929. The Slav characteristic of patiently enduring difficulties has helped the government in its fight to alleviate economic distress. The government is trying to provide work instead of doles and subsidies, and last year it created 20,000,000 working days for the suffering population.

"Better than most men, I believe, I know the good side of the Pole and of Polish life. For fifteen years I have been working together with men who are working to help this country. I believe in them, and I am an optimist as regards the future of Poland. Marshal Pilsudski left his country a tremendous moral asset in his life of self-denial and patriotism, and he died a poor man.

"Today, when older and more consolidated countries are having violent internal disturbances, one is struck by the quiet and orderly life in Poland.

"The Poles are fighting bravely to change the more unpleasant side of life here. This has been a free country for only eighteen years and has no traditions of kindly and efficient public service. The inefficiency and refusal to accept responsibility of government employés is one of the greatest drawbacks to the development of this country. Everybody attempts to 'pass the buck,' with the result that the ministers and higher public officials are so crowded with petty and trivial work that they are handicapped in efficiently performing their real duties of running the country.

"The taxation system is involved and unsystematized, and the limit of taxation has been reached. The government also has been forced to take over too many businesses bankrupt by the crisis and has staffed them with high-salaried officials who are merely helping to run the country farther in debt.

"Poland's greatest and most essential need today is the creation of an intelligent and skilled middle class, which this country has always lacked. This middle class must be drawn from the educated peasants and workers and from the impoverished nobility who are joining it. The 'Y' is helping the government to solve this problem, and when I look back over the last fifteen years and then forward toward ending my days here I can only report that I'm very proud to have participated in the reconstruction of Poland and that I'm an optimist in anticipation of the future. When a country is blessed with the type of men and women who today are leading Poland it just cannot fail."

Paul Super is on the other side of fifty. He is the author of many books dealing with boy psychology and how to develop "Y" work among youth. The "Y" believes that once you train a youth to become a good citizen you have solved the problem of attending to his morals and his religion and have also given him a healthy outlook on life. A few weeks ago the Poles fêted Paul Super in Warsaw when he celebrated his thirty-fifth anniversary of "Y" work. The government awarded him its highest decoration, the Polonia Restitua, and of all the decorations the Warsaw government has granted in recent years it is hard to find one that is more thoroughly deserved and that has been better earned than that of the American who has set an outstanding example of unselfish service to a country to which he is not connected with blood ties.

JOHN HAY, statesman and author, was born in Salem, Ind., Oct. 8, 1838, and was graduated from Brown university in 1858. He studied law in the office of Abraham Lincoln, to whom he became assistant private secretary when Lincoln went to Washington as president. Hay wrote "Pike County Ballads" in 1871 and was the author of other poems and prose writings. "Jim Bludso of the Prairie Belle" is a poem of his often quoted.

JIM BLUDSO OF THE PRAIRIE BELLE

Wall, no! I can't tell whar he lives,
Because he don't live, you see;
Leastways, he's got out of the habit
Of livin' like you and me.
Whar have you been for the last three year
That you haven't heard folks tell
How Jimmy Bludso passed in his checks
The night of the Prairie Belle?

He weren't no saint,—them engineers
Is all pretty much alike,—
One wife in Natchez-Under-the-Hill
And another one here in Pike;
A keerless man in his talk was Jim,
And an awkward hand in a row,
But he never flunked, and he never lied,—
I reckon he never knowed how.

And this was all the religion he had,—
To treat his engine well;
Never be passed on the river;
To mind the pilot's bell;
And if ever the Prairie Belle took fire,—
A thousand times he swore
He'd hold her nozzle agin' the bank
Till the last soul got ashore.

All boats has their day on the Mississip',
And her day come at last,—
The Movastar was a better boat,
But the Belle, she wouldn't be passed.
And so she come tearin' along that night—
The oldest craft on the line—
With a nigger squat on her safety valve,
And her furnace crammed, rosin and pine.

The fire bust out as she clared the bar,
And burnt a hole in the night,
And quick as a flash she turned and made
For the willer bank on the right.
There was runnin' and cursin', but Jim yelled out
Over all the infernal roar,
"I'll hold her nozzle agin' the bank
Till the last galoot's ashore."

Through the hot, black breath of the burnin' boat
Jim Bludso's voice was heard,
And they all had trust in his cussedness
And knowed he would keep his word.
And, sure's you're born, they all got off
Afore the smokestacks fell,—
And Bludso's ghost went up alone
In the smoke of the Prairie Belle.

He weren't no saint,—but at jedgment
I'd run my chance with Jim
'Longside of some pious gentlemen
That wouldn't shook hands with him.
He seen his duty, a dead-sure thing,—
And went for it thar and then;
And Christ ain't a-going to be too hard
On a man that died for men.

Madam Bluebeard! The Crimes of Belle Gunness of Indiana's Murder Farm

Victims Lured to Death by Promises of Marriage

By FRANK CIPRIANI

ONE night in April, 1908, Antone Olson, then living at 2410 Indiana avenue, Chicago, dreamed that his young daughter, Jennie, lay burned and buried on a farm near La Porte, Ind. The vision startled him, but he quickly conquered his forebodings. True, he had not often seen Jennie since her adoption many years before, but he felt that she was in good care in the hands of her foster mother, Belle Gunness.

The dream came to Olson on April 26.

Two days later the Belle Gunness farmhouse near La Porte burned to the ground. Its occupants, a woman and three children, perished.

Nine days later five bodies were dug out of the Gunness farmyard. One was that of Jennie Olson. Within a week five more bodies were found.

Thus was unfolded to the world one of the most ghastly, one of the most grewsome crimes in modern history, a crime made up of many separate crimes that stamped Belle Gunness as a depraved, scheming archmurderess, a female Bluebeard.

Down around La Porte the old-timers still talk about the Gunness case. Their children discuss it. This is not surprising. The stark horror of the crime assured it long life. Yet something else also gave it vitality. That was the moot question:

Did Belle Gunness die in the fire?

Legally she did. Yet for many years nine out of any ten persons picked at random around La Porte would have expressed doubt of her death. They felt that she escaped the conflagration, to remain a fugitive. Circumstantial evidence worked both ways. It indicated that she perished in the fire. It indicated that she did not perish. As recently as 1931 Belle Gunness was reported found in a Mississippi town. The report was false. In the same year the body of a woman in Los Angeles was identified as hers. Even now the sherif at La Porte receives at least one query a month concerning Belle Gunness.

Probably few would contend that she is alive today. She would be 76 years old. The argument is that her ways of life as known in 1908 precluded her chance of reaching such a ripe age.

Most persons seeing Mrs. Gunness would not have noticed anything sinister about her, certainly nothing to brand her as a slayer of ten. Ray Lamphere, ne'er-do-well farmhand and a central figure in the case, once reputedly said she killed forty-one. She was large and muscular, a type not unusual on farms. About 5 feet 7 inches tall, she weighed close to 200 pounds. She killed her own hogs and handled heavy trunks with ease. She combed her hair in the pompadour fashion of the day. She was not homely, in fact was not unattractive.

But, in the words of her sister, Mrs. Nellie Larson of Chicago, "all she loved was money." This greed doomed her. It doomed her would-be-suitors. Mrs. Gunness' formula was simple. She advertised for a husband in foreign language newspapers. Applicants came from everywhere. She got their money, the excuse being to pay the mortgage on her home. Then she killed them. A dose of strychnine, then a hammer blow. Bodies were dissected, put into gunnysacks, and buried in the yard.

The murders were committed in a cellar room of the main house, reached through a single well oiled door. Within this room, the only illumination of which came from a candle or a lantern, and which variously was called the "chamber of horrors" and "Bluebeard hall," were a table and a large wooden vat. On the table Mrs. Gunness dismembered her victims. In the vat, filled with a chloride of lime solution, she occasionally tried to destroy parts of bodies. She alone held the key to the room.

The yard — known later as Mrs. Gunness' private graveyard—measured 75 by 50 feet. It was partly bare and partly covered with turf. Around it circled a double fence of large and small wire mesh eight feet high. There was only one gate. Mrs. Gunness carried the key. Often she prowled around the yard in the early mornings.

In this yard were buried the bodies of seven men, one girl, and two children. Not all were identified. The only known victims were Jennie Olson, Andrew K. Helgelein, John Moo, and Ole Budsberg. Three others were presumed to be Olaf Lindbom, Eric Gerhalt, and a hired man whose name the Gunness neighbors never knew. Helgelein, Moo, and Budsberg were definitly victims of Mrs. Gunness' matrimonial racket. There probably were others. No one ever will know.

Mrs. Gunness' early life was normal. Born Brynhilde Poulsatter in Selbe, Norway, in November, 1859, she came to the United States in 1868. In 1883 she became the wife of Mads Sorenson of Chicago. Of four children born to them, only two, Myrtle and Lucy, survived. Belle and Mads later adopted Antone Olson's infant daughter, Jennie. Sorenson died in 1900. Belle or Jennie Sorenson—she used both first names—collected $8,000 insurance. In addition she had $5,000 from the sale of Sorenson's home. Sorenson's death at the time aroused some suspicion, as did the deaths of the two children.

The Widow Sorenson moved to La Porte in 1901, buying a 48-acre farm off McClung road, one mile out of town. Many admirers called on her. Probably even then she was advertising for a husband. In the spring of 1902 Peter Gunness, also known as Gunnerson, wooed her. They were married in April. In December he was killed.

Widow Gunness told a coroner's jury that a sausage grinder had fallen from a high shelf and hit him on the head. This was possible. A verdict of accidental death was found. Mrs. Gunness collected $4,000 insurance.

Mrs. Gunness remained on the farm, where several months later Peter Gunness' posthumous child, Philip, was born. In addition there were Myrtle and Lucy Sorenson and Jennie Olson. Handymen did the heavy farm work. Meantime Mrs. Gunness resumed her matrimonial advertising. In 1906 John Moo arrived from Elbow Lake, Minn. He brought $1,000 to pay off the mortgage. Mrs. Gunness introduced him to friends as "Cousin John." A week later he disappeared. She told friends he had gone home. Actually he had gone into the private graveyard. Jennie Olson also disappeared in 1906. She was then 16 years old. Mrs. Gunness told friends she had gone to school in California. Actually she, too, had gone into the private graveyard. Jennie Olson had seen too much — probably the murder of John Moo.

Between the murders of Moo and Jennie, George Anderson of Tarkio, Mo., called to woo Mrs. Gunness. He didn't bring much money with him, so Mrs. Gunness told him he'd have to send for more. The arrangements were made. Anderson retired one night, his third or fourth on the farm. Suddenly he wakened, a cold sweat all over him. He looked up.

Mrs. Gunness was bending over him, leering into his eyes. Startled, he spoke to her. She ran out of the room. Anderson didn't relish this. He dressed hurriedly and fled. Thus he was able two years later to read the fate he so narrowly had escaped.

By late 1906 the Gunness home was earning a spooky reputation. No one could say why. Cabbies who were hired to deliver trunks there from La Porte—and always at night—began shying away when Mrs. Gunness approached. One, Clyde Sturgis, was berated by Mrs. Gunness when he volunteered to cut the cords binding a trunk. "What are you trying to do?" she screamed at him. Neighbors complained that the window shutters of the Gunness home were closed during the day and that no lights could be seen at night. Added to this were Mrs. Gunness' mysterious nocturnal prowlings.

The spookiness even affected C. Christofferson, who, with his wife, was one of Mrs. Gunness' closest friends. Caught in a storm one evening, he decided to stay overnight in her home. This was in 1906. Some time after midnight he awoke. The storm had passed. He could see a pale moon in the skies. A strange mental panic seized him. He could not explain it. Something told him: "Keep your wits about you. You are in danger." This haunting dread persisted. Then, like Anderson before him, he dressed quickly and quietly and fled.

However the escape of George Anderson and the escape of Christofferson—although it is not certain she would have killed Christofferson—may have affected Mrs. Gunness, she nevertheless kept up her matrimonial murder mania. The next victim was simple Ole Budsberg, father of several grown sons. He secretly left his home in Iola, Wis., in April 1907, and walked into the Gunness web. He brought $2,000, then was given poison, several hammer blows, and an unmarked grave in the private graveyard.

In the summer of 1907 Ray L'Amphere, a French Canadian who changed the spelling of his name to Lamphere, was hired as a farmhand by Mrs. Gunness. He was dull-witted and pliable. An evident attachment developed between them. Lamphere soon came to know the nature of Mrs. Gunness' farm, and he was later quoted in a deathbed statement as saying that he had helped to bury numerous victims. This was probably true. It was also probably true that he had trapped Mrs. Gunness while she was disposing of a body. In any event he felt that he held an upper hand on Mrs. Gunness. Once he told friends that he "knew plenty about her."

Nothing unusual on the surface occurred until late January, 1908, when Andrew K. Helgelein of Aberdeen, S. D., called on Mrs. Gunness—purpose, matrimony and the lifting of the family mortgage. He carried $3,000. They had corresponded, and in her correspondence Mrs. Gunness showed a shrewd hand. A letter dated Jan. 13, 1908, stated in part:

"To the Dearest Friend in the World:

"No woman in the world is happier than I am. I know that you are now to come to me and be my own. I can tell from your letters that you are the man I want. It does not take one long to tell when to like a person, and you I like better than anyone in the world, I know.

"Think how we will enjoy each other's company. You, the sweetest man in the whole world. We will be all alone with each other. Can you conceive of anything nicer?

"I think of you constantly. When I hear your name mentioned, and this is generally when one of the dear children speaks of you or I hear myself humming it with the words of an old love song, it is beautiful music in my ears.

"My heart beats in wild rapture for you. My Andrew, I love you. Come prepared to stay forever."

Andrew Helgelein did stay forever. He was buried in Mrs. Gunness' private graveyard with John Moo, Jennie Olson, Ole Budsberg, and others.

Fatal Fire Leads to Discovery of Killer's Private Graveyard

Brief as Helgelein's visit had been, it kindled jealousy in the farmhand Lamphere, who evidently felt that Mrs. Gunness had shown genuine attachment for Helgelein. He quarreled with her about him even after Helgelein's death. This led to a break. Lamphere quit. He complained that Mrs. Gunness owed him wages. He told friends he knew enough about Mrs. Gunness to make her pay him for silence.

This worried Mrs. Gunness. She was also worried about insistent demands from Asle Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D., inquiring about his brother Andrew. To Asle Helgelein she wrote saying that Andrew had departed, probably for his native Norway. When Asle replied that he doubted Andrew had gone to Norway, she invited Asle to come to La Porte to help her search for him. And don't neglect to bring money, she advised.

Mrs. Gunness used different strategy with Lamphere. She first caused him to be tried for his sanity. He was found sane. Then she caused his arrest three times on charges of trespass and breaking the peace. This didn't annoy Lamphere. He went around saying Mrs. Gunness had threatened him and hinting he knew dark secrets about her. Once he confided to William Slater, a farmhand: "Helgelein won't bother me. We've fixed him for keeps."

Lamphere's actions and Asle Helgelein's demands for information about his missing brother combined to send Mrs. Gunness to her lawyer, M. E. Leliter, in La Porte. She told him that she feared Lamphere.

"I'm afraid he's going to kill me or burn my house," she said.

She made out a will leaving her estate to her children or to a Norwegian children's home in Chicago if the children did not survive. Then she deposited $700 in a bank and paid off a $500 note — all this obviously with Andrew Helgelein's $3,000.

The visit to the lawyer was made on April 27, 1908.

Less than twelve hours later Mrs. Gunness' home burned to the ground. Joseph Maxon, the farmhand who had succeeded Lamphere, tried to awaken Mrs. Gunness and the three children. No one answered him. Maxon was able to save himself.

Searchers found four bodies, one that of a headless woman and three those of children, lying on a mattress in the cellar. The children were evidently Myrtle and Lucy Sorenson and Philip Gunness. The woman was presumed to be Mrs. Gunness. There was no débris under the mattress. Atop the bodies rested the charred frame of a piano.

Authorities decided it was a case of murder by arson and ordered Lamphere arrested. His first question was:

"Did the Widow Gunness and the children get out?"

He denied knowledge of the fire but his stories were confusing. The crowning blow against him came from John Solyam, 16 years old. He identified Lamphere as the man he saw fleeing the fire.

"You wouldn't say that looking me in the eye," challenged Lamphere.

"Yes, I will," retorted the boy. "You found me hiding behind a bush and told me you'd kill me if I didn't get out of there."

Authorities were content. They prepared to indict Lamphere for murder. They said the motive was spurned love.

Then Asle Helgelein hove into La Porte from South Dakota, determined to find out what had happened to Brother Andrew. That was on May 3. He told Sherif Albert H. Smutzer he believed his brother was dead. The sherif scoffed. Helgelein revealed the same persistence with the sherif that he had by mail with Mrs. Gunness.

Finally Sherif Smutzer agreed to search the Gunness premises. That was on May 5. Several soft spots in the 75 by 50 foot fence-inclosed yard attracted their attention. They asked Joseph Maxon about them.

"O, them?" said Maxon. "Those are rubbish holes I filled for Mrs. Gunness."

Deputies prodded shovels gingerly and skeptically into one of the soft spots. Old cans, broken bits of furniture, bottles, and several paint brushes turned up. They grinned at Helgelein. He set his face and urged them to dig on.

Suddenly one of the diggers turned up a bit of gunnysack. His face paled. He called Sherif Smutzer. Several men began digging. They uncovered a hacked body. It was in good condition. Helgelein looked.

"That's Andy," he said.

It was. The disappearance of Andrew K. Helgelein had been solved. Deputies dug feverishly in other soft spots. Before sundown four more bodies were found, one that of Jennie Olson, who had "gone to California" two years before, one that of a tall man with a black mustache, and two those of children.

The next day four more bodies were dug up, and a few days later one more, making a total of ten.

Lamphere, in jail, was told of the discoveries.

"Bodies! Murder! Helgelein! My God, that woman!" he exclaimed. "Now I know what was going on."

The finding of the bodies only created a bigger mystery.

Was the headless body of the woman found in the cellar that of Mrs. Gunness?

Maxon, the farmhand; Mrs. Nellie Olander, and Sigward Olson, sister and brother of the slain Jennie Olson; C. Christofferson, neighbor; Swan Nicholson, neighbor, and Mrs. Austin Cutler, an acquaintance, all swore the body was not hers.

Witnesses told of seeing Mrs. Gunness drive a strange woman to the farm the Saturday before the fire, which occurred on a Tuesday. This woman, a brunette, slight of build, never was seen again. People thought that Mrs. Gunness probably used this woman as a substitute for herself, that she killed her and the children, then escaped, and that she cut off the woman's head to prevent identification.

Physicians measured the charred remains of the headless woman. They made generous allowance for the head and neck and weight. They agreed she was about 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighed around 150 pounds. Friends said Mrs. Gunness was closer to 5 feet 7 inches in height and weighed nearly 200 pounds. The doctors drew up this comparative table of measurements:

	Victim (inches)	Mrs. Gunness (inches)
Biceps	9	17
Bust	36	46
Waist	26	37
Thigh	25	30
Hips	40	54
Calf	12½	14
Wrist	6	9

Despite these apparent discrepancies, authorities believed that the headless body was that of Mrs. Gunness, although admitting that they needed more definite proof. On May 12 Drs. J. Lucian Grey, J. H. W. Meyer, H. H. Long, and Franklin T. Wilcox reëxamined the torso. They found on the fingers what had not been found before—three gold rings. One was set with diamonds. Another was engraved "P. S. to J. S., Aug. 22, '94." The third was engraved "P. G. to J. S., 3-5-'95."

Mr. and Mrs. Christofferson identified the rings as belonging to Mrs. Gunness. Still the skeptics were dissatisfied. Finally Dr. Ira P. Norton, a dentist, came forward. He had done work for Mrs. Gunness. He could identify his individual style of workmanship. To arguments that a fire that would destroy a woman's head would also destroy gold and porcelain dental work he replied no. The gold caps, he said, would not fuse in less than 1,800 degrees Fahrenheit; the procelain would not incinerate in less than 2,200 degrees. "That would call for a blowpipe," he said.

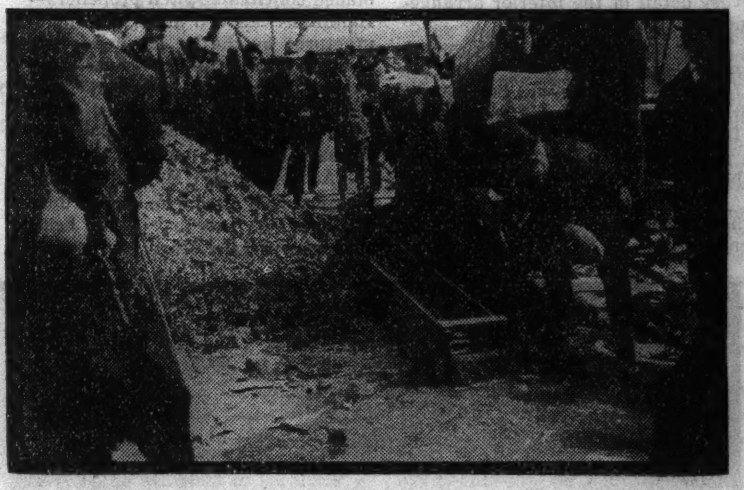
Sherif Smutzer decided that the missing teeth would be the final circumstantial proof that Mrs. Gunness had died in the fire. But how could that mass of débris that was once the Gunness home be combed? Louis Schultz, a former gold miner, gave the answer. He offered to sluice, or sift, for the teeth. He built a sluice. Day after day, while hundreds looked on, he worked methodically at his task. Success came May 19. He found dental bridgework showing two lower bicuspids and four porcelain teeth between them. They were rushed to Dr. Norton. A professional glance, then:

"Those are Mrs. Gunness' teeth," he said.

The next day Coroner Charles S. Mack returned this finding:

"It is my verdict that the body so viewed is that of Mrs. Belle Gunness, and she came to her death through felonious homicide, and that the perpetrator is to me unknown."

Two days later — May 22 — the grand jury, composed of A. Z. Anderson, Henry Keithline, August Boske, Fred Zahrn, William Inman, and Jay W. Travis, returned a strange indictment — an indictment against a dead woman. They named "the late Belle Gunness" as principal in murder and Ray Lamphere as accessory. It was necessary to indict her, even though dead, if Lamphere were to be named as an accessory.



Sluicing debris of home for teeth that were to identify headless body of woman in charred ruins.

All that was left of Gunness home after fatal fire of April 28, 1908.

Lamphere was tried in November, 1908, before Judge John C. Richter, now retired. He was prosecuted by State's Attorney Ralph N. Smith, later an appellate judge, now dead, and defended by Wirt Worden, now a circuit judge in La Porte. Bigger than the double charge of murder and arson against Lamphere was the question, was Belle Gunness alive? The jury evidently thought so. They acquitted Lamphere of murder but convicted him of arson. That was on Dec. 30, 1908.

Lamphere went to Michigan City prison, where he died early in 1909. Before dying he reputedly told Harry Myres, trusty and friend, about Murder farm. These are some of his alleged statements: Mrs. Gunness did not die in the fire. She had slain a woman to substitute for her, set the house afire, and escaped. She had lured forty-two men in all to the farm. Only one escaped—probably George Anderson of Tarkio, Mo. She got various amounts—from $300 to $23,000—from her victims. Generally she drugged their coffee, then bashed in their heads while they lay in a stupor. Then she dissected their bodies, tied them in sacks, and buried them in the yard. Lamphere helped in several burials. Jennie Olson was killed because she knew too much, the children because they were "getting wise."

Lamphere also was quoted as saying that Mrs. Gunness really killed her second husband, Peter Gunness, supposedly killed by a sausage grinder. It is known that Myrtle Sorenson, her eldest child, once told a school chum: "Mamma brained papa with an ax. Don't tell a soul."

Neither the conviction nor the death of Lamphere wholly settled the mystery. Even today police stations throughout the world keep descriptions of Belle Gunness. Meantime the Gunness farm has survived as a jinx. Five years ago John Nepsha defied the jinx by building a home on it. A few months ago his wife divorced him. She couldn't live on the place. And only a few days ago Emil Luther, an assistant surveyor, dropped dead while surveying the old private graveyard.

Airplanes and Air Transport

Britons Soon to Test New Supership

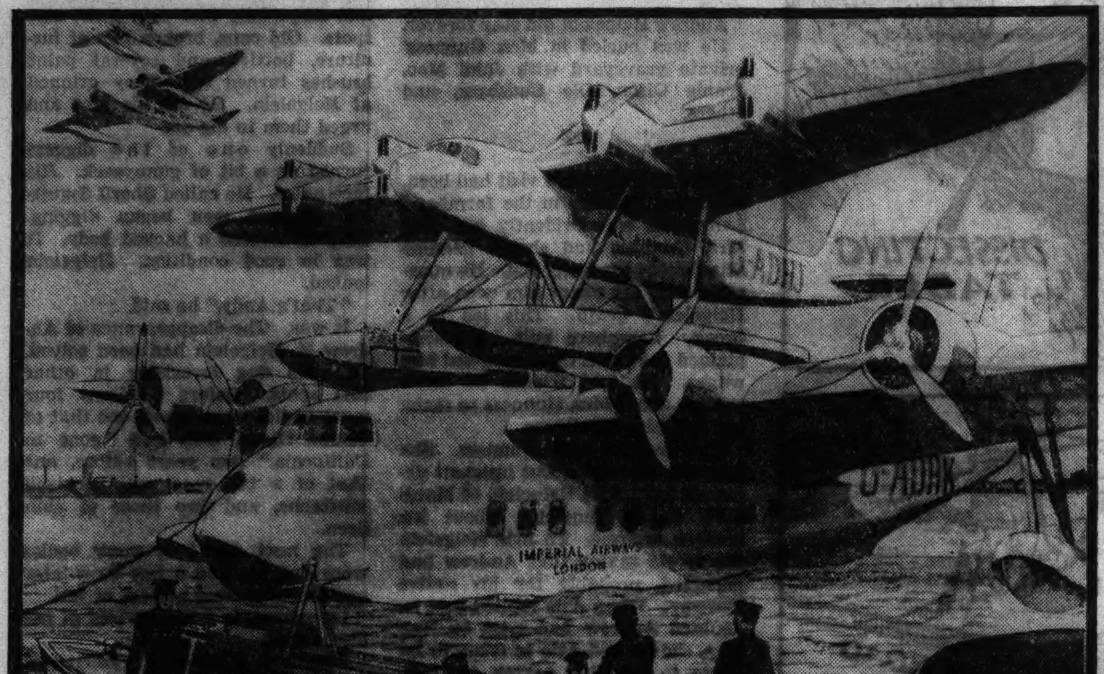
By WAYNE THOMIS

THE first of approximately forty new airplanes ordered by England's state-subsidized air transportation company—Imperial Airways, Ltd.—is scheduled to begin flight tests at the end of this month. These new ships are destined for the England-Australia, England-South Africa, and the north Atlantic ocean routes.

Of this number 29 are to be flying boats of large size, capable of long-range flights, and equipped with four motors for reliability—another term for safety of operation. Another ten or so, with options in the hands of Imperial directors for still more, are to be land planes, high-wing monoplanes, also with four motors, and capable of high-speed flight with from 25 to 40 passengers, depending upon the distance flown.

To date only the specifications, a few photographs of shop work upon wings or hull, and the accompanying diagrammatic drawing, with pictures taken in a "mock-up" of the ship, have been released. The mock-up is a wood and paper replica of the completed airplane which is constructed to actual size so that every detail of the interior arrangements can be worked out.

These boats are to be all metal and are to have a gross weight of 17 tons. The wings will be entirely braced from within and will spread 114 feet. The hull, to which they are directly attached—contrary to the American custom as followed by Igor Sikorsky, Glenn Martin, and the Consolidated Aircraft company engineers—will be 88½ feet long.



The Mayo composite plane. This strange-appearing craft is really two ships which are intended to separate in the air, allowing the smaller ship to fly on to its destination.

Each of the engines will deliver 920 horsepower and will twirl three-bladed controlable-pitch propellers—Hamilton-Standard air screws manufactured by the De Haviland company of England under license. The engines, following American practice, will be radial air-cooled types. The first engines probably will be Pegasus X motors built by the Bristol Aeroplane and Motor company.

Range will, of course, depend upon pay load—a sacrifice of one being necessary for the other. With maximum pay load of five tons the boats will have a maximum range of 750 miles. With this pay load reduced to a few hundred pounds they will be able to fly 2,000 miles. Speed specifications call for a top of 190 and cruising speed of 150 miles an hour.

Twenty-six of the boats are to be used on the present Imperial routes, and these will eliminate the entraining of passengers, as at present, between Paris and Brindisi, in Italy. The boats will fly from England to Portugal and thence up the Mediterranean.

Three of them are to be fitted out as experimental ships. One will carry extra tanks in the cabin, as did Pan American Airways' Sikorsky S-42 in the Pacific pioneering flights, thus obtaining fuel for the 2,000-mile flights anticipated as necessary for the trans-Atlantic crossing. Two others will have tanks for 1,500 miles and presumably will be used in pioneering flights.

Judging from these preparations, made public by Imperial Airways directors recently, most of the experimental trans-Atlantic flights scheduled for this summer in coöperation with Pan American Airways will be done in American equipment. Flying boats with ranges up to 3,000 miles are needed for the north Atlantic, even though the actual water crossing from Newfoundland to Ireland is less than 2,000 statute miles.

It would be shaving margins of safety too closely to expect pilots to attempt this stretch of ocean, where unfavorable weather and head winds are almost always to be encountered, on the narrow margin of a mere 2,000 miles of fuel.

Of the land planes little is known save that they are being built by Armstrong-Whitworth, another military manufacturer. Their wing spread is said to be more than 120 feet and the fuselage length more than 90 feet.

In the United States the low-wing monoplane apparently has won out with all engineers and designers against any other type of ship. In England the high-wing ship has its advocates—among them Imperial. All the new land planes will be high-wing monoplanes—chiefly to provide good view for passengers, whose sight of the ground is obstructed by the wings in low-wing planes.

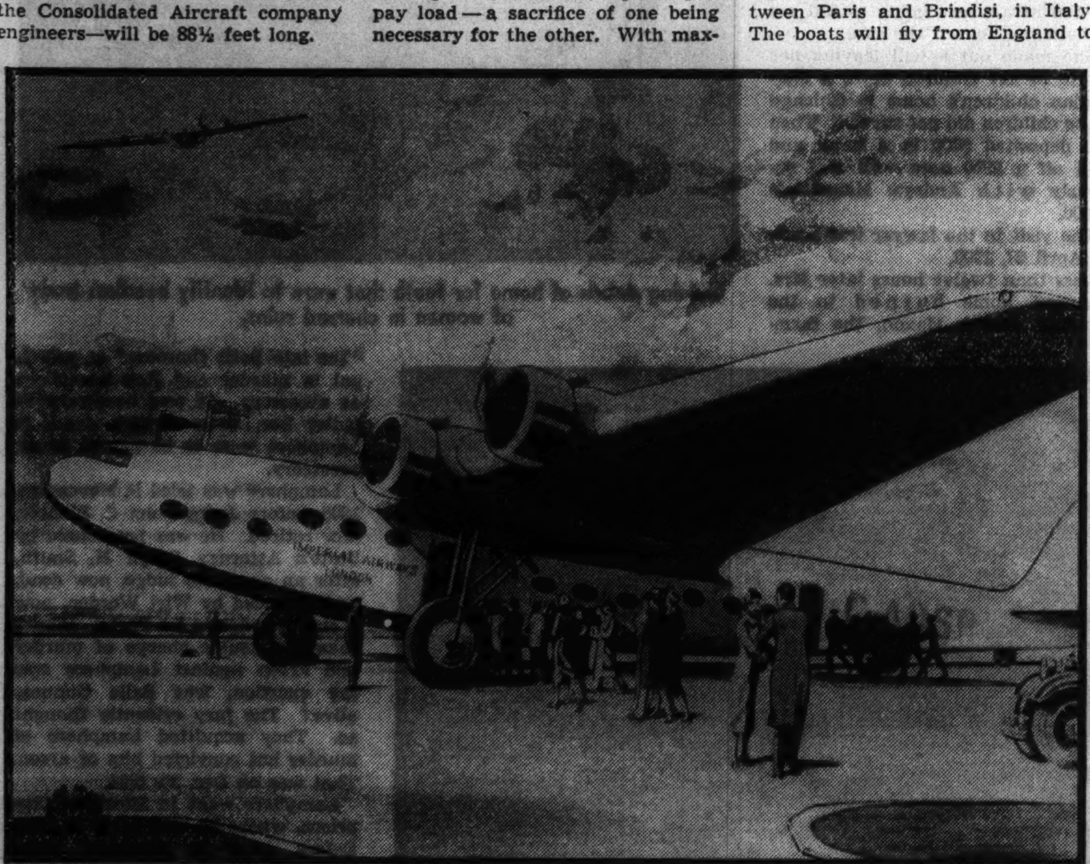
Landing gear is being constructed to fold into the two inboard engine nacelles. This will be something of a problem, since the wheels must be projected some 15 or 16 feet below the wing and still bear the shocks of rough landings and of loads imposed when taxiing on rough fields.

The big land planes are supposed to have a range of around 1,000 miles with 20 passengers aboard. They are to provide sleeping accommodations, as will the boats. Their speeds are supposed to be slightly less than 200 miles an hour top and around 165 miles an hour for cruising.

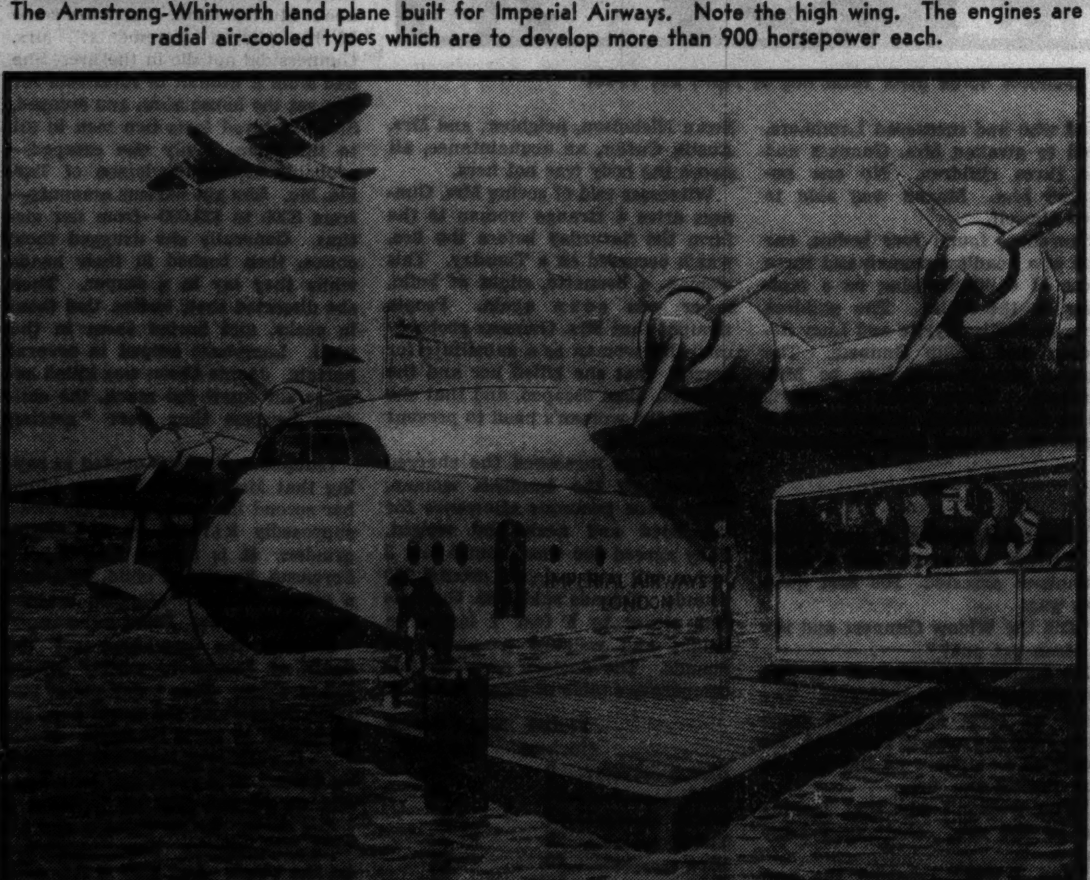
The Mayo composite ship is definitly a freak. It is a combination of a four-motored seaplane and one of the big flying boats. It was conceived with the notion in mind that an airplane can safely fly with greater loads than it can get off the ground.

So the seaplane, with a ton of mail and fuel for 3,000 miles and its crew of three persons, is loaded on top of one of the big air boats. With all eight motors turning up, and with the big boat carrying only a small load of fuel, they both get off the water.

At a prearranged height the two ships separate and the seaplane flies on to its destination, presumably Canada, although such a mail ship could be flown in any direction from England. The boat then returns to its base.

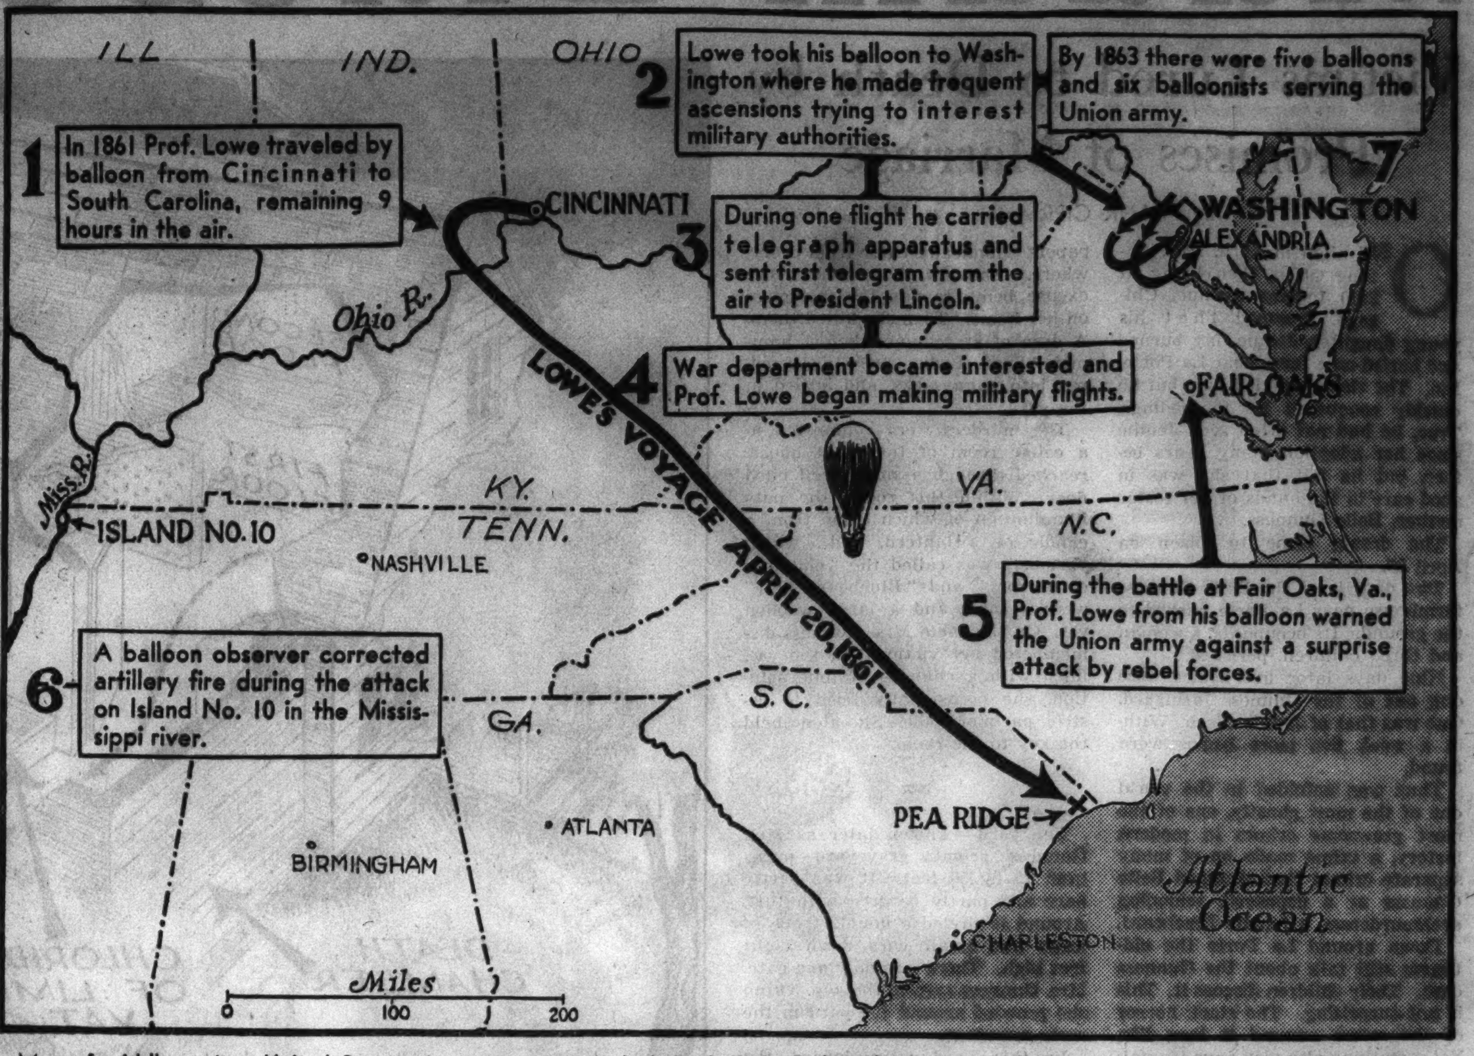


The Armstrong-Whitworth land plane built for Imperial Airways. Note the high wing. The engines are radial air-cooled types which are to develop more than 900 horsepower each.



The Imperial Airways flying boat built for the "Empire" air routes and also for north Atlantic ocean experiments to begin this summer.

Balloons in the Civil War



Map of middle eastern United States, showing points at which Prof. T. S. C. Lowe's coal gas and hydrogen balloons made history during the early years of the Civil war.

Gas Bags of Lowe First Air Corps

By CHARLES SMUTNY

LIKE the Italian women who tossed their wedding rings into Mussolini's war chest, patriotic southern belles contributed their silk dresses to the blockaded Confederate States of America. These dresses were sewn together to form the great patchwork envelope, varicolored as Joseph's coat, used for their only military balloon.

The meanest trick of the whole Civil war, in the opinion of Gen. W. B. Taliaferro, was the capture of this balloon. It was to be sent up from the deck of a boat in the James river near Richmond, Va. As it approached the point in the river chosen for observation, the boat grounded on a sandbar. Abandoned by the Confederates, the precious silk-dress balloon became the prize of Union soldiers.

A civilian introduced captive or stationary balloons to military uses in the north in 1861. The development of the aeronautics section of the United States army followed an experimental stratosphere flight. The 29-year-old aeronaut carried the ballastlike name of Thaddeus Sobieski Coulincourt Lowe. He believed that balloon flights from America to Europe were possible. In the upper atmosphere, he felt sure, the strong winds perpetually moved eastward.

To test his theory Lowe made a balloon ascension from Cincinnati, O., a few days after the opening of the Civil war. For nine hours the wind pushed the balloon in a southeasterly course, apparently proving his theory. Unprepared for a trans-Atlantic hop, he decided to descend near the coast.

On landing a mob of armed South Carolina hillbillies surrounded the balloon. The cry "Yankee spy!" arose among them. Soon it became "Shoot him on the spot!" Lowe's explanation failed to convince. He drew his pistol. Before this tall, determined young man the crowd became tolerant. Finally Lowe was recognized by a man who had witnessed his balloon ascensions in 1860.

Lowe was permitted to return to the north. He went to the capital to offer his services as a balloonist. He persuaded Prof. Joseph Henry of the Smithsonian institution to present the idea to President Lincoln. Lincoln referred him to the war department officials. The war department sent him to the bureau of topographical engineers. To all these Lowe pointed out the value of aerial observation. Rising a thousand feet made it possible to watch the enemy troops twenty miles away, to estimate their numbers, to give ample warning against surprise attacks, to draw maps of the country behind the Confederate lines.

But Lowe's enthusiasm met with disheartening indifference from the authorities. Military ballooning was new and unproved. Aeronauts were generally considered mildly insane. Lunatics were to be humored if they were persistent.

"We'll try your balloon some time, Professor Lowe," he was told. "Not just now. Everyone is busy with the war."

Lowe took his balloon to Washington, D. C., inflated it with coal gas from the city mains, and hired a ground crew at his own expense. Frequent ascensions were made. Once he rose from the White House grounds carrying telegraph apparatus and trailing a wire to the earth. The first telegram ever to be sent from a balloon went to President Lincoln. Soon army officers began to ask to be taken up. One of these observed the Confederate forces near Washington and drew a map of the vicinity. The favorable reports of these officers undoubtedly influenced the bureau of topographical engineers to accept Professor Lowe and his balloon on June 26, 1861. He turned down their offer of $30 a day, accepting instead $10 a day and a new balloon.

Professor Lowe in the basket of one of his military balloons of the Civil war. The balloon, it will be noted, is held captive by a group of soldiers on the ground end of a rope.

Thus far observation was restricted to the environs of Washington. Coal gas for inflating the envelope was available only in the city. Towing the inflated balloon more than a few miles was impractical. About the middle of September, 1861, Lowe was wheedling the war department for portable apparatus for generating hydrogen gas. The movable generators he had invented would enable him to inflate ballons in the field or aboard ships. Hydrogen gas brought greater lifting power than coal gas.

Lowe ascended repeatedly whenever the weather permitted. He allayed the fear caused by recurring rumors of Confederate attack on the city. At night the campfires told the location of the enemy and revealed their power. An ever-increasing number of officers asked to go up. The attitude of the war department changed. By November Lowe got not only portable hydrogen generators and the two ballons he requested but two additional balloons, with assistant aeronauts and the assignment of ground crews. A month later he was asking for two more balloons.

Dangerous voyages over enemy territory were made when the wind direction permitted. Aeronaut John La Mountain reported a flight of this kind in Virginia. On Oct. 4, 1861, he sailed over the Confederates in a southwest wind. The return was accomplished by throwing ballast overboard and rising to a higher level, where a northeast wind prevailed. Lowe made a similar voyage from Washington. The balloon was badly riddled by shots—from his comrades. He had neglected to display a flag and was thought to be a southerner.

During the second year of the war new possibilities developed in the aeronautics section. The first attempt at aerial photography was made. Artillery fire was directed from the air. In the navy's attack on island No. 10 in the Mississippi river the bombardment was corrected from a balloon borrowed from the Army of the Potomac.

Almost invariably the Confederate artillery hurled everything it had at a balloon the instant it rose above the treetops. Fragments frequently caused damage. Balloons after rising to an altitude suitable for observation usually were beyond the range of most of the guns of that time.

At the siege of Yorktown the balloon carrying Gen. Fitz John Porter broke from its moorings. He floated toward the Confederate lines. Before the aeronaut could interfere Porter opened the valve wide, letting the entire charge of gas escape. Fortunately, the empty bag collapsed and formed a crude parachute and General Porter descended in safety. For some time afterward several officers excused themselves from observation, pleading vertigo.

During the very severe battle at Fair Oaks, Va., the south effected a great concentration of its troops designed to crush the Union left flank. This movement was concealed in a forest and could only be discovered from the air. Professor Lowe's warning of this operation came in sufficient time to reinforce the left.

The spring of 1863 brought a strangling illness to the aeronautics section. In two years it had grown to be a useful chore boy. Many major officers relied on its messages dropped to earth, telegraphed, and signaled by flags or flares. Long, roundabout marches were forced on the enemy in attempts to conceal troop movements from the balloons.

No satisfactory explanation remains. The strangulation appeared to start when Capt. C. B. Comstock became chief engineer of the Army of the Potomac. Officers' messages always had been addressed to "Professor Lowe." Captain Comstock's chilling letters were directed to "Mr. Lowe." He issued orders covering the duties Professor Lowe had been performing voluntarily for two years. He discharged a portion of Lowe's trained staf and replaced them with men of his own choice. He refused to accept the chief aeronaut's judgment regarding the repair of damaged balloons.

Unfortunately, Professor Lowe was unfamiliar with army rules and etiquet. He sent letters directly to the war department which should have passed through the hands of Captain Comstock, his superior. Finally Lowe's pay was reduced 40 per cent. On May 7, 1863, finding he could not support his family, he resigned, and the balloon establishment fell into disuse.

Turning from the war, Lowe applied his energies to invention. In 1866 he started to manufacture artificial ice. Failing in this, he formulated the process of making illuminating gas, of the kind still widely used. Success came in the promotion of gas plant construction. He built the Lowe observatory in California. The peak on which it stands was named for him.

KNIGHTS of the RANGE

Britt and Holly's Cowboys Lay Plans to Meet a Growing Menace as a Notorious Killer Joins the Ranks of the Rancho's Foes

THE STORY TO DATE

Holly Ripple, who has inherited the beauty of her Spanish mother, returns from boarding school to her father's ranch in New Mexico just before his death. Anticipating an era of cattle rustling and outlawry, Colonel Ripple placed Holly under the care of his trusted foreman, Britt, and ordered him to surround her with the hardest outfit of cowboys he could gather together. In an encounter with horse thieves Holly is saved from the insults of the leader by one of his own men, Renn Frayne, who shoots his master and another man to save her. Holly persuades Frayne, self-admitted outlaw, to ride for her. Holly gives a dinner to her outfit and in an address inspires them to loyalty, proclaiming them her Knights of the Range. Holly realizes she is in love with Frayne, yet Frayne avoids her. Sewall McCoy, a rival cattle owner, proposes to Holly. When she refuses him he threatens to join up with the rustler Slaughter. Frayne evinces his admiration for her action. To prove her faith in Frayne, Holly sends him to sell a drove of cattle and bring back the money in cash. After painful days of waiting for Holly, Frayne returns. The treachery of Talman and Trinidad, two of Holly's riders, is discovered by Sloan, one of her outfit.

INSTALMENT XIII.

AN HOUR later eight horsemen, on bays and blacks, darkly garbed and heavily armed, rode silently away from Don Carlos rancho, headed for the foothills to the north.

Down on the range the night was warm and still. Stars shone brightly. Sloan led the single file at a trot until he struck a slow grade, where he put his horse to a walk. The fact that no rider smoked or spoke attested to the nature of this night adventure. Talman and Trinidad were due for a terrible reckoning.

In another hour of as rough riding as Britt had experienced, Sloan left the dim deer trail and headed down hill. By starlight Britt made out that his watch said one o'clock. The guide knew his way and took his time. It seemed to Britt that the longer the hours the grimmer the men.

At length Sloan led out of the heavy timber to a marked break in the conformity of the vast slope. Gray, black-dotted ridges ran down, with bare white backs and sides, toward the vast void that was the cattle range. Sloan halted to let his comrades close in around him.

"How long till daybreak?"

"Wal, let's see. My watch says two-thirty. I reckon we hev an hour an' a half before we can see good."

"Plenty time. Thet camp is tolerable far yet. But in this air a crack of a hoof on a rock would carry a long way. What you-all say?"

"Better be shore than sorry," rejoined Britt. "Pile off, fellars."

"Leave everythin' extra heah but yore rifles — an' ropes," whispered Sloan as he securely tied his horse to an oak sapling. "Take yore chaps off, an' spurs."

In a moment his followers were all ready, dark faces agleam in the pale moonlight.

When Sloan started on again he took to an Indian's stealth and slowness. Finally Britt felt a restraining hand patting his shoulder. He looked up. Santone crouched a little ahead of him. Britt discovered a beautiful glade just below him, the smoking remains of a campfire, blanketed forms on the ground, and packs scattered around.

Britt saw Sloan lay aside his lasso and take his rifle in his two hands, slowly getting to his knees. His followers did likewise. Britt felt the cold sweat break out over him. He changed his rifle to his left hand and drew his gun.

On the moment one of the prostrate men rolled over to throw off his blanket, to sit up, yawning.

Rebel leaped up to let out that rebel yell for which he was famed. Then rang out a stentorian chorus: "Hands up!"

The farthest of these seven men leaped nimbly up, to shoot as swiftly and bound away. A volley of rifle shots answered him. Britt saw him stagger and fall.

Another, unheeding commands or shots, rolled out of his bed, guns flashing red. He was riddled by bullets before he got off his knees. A third, agile and swift, escaped a first fire, to make the blunder of wheeling before he reached cover. His gun spouted as the rifles cracked, and he collapsed like a wet sack.

"Hands up, ——— ——— ———!" bawled Rebel, advancing, his rifle at his hip.

Of those remaining, one stood paralyzed, his hands aloft; another sat with his hands high as his head; a third lay as if stunned, and the fourth leaned on his elbow, a blanket half concealing him. But his posture, his gray blotch of face, struck Britt as forbidding.

"Yu, there! Up with 'em!" rang out Brazos, striding forward.

"Look oot, pard! He's got a gun!" yelled Mason, leaping and shooting simultaneously. He lunged in front of Brazos just as the rustler fired through his blanket. Mason staggered under the impact of a heavy ball, then shot the man three times, flattening him on the ground.

"My God! Laigs, air yu hit?" cried Brazos piercingly.

"Aw—it ain't nothin'," replied the cowboy thickly, and turned his rifle on the remaining three men.

"Air yu shore you're not hit? I heahed thet bullet hit."

"Never touched me, Brazos. . . . Git yore hands up, thar! . . . Wal, if it ain't Pard Talman! Howdy, lad. Kinda in the wrong grub line, ain't you?"

BRITT came forward, his gun smoking. He had been in action. The standing rustler was no other than Lascelles, the card sharp from Louisiana. He looked his fallen estate. Brazos hopped with a wild yell when he recognized the gambler. The second was Talman, on his knees, livid of face, and petrified with horror. The third was a young blue-lipped, lean-jawed cowboy who realized his peril.

"Jackson, grab their guns!" shouted Sloan, bloody of visage and fearful to behold. He had met a bullet in that mêlée.

"Anybody else hit?" queried Britt sharply. Tex Southard sat on a stone, his head down. Mex, with a suspicious red on his hands, was fingering his brother's shoulder.

"Tex bored, but not bad," he called.

"Which one was Trinidad?" queried Brazos.

"I reckon thet one who run first," replied Britt. "Go see. But slow, Brazos."

The cowboy gave the rock a wide berth, and with rifle half up he sheered around, alert and formidable, to peer ahead.

"Daid!" he called with a piercing note in his high voice. But he still gazed on. Then in strangled voice he burst out: "Yu ——— ——— yellow fool! Game, but you're daid!"

Brazos came striding back, his hair up like a tawny wave, his eyes narrowed to blue dagger points.

"Jack — Santone. Search these men an' tie their arms back," ordered Sloan.

Swift hands carried out this command. Brazos poked with the nose of his rifle at the various articles piled on a rock, markedly among them a huge roll of greenback bills which had been taken from Talman.

"Hundred-dollar bills," muttered Brazos, his tone and action strangely significant. Then like a gold-headed striking snake he leaped to confront Talman. "If yu'd had guts, like Trin, yu wouldn't hev to swing!"

"Swing?" squeaked Talman, his visage like beaded wax. In profound egotism or arrogance or sheer blind folly, the cowboy had not counted the cost of failure. "For God's sake! Brazos! Brazos!"

Santone, left-handed and careless, tossed a noose neatly over Lascelles' head and whipped it tight. Then he made as clever a throw with the other end of his rope, sending it over a branch ten feet up. The gambler, evidently sodden and dazed, awoke to his extremity.

"Lay hold, cowboys!" yelled Sloan crisply, springing to Santone's side. Brazos was as quick, and Mex Southard left his brother to participate. One concerted lunge cut Lascelles' hideous blasphemy to a gasping wheeze and jerked him into the air.

"Make fast."

Britt saw the cowboys hold and tie the rope in a twinkling and duck to evade the tremendous, grotesque kicks of the swinging man.

Meanwhile the other cowboys were not idle. The ugly business must be done quickly. Jackson threw a noose over Talman's head. Talman was sagging down when the rope strung tight from another branch. His voice had failed; only sickening gasps issued from his lips. Up he shot, six feet above the ground.

Rebel Sloan confronted the pallid third of that trio and waved a ruthless hand aloft.

"Rustler, you see them?"

The reply was an incoherent affirmative.

"Do you want to save yore neck?"

"Gawd Almighty! Yes—yes! Gimme—a chance."

"Will you talk?"

"I—I'll tell all," he whispered in eager huskiness, his dark, awful eyes lighting with hope.

"Boss, come heah," called Sloan.

Britt hurriedly got out his pencil and notebook and ran over. Brazos joined them.

"What's yore name?"

"Jeff Saunders."

"Wal, Saunders, this heah is Britt—Holly Ripple's foreman. What he says you can rely on."

"Britt—if—if I squeal will you let me go?"

"Yes, provided yore information is conclusive, an' you swear to leave the country."

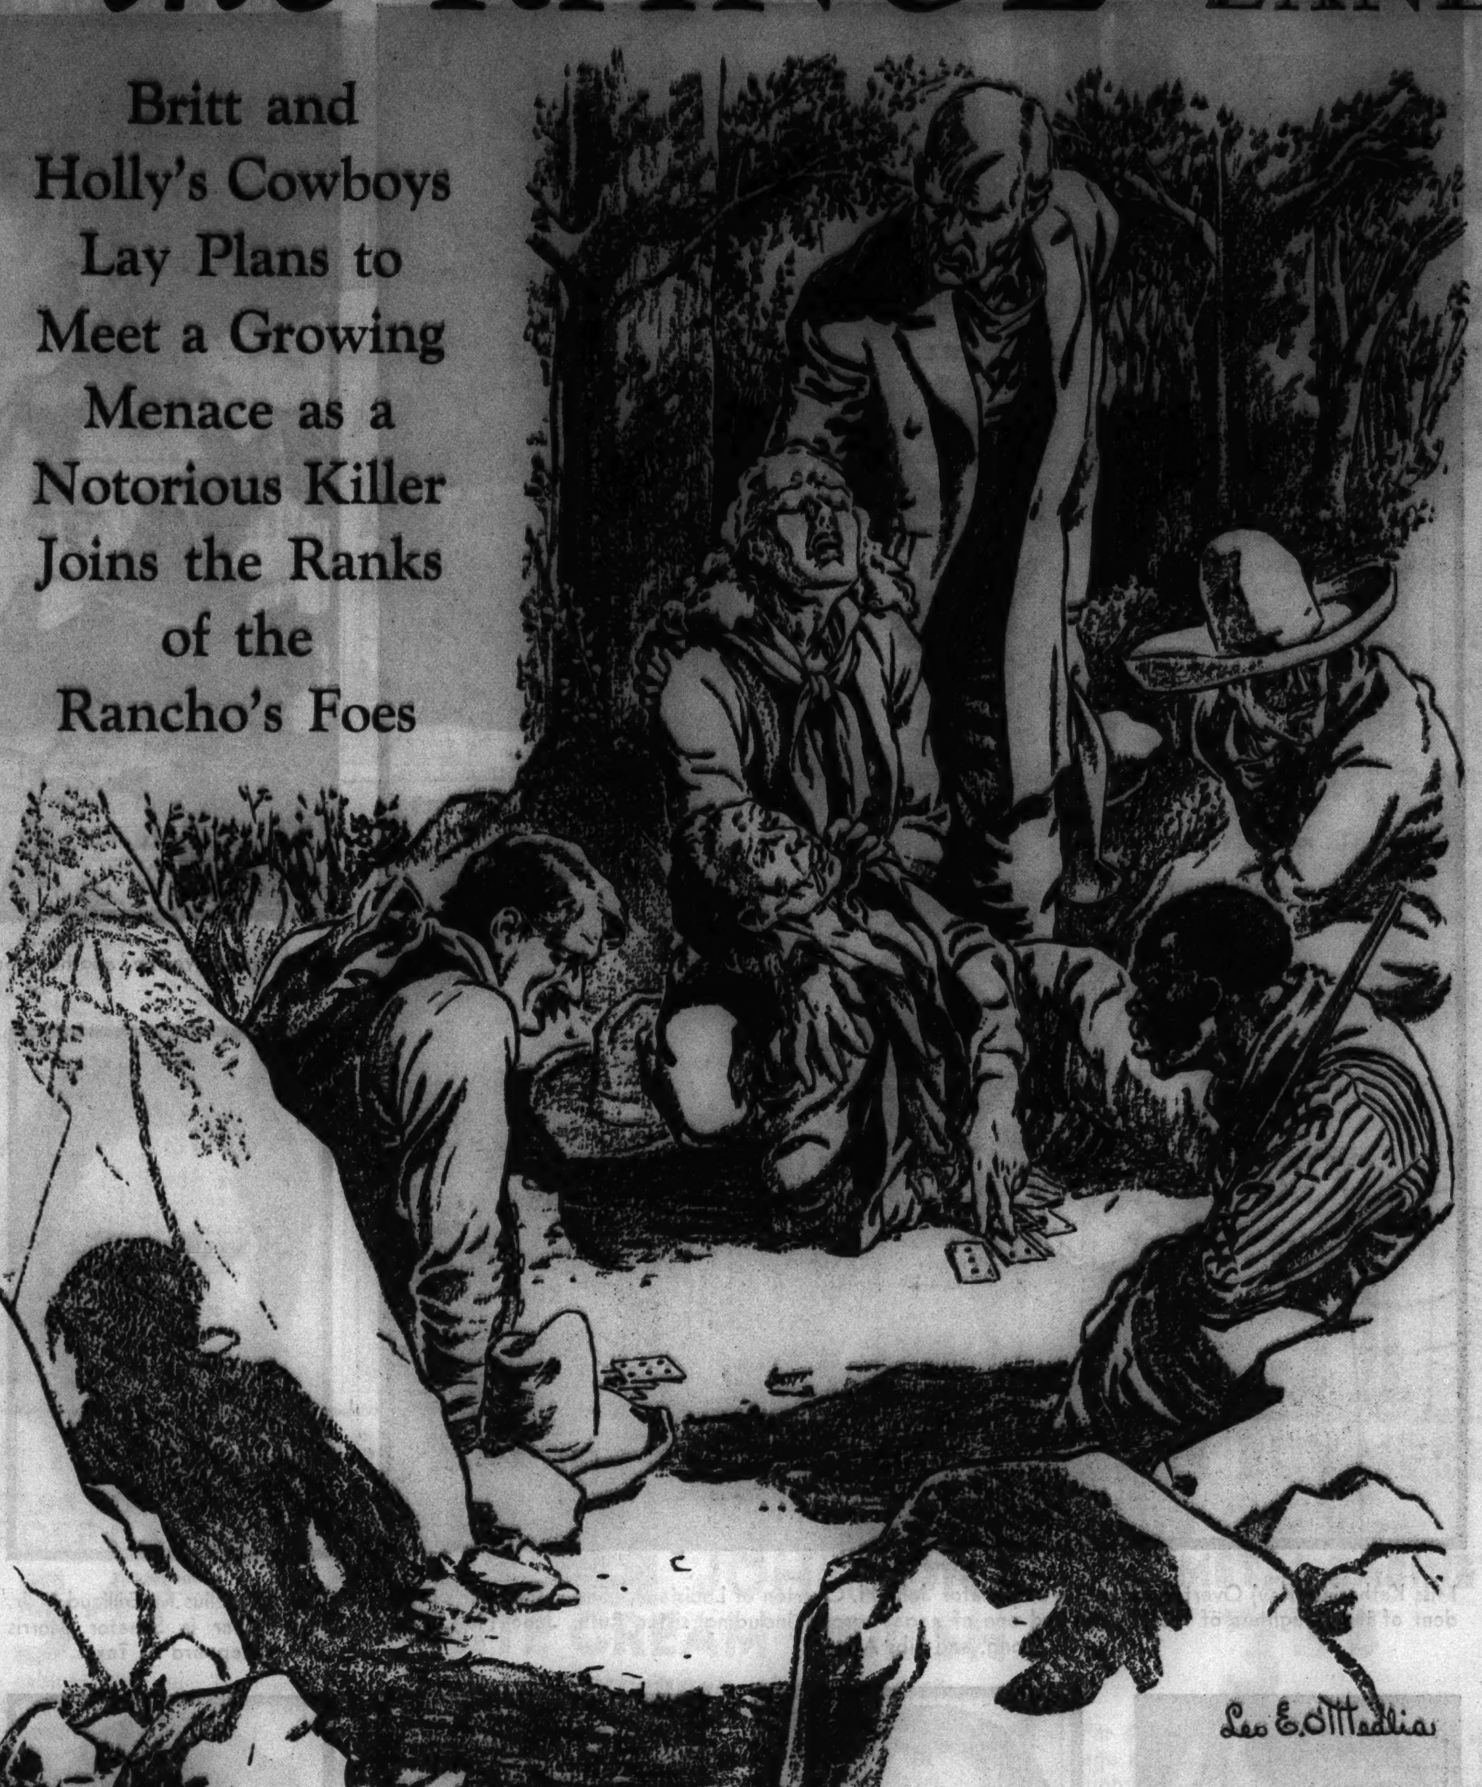
"I know enough, sir, an' I swear. . . . I'm only too glad."

"Who you ridin' fer?"

"Sewall McCoy."

"How long hev you rode fer him?"

"Two years. I come to New Mexico with his outfit."



Leo E. O'Mealia

Britt reached out to silence the singer. Laigs was dead.

"Is McCoy back of this deal involvin' my cowboys?"

"McCoy an' Slaughter together," rejoined Saunders, gulping to get his words out quickly. "They joined outfits. Slaughter was the dark hoss. He's got fourteen hands, not countin' this Lascelles. They're located at Aspen springs, up in the hills."

"What was their game?"

"A few quick drives this fall. Then big deals next spring. McCoy has buyers all over. When the railroad gets heah he aims to ship a hundred thousand cattle before the law comes."

"How many cattle in his herd?"

"Five thousand. All Texas longhorns. He aims to keep thet herd as is, only addin' branded calves."

"Who's he stealin' from?"

"A little from all cattlemen. But concentratin' on Ripple stock."

"From Chisum, too?"

"No. I reckon McCoy is shy of jinglebob cattle."

"How did McCoy corrupt Talman an' Trinidad?"

"Money. Talman was leavin' the range before winter. Trinidad was sore because Talman didn't divvy. Thet's why they camped with us last night. Trinidad refused to go back to your ranch. He cussed Talman mighty hard."

"All right, Saunders. Thet will do. Sign yore name heah. . . . Somebody untie his hands."

After this signature was added to Britt's notebook Sloan turned Saunders loose. "Grab yore saddle an' things. Pick oot yore gun. Fork yore hawse an' ride a bee-line somewhere far an' wide. Fer yore good luck might not last."

A POIGNANT cry caused Britt to wheel as on a pivot. Brazos was on his knees beside Mason, who had slumped off the pack to the ground and now sat propped there with strange ashen face.

"Laigs!"

Agony rang in that cry. Brazos' nervous hand plucked at Mason's stained shirt.

"It's all—right, pard," replied the wounded cowboy weakly. "We done fer thet outfit. . . . What we come fer! Funny how most of these double-crossers show yellow. Pity aboot Trin. . . . I'm glad he cashed game."

"Old man, you've lied to me!" exclaimed Brazos fearfully.

"Wal, it's the—last time," replied Laigs with a ghost of a smile.

"Fellars, come heah," faltered Brazos, appealing for help when perhaps he felt instinctively there was none. He opened Mason's wet shirt. In the middle of the cowboy's chest, just below the breastbone, showed an ugly red hole. Only a froth of blood appeared outside. Brazos slipped his hand around to Mason's back.

"O—my—Gawd!" he cried in terror, and when he brought his hand out it was dripping blood. "Laigs! Yu got in front — of me!" Brazos' passionate protest of remorse and sorrow broke at the end.

"Wal, pard—you'd done the same fer me. . . . Only I wasn't—quick enough. I oughta shot—an' yelled afterward. . . . Don't take on so, Brazos."

Britt bent over to examine Mason's injury. A heavy .45-caliber slug had gone clear through the lad. His moments were numbered.

"Laigs. You haven't got long. . . . Is there anythin'?"

"Don't know what become of—my people. But thet's no matter. . . . Gimme a smoke."

They gathered around Mason and someone gave him a lighted cigaret. He puffed with difficulty but composedly. He could not inhale.

"Let's play a hand of draw."

Santone had a greasy deck of cards, which he proceeded to shuffle and deal to Laigs, Jackson, Mex, and himself.

"Doggone! I always was lucky," said Mason. "Gimme two cairds. . . . What're you bettin', Jack?"

"I done got yo' skinned, Laigs. I sho' has. . . . It's goin' up."

"Raise you . . . Rest of you layin down, huh? . . . You darn black scamp! I'll call an' lay down three aces."

"Thet's good, Laigs. I wuz bluffin'."

"You oughta know better, Jack. . . . Yore deal, Mex. . . . An' rustle. . . . Gettin' kinda dark already."

But the sun was shining bright and gold now, bathing the glade in a glamor of light. A breeze stirred the treetops. Somewhere a raven croaked. The cattle were bawling. Across the golden patch of grass where the cowboys knelt swayed the sinister black shadows of the hanging men—now quiet.

Laigs picked up his cards with steady fingers. Brazos knelt behind him, holding him up.

"Thet's doggone funny," said Mason faintly. "These cairds—sorta blur. . . . Fellars—I cain't see!"

He dropped the cards to the grass and his head fell back against Brazos.

"Pard—sing—'Lone Prairee.'"

Brazos appeared to quiver through all his lithe frame. He lifted his working face to the sunlit boughs and closed his eyes. In a moment the convulsive quiverings ceased. His features shone with a stern and beautiful light. Brazos was the singer of the outfit. He had a clear tenor voice. It broke and quavered, piercingly sweet. He began again.

"O, bury me out on the lone prairee."
The words came low and mournfully
From the pallid lips of a boy who lay
On his deathbed at the close of day.

He had wrestled with pain till o'er his brow
Death's shadows fast were creeping now.
He thought of his home and the loved ones high
As the cowboys gathered to see him die.

"O, bury me out"—and his voice failed there,
But we paid no heed to his dying prayer.
In a shallow grave just six by three
We buried him there on the lone prairie.

Where the dewdrops shine . . .

Britt reached out to silence the singer. Laigs was dead.

THE year 1874, as had been predicted by Buff Belmet and other frontiersmen, ushered in for eastern and central New Mexico the bloodiest era that ever made history for the west.

There were two reasons for this fact: First, the rich, vast grass ranges that had lured venturesome cattlemen in the sixties to run cattle over the limitless acres once owned by the Spanish dons; and, secondly, because there was no semblance of law in all the broad land. Rustlers, desperadoes, wild cowboys, adventurers flocked into New Mexico. At one period, from 1874 to 1879, New Mexico held more desperate and vicious men than ever assembled at any other place or time in the settlement of that range country west of Texas and Kansas.

This period saw the inception and development of the Lincoln county war, the bloodiest of all frontier wars, in which three hundred men were killed. It saw the rise of Billy the Kid and Jesse Evans, mere youths in years but who had no peers in cold nerve or guncraft or bloody deeds.

Six months had slipped away into the past. Britt had called a conference in San Marcos of a number of cattlemen within a hundred-mile radius of Don Carlos rancho, Doane, Halstead, Clements, his nearest range neighbors, and Bill Wood, the Sedgwick brothers, newcomers in the country, and Hardy Wilson — all these cattlemen had met Britt, to have laid before them the startling facts of the McCoy-Slaughter combine. The result was far-reaching, but very different from what Britt had planned and hoped for. One of these ranchers—in Britt's opinion no other than Bill Wood—had told of the conference and its purpose, with the result that Britt's hope for a unified front against the rustlers was frustrated. It would have been better if Britt had kept his counsel, as well as the Saunders confession, from everybody except his own men. McCoy was stronger on the range than Britt had estimated; he had powerful friends who were not friendly to Texans. He dominated the ranchers of small herds and little means. Moreover, he developed a tendency to go to town and drink and gamble, during which times he was dangerous. He made veiled threats, and, in open defiance of Britt and his several notorious cowboys, he attached to his outfit a gunman late from the Kansas border, one Jeff Rankin, whose reputation as a killer came with him and needed no boasting by McCoy. But the loud-mouthed McCoy did brag that he had a man to match Renn Frayne.

After this one blunder Britt kept his mouth closed and his men away from San Marcos. He and Frayne and Jim talked often and long about how to meet the future. In any case they had a fight on their hands. Doane and his neighbor ranchers feared to ally themselves openly against McCoy. But they ran few cattle compared to the Ripple estate and knew their own losses would be inconsequential provided they were neutral.

The foreman and his confidants, especially Frayne, worked out a plan that to Britt seemed formidable. They would not make any more cattle drives to the railroad for an indefinite period; they would concentrate all their stock on the thirty-mile range between Cottonwood creek and the hills; they would no longer split up the outfit into small bunches for isolated trips; they would ride and watch the range in a body, sixteen strong, on the swiftest horses. They would be heavily armed, and they would shoot first.

Frayne was the genius of this carefully thought-out defense. He did not think Slaughter and McCoy could last out the summer if they resorted to stealing cattle again. Frayne was noncommittal in regard to Jeff Rankin, the gunman imported obviously to kill him and Brazos. Nevertheless it was clear to Britt that Frayne knew beforehand the result of a possible encounter between himself and McCoy's desperado. Most significant to Britt had been the constant gun and rifle practice that Frayne insisted upon. The last caravan before winter arrived the preceding year had brought a large consignment of weapons and ammunition Britt had ordered to meet the very contingency that now threatened. New .44-caliber Winchester rifles and the new 1871 model Colt .45 guns were presented to the Ripple outfit. And Britt, urged by Frayne, had the boys constantly at practice, especially with the rifles. They all became skilled marksmen. The practice of shooting at coyotes and jackrabbits from a running horse grew to be fun and spirited rivalry instead of work. Brazos led them all with the six-shooter, but Jackson paired with the Kentuckian, Blue, who had been a squirrel hunter as a boy, in preeminence with the rifle. McCoy's riders would possess but few of the long arms, and constant practice with either them or the short arms was out of the question. Ammunition in any quantity cost a good deal of money, an expense to which McCoy and Slaughter would not go. That was a detail they overlooked. McCoy had paid hundreds of dollars to corrupt Ripple cowboys, but he probably never thought of making his own unerring marksmen.

Range gossip this spring had it that Britt's wild outfit of Texans and half-breeds, topped by an outlaw who had killed many men, were intimidated and afraid to frequent the old drinking saloons and gambling hells. Gossip from San Marcos came by stage, by rider, and by queer ways that could not be traced. The whole range was buzzing. But what with Chisum about to declare war on rustlers, the Murphy-McSween factions of Lincoln up in arms, the coming of the railroad, and the influx of strangers, Holly Ripple's troubles scarcely held first place in popular clamor.

THE death of Laigs Mason had changed Brazos Keene. He grieved for months, and when he got over that the boyish, fun-loving, devilish glee had apparently gone forever. Brazos drank a good deal and drifted toward that fiery, untamed, passionate spirit that had heretofore flared up only seldom and fleetingly. Nevertheless, he failed in nothing else.

The tragic end of Talman and Trinidad, as well as Mason's, had likewise worked stern havoc in the devil-may-care minds of the other cowboys. A fatal carelessness which had once marked them almost totally disappeared. They gambled, they drank, they played tricks, but they were changed. They had become cemented in comradeship. Holly Ripple's faith, the spell of Brazos Keene's loss, the creed of Laigs Mason, the example of Renn Frayne—these laid their inscrutable and ineradicable hold upon their primitive minds.

Best of all, and in spite of many adverse conditions, Holly Ripple was happy. Britt, stifling his conscience, hugged that to his bosom. As Holly's twenty-first birthday approached she grew lovelier than she had ever been, more of a woman, though still capable of girlish fits of temper and pouts of willfulness. In those winter months, while confined mostly to the house, she had lost her tan and something of robustness that had come with a summer's riding, to gain again that pearl whiteness of face and black brilliance of eye for which her Spanish mother had been noted.

Holly Ripple was happy. And Britt knew he dared take the glory of that fact to himself. He had betrayed Frayne's secret.

Britt often ruminated over the occasion of his faithlessness to Frayne. When he had an idle hour in the dusk beside the fire he often saw Holly's glorious eyes of rapture in the heart of the coals. Frayne would know some day and bless him for it. He had played fair, he had kept faith as long as he could, and that had been until Holly's heart was breaking. Weeks and months of Frayne's strange aloofness, his cold, stern avoidance of her, his inexplicable reaction to that kiss of gratitude she had given him—these had at last paled her cheeks and shamed her into seclusion that would have destroyed her but for Britt's revelation.

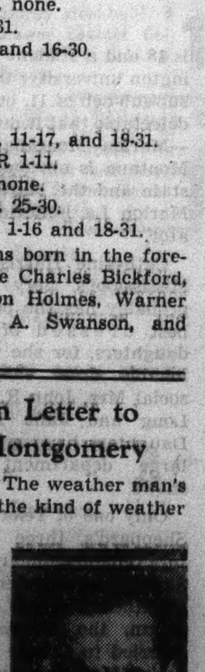
An Open Letter to Robert Montgomery

Dear Robert: The weather man's job is to look at the kind of weather in several different areas and estimate which will arrive first. In the matter of your psychological weather several types of change are headed your way. My estimate is that at first they will seem like easy ones, helping a lot; then there are some of the tougher kind—but they can be made to help, too; learn the lessons of the shifting sands. With best wishes,



Robert Montgomery

Who's Who Among the Daughters of Our Senators

Kay Overton Is President of Club

Washington, D. C.

UNLIKE senators, who are far from always being senators, senators' daughters are always Senate Daughters. Once a member of their club, always a member.

A new senator comes to Washington and brings an eligible daughter with him. (What is an eligible daughter? Well, between 16 and ? years, unmarried, pretty or plain, tall or short, thin or plump, party girl or sober student, Republican, Democrat, or Farmer-Laborite.)

A few days after they arrive in this strange city, that has no single society but a great many social circles, the phone rings in the apartment where the new Honorable now lives. The eligible daughter is told that she automatically has become a member of a club in this new home town—the Daughters of the Senate—and that she can be active or not, as she pleases.

In that respect it is the most delightful of clubs. There are no dues, and only one officer, the president. Each Wednesday the Daughters meet, usually in the senate lunchroom in the capitol, between 1 and 2, for lunch.

During lunch, which may be a sandwich and bean soup or an 85-cent fried chicken affair, they talk parties—both political and dancing—dates, and boys, and the latest fashion news. Usually after lunch they go up for a while to sit in the gallery and watch their fathers legislate.

Once a year the Daughters have an evening party. This year it was in early March at Washington's Shoreham hotel, and a few senate sons went along.

The most active unmarried members who attend many of the luncheons include Ruth Overton (Louisiana), Norene McCarran (Nevada), Elizabeth "Bibs" Adams (Colorado), Catherine Harrison (Mississippi), Marion Donahey (Ohio), Rose Lolita Long (Louisiana), Kathleen Bulow (South Dakota), Ruth Dietrich Kalthoff, divorced daughter of Senator Dietrich of Illinois; Doris Gibson (Vermont), and Sally Norbeck (South Dakota). The majority of these are in their twenties.

Mrs. Edwin Colman. Her father is Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

Jane Holt is a senator's sister, and not his daughter, but this very young woman, who acts as hostess for her young brother (he entered the senate before he was 30), has been taken into the Senate Daughters' club. She is the age of the Daughters, likes the things they do, and they like her.

In Washington there is official society, old Georgetown cave dweller society, diplomatic society, army-navy society, and a great many other little and big circles within circles—even state societies for almost every state in the Union.

Senators are bigger names outside Washington than inside. Washington is used to them, and few of the senators' daughters' dates are young men eager to know celebrities. The Daughters just aren't celebrities—until they go to New York for a week-end or anywhere away from town.

Being a senator's daughter in Washington gives the eligible miss entry to official society, certainly, and if her father happens to be on the foreign affairs committee she may find a great many diplomatic invitations in her mail. But by and large senators' daughters as such are not particularly important in the Washington whirl. Yet some of them are so busy dancing and partying and viewing art exhibits and going to the theater that their sleeping time starts at 2 or 3 or 4:30 a. m. They have a social life of their own and not their fathers'.

With the conglomeration of societies in Washington, it is scarcely necessary to point out that a person with considerable endurance can lead a varied life. One senator's daughter told of a little-more-than-typical recent day. She worked for her father in the morning, had luncheon with a young and minor government official, went to a private cocktail party, then to a party at the Egyptian legation, made a visit to an art exhibit, then to the theater, and then a dinner at Macina's Italian restaurant in honor of the dancing star Mitzi Mayfair. The daughter had a different escort for almost every one of these events.

But other daughters, equally attractive, are busy going to school, or just don't like to gad about. Outside of the "eligible" put in front of the daughter's name by the "honorable" in front of the father's, Washington accepts a senator's daughter just about as it would any other eligible young woman. If she is pretty or vivacious or talented she probably is popular. If she is dull and unattractive and uninteresting—and a dad in the senate is no guarantee that she won't be—she will be a wallflower except at state functions, where there are hands for all to shake and "how do you do's" to murmur impartially.

On the whole the present crop of senators' unmarried daughters are rather attractive, intelligent, and likable, and they are, according to one of their number, mostly "suitably dressed," whether strikingly so or not.

Kay and Ruth Overton, Jane Holt, Rose Long, and Bibs Adams form a little group of gay party girls. They know head waiters by name, and head waiters know them. Barnee and Pete Macias, Washington's night club maestros, both have offered Ruth Overton singing engagements.

Kay Overton, 24 or 25, is not so pretty as attractive—a little plump, but blessed with a soft southern voice, great energy and vivacity, and the tiniest feet imaginable, on which she has danced many miles. "Coquette" is well chosen as her favorite theme song, though sometimes she thinks of being a congresswoman instead. Her latest contribution to fashion is an elegant new swishy taffeta polka-dot petticoat that peeks out below her dresses.

Her sister Ruth—22—is a big girl in the most complimentary sense—tall, broad-shouldered, and with very golden blonde hair. She wears bright colors well and is nominated quite impartially by a fellow member of the Daughters as its prettiest member. Handsome is a better word.

But "baby sister," Mary Lib Overton, now exiled from Washington at Louisiana State university, is the beauty of the family, if her pictures do not lie. She has dark curly hair which rings back from her forehead, very dark eyes, and a really vivid, sparkling beauty.

Bibs Adams is little, and fun, and has a piquant face.

Rose Long, whose father was a senator and whose mother is a senator, seems to have her father's quick instinct for politics and words and the same drawl, though a slower one. Her desk sits right beside her mother's. She is dark and attractive, likes to dance, and is to be president of her Tri-Delta chapter at Louisiana State next year—her mother's term ends with the end of this congress. She was going to Wellesley until the death of her father, whom she apparently adored, changed plans.

Betty Couzens, young teen-age daughter of the richest man in the senate, Senator Jim Couzens of Michigan, cares more about horses than society and is an expert rider. Her sister Margo startled Washington some years back by eloping with young Jeffry Chewning of the Virginia riding country. Now they are separated and Margo is living in Washington with her two children.

Betty and Barbara Vandenberg of Michigan have not had their social activities altered much by the presidential bee buzzing around their father's head. Right now Betty, who plays the piano beautifully and has given recitals in Washington, is studying her music in New York, and Barbara, who is divorced from John Knight Jr., is visiting her parents in the capital, accompanied by her young son.

If the Michigan senator should reach the White House he would take an attractive family with him—Barbara is a bit prettier than Betty. The son, Arthur Jr., also plays the piano and for a time had quite an elaborate system of signals arranged with the Overton trio, who live just below the Vandenbergs at Wardman Park. If Arthur felt like running downstairs for a musical hour with them he would bang out "Stormy Weather" on the Vandenberg piano. If all were okay below, the Overtons' reply would be the same piece on their piano; but if they had company, or their senator father were busy, the musical answer was "Thunder Over Paradise."

Senator Elbert Thomas, Mormon from Utah, has two unmarried daughters. Chiyo, who was born in Japan twenty-five years ago and whose Japanese name, liberally translated, means "one hundred years of happiness," has just returned from a mission to Canada for the Mormon church. That means that she preached the Latter Day Saints' gospel, that she went from door to door speaking of her church, and probably even talked of it at street meetings. All good young Mormons make missions—the boys go far afield, but the girls are limited to this continent. Edna Louise Thomas is 18 and studies at American university.

Probably the most politically minded of all the Daughters is Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of Senator Burton K. Wheeler. She is now the bride of Edwin Colman, but seems to be keeping up her interest in the Young Democrats' organization. Senator Wheeler has two unmarried daughters. One, Frances, as cute as can be, with a perky little face, is 18 and a student at George Washington university; the other is a sub-sub-sub-deb of 11, but her name is so delectable that it must be mentioned—Marion Montana Wheeler! The Montana is obviously for her home state and the Marion is for Robert Marion La Follette, Wisconsin senator.

Catherine Harrison, daughter of Mississippi's fiery Pat Harrison, probably has the best chance to be best dressed of the unmarried daughters, for she works in a fashionable dress shop, that of the social Mrs. John R. Williams. Rose Long and Jane Holt and other Daughters have modeled clothes at large department stores' style shows.

Only one of Texas Senator Morris Sheppard's three striking daughters remains unmarried. The eldest, Janet, was married to a childhood sweetheart and lives in Texas; Susan, the blonde daughter, was married to Connie Mack's son, Cornelius McGillicuddy Jr.; but Lucille still is a schoolgirl, soon to be graduated from high school. She speaks and writes such beautiful French that she recently won an award from the French government for an essay in that language. She is an ash blonde.

Being daughter to Senator Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia and niece to Admiral Richard Byrd is not enough distinction for Miss Westwood Byrd, so she is frequently chosen to act as a princess or lady in waiting at the famous Shenandoah apple blossom spring festivals. Wide-eyed, with hair swept back from her forehead, she is very pretty and sweet looking. She and her father are great friends and wander about together for walks with their dog or on shopping expeditions for books.

Sally Norbeck, daughter of the senator from South Dakota, has her share of fun and dancing, but she is quite serious about her studies of medical technology which will prepare her for a career in laboratories. This summer she will go to Sweden to study at Upsala.

Two Senate Daughters with K. B. as their initials are rather tall and attractive. They are Kathleen Bulow, daughter of the other senator from South Dakota, a student at George Washington and member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, and Katharine Bulkley, daughter of the senator from Ohio.

Senator Robert Reynolds' daughter "Jackie" writes plays.

Senator Pat McCarran's daughter Patricia is working at her tap dancing.

Senator Gerald Nye's teen-age daughter, Marjorie, is a student at the University of Wisconsin. Her father's native state is Wisconsin, though he represents North Dakota.

Marsha Naomi Hatch, daughter of the New Mexico senator, is cute and young.

Senator William Gibbs McAdoo has only one unmarried daughter, Mary Faith, who is living on the west coast with her mother. His daughter Ellen made the front pages often last year during a parentally disapproved, then approved, romance.

The stair-step daughters of Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania are all too young—except Jane—to go partying. Jane has just celebrated her sixteenth birthday and can now, her mother says, accept invitations. Jean, aged 14; Joan, 12, and Jewell, 10, still prefer circus lions to social ones.

Thirty may be the minimum legal age for entrance into the senate, but 50 or over is nearer the average age of senators, so that many of their daughters are married, with homes and children of their own away from Washington, and in some cases the grandchildren have almost reached the eligible age. On the other hand, a few senatorial families have some very young children—who will provide the eligible Daughters of the future if their dads stay in the senate.

Quite a considerable wardrobe is needed by the gayer daughters. Some of them, including Kay Overton, Beatrice Burke of Nebraska, Ruth Dietrich Kalthoff, Rose Long, Esther Thomas Crawford, daughter of Senator Thomas of Utah, and Sally Norbeck, work in their fathers' offices, which complicates matters. That calls for those all-in-one dresses, dark street dresses with enough fluffy whiteness at the throat and wrists to do right on through dinner and dancing. Dancing wear and tear on stockings comes high.

Very few senators' daughters make their debut in Washington these days. One says it's because "we've found out that going to school is so much more fun," and also because "if you've ever seen the boys that go to debutante doings—well!"

Now what of the "dates" for the Daughters of the Senate? Who are their escorts in what is sometimes called a manless town? Well, one Senate Daughter says, "There are nice young lawyers in town." "And doctors," prompts another, "and young officials in the departments, and the fourth estate is swell." College boys, too, of course, and sometimes diplomats. We asked about them. The answer was, "Fun, but difficult."

Not many senators' daughters go about with senators' sons. Senator Caraway's rather quiet son, Forrester Caraway, sometimes has dates with Rose Long, and Senator Chavez's Georgetown university student son, Dennis Jr., sometimes goes to call on the Overtons—"any Overton girl that's home."

Are senators' daughters lobbied? Occasionally, they say, but they don't often feel that their acquaintance is sought for that reason.

Do the young men from their home states who have been helped into jobs by the senator father, or who would like to be helped into jobs, do much telephoning and dating? Yes and no—though most of the home state boys do come to call on Sundays, or something of the sort. It never hurts to know their senator. It certainly doesn't hurt to know the senator's daughter. Some of the newspaper boys may also operate on that principle, but only if the daughters are good looking.

Two of the most prominent and interesting, handsome, and well dressed senators' daughters are matrons and not misses, but they are so outstanding they must be mentioned.

Mrs. Harry Woodring, wife of the assistant secretary of war, was born Helen Coolidge, daughter of Senator Marcus Coolidge of Massachusetts. She was recently selected by the Washington Post as one of the best-dressed women of the national capital. But she is a great deal more than that—she is an artist who has done fine portrait work, she is the mother of two babies, she is very beautiful and very nice. She is blonde and wears her hair so simply that she is a little reminiscent of Ann Harding without the great knot of hair at the back. Her very clear eyes are wide apart, her mouth is generous and sweet, and she is calm and poised but not blasé.

Photographers and society editors unite in singing her praises.

Then there is Nina Gore, daughter of the blind senator from Oklahoma, who has been for several months Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss and was before that Mrs. Eugene Vidal. A leading Washington photographer considers Mrs. Auchincloss the most beautiful of Senate Daughters.

Drama 'Bitter Stream' Story of Oppression

The Admirers of Il Duce Ignore Anti-Fascist Broadway Production.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Il Duce's agents in America have seen fit, thus far, to ignore the Theater union's production of an anti-Fascist play called "Bitter Stream." No Black Shirt has appeared at the Civic Repertory theater, and nothing resembling a demonstration has been staged in any part of the theater during a performance.

This calm acceptance by the Fascists of a bitter arraignment of their square jawed leader's dictatorial methods surprised me almost as much as it did to have Roy Howard report, in his first interview when he returned from Germany, that the funny Hitler mustache is red, and blends so completely with the Fuehrer's peaches and cream complexion that it is much less noticeable than we have been led to believe by those weekly photographic displays in the rotogravure sections.

"Bitter Stream" is taken from a novel written by one Ignazio Silone, and called "Fontamara." It is concerned with the slow and rebellious acceptance of Fascism by the farmers of the Fontamara district of Italy, a plodding, ignorant, wondering group that needed a revolution to blast them out of the rut of complacent poverty. Perhaps that is one reason the Fascists do not protest the play. It is so obviously apparent that the victims of Il Duce's ruthlessness stand as a normal bar to any sort of civic or racial progress. . . .

Unorganized Rebellion Kindles Among Farmers.

Like most dramas of protest, "Bitter Stream" stresses the physical brutalities of the oppressors. The Fontamara farmers have been ground down with excessive taxes until they are barely able to make a living on the small sections of land left to them. Then Il Duce decides to take even the last of their land away from them, and turn it over to the rich farmers who can make better use of it. "The land belongs to those who use it in the interests of the state," decrees Il Duce, as recently he took over all the chief Italian industries to serve the government's program of conquest in Ethiopia.

As a last insult the big farmers turn away the stream that waters the Fontamara acres, and send it flowing over their own lands. Then they hire the dispossessed farmers at starvation wages to work the land.

Slowly, sullenly, a sort of unorganized rebellion is kindled among the farmers. They want to do something, but they don't know just what, or how to proceed. One big fellow, Berardo, who is very bitter, can think of nothing to do except to break the electric light bulbs belonging to the state after the light power has been turned off, and to turn the road signs about so travelers headed south will find themselves in the north, and those hoping to go east will travel west.

Vision of Martyrdom Gives Play Force.

Finally the Black Shirts come in trucks to shoot and jail all those suspected of being against Il Duce, after a puzzling questionnaire has been submitted to them. One farmer, asked what government he would support, replied that he favored the legitimate government. This not going any too well, the next farmer decided he was for the illegitimate government. And that was even less pleasing.

Berardo is jailed, charged with knowing the workings of an underground union that has been circulating anti-Fascist pamphlets. Berardo doesn't know what is happening, but in jail he meets an agent of the underground union and hears of the work being done. If he should be shot in place of the agent, Berardo reasons, the work would go on—work that he never could do himself. So he tells the Fascists that he is an agent. They beat him, trying to force from him additional information he does not possess, and finally shoot him. The play ends with the remnants of the group reorganizing to continue the work of the underground union.

"Bitter Stream" is a plodding, colorful, almost casual folk play through its first act, and well into its second. With the birth of Berardo's vision of martyrdom it takes on force, and gives the radicals of the Theater union a chance to cheer. It is nicely staged, and competently cast. Albert Van Dekker plays Berardo. . . .

Fay Templeton Staying at the Actors' Home.

Rather a startling line of news slipped into the papers last week. Fay Templeton was at the Actors' home. Startling because we have come to think of Miss Templeton as safely set against the economic pressure of the times. Years ago she married William Patterson of Pittsburgh, and for years lived the life of a socially prominent citizen of the Pennsylvania city in something resembling luxurious retirement. Then she began emerging periodically from retirement to sing "Buttercup" in this or that revival of "Pinafore." We took it as the urge of the artistic temperament, and not due to a lack of funds. Even when we heard the Patterson fortunes had suffered, as did so many others, there was that 1933-'34 engagement in "Roberta" to replenish the Templeton treasury. Thirty-one weeks of it as Aunt Minnie singing of her memories, and giving character to the story.

But here she is at the home, which is a nice place to be. A quiet, respectable, actor supported home in which the older players are the guests of their working fellows, and welcome. Then some one had a brilliant idea. He would organize a benefit ball for Fay, and get her back in Pittsburgh, if that is where she would rather be. Announcement of the ball was made. And was Fay angry! Promptly came messages to all the papers denying that she either was in need, or willing to accept charity. She was quiet comfortable and quite happy, and would the well meaning but wrongly informed friends kindly leave her alone? . . .

Was Four When She Started Stage Career.

It was a nice show of spirit on the part of the 71 year old veteran of the theater. I liked it. And yet it was a little foolish, if the benefit arrangements were honest. So many of these affairs are organized and controlled by a sly type of grafter who capitalizes the popularity of a player in the interests of his own percentages. If the benefit were honestly arranged, I see no reason why Miss Templeton should not permit a few of the hundreds of thousands of playgoers she has made happy during the sixty odd years she was an active favorite, to pay her back a little of what they owe. . . .

Fay Templeton goes back a long way. You may, if your imagination is up to it, repicture the night in 1869 when her mother, Alice Vane Templeton, led her, a child of four, on the stage at Charleston, S. C., and asked her if she would not like to recite "Babes in the Wood" for the ladies and gentlemen. Fay would, and did. She also sang "Up in a Balloon Boys," and "Captain Jinks," and "The Grecian Bend," and probably protested when her mother thought that was enough.

Her father was John Templeton, proprietor of the Templeton Opera company, and she grew up a singer and a trouper. She played Puck, and she played Cupid, and she was a chubby delight as a child artist in a juvenile "Pinafore." When she grew up, according to my records, she married Howell Osborne and retired. They lived in Paris several years. It was when she came back that she returned to the stage as a member of the Weber and Fields company.

"The Fencing Master" Revived in New York.

A fine succession of hits with Webber and Fields, was followed by a later succession of other hits with George Cohan—memory of which will bring the strains of "Ma—ree Was a Grand Old Name," romping through any reasonably experienced playgoer's head. Her plain Mary in "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway" was her musical comedy peak, with Victor Moore, just out of vaudeville, her starring mate. When that Cohan show finished its third year, Miss Templeton retired again, for good, she thought. I do not know when it was that Osborne faded and Mr. Patterson came into the picture, but I recall that we were al! convinced that the Templeton fortunes were fixed for all time with that marriage.

An echo of a glamorous period in the life of the New York theater was heard last week when John Hand made a two night revival of "The Fencing Master," an 1893 DeKoven-Smith hit that is seldom revived. In the old days, Marie Tempest was the heroine, a shapely lass who masquerades as a man but doesn't look like one, and she started a fad for that type of part. The Hand company is one made up of opera students, a few with some little professional experience.

Margo from Mexico.

Margo, actress in "Winterset," was discovered and brought to the United States from Mexico ten years ago by Xavier Cugat, whose Spanish-American orchestra and revue are now in Chicago. She is a niece of Mrs. Cugat [Carmen Castillo], Spanish singer.

Beautiful Children

Josephine Ann Iannelli (above), seven months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Iannelli of Benton Harbor. Josephine's mother, 1933 blossom queen, was Miss Marian Evans before her marriage.

Spring brings back to Michigan the annual blossom festival and the coronation of a queen at the twin cities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor. But what of the queens of yesteryear? Matrons, some of them; and four of them are mothers of children whose pictures appear on this page.

Joanne Louise McKahan, 7 year old daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Blake. Mrs. Blake was "Miss Benton Harbor" in the 1926 fete.

Three year old Jimmy Kesterke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kesterke. Jimmy's mother, formerly Miss Violet Peters, was 1927 blossom queen.

Flowers, Culture Vying with Sports for Augusta Favor

AUGUSTA, GA.

Climaxing the badminton tournament which has been sponsored this week by the Augusta Junior league, was the the brilliant ball held Saturday evening [April 11] at which the trophies were presented the winners of the men's and ladies' singles, doubles, and mixed doubles.

The attention of Augustans and winter guests will be centered next week on the entertainment of national garden club officials, the annual flower show, a card party at the Bon Air hotel, and a cultural program sponsored by the junior league.

The national council of the Garden Club of America will visit Augusta on Friday, en route to the convention to be held in Dallas, Tex. These prominent women are visiting several gardens of the south, and will include Augusta in the tour. The Sand Hills Garden club has planned a southern dinner to be given in honor of the visitors at the old Medical college building.

The Sand Hills Garden club of which Mrs. Joseph Speer of Pittsburgh is president, will hold its annual flower show on Friday and Saturday. The show will include many classes for the arrangement of spring flowers.

The annual benefit bridge party will be given Wednesday afternoon at the Bon Air hotel by the Augusta Art club. A group of attractive local girls will model spring fashions during the tea hour, and the junior league will present Ted Shawn and his male dancers in a program on Friday evening as its annual cultural contribution to the community.

QUILTER'S DELIGHT.

By Nancy Cabot.

ONE glance at this design, "Quilter's Delight," and one says: "Ah, I know, it's 'Drunkard's Trail' or 'Solomon's Puzzle' with printed and plain materials." It is just that, with the original crazy quilt furnishing the inspiration. Careful study and inspection will reveal that each block in the quilt consists of a nine patch block with a frame around it. This allows much ingenuity for the quilter, because all may be different. The border of half circles around the individual squares forms an interesting frame for each nine patch. "Quilter's Delight" is one of those patterns which are excellent for the utilization of quilting scraps.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Easter Sunday Recalls Scenes of Holy City

Spring Vacation Time Is Gay with Art Exhibits, Musicales, and Dinners.

By Cousin Eve.

EASTER day, and one thinks back to Jerusalem, the holy city, lying on its mountain terraces, carpeted with spring flowers. And of the church of the Holy Sepulchre, gray and time worn, Mecca of the Crusaders, scene of the world's greatest Eastern celebrations. There, peoples of a score of sects and religions celebrate today, and no where in the world could the scene be more beautiful, not even in Rome, or proud Seville, where the parade of prelates, and processions of grandees go on for a week. Old historic costumes come forth, the churches are decked to the last pillar with gorgeous Easter brocades, ruby and gleaming with gold. The city is decked with flowers and banners.

On Palm Sunday the Arts club had its annual exhibition, by artist members. Had it been a bright day, one shudders to think of the multitudes that might have been there. As it was, the buffet supper was one of the best patronized banquets I have ever attended, and there seemed to be no end to the very solid refreshments or to the patrons forming in coffee queues and bread lines to eat them. The Arts club handles these things in a masterly manner. At least a score of butlers were on duty, and many small tables and gilt chairs were set about for the artists and their guests.

It was a good exposition of pictures—perhaps not the usual efflorescent subjects, but excellent workmanship. Dodo Badger had a kitchen, and everything in it, including the stove. Clay Bartlett's Lugano was a study in color and light on an Italian lake, and Edward Bennett's sketches were of beloved New Mexico. Harriet Blackstone presented a distinguished portrait or two, and Mrs. Cecil C. Davis, a ruddy chow with a scotty, and a stunning portrait study called "Mona."

Closing of the Spring Art Show Marks Season's Wane.

Charles Dewey had drawn in sepia the gate of his old French estate at Longues-sur-Mer in France, and also architectural details of a part of the ruined chapel on the premises—both done with taste and ability. Katherine Dudley sent two pastel prints of her work in Morocco. Gerold Frank's "Yellow Lilies" was well liked, and the paintings that Charles Killgore did at Taxco were good. Clark J. Laurence had painted rural scenes of Skokie, and Amy McCormick a flattering presentment of Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman in cerise satin. Katherine Wolcott, Mabel Wakem, and Elizabeth Telling each showed interesting studies, the latter two of Guatemala Indians. When this spring art show is past, one realizes that the season is on the wane.

On April 14 comes the concert by professional members of the musical side of the Arts club. And that, too, equally is worth one's attention. After that, we are due for an evening of the drama preceded by a sit-down supper—the plays produced by Helen Walton. Then the excitement is over.

Another thing that made me realize that time is passing, Robert Hall McCormick seems to be sailing early in May for Italy, in order to put his trebarcalo, the San Marco of Venice, into commission for some yachting in the Adriatic. The last time I saw the boat was in September when the quaint green yacht was being overhauled at the quay in the Giudecca canal. Mr. McCormick's younger daughter, Helen, and her husband, Warren Buckler of Baltimore, will be among his guests on the San Marco.

Herbert Bradleys Give Exclusive Dinner Party.

The Herbert Bradleys came home from a small giro south, and immediately made a dinner party for a dozen or so. The season was warm and what could be more delectable than their high terrace with its budding young peach trees, lilac bushes, and crocuses? But when the night of the dinner came round, a perfectly outrageous April fool blizzard was howling round the fruit trees and freezing the lilacs.

So roaring fires of logs were the order of the evening, instead of watching the moon from behind peach trees. But Congo, the Belgian dog, came to the rescue, as an entertainer, and I heard the hostess, a vision of delight in plaited silver lamé, titian hair all a fluff, say this: "Congo, would you rather die or go to Yale?" Suddenly Congo, who was a neat, black Schipperke figure, flops over on his beam end and dies rather than go to Yale. But did he come to and eat appetizers!

The Bradleys had been having a lot of fun with the Roy Chapman Andrews who just stopped over on their way to Peking, where they are opening up their house. The noted explorer told Herbert Bradley this one, and he passed it on to me. Lord Reading, until lately viceroy of India, is a friend of Mr. Andrews, and recently showed him a Christmas card he had received from the Dalai Lama of Tibet. It was a square of red cardboard with a large parrot in the middle squawking "Hello, old bird, Merry Xmas!" In the upper left hand corner was written: "To his excellency, the viceroy of India, Lord Reading." In the lower right hand corner was written: "From his holiness, the Dalai Lama." This is one of Lord Reading's most prized possessions.

Musical Provides Evening of Charm and Much Talent.

Earlier in the season I heard the Russian trio twice, and like other listeners, was captivated by their playing, by the poignant brilliancy of their execution. The players were Mme. Nina Mesirow-Minchin, pianist, a Russian; Michael Wilkomirsky, violinist, a Pole, and Ennio Bolognini, cellist, an Italian. They were a small league of nations in themselves!

Mrs. A. F. Callahan, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, and Mrs. Raymond Redheffer had opened their several living rooms on the Gold Coast for these concerts, which were great. My wish was to hear the trio again, tranquilly, perhaps after dinner, if some kindred soul should elect to have music follow dinner, as in the good old days that are gone.

Mrs. Raymond Redheffer unconsciously gave me my wish, having recently moved to Walton place and achieved an apartment with a ballroom, she decided to give a party for Charles Wakefield Cadman, noted American composer, which should be also a housewarming, and a housewarming it was, and how! Being a cold, snowy, Chicago spring night, the furnaces did their bit, and no one had any trouble imagining it was equatorial West Africa, and we were in the lap of summer.

Furthermore, sixty guests or so sat at charming small tables on gilt chairs, every one was a musician or music lover, and I had for neighbors Consul and Mrs. Tannenburg, lately returned from a six months' leave of absence in Germany. Last year they came to the German consulate in Chicago from the embassy in Washington . . . after the manner of foreign service these days. Consular experience is more valuable for a career man than straight social or secretarial work in an embassy.

After coffee we filed into the ballroom. Then began an evening where one delightful artist after another sang, played, or perhaps merely applauded. Eric DeLamarter played Mrs. Sheriff's accompaniments while she sang, in a splendid dramatic soprano, unusual songs from the German and French. Constance Eberhart sang a new song "Black Butterflies," and several old favorites by Charles Cadman. The composer played his own music, for which Mrs. Eberhart merely writes the lyrics. Then the trio followed.

Apparently they select from old, little used répertoire, music of ineffable beauty. The world is really full of unheard, unsung music, and it is artists like these who explore among yellowed sheets of the past and give us themes of transcending beauty. A Rachmaninoff trio was given by the three. Only a Russian could have written these passages of heart breaking pathos. It was an evening of great charm this housewarming of the Redheffers.

Hostess and Guests Beautifully Attired.

Many of the ladies wore fresh spring frocks, the hostess was attired in sea blue with shoulder straps of violet. Among the guests were: Mrs. Francis Junkin, in sky blue, powdered in diamante; Mrs. William Vogelback, in a smart grass green dress with top of sequins; Mrs. Louis Boyesen, in black tulle; young Anne Tracy, debutante of next season, in pink and blue; Mrs. Edward Litsinger, in a black print of brilliant summer flowers, and Mrs. John R. Bellinger, in a white print of early spring flowers.

John Storrs, apropos of housewarmings, told me a joke on his wife, who was a French girl. He bought a very charming château on the Loire, and explained to the handsome young widow whom he had married that they must invite all their friends and have "a housewarming." She asked what that was, and he explained the noble idea. Mrs. Storrs wrote several dozen notes of invitation asking friends to come and see her "hot house," and did they come? They did, and how! They hardly were able to restrain their interest, not to say curiosity.

Arthur Wheeler, Popular Bachelor, Dies at 87.

Arthur Wheeler was, I think, Chicago's most popular senior bachelor. He died last Sunday at 87, a man of the world to the end, notably elegant in person, agreeable, smartly dressed, and with great interest in people and things. He followed the opera, attended all the smart winter weddings, dined out often, and enjoyed a game of contract. He sent magnificent flowers to all his lady friends, and was so charming looking that youngsters always asked who he was and marveled at his alert bearing. Mr. Wheeler had a fatal fall in his own house. He shared a home in Scott street with Mrs. Eugene Wheeler, his sister-in-law.

The fashionable large tea of the week was the Needle Work guild's, at the Arts club. A. J. Wace, well known curator of fabrics at the Victoria and Albert museum, London, gave a delightful talk with screen pictures. He covered four centuries of historic needlework, and I don't think any one moved during this résumé.

Mrs. Harry H. Shearson received before the lecture in the round room, where there were choice exhibits, not more than a score in all—pieces of ancient needlepoint belonging to members of the guild. I was infinitely intrigued by the quaint beauty of two fans worked in cross-stitch—fans which I fancied might be fire screens. Mrs. Gustavus Swift Jr., who was looking also, said not only were they fire screens, but they were her fire screens, held long ago in slim, white fingers to ward off the flames of too hot coals. Mrs. Potter Palmer and Mrs. Shearson exhibited framed needlepoint and punch work pieces that the expert pronounced of great value, and of early Stuart origin.

Two of them are quaintly studded with precious jewels, and their borders are rampant with every kind of wild animal and bird and insect known to English life. A plain clothesman watched these treasures during the show. Some of the exhibits were on satin, others were cross-stitch, and all were unique. This display of treasures was a sort of bonne bouche or appetizer for the needlework exhibit which Mrs. Shearson is planning for next autumn in Chicago—the place not yet selected. Ladies of the entire country are to be invited to compete with their own handiwork, and may do so upon registration fee of $1.

Needle Work Guild Tea Is a "Perfect Occasion."

Mrs. Wace's screen pictures were marvelous and included samplers. One of the best had been somewhat altered by its maker who had ripped out her birthdate in a fit of vanity. There were bed covers, table covers, and wall hanging—one with the arms and devices of the Howards, by a duchess of Norfolk, who, with fifteen of her maids, worked for five years on the gorgeous hanging.

There was one British dowager, a Mrs. Bakewell, who, with her daughters and descendants, produced, for six generations, such magnificent needlework, that a room in Kensington museum is devoted to it. Mrs. Shearson invited guests of the guild to stay for tea, which was served in the club dining room. Here Mrs. Gustavus Swift Jr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne did the honors, separated by a long, narrow table set with fine silver and two of the stunningest flower pieces of the whole year. In two high, boat shaped, ancient epergnes were massed all the bright purple, pink, yellow, and white snapdragons, and gay flowers of the season. It looked too opulent and gorgeous for mere words.

Fragments of joy from a Burmuda letter. "Hibiscus hedges and others of red poinsettia have been lovely for weeks. Oleanders are beginning to show color, and fields of Easter lilies are yet only in bud. We are almost too busy. Tennis tournaments with international stars have filled a week. Wednesday the annual Derby will be run, when the entire island takes a holiday. All the stores close and all the native servants lay off. If this Derby turns out as others that I remember here have, everybody will bet two shillings on the winner [he is known to all] and will go home about tuppence for the wealthier."

A Hip Length Blouse That Is Conducive to Slenderness

By Jean Macdonald.

PENCIL slim girls usually wear the long, hip length blouse with aplomb. The more plump members of the sex may wear this same type blouse because it gives them the streamline silhouette without going on a strenuous diet. The pattern, in the blouse illustrated today, is decidedly attractive and condusive to slenderness, since the lines run up and down.

Women who undertake to knit this blouse must make a sample, since the pattern is not the easiest one to follow until the intricacies of design are mastered. The scarf and belt of the blouse are in a simple, moss stitch pattern, and of contrasting colors. Any of the fine crêpe yarns, two ply French zephyr, of saxony, will make up perfectly in this type of blouse. The heavier yarns, such as shetland or four ply saxony, are not suitable, since they are not as adaptable to the pattern in the blouse.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instruction for knitting the hip length blouse in "up and down" pattern illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Women to Give Pageant Event Next Saturday

Navy Pier to Be Scene of Ambitious Exposition to Describe Progress.

By Ruth DeYoung.

ONE of the most ambitious, interesting, and worth while expositions ever undertaken by women opens at 11 o'clock next Saturday morning on Chicago's Navy pier. Memories of the city's delightful flower show still linger while booths and exhibits of every variety are being moved in to explain the progress that has been made in the last couple of decades.

It's entitled the Woman's Pageant of Progress and, according to its directors, it will endeavor to serve the civic interest, to contribute to the city's educational development, and to provide much needed charity funds. The directors are Mrs. Burnett Dewey Warner, the president and treasurer; Mrs. Carey Culbertson, vice president, and Mrs. Walter Delano Burr, secretary.

Three Leaders and Aid of Clubs Organize Pageant.

Since October these three women, with the coöperation of clubs, federations, and church organizations throughout Chicago and its environs, have worked to build the pageant. "It's being conducted for and in the best interest of industry, commerce, arts, trades, and professions, the club, the church, and the home. Between the opening next Saturday and April 26, when its doors will close, we expect several hundred thousand men, women, and children to study and enjoy its mile of exhibits."

The directors have made Chicago's club and church women the salesmen for the booths. For every booth sold they have received 20 per cent of the $75 for their club or church charities. The rest of each $75 fee will go to defray the expenses of the exposition, and all that is remaining will be used to establish a Chicago milk fund. A similar plan has been worked out for the sale of the tickets at fifty cents apiece.

Entertainment Bill by John Ross Reed Scheduled.

"Our records are clean," Mrs. Warner said at luncheon last week. "We have no underwriters and we have no political tie-ups."

John Ross Reed, the young man who established himself in Chicago three years ago when he produced "Wings of A Century" at A Century of Progress, has scheduled a lively and distinguished entertainment bill for the pageant. The Woman's Symphony orchestra will play at regular intervals under the baton of Ebba Sundstrom. There will be a circus and an orchestra that has supplied dance music at many a society event. A troupe of fancy ice skaters will be another entertainment feature, as will a fashion parade under the direction of Jack Mallon.

All of these attractions are free to those who visit the pageant, once they are inside the outer gates. Mrs. William J. Piggott, chairman of music for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has arranged a choral contest in which various choruses of the Illinois federation will compete.

In a booth to be known as "The Campus" trained psychologists will analyze questionnaires to point the way for ambitious young men and women about to embark on their careers. There will be a baby clinic under the supervision of the Chicago Health department, the Chicago Hospital association, and the Chicago Dental society.

Exhibit of Famous Quilts Another Feature of Pageant.

And not least, by far, will be the exhibit of famous old quilts that has been collected under the direction of Mrs. Walter Burr. In other words, a visit to the Woman's Pageant of Progress next week will be well worth your time.

Miss Mary Worrell, the senior student in Galena High school who is the Illinois winner of the good citizenship pilgrimage award sponsored by the Illinois Daughters of the American Revolution, will leave on the Capitol Limited next Thursday for Washington. There she will be the guest of the national society for five days during its 45th continental congress, which is to be held from April 20 to 24 in Constitution hall in Washington. The details of this congress will be related next Sunday in this column.

MISS MARY WORRELL.

On Thursday afternoon in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel several of Illinois runners up for the good citizenship award will be the guests of the Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The names of a half dozen of these girls were announced last week. The others are Miss Betty Smith of Calumet High school; Miss Virginia Gaudette of Calumet, and Miss Ruth Wilhelms of Hirsch.

Annual Convention of Illinois P.-T. A. to Meet Wednesday.

Mrs. Paul E. Madden of Urbana is general chairman of the 37th annual convention of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers opening Wednesday in the Stevens hotel. Delegates representing 123,296 members will be in attendance. The program is built around the theme "Honesty, Harmony, Industry, Frugality: With these the Nation Shall Endure." The keynote address is to be delivered by Dr. Ferdinand M. Isserman, rabbi at Temple Israel in St. Louis.

MRS. PAUL E. MADDEN.

The program is to come to a climax with a banquet Friday evening at which Dr. Gordon J. Laing of the University of Chicago will be the principal speaker. Exhibits are to be another feature of the three day meeting. Mrs. Arthur R. Williams of Normal is president of the Illinois congress.

Mrs. Willard Jaques Unopposed as Garden Club President.

Mrs. Willard W. Jaques is the unopposed candidate for the presidency of the Garden club of Illinois. This office is to be voted tomorrow at the annual luncheon in the Palmer house. Mrs. Jaques, who lives at 5754 Sheridan road, now is president of the Evanston Garden club.

Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton is the candidate for first vice president; Mrs. Fred J. Ashley of La Grange has been nominated for the third vice presidency, and Mrs. Wyatt B. Angelo of Hinsdale for the post of corresponding secretary.

British Business Finds Tripping Expensive Loss

LONDON. Tripping and the consequential falls can be an expensive business. More than half of the 190 working years that were lost in Great Britain last year were due to mere trippings.

A district committee of the National Safety First association reports that 456,000 working hours, or 190 working years, were lost due to accidents in works. The ratio of hours lost to hours worked was approximately 6½ to 1,000. This compares favorably with the 1930 report, which showed that the same ratio was 7½ to 1,000.

During the five years from 1930 to 1935 there has been a marked reduction in accident rates and the estimated saving in loss of time has amounted to about 216 working years, which amounts to about $160,000 in wages.

Only about 8.3 per cent of the accidents were due to machinery, and over 50 per cent were due to tripping and falls in handling goods.

Huge Throng Breaks Record at Palm Beach

Largest Number of Visitors Ever in Residence During Spring Season.

PALM BEACH, FLA. Palm Beach has the largest throng ever spending the spring season here, with much social activity marking the present week-end. Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock, whose office as president of the Palm Beach Garden club continues until July 1, when she retires to the honorary presidency, has been named as one of three members of the club to attend the session of the Garden Club of America to be held in New York on May 18, followed by the annual meeting the following day at West Point. Groups thereafter will disperse to tour gardens in the region and Mrs. McKinlock, with Mrs. Horace Hutchins Work and Mrs. John H. Gibbons of the Palm Beach club, will go to Tuxedo Park. There they will be entertained by Mesdames Henry Morgan Tilford, Theodore Frelinghuysen, and Pierre Lorillard Barbey.

Society Attends "The Great Ziegfeld."

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair had a box at the Paramount theater Thursday evening when the society première of "The Great Ziegfeld" was given before one of the season's smartest audiences. The late Florenz Ziegfeld, whose life was portrayed, was long a winter resident of Palm Beach with his family, and gave to it its most beautiful pageant some years ago when he produced "Palm Beach Nights," with the late Paris E. Singer at the Club Montmartre, for a season. "Florida, the Moon, and You," Palm Beach's favorite song, was especially written for the production. Society turned out en masse for the event, preceded by many dinner parties. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Mrs. Harry C. Clow, Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock, Mrs. Robert Tarrant, Mrs. Olaf N. Tevander and her house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sills and their family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herendeen, Mrs. William White Forrester and her party, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McLennan, and many others of the Chicago colony.

Dinner Party at the Club Madrid.

Mrs. William White Forrester gave a dinner at Club Madrid Friday evening, having a group of Chicago visitors as guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hayes have leased their ocean front villa here for next season to Charles C. Bedford of New York, who this season occupied Mrs. Carl Furman Mabee's home. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes may travel instead of coming to Palm Beach. They were among the guests Wednesday night at a dinner given by Mrs. O. N. Tevander, where Mr. and Mrs. George Albert Eddy, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Taylor, Mrs. E. Preston Rowles, Miss Althea Tevander, and Walter Foskett were also entertained, later playing contract.

Mrs. John E. Baker of Lake Forest has arrived at the Breakers, Palm Beach, to be with her sister, Mrs. Paul Healy of Paris, who has spent the winter there. Her son, John E. Baker Jr., has just returned to Lake Forest after a ten day visit to Mrs. Healy. In her honor Mrs. Healy gave a dinner at the Breakers Thursday evening.

Mrs. Olaf Nelson Tevander of Chicago is entertaining Senora de Sacasa, wife of the president of Nicaragua and Senorita de Sacasa, who came on Wednesday following a visit to Mrs. Henry Lee Doherty at Coral Gables.

Chicago guests attending the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Clark Woodworth included Mr. and Mrs. Carl Furman Mabee, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herendeen, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheldon Johnson, and Mrs. Earle Hastings Deakin.

Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, who was at Boca Raton club during the late season, now has returned to the Breakers to be near his daughter, Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, and Maj. Hubbard, who are among colonists remaining late.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair gave one of the small but important dinners of the week at their villa where they returned last week from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Talbott at Aiken, S. C. On April 17 Mr. Blair will go on a fishing cruise among the keys and Mrs. Blair and their son will go to visit her mother, Mrs. Thomas Yuille, in New York. Upon Mr. Blair's return north they will open their country home on Long Island.

Mrs. Franklin Miller of Chicago has presented the Society of Four Arts with several volumes for its library, including some of her own books. She organized a branch of the American Penwoman's league in Palm Beach this season.

Viscountess Astor Becoming Famous for "At Homes"

LONDON. Viscountess Astor gave another of her "at homes," for which she is becoming famous. She is the only hostess so far who has dared to give an evening party entirely for women. For some hidden, unconscious, Victorian reason parties for women always are given in the afternoon.

There is a sensible reason for Lady Astor's party. It is to introduce to each other the women members of parliament and the leaders and members of women's organizations. Probably nowhere in the world does a more distinguished body of women foregather. Leaders of every woman's organization from widely different sections and classes come for pleasure, but also to make contacts mutually enlightening. There are no speeches or formal introductions, but it is an important engagement for every leader, and invitations are eagerly sought.

This party took place shortly after a heated argument Lady Astor had in the house with the duchess of Atholl regarding the school leaving age. However, at the party I noticed Lady Astor and the duchess were just as friendly as they have been for years. A characteristic, we must acknowledge, "lady members" have learned from the men.

Paris Pattern Summer Frock Has Printed Trim for Chic

No. 5132—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in size 16, and in 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—All the princesses, countesses, and other smart women will be wearing dresses trimmed with printed silk this summer. With the aid of this pattern, No. 5132, and small change you can do likewise without expenditure of a great deal of time or money.

This model comes from one of the greatest French dressmakers, who made it of a dark blue, rather rough crêpe that was light in weight. The blue was rich in tone, not an ordinary navy. The flattering collar was made of a printed silk in light blue, cerise red, and pale green. The soft tie around belt was created in the same silk, and the full sleeves were lined with it. You don't have to follow this scheme exactly, but line up with the big idea, and you will be smart and charmingly dressed.

This pattern would make an attractive gray dress with printed silk in some bright shades. A print with blue and sulphur yellow in it goes beautifully with gray. There are unlimited color harmonies from which to choose.

Horse Show at Grand Palais Attracts Paris

Rochambeau Chapter of D. A. R.'s Has Its Annual Meeting at St. Cloud.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS In spite of the strain of international politics, and the exodus which always occurs at this season, there has been a fair amount of social activity in the American colony here of late. The horse show at the Grand palais, with expert riding by cavalry officers from the famous "Haute Ecole" of Saumur, attracted throngs.

The American ambassador, Jesse I. Straus, and his wife have been giving a number of affairs for retiring officers of the embassy, among them Theodore Marriner, counselor, who has been appointed to a post in India, and Capt. A. Toutant Beauregard, who has been ordered back to sea duty after serving for some time here as naval attaché.

Both the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Colonial Dames of America have chapters here, and they are particularly interested in the history of early Franco-American coöperation. The other day the Marquise de Chambrun [Margaret Reeves Nichols], whose husband is a direct descendant of Lafayette and for years represented, as did his forbears, the department of La Lozere in the chamber of deputies, acted as hostess, at her home in the Avenue Rapp, to the Colonial Dames. One of the interesting papers read after the business meeting dealt with Houdon's statue of Washington, which now adorns the statehouse at Richmond. Among those who attended this meeting was Mrs. John S. Lithiby.

For the annual meeting of the Rochambeau chapter of the D. A. R., Mrs. Bates-Batcheller threw open her house at St. Cloud, and after the business of the day was done M. Firmin Roz, recently made a member of the Institute of France, gave a talk on the famous publicist and student of prisons, Comte Alexis de Tocqueville, author of "Democracy in America."

Comte de Tocqueville, a collateral descendant of this author, also spoke, and showed pictures of his family. There have been several celebrations recently, in Paris, of the hundredth anniversary of the publication of Tocqueville's book. Among the Americans at this meeting were Mr. Herman Gade and Miss Alice Gade. A number of pamphlets bearing on Lafayette, La Rochefoucauld-Liancourt, and other figures of the early days of Franco-American collaboration are to be presented, through the activity of members of the local chapter of the D. A. R., to leading libraries in the United States and Paris.

Mrs. Nicolas Raffalovich was among the numerous guests at a dinner given the other night by Mrs. William Maclain Freeman at the Café de Paris. Some of the others were the Portuguese minister in Paris, Senhor Armando da Gama Ochoa; Princesse de Wagram, Comtesse de Viel-Castel, and Arthur Bradley Campbell.

Aiken Functions Carry On Despite Spring Torrents

AIKEN, S. C. At Aiken, as elsewhere, the elements have partially ruined the season for citizens and colonists. At the finale, when Aiken was beginning to look at its best, torrential rainstorms occurred. Golf was played only under objectionable conditions, and drag hunting stopped, as the Hitchcock woods are under water.

Of course, the daytime inactivity has been an excuse for impromptu entertaining, and there have been dog shows sponsored by Mrs. Fitch Gilbert, Mrs. Robert V. McKim, and Mrs. Seymour H. Knox, principally for the benefit of the S. P. C. A.

The local garden club provided very instructive exhibitions. Mrs. R. H. Wilds, the president, had the support of F. A. M. Taber, Mrs. Sheffield Phelps, Miss Katherine Parsons, Mrs. Walter Duncan, Miss Claudia Phelps, Mrs. Converse Woolsey, and Mrs. W. R. Grace.

The Okay Shooting club, owned by winter residents, entertained about 200 guests at a barbecue which followed the bird dog trials, in which Allan Case of Toronto won all the honors with his entry.

Two matches have been played for the polo trophy, presented by Col. Vivian Lockett, the Old English international captain, but the final has been postponed indefinitly.

The annual Aiken horse show, nearing its third decade, is holding the horse enthusiasts and winter visitors until weather conditions improve. Postponed several times, it probably will be held Sunday and Monday, after which the grand exit from this South Carolina resort.

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.
Chicago, Jan. 16, 1887.

DEAR JULIA: Will is discussing real estate with Mr. Charles Kerfoot and some other gentlemen who have dropped in this evening. I hear large figures being quoted as they tell of this sale or that, for there seems to be what they call a "spurt" in values recently. Real estate is Chicago's small talk. It always has been. It isn't only men who are in the business of buying and selling it who love to chat about it, but lawyers, doctors, merchants, chiefs of all sorts take to it, as a duck to water. Mr. Kerfoot owns, or controls, eighty acres of land, ten miles from the courthouse, I hear him saying, and he has refused $1,000 an acre for it.

But the great topic of discussion is the reported sale by L. Z. Leiter to Marshall Field of his undivided half interest in the block in which the store stands. At the Chicago club, Will says, the report was that $600,000 was the price paid for this half interest, but he says it's all guesswork. The lot in question has a frontage on State street of 160 feet, while the depth [the Washington street side] is 150 feet. Mr. W. D. Kerfoot, one of our pioneer real estate men who is one of the group in the parlor, estimates the value of the land—its State street frontage being the yardstick—at $480,000, or $3,000 a front foot. When you think that it is just fifty years ago that Chicago became a city, such figures sound like fairy tales. Too late I wish we owned some downtown property, but Will has disposed of all he had.

Other real estate transactions I hear about, from the group in the parlor, are the purchase by Charles Schwartz, one of Chicago's rich men, of a handsome home on Prairie avenue, north of 20th street, for $70,000; and Martin Ryerson's buying a lot, 300x272 feet, out at the northeast corner of Drexel boulevard and 49th street.

You remember, I told you of the approaching reception to be given by the Charles B. Farwells? Will and I, and Sandy and Martha Jr. attended this beautiful party last night, and enjoyed it to the full. The new home of the Farwells at 99 East Pearson street, their great reputation for hospitality, and the fact that the festivity marked the debut of their daughter Grace, brought together a crowd. Mr. Farwell has just been nominated by the legislature of Illinois to succeed Senator John A. Logan, who died while you were here, you remember. It is a great honor for Mr. Farwell, and congratulations were showered on him last night.

The great mansion was decorated with plants and cut flowers, and the fashionable gowns [most of them new it seemed to me] and lovely ladies made a scene like a story book ball. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Field asked for you. So did my dear neighbor, Mrs. Willie McCormick. Mrs. Wirt Dexter, whose wit always makes her the center of a group, looked lovely in white satin. Do you recall meeting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henrotin? They were at the party. So were the young Edward Blairs, Col. and Mrs. C. R. Corbin, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Foltz, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Willing, and Mr. Wayne Chatfield.

Your friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

The old, red brick house built by Senator Charles B. Farwell still stands on Pearson street, opposite the water tower. Miss Grace Farwell, debutante in 1887, became Mrs. Robert McGann. The McGann summer home is in Lake Forest.

Who wants to try finishing the rhyme about the British sovereigns, which begins with "First, William the Norman"? So many readers sent in the complete rhyme we think many may wish to try bringing it down to date. You will need to add the names of Edward, George, and Edward in rhyme. No prize is offered, but honorable mention will be given for the best lines completing the jingle. To help you get started here is the old rhyme, as sent by readers:

First, William the Norman, then William his son;
Henry, Stephen, and Henry, then Richard and John;
Next Henry the Third, Edwards One, Two, and Three;
And again, after Richard, three Henrys we see.
Two Edwards, Third Richard, if rightly I guess,
Two Henrys, Sixth Edward, Queen Mary, Queen Bess;
Then Jamie, the Scotsman, then Charles whom they slew,
Yet received, after Cromwell, another Charles, too.
Next Jamie the Second, ascended the throne;
Then good William and Mary together came on;
Then Anne, Georges four, and Fourth William all passed
And Victoria came . . . May she long be the last!

Miss Clark is always glad to hear from readers on any subject connected with early Chicago. Address Herma Clark, care CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Chicagoans Enjoy Golfing, Motoring, Polo at Del Monte

DEL MONTE, CAL. Indicative of increased travel from all parts of the east to California has been the large influx of Chicago visitors to Del Monte and Pebble Beach during the last month. Among the first to arrive were Mr. and Mrs. Rochester B. Slaughter.

During his stay James H. Douglas of Chicago made a hole in one on the par 3, 113 yard, 15th hole of the exclusive Cypress Point course. Mr. Douglas was playing with James W. Pope, also of Chicago, at the time.

Not to be outdone, Calvin Niccolls made a hole in one on the Del Monte course at the par 3, 180 yard, No. 5. He also was one of the winners in the Calcutta pool held in connection with the first annual Del Monte invitational handicap tournament. Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Welch of Evanston and C. K. Knickerbocker of Chicago also have made themselves familiar figures on the golf course and at the bridge table.

Motoring enthusiasts were Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Brien, Miss O'Brien, J. H. Harmon, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Childs, and T. C. Butz. The party penetrated far down the San Simeon highway, which, when completed, will form part of an all-coast route between Mexico and Canada.

The polo season, just ended, proved a big attraction to Chicagoans. Among those who attended the championship matches was Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, who was a guest of the John Magees at their Pebble Beach home.

Others here during the polo season included Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Hart Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Laird, and Miss Mary Lou Laird, Winnetka; Mrs. M. O. Holt, Mrs. E. E. Spencer, and Mrs. J. C. Moore, Evanston; Miss Florence Fenchel, Lake Forest; Miss Rose Gordon, Mrs. W. Irving Osborne, Mrs. John F. L. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Crittenden and two sons, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Warton, Mr. and Mrs. Walton Parker, Mrs. Mark P. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden E. Ketting, Mrs. E. M. Adams, Mrs. H. G. B. Alexander, and Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Cummings, Highland Park; Mr. and Mrs. Gale Thompson, Mrs. John Duncan, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Esther Duncan, Alton; Mr. and Mrs. George W. Blossom.

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

"Stay Cured or Be Shot!" Edict to Drug Addicts

That's Why Not Many of the Opium Smokers Apply for Treatment.

By Mason Warner.

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlements, British Malaya.—Two weeks ago I wrote of the methods adopted by the government of the Colony of the Straits Settlement to combat the vice of opium smoking. Those who read that article may find their curiosity somewhat gratified in this item, sent out by the Chekiai [China] news agency and published in local newspapers:

"Nanking.—An order has been received by the Nanking municipal government from Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, president of the military affairs commission, to the effect that hereafter drug addicts applying for the cure of their habit at the municipal hospitals are required to sign an affidavit promising that they are willing to be subject to death penalty in case of resorting to the use of the drug again after the cure of their habit."

"Stay cured or be shot!" may be the reason that fewer than 60,000 a year of the many millions of opium addicts in China apply for treatment.

A Weird Combination of Smells.

Owing to the oppressive heat and overpowering humidity, sightseeing in Singapore is confined to the hours between 8 to 11 a. m. and 3 to 6 p. m. There is not so much to see. The great Sultan mosque [Mohammedan] can be best seen from Bussorah street. The Chinese Buddhist temples are numerous and interesting.

Evening strolls through the different sections of the city where dwell Malays, Chinese, Japanese, Hailams, Arabians, and various peoples from India would be more pleasant if it were not for the eating of durian fruit by natives gathered in groups at the curb or with backs against a wall.

Durian is the one tropical fruit that appals the stranger. Most tourists eat and enjoy mangoes, mangosteens, tree tomatoes, bangosteens, passion fruit, and the tiny, sweet, two inch long bananas, but they all stop paralyzed when a durian is opened, for it has the most sickening odor of anything that grows—a sort of combination of smells emitted from rotten eggs, putrid fish, fetid asafetida, burning rubber, bilge water, and sewer gas.

More Warts Than on a Cucumber.

Approach within ten yards of a durian party and you can detect not strange and weird smells the like of only the odors listed but many other which you never encountered before. And there are groups devouring durian every 50 yards. The natives attribute wonderful aphrodisiac properties to durian, but even the promised effect tempts mighty few Europeans to taste the fruit. The durian resembles a medium-sized watermelon in shape and color, but has more warts than a cucumber and its inside is filled with what looks like cream colored, thick custard.

Everybody who goes to Singapore visits Johore, one of the five Unfederated Malay states, ruled by the sultan of Johore from his capital city, Johore-Bahru, which is only 17 miles north of Singapore, crossing over a stone causeway that spans the narrow strait that separates the island of Singapore and the Malayan peninsula.

His highness, Sir Ibrahim, is the sultan, and is recognized as a loyal and true supporter of the British crown. Because of his high place in the Moslem church, he is a powerful ally of Britain. He has killed many tigers, and that makes him still more popular with his subjects. His palace and the great mosque are the main attractions for visitors to Johore-Bahru.

They Pick Their American Movies.

The sultan is a great and good friend of Frank Buck, and coöperated in making the pictures, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," "Wild Cargo," and "Fang and Claw." Newspaper men say Frank Buck pictures rank second only to Charlie Chaplin's in Singapore. Other popular movie stars are Maurice Chevalier, George Arliss, Ronald Colman. Marie Dressler was a great favorite here. The names of Marlene Dietrich and Greta Garbo mean nothing; patrons stay away from the theater when they are announced. All liked Will Rogers, and his personal visits to Singapore put him way out in front as a box office attraction.

Round the world tourists will not forgive me if I fail to mention the fine and famous Seaview hotel, adjoining the only bathing beach in Singapore. That beach is more interesting than inviting. It is enclosed in a heavy wire net on three sides, the beach forming the fourth side. Each is about 200 feet long. The net is for protection against sharks. In 1934 a young English girl ventured outside the net and a shark took off a leg. Last summer a six foot crocodile was discovered inside the net. More recently a native boy fell out of a canoe and sharts got him within 200 feet of the net.

Fortunes Out of Rubber and Tin.

There is an abundance of wealth in British Malaya. Rubber and tin have produced many gigantic personal fortunes for British and Chinese operators. The story of rubber in Malaya is truly amazing.

In the years from 1929 to 1934 rubber production in Malaya averaged more than 400,000 long tons annually, and each year's crop is roughly estimated to have sold for more than $50,000,000 gold.

The fact is that rubber trees are not indigenous to Malaya. The origin and development of the present tremendous staple production reads like a magician's tale. The start was made in 1877, when twenty-two rubber saplings were sent out from the Royal Botanic gardens at Kew, near London. Seven of these were planted in the province of Perak, 400 miles north of Singapore. That was the beginning of the rubber industry of the Malay peninsula, an industry which now accounts for nearly half the world's production, although it was not until 1895 that rubber growing attained economic importance.

More than 3,000,000 acres in Malaya are planted with rubber trees, representing an investment of $400,000,000 gold. Soil and climate are ideal, and labor is docile. The clean, white trees stand in regular rows on well kept plantations where a few years ago the jungle growth was almost impenetrable. But one of the world's present problems is too much rubber. Artificial restriction is necessary to keep prices up to a profit basis.

Mason Warner Is Elected to Island 'Comeback Club'

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 2.—[Special, via China Clipper.]—Because they both have visited these islands several times, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Warner of Chicago were made members of Hawaii's Comeback club when they stopped at Honolulu yesterday en route to Sydney, Australia. Mr. Warner, travel writer for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has been to the islands five times.

They received their Comeback club certificates from Dorothy Lambert, secretary of the novel travel fraternity in Honolulu. The certificate is printed on tapa cloth, which the natives used to make from the bark of wauke [mulberry] tree.

Membership in the club is limited to globe trotters who have visited the islands two or more times.

A BIT OF THE FAR EAST IN SOUTHERN INDIANA

In the midst of the Cumberland foothills this Japanese garden at French Lick Springs gives an oriental effect to a midwestern setting. Many visitors regard the resort as at its best at this time of the year.

Duluth Expects Record Season

DULUTH, Minn., April 11.—An influx of vacationists and summer tourists far surpassing records of the last several seasons was predicted today by J. R. Pratt, executive secretary of the Duluth Chamber of Commerce.

His forecast is based on the fact that inquiries received since Jan. 1 far exceed those of any year in the last decade. To date requests for tourist information have been received from thirty-one states, three Canadian provinces, and several South American and European countries.

15,000 Inquiries Received After Florida Campaign

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 11.—Florida is getting the attention of thousands of people all over the world. More than 15,000 inquries have been received in response to the national advertising program of the all-Florida committee. This was announced today by officials of the group, which was appointed by Gov. David Scholtz last summer to advertise the state as a whole.

More than $30,000 has been spent by the committee for advertising in fifteen national magazines and thirty northern and Canadian newspapers. Newspapers have pulled more than 6,200 inquiries, and magazines more than 5,200.

If figures, as it is said, do not lie, New Yorkers are more interested in Florida than any others in the United States; Canadians are the most Florida-conscious of the foreigners, England next, and Hawaii third. Inquiries from New York totaled 3,171 to March 31. New Jersey was second, with 1,246; Pennsylvania third, with 1,212; Ohio fourth, with 1,173, and Illinois fifth, with 1,130. These five states were the only ones to total more than 1,000. Four states ran better than 300: Massachusetts, 753; Michigan, 627; Wisconsin, 370; and Connecticut, 331.

Tourist travel to Florida in 1935, estimated at 1,750,000, was the heaviest since 1929, which totaled 1,925,000. In one day during the height of the season there were 500,000 visitors in Miami alone. More than 9,000 automobiles bearing out-of-Florida tags entered the state in one week. The Florida State Hotel association estimates its members will show an average increase of 25 per cent over last year.

Much of this increase in Florida travel is believed due to the extreme cold and stormy weather in the north and to the advertising of the governor's all-Florida committee.

Tackle Admitted Free Into Canada

OTTAWA, Ont.—The nine provinces in Canada have completed plans to receive a record influx of United States citizens.

With winter fading into the background, thousands of American sportsmen are reported to be already making plans to visit the "happy hunting grounds." The Canadian government travel bureau relates that inquiries are being received in larger numbers than ever before.

"Our American friends are getting to know more about Canada every year," says D. Leon Dolan, director of the bureau. "They are finding by experience that Canada is not boasting when she claims to be the playground of North America.

This year, Mr. Dolan pointed out, fishing rods, tackle, guns, rifles, cameras, outboard motors, portable boats and other articles of sportsmen's equipment may be brought in free of duty or deposit.

Elaborate Plans Being Made for N. Y. Jubilee Ball

Junior League Celebrating Its Thirty-Fifth Year of Social Service Work.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK The Junior league clubhouse on East 71st street will be opened to the public on April 17. That doesn't happen once in a coon's age, and it wouldn't be happening now if the Junior league weren't planning a jubilee to celebrate the thirty-fifth anniversary of its founding. The jubilee ball to raise money for their social service activities is one feature of the jubilee.

Every little New York debutante says three prayers each night by her bedside: First, to go to the autumn ball in Tuxedo park; second, to be invited to be a member of the Junior league, and third, to be permitted to subscribe to the Junior assemblies.

When a gal gets to put JL after her name she feels the final stamp of approval has been set on her, on her family background, and on her present social standing. The league is one of the swankiest social-philanthropic organizations in the country.

Back in 1901 a few debutantes decided that something ought to be done about the bushels of flowers sent them at their formal parties, and thus the league was founded to distribute the posies among the city's hospitals. Since then it has expanded its interests in keeping with the broadening of women's interests and activities outside the old limited circle of home and family.

Now the young exclusives go in for all kinds of social service work—a baby shelter, the clothing center, housekeeping service, and the occupational therapy department of the City hospital. The history of the Junior league is too well known to rehash here.

There Will Be Auctions and Beautiful Prizes.

Members of the league have been meeting regularly to complete the plans for their jubilee ball. If they don't realize a fortune it won't be their fault. There will be an admission charge just to look around, and all kinds of booths stocked with things to buy. There will be auctions and beautiful prizes offered to snare the customers' cash in the gaming rooms. Other prizes will go to the winners of the various contests. And they're turning the great hall of the clubhouse into a night club, with cover charge and everything.

They're getting up a floor show, fencing and sleight of hand exhibitions, and goodness knows what else. So far I have heard no rumors of any wild animal acts, but they may be withholding them as a surprise. With all their elaborate plans the jubilee ball promises to be one of the most popular events of the post-Easter season.

The E. Roland Harrimans are giving a small dance on Friday, the same night as the jubilee ball of the Junior league. That can be filed in the coincidence file, as Mr. Harrimon is a brother of the late Mrs. Charles Carey Rumsey, who was one of the founders of the league. William Averill Harriman is another brother.

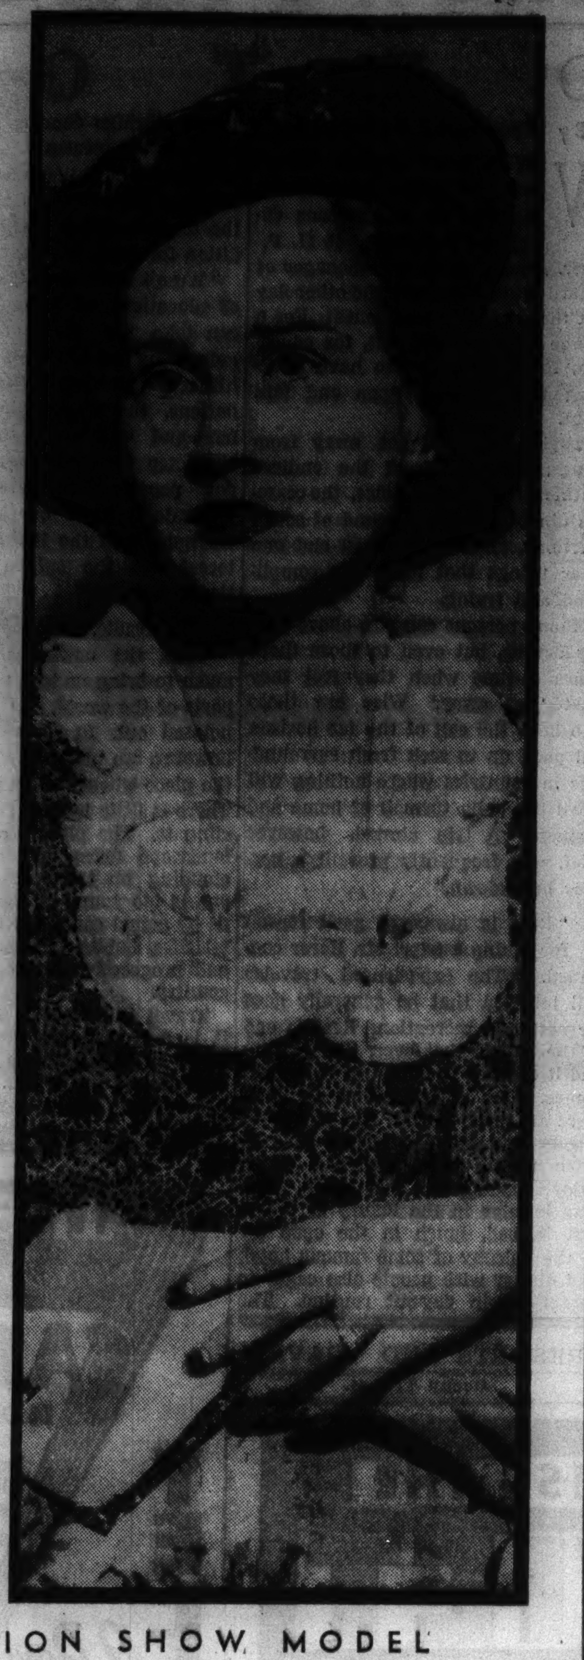
Both Roland and his wife, the former Gladys Fries, are crazy over hosses, hosses, hosses. He's a great patron of harness racing and is president of the Trotting Horse Club of America and of the American Trotting Register association. He gets his love for animals from his father, the railroader, who went in big for stables full of harness horses. Gladys Harriman was the first woman to drive a horse a record mile in two minutes or faster. She trains her own racers and won her distinction in 1929 on the Goshen track.

Gertrude Low and George Philip Lynch to Marry.

St. James' Episcopal church will be the scene of an important wedding Tuesday when Gertrude Low and George Philip Lynch exchange "I do's."

Gertrude, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ethelbert I. Low of New York City and Woodmere, L. I., will have two matrons of honor, her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. Herrick Low, and Mrs. Alfred Yardley. Her bridesmaids will be Louisa and Eleanor Herrick, her cousins; Faith Locke, Mrs. Beekman Poole, Marion Raymond, and Rebecca Crane, who is planning her own wedding to Duncan Van Norden four days later, on April 18. Faith Locke, who has been visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley A. Coonley in Honolulu, returned to New York two weeks ago especially for the wedding. The bride's niece, Elizabeth Low, will be a flower girl, and her nephew, E. Holland Low, will be a page.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. Edmund A. Lynch of this city and Lawrence, L. I., will have his brother Edmund as best man. The ushers will be Alfred Yardley, Lawrence Barnard, E. Herrick Low, Francis Low [both brothers of the bride], William Lovering, Daniel Lynch, Archibald Thompson, and last, but by no means least, John Jacob Astor, who cut his European trip short to return with his wife, the former Ellen Tuck French, to be present at the ceremony.



FASHION SHOW MODEL

Mrs. George E. Gregory will be among the models at a fashion show and bridge party the women's board of Northwestern University settlement is giving tomorrow afternoon at the Country Club of Evanston.

DIRECTS TICKET SALE

Mrs. Roger D. Shaw is in charge of ticket sales for the Chicago Junior league's theater production, "Mr. Dooley," which will be given in the Chicago Historical society building beginning April 18, for six Saturdays. Mrs. Shaw is the former Catharine Noyes.

Art Exhibits Spring Up Like May Flowers

Chicago Society of Etchers Has Devoted Following at Roullier Galleries.

By Eleanor Jewett.

APRIL gives every sign of being as prolific as March, with new art exhibitions laid upon the doorstep of nearly every day. The month got off to a flying start with the opening of the Chicago Society of Etchers' spring exhibit, the Arts club's professional members' exhibition, etchings by Morris Henry Hobbs in the O'Brien gallery, and paintings by Florence Ezzell Stevenson at the Drake—all four shows starting the first of the month.

The Chicago Society of Etchers, under the gallant leadership of Mrs. Bertha Jaques, who has guided and focused its destinies for many years, is one of Chicago's institutions of which all of us may be proud. It has done an incalculable service in promoting a knowledge and love of the fine arts throughout the middle west. Until the last two or three years its annual exhibition was a highlight of the Chicago Art institute season. The last exhibition in the Art institute saw Mrs. Jaques bring the public interest in prints to such a fine frenzy that during the forty-one days of the show, $11,000 worth of etchings were sold. This established a record that has never since even been approached in Chicago. It rang, however, the death knell of the society's activities in the museum halls. The Art institute took over the show, and it has become imbedded in the ritual which sanctifies the international print shows, to be held from now on in alternate seasons, one showing etchings, the other wood engravings and lithographs.

Print Exhibit at Chicago Heights Is a Big Success.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Society of Etchers functions as a unit. It has risen like the celebrated Phœnix, and yearly is reaching a wider stretch of wing. It has now held several successive fall and spring shows in the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building [where the current exhibit is hung], and its devoted public is following each show with interest. Mrs. Jaques has several stories that give color to the statement that there is a real need for print shows. For example, a Minneapolis woman lost her husband, and with her widowhood came a distaste for most things. She moved to Dallas, Tex., and gradually built up a new personal life in a revived interest in etchings. She begged Mrs. Jaques to come to Dallas this spring and give a talk. Mrs. Jacques consented and, in spite of the fear that the prospective Dallas centennial would not leave a person free to come to a lecture on etchings, or to buy an etching, her talk was a great success, attended by a large audience and $364 worth of prints was sold.

Again, recently, Mrs. Jaques was begged to bring an exhibit of prints to Chicago Heights and talk about them. She thought surely Chicago Heights would have little if any interest in prints. The young man inviting her persisted. Mrs. Jaques went. She took a score or so of etchings with her. The impromptu show, in a hotel room, was a terrific success. The room was crowded, and some $56 worth of prints were bought.

Values of Etchings Increase with Time.

An etching is an admirable approach to the joy of personal ownership in art. Prices are usually moderate, except in the case of rare etchings, or famous artists. Their value usually increases with time, not always, but sufficiently often to give one a pretty little gamble, as well as the satisfaction of owning something one enjoys looking at. Also interest in etchings grows. It easily develops into a passion, and may degenerate into a hunger. Etching shows are difficult to resist once you have tasted their delights.

The present exhibition has many irresistible prints. And, by the way, ask to see "Mary Ann," by Rodney Thomson—those of you who like cats. "Mary Ann" is an adorable kitten portrait, and costs only $5. Mr. Thomson usually does wild animals, and made "Mary Ann" on a dare from Mrs. Jaques who bet him he couldn't draw a cat. His first attempt, a Persian, was not cat enough to suit her, so she wired Mr. Thomson her challenge, and won "Mary Ann" by almost return post. When you see the etching you will know Mr. Thomson has made a cat that is a cat.

Another inexpensive etching [$6] is the exquisite "Rock Garden" by Frances Foy. It is nearly a pure line drawing, and charming in every detail. Lee Sturges gives us a beautiful dry point, "Corn Shocks," reminiscent of an earlier favorite of his, a field of corn in the shock. John Taylor Arms has probably the most perfect technique of any American etcher. His "Venetian Mirror" is almost miraculous in its tranquil, serene beauty. It turns, for a moment, less nearly perfect work into dross.

Morris Hobbs' Prints Are Worth Recording.

Stanley Anderson draws you into another world, one of less romantic excellence, with his sturdy "Shelter," a capital portrait of a typical British woman. "Old Saltillo," by Louis O. Griffith, is delightful. "Drying Sails, Ajaccio," by Martin Hardie, is another beauty. In fact the only proper way to know what this show is like, is to go yourselves. There are 102 prints in the exhibition, and virtually every one is important. The exhibit will continue to May 1.

While we are on the subject of etchings, the exhibit of prints by Morris Henry Hobbs must be recorded. This exhibit opened April 4 and will continue to May 2. Mr. Hobbs had the good fortune to have his "Monday Morning, Chicago" chosen for the American section of fine prints of the year. He does interesting things with architecture—witness the beautiful "Notre Dame, Paris," and the "Near the Pont Neuf, Paris"—and marvelous things with figures. His nudes are most attractive, delicate, and sensitive. They are neither sensual nor sexual.

Mr. Hobbs shows a group of water colors, and here his drawing deserts him in part, and the delicacy of his etching is lost in a bolder and less fascinating technique. The water color nudes are rather coarse and obvious, some of them even go so far as to be badly drawn.

Chicago Artist Noted for Crafts and for Paintings.

The finest of the water colors are two little ones which carry already the hands off sign of "sold." These are "Luella's Parlor" [small sketch], and "Snowscape from Ogden Avenue." Of the others "The Storm, "The Kitchen Wing, Cahoon Farm," "Early Sunshine, Belden Street," and "Gypsy Camp" are interesting.

Edgar Miller, Chicago artist, has recently finished an unusual portrait of Thomas Tallmadge, a striking piece of work. Mr. Tallmadge is the well known Chicago architect who has interested himself, for years, in worth while art projects, including the summer school of painting conducted under the auspices of the Art institute in Saugatuck, Mich.

Mr. Miller occupies a unique place in Chicago. He is noted for his crafts as well as for his painting. Mrs. Howard Linn states she discovered him long before the Art institute and Chicago really knew much about him. He created several colorful and different plates for her and she is still waiting for a complete set. As Mr. Miller does each of his things himself by hand, no one can further an unfinished job for him.

Edgar Miller Wins Fame in Local Art Circles.

As Mrs. Linn remarked—in Paris he would be at the head of a studio, and his creations would be produced beautifully and fairly rapidly. Here, with customary American indifference to the importance of the artistic creator, he must bide his time, and do what he can without business connections.

After Mrs. Linn "discovered" him, Increase Robinson discovered him. In Mrs. Robinson's gallery in the Diana Court building several exhibits of ceramics, wood carvings, water colors, and paintings by Edgar Miller were held. Then the Art institute "discovered" him, and gave him a one man show at the Art institute during a summer not long ago.

One still remembers the marvelous pottery, the plates and bowls with their vivid and pertinent designs, that Mr. Miller showed. And one remembers the gorgeous chest of wood, designed and carved by him, and the chairs. On the walls were designs for stained glass windows and murals. Between them hung water colors. The prolific genius which is Edgar Miller's was competently represented. The year following [or maybe the next year], Mr. Miller was awarded the first prize in the annual international water color show at the Art institute.

"SUNFLOWERS"

A Florence Ezzell Stevenson picture, one of the several effective compositions in her exhibition of flower and still life paintings held at the Drake hotel under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts to May 2.

ART NOTES

The annual exhibition by professional members at the Arts club is a varied and vivid affair this year. It is one of the most entertaining and interesting shows the club has yet given us.

Paintings by Florence Ezzell Stevenson, under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, make gay the mezzanine gallery of the Drake.

The La Grange Art league is exhibiting to April 18 in the Davis store eighth floor gallery. Carl Hallsthammar, John Nolf, and C. J. Burgstrom are among the artists represented.

Religious art by C. Bosseron Chambers may be seen in the art gallery of the Fair to April 13.

Picasso, Jean Hugo, and Jean Lurcat are the three artists represented in the Katharine Kuh gallery, Diana court, this month.

The Hoosier gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, announces an exhibit by women artists during April.

Water colors by Louis Cheskin, and paintings by Joseph Allworthy are to be seen in the Marshall Field galleries to April 18.

Dudley Crafts Watson will lecture this afternoon in Fullerton hall, Art institute, at 4 o'clock, on "Monsalvat," a famous monastery in the province of Catalonia, near Barcelona, Spain. The lecture will be profusely illustrated with beautiful slides and accompanied in part by music. Members of the Art institute are admitted free. A nominal charge of 25 cents is made the public.

Electrical Outlets Are Necessity in the Modern Home

NEW homes which are going up have a wealth of electric outlets for all manner of electrical appliances. In checking over the needs of your house this season, check up on your outlets. In the bathroom, have you outlets for the new curlers, electric razors, heaters, and such? Is the vacuum cleaner well taken care of, the electric clock, the sewing machine? And have you enough outlets for the new lamps you may be buying, and for the old ones too? Work is less, and labor less arduous if outlets in bath and kitchen, living room and bedroom and hall and basement are properly placed—and generous in number.

Globular Shapes Effectively Used in Pewter Accessories

DESIGNERS have gone to work with pewter again and produced dramatic modern table accessories. Instead of placid round lines, their punch bowls and pitchers and teapots have dynamic globular contours. As contrast, wood is used for the details, three small oak balls making the handles of ladles and pitchers and sugars and creamers. Articles that are used in pairs—joint sugar bowls for loaf and granulated sugar and condiment sets—are welded together with three balls in the middle as a handle.

Forrester, Miss Ethel Bishop, Miss Irma Carlisle, Theodore Rogensteiner, Ted Winter, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. THE FLOWER THAT IS SYNONYMOUS WITH BERMUDA

Spring Season Near Its Height at French Lick

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., April 11.—The click of the golf ball, the clopping of horses' hoofs, and the sing of rackets are back in active participation here.

With this resort boasting a record early spring crowd, preparations for many events, including tournaments and fashion shows, are being made. In springtime the social season reaches its height.

Nearly 200 years ago this was a French trading post. That accounts in part for the name of the resort.

In the early days, deer came to the spring to lick the water and wet rocks, the minerals in the water acting as a natural tonic. The first settlers found numerous pathways, made by the deer, leading to the springs from every direction. It was thus that the region became known as "the lick."

It was at first felt that the lands surrounding the springs could be used for the manufacture of mineral salts and they were consequently reserved for that purpose. When it was found that they were valueless for this use, they were put up for sale, and were bought in 1832 by William A. Bowles. He built the first hotel in 1840.

In 1891 the resort was taken over by the present holders, of whom the late Senator Thomas Taggart was the head. It is now under the management of his son, T. D. Taggart.

By Frederic Babcock.

WHY do people travel? There may be many reasons, depending on the persons doing the traveling, but H. P. Borer, general passenger manager of Cunard-White Star, said the other day that there are five main ones: For a change of scene, for rest, for education, for health, and to have something to look back upon and talk about.

People travel to get away from things, he said—from the endless routine of home and office, the ceaseless din of trafic, the round of social functions, and the hundred and one other things that make life complicated and trying.

"Some persons can rise above endless details, but even to those there comes a time when they feel they must 'get away.' Wise are those who hear the call of the far horizon and pack up to seek fresh surroundings in countries where nothing will recall the daily turmoil of home and business. A trip abroad, however brief, will frequently prevent a nervous breakdown."

● "Rest is always a good reason for taking a trip," Mr. Borer continued. "The experienced traveler will tell you that he generally goes for rest and recreation. Rest is one of the things that even the wealthy find it difficult to obtain in their own homes. One always seems to be a slave to social duties. On a trip to Europe one can find leisure time to catch up on correspondence, or to enjoy reading or meditation. One may indulge in the luxury of breakfast in bed, lunch in the open air of the balcony of some famous hotel, and dinner with people also eager to forget day-in day-out routine. The evening brings dancing, bridge, and other social pleasures. After a period of this easy life, most people are willing and anxious to get back into the modern grind. They are in condition for another year of it.

"We all know that travel is a part of education. No amount of reading can take the place of knowledge gained by actual contact with the hitherto unknown. The history of nations, the surroundings of great men and women of the past, the character or psychology of present day people, can never be really understood until our minds have emerged from the limits of local interest into the sphere of international thought."

● The radio, the motion picture, and the newspaper have done much to bring us into touch with all parts of the world, this travel expert pointed out. In all three of them, however, we miss the atmosphere of the place whence the message comes. There is little left for the memory to cling to. The picture of a beautiful landscape fades, but a view while standing on the spot remains. No one is too young or too old to benefit by actual contact with the characteristics, habits of thought, customs, and progressive methods of another country.

Travel is an aid to health. Often it is a superb preventive medicine. Many times it leads to cures of both mental and bodily ills. We need to get out into the sun—such a sun as we may find shining on the decks of a steamer at sea, or upon lakes or mountainsides at European spas. A sea trip will work wonders with a person tired to the breaking point.

● "It is often worth while to take a trip abroad in order to have something to look back upon and talk about," Mr. Borer said. "Today, if you haven't traveled a bit, you take a back seat in many a conversation. If you have been places, there is a great charm in discussing experiences with some one who has visited the same countries. At any rate, the outlook of the traveler is a wide one, and topics of conversation need not be limited to a narrow circle.

"The untraveled man or woman—even the young—feels out of place among those to whom languages and landmarks of foreign countries are familiar. The cultivated traveler will doubtless convey to his family and friends a certain amount of his knowledge, but no imparted information of this kind will ever enable any one to discuss a country which he has not personally visited. No home-gained knowledge can take the place of the broadened outlook gained by travel abroad."

Travel Agency Enlarged.

Tripling its space, the Drake Travel service has moved from the eleventh to the second floor of the Palmolive building. The larger and more luxurious quarters were ordered after it became evident that the travel business to Europe and elsewhere this year promises to break all records.

I should like to learn something about Ayr, Scotland, before I go there this summer. K. B.

Ayr, the birthplace of Robert Burns, was described by him as a town "for honest men and bonnie lassies." It has a population of 37,000 and a summer colony of approximately 60,000. The century old glamor cast over the district by its association with the name of the poet is now dividing honors with racing, golf, bathing, and commerce. Within the last three years the city has developed one of the largest racing calendars in the British Isles. Ayr is the gateway to the new golf courses at Troon and Prestwick. The nearby island of Arran has wide stretches of sandy beaches. The old mill described by Burns is now the center of a group of modern chemical buildings.

Please tell me what is the present order of succession to the throne of Great Britain? C. W.

The duke of York, his daughter, Princess Elizabeth; another daughter, Princess Margaret Rose; the duke of Gloucester, the duke of Kent, Prince Edward, baby son of the duke of Kent; the king's sister, the princess royal, and Viscount Lascelles, elder son of the princess royal.

Hawaii Is a Land of Laughing Sun and Soft Music

Twenty Thousand Persons from Mainland Choose It for Their Vacations.

By J. E. Ryan.

AMERICA'S travel horizon is enlarging within the boundaries of our own country. With development of modern transportation by land, sea, and air, more people are traveling every year to the national parks, the cities and seaside resorts of three coasts, and, beyond, to island America in the blue mid-Pacific.

It has been estimated that 20,000 last year chose Hawaii as their vacation ground. These included not only northerners avoiding winter, but people from all parts of the nation taking advantage of the tradewind cooled springlike summer of the islands.

Civilization Without Its Disadvantages.

Streamlined, air conditioned trains and swift airplanes make the trip a matter of a few hours from Chicago and the middle west to Los Angeles or San Francisco, whence luxurious ocean liners carry the traveler to Honolulu in four and a half days.

There he finds himself still in the United States, with no customs duties, passports or foreign money to worry about—but also in a new world, a world of soothing breezes and laughing sun, of restful beaches, of flowers and soft Hawaiian music. And in the midst of semitropical vegetation and a background of South sea beauty loving tradition, he finds that American enterprise and energy has built a modern city, making available all the comforts of civilization without many of civilization's disadvantages.

Rural Retreats Far from Business.

It is an easy voyage over the ocean that was named "Pacific" because it is peaceful. Hawaii, too, is peaceful, offering abundant opportunities for rest and relaxation as well as pleasurable occupations for those actively inclined. The business man can keep in touch with his affairs at home, if he wants to, having instant communication by radio telephone as well as by wireless and cable, or, if he prefers to "get away from it all," there are rural retreats where no cares can vex him.

There is golf, on scenic courses under slanting palms; there is yachting; there is big game fishing for those who would like to compare the fighting qualities of the ulua, the swordfish and the yellow fin tuna with those of the muskallunge. Of twenty recognized major big fish records throughout the world, ten are held in the Pacific, and two of those in Hawaii.

Smooth motor roads wind out between verdure covered mountains and many colored coral sea. Pageants commemorating Hawaiian kings of long ago contrast with the American briskness of the schools that sponsor them. Flower wreathed natives sing their plaintive songs and dance their poetic dances, giving the visitor a new idea of what the hula really is in its native home, where it has not been distorted and vulgarized by mainland side show imitations.

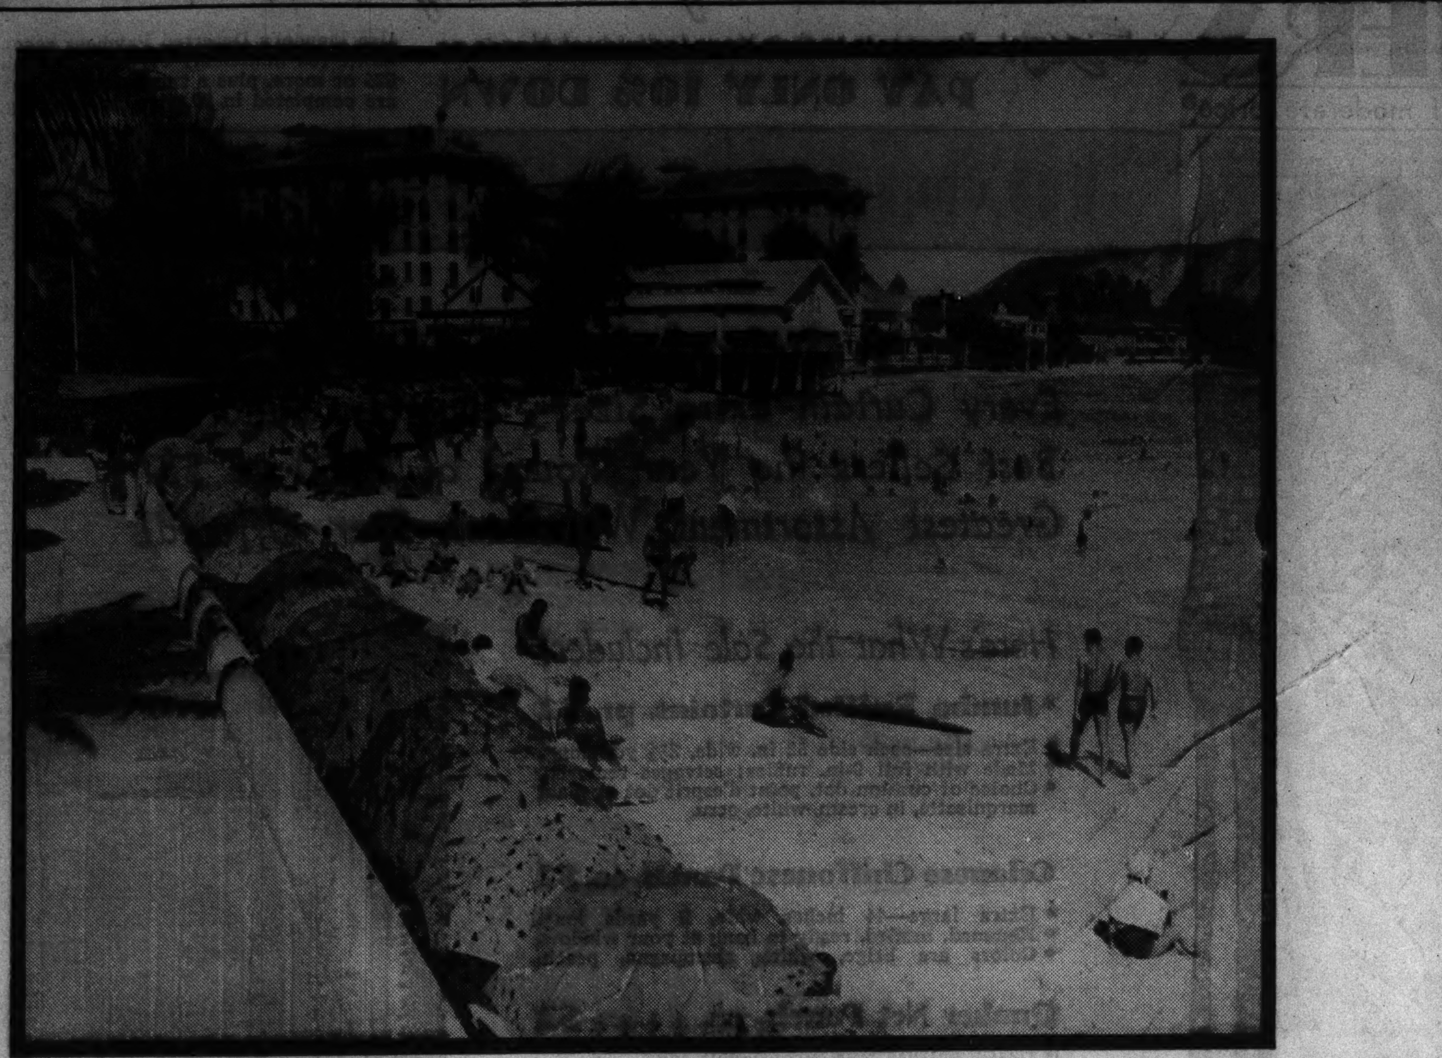
The Gateway to Further Marvels.

Honolulu, interesting as it is in itself, is only the gateway to further marvels on the four main islands of the territory. By interisland liner it is an overnight trip, or only an hour or two by plane, to varied aspects of the islands. Kilauea, America's largest and safest volcano, bubbles its churning lava between the fern forests of Hawaii National park. A new federal highway climbs to the rim of Haleakala, largest dormant volcano, and overlooks its vast crater, which could contain Chicago or Milwaukee or the Twin Cities and have room to spare. The canyon of Waimea glows like a jewel on the garden Island of Kauai. The visitor sees coffee growing, its red berries bright against the background of green; pineapples stretching in long rows over miles of red volcanic soil; blue-green fields of sugar cane. If he is interested in agriculture, he sees it at the world's record height of scientific efficiency.

Dances Depict the Rhythm of Waves.

He may tour storied Kona, home of legend and romance, or drive down into tropical Puna, where Hawaiians still live almost as they did a century ago, gaining their food from the sea. He may visit the Hawaiian village at Waikiki, where the last of the royal bards chants his legendary stories of ancient heroes, and torches flare over dances depicting the rhythm of waves on moon drenched beaches, of leaves in mountain forests, and the fires of great volcanoes.

Whether fleeing from winter cold or summer heat, or just in quest of change and relaxation or the stimulation of new scenes, the visitor finds in Hawaii what he seeks. And he returns with a new appreciation of the greatness and variety of America, a new sense of unity of this mighty country whose western frontier is the flower chain of islands called Hawaii.



"IN THE LAND OF THE UKULELES AND STEEL GUITARS
The beach at Waikiki doesn't know the difference between January and July. Accordingly, it is thronged throughout the year.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

ICEBOUND in the orient for eight days this winter, Carl Lundberg of Chicago discovered that, with only a few books on board the steamer, no cigarets, and only Japanese music on the radio, he had nothing to occupy his time. So he flipped a coin 7,000 times and found that heads came up 4,637 times.

Mr. Lundberg spoke no Japanese, and the officers' English was limited. The greater part of the conversation was carried on by drawing pictures. On a trip around the world, he was the only foreign passenger on the liner.

The Peiping Chronicle set forth the Chicagoan's story following his arrival there. A clipping received last week by Edward O'Connor, local manager for Thomas Cook & Son, gave this version:

"They became icebound Feb. 20 off Taku Bar. They were able to return 40 miles out to sea, hoping to get to Dairen, but were again caught in the ice. In the eight days in which it was trapped the ship was able to move back and forth a certain distance, but never able to get itself free to proceed to another port. The radio communications from the ice breaker informed them that it was attempting to get to them, and on the morning of Feb. 27 a message was received that it would get there that day.

"The icebreaker reached the distressed ship at midnight. The 30 third class passengers and three first class passengers were taken aboard and arrived in Tangku the next day. During the time they were icebound they had ample food, but it was getting low, and consisted chiefly of rice and raw fish. The water became very low.

"This was the story told by Mr. Lundberg."

"Chicago travelers do the unusual things—and how!" commented Mr. O'Connor.

Visitors to Paris this spring and early summer will find two spectacular festivals awaiting them, said word received in Chicago yesterday. One of the shows will be staged in the court of the Louvre and will take its theme from the principal plays of Molière. It will be given the last week in June. The other, to be held on a Sunday in June, will be a "France at work" affair, and will take the form of a parade through the main streets of the city. The two are a part of a series of festivals to last from April 26 to July 14.

What is said to be the first attempt to develop vacation air travel on a large scale was announced last week by United Air Lines. Among the national parks included in the trips from Chicago are Yellowstone, Grand Teton, Yosemite, Rainier, Zion, Bryce, Rocky Mountain, Sequoia, and Grand Canyon. The Black hills, the dude ranches, Boulder dam, California, and the Pacific northwest also are on the program.

"Flying transforms an ordinary vacation into an unforgettable holiday," said Harold Crary of the lines. "It gives you extra days of leisure, and unlocks fascinating places that distance and time heretofore have made inaccessible to the average person. We propose to move these wonderlands into everybody's 'back yard'."

Harold B. Say of the Oregon state highway commission informs this department that the trout season is now open there and that prize catches already have been reported. Heavy snowfall in the mountains this winter has insured adequate water throughout the summer. Cutthroat and rainbow are the predominant trout species.

Inaugurated in 1935 as a once a week train from Chicago to the north woods region of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, the Flambeau will operate daily, except Sundays and Mondays, this summer between June 26 and Sept. 11. In addition, it will be completely air conditioned. R. Thomson, passenger traffic manager of the Chicago and North Western railway, made the announcement last week.

Virginia's Garden Club Displays Old Estates to Public

By Edith Weigle.

THE Garden Club of Virginia is holding its annual garden week from April 27 to May 2 this year. During this time many of the famous old houses, historic and otherwise, and their beautiful gardens will be shown. In the Charlottesville district, Monticello, the mansion designed and lived in by Thomas Jefferson, will be on view, as will the garden and house at Redlands and Ash Lawn.

In the James river district both Brandon and Upper Brandon, meccas for hundreds of lovers of authentic colonial architecture and interiors, can be inspected on two days. In Williamsburg more than 100 buildings, restored to their original 18th century beauty by the Rockefeller Foundation, are the goal of many tourists. Here the entire environment is perfect, the streets being cobbled and furnished with reproductions of old lamps, and the sidewalks laid with bricks. During garden week the following buildings are open: The governor's palace, the capitol, the Raleigh tavern and garden, the Ludwell-Paradise house, outbuildings and gardens, the public gaol, Bassett Hall, the James Galt house and garden, the St. George Tucker house and garden, and the Carter-Saunders and the Mercer houses and gardens.

Mrs. T. Norman Jones Jr. is chairman of the Garden Club of Virginia; Mrs. W. Allan Perkins is president, and Mrs. S. W. Budd is vice chairman.

THE TEN GREATEST.

Chicago, April 6.—To the Travel Editor: What do you consider the ten greatest scenic spectacles on earth?
H. B. R.

WHAT'S YOUR SELECTION?

Chicago, April 7.—To H. B. R.: I have not yet seen the Taj Mahal, or Lake Louise, or the floating gardens at Xochimilco, or Fujiyama, or the harbor at Rio de Janeiro. Of the scenic wonders I have seen, I would choose these, in the order named:

1—The view across the Bay of Naples from Sorrento at sunset.

3—The Grand canyon of the Colorado.

4—The early morning view across Lago Maggiore from Stresa.

5—The interior of the Colosseum by moonlight.

7—The view of Yellowstone falls and canyon from Inspiration point.

8—The view across Puget sound from the Highlands, Seattle, at midday.

10—The night view of Chicago's front yard from a Great Lakes steamer.

Perhaps you shouldn't have limited the number to ten. Then I could have included the view of Paris at dusk from the Montmartre, the view of Monte Carlo from the Grand Corniche drive, the Villa d'Este, the view of Lake Windermere from one of those cottages of the poets, and the Thousand Islands in the St. Lawrence river.

I would be interested in hearing from TRIBUNE readers as to their ideas of the ten greatest.
FREDERIC BABCOCK, Travel Editor.

OMAR KHAYYAM AGAIN.

Beloit, Wis., April 6.—To the Travel Editor: In your issue of April 5, Harry Hansen quoted two quatrains of the Rubaiyat to show that I was incorrect in saying that Omar Khayyam mentioned the Seven Seas in quatrain No. 53.

Mr. Hansen quoted from the version of Nathan Haskell Dole, 1899. I quoted from the version of Edward Fitzgerald, which was illustrated by the American artist, Elihu Vedder. In the $5 edition of Fitzgerald-Vedder [Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894], page 12, you will find quatrain No. 47 with the last line:

As the Seven Seas should heed a pebble cast.

Mr. Vedder explains in a note that he rearranged and renumbered some of the quatrains, and it was his change of No. 47 to No. 53 which I quoted. I trust this satisfies my critic.
ANNIE S. MCLENEGAN.

WHO KNOWS?

Chicago, April 8.—To the Travel Editor: Will you please answer the following:

Where do the Red, Black, Yellow, and Dead seas get their names?

What is the nature of the country surrounding the Dead sea?

I have heard that in the Dead sea there is but one live fish—a one eyed, ugly-as-the-devil monster. Do you know anything about this story?

What is St. John's bread, and where does it grow? Is that the proper name?

What is the Pickle bank in the Caribbean; also, the Mosquito bank?

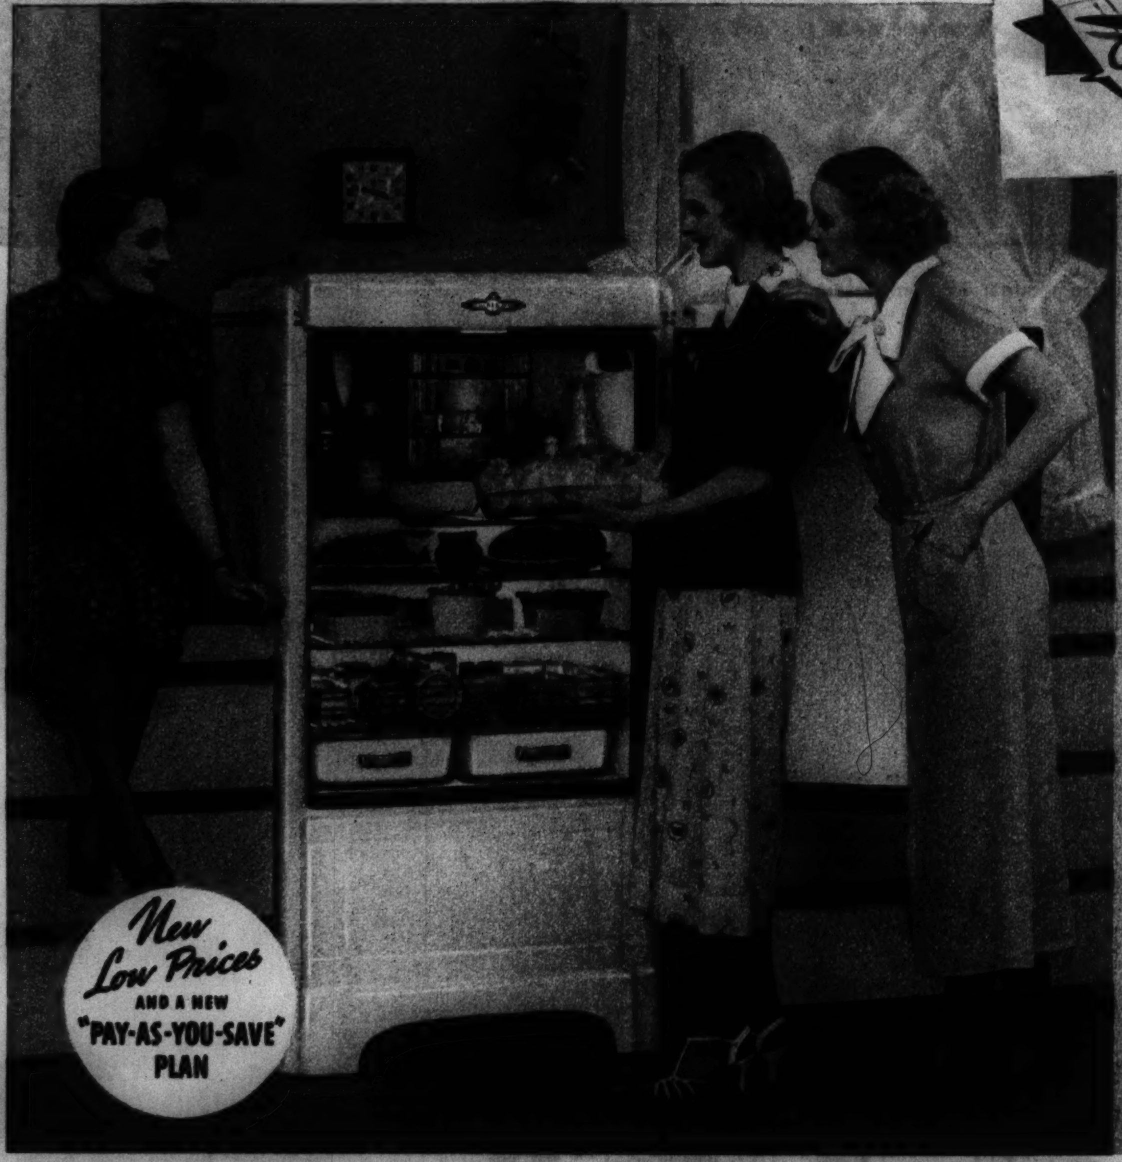
The New Frigidaire with the "Meter-Miser"

MEETS ALL 5 STANDARDS FOR REFRIGERATOR BUYING, and PROVES IT!

MEET THE
"Meter-Miser"
Frigidaire's New Cold-Making Unit Cuts Current Cost to the Bone
Quiet • Unseen • Trouble-Free

The New Frigidaire's spectacular cold-making unit, hidden away where it does not mar beauty, gives more cold for much less current cost. This is because of outstanding design that makes necessary only three moving parts, permanently oiled, precision built and completely sealed against moisture and dirt. No wonder the Meter-Miser is so miserly in its use of electric current!



PROOF 1 LOWER OPERATING COST

An accurate electric meter measures the amount of current used by Frigidaire and proves how little current the Meter-Miser uses. Compare it with others.

PROOF 2 SAFER FOOD PROTECTION*

Frigidaire dares to build a Food-Safety Indicator into the center of the food compartment to prove that Safety-Zone Temperature is maintained throughout. Compare it with others.

PROOF 3 FASTER FREEZING—MORE ICE

PROOF 4 MORE USABILITY

PROOF 5 FIVE-YEAR PROTECTION PLAN

Frigidaire's mechanical unit—a marvel of outstanding design and engineering—comes to you protected for Five Years against service expense. Compare it with others.

On Guard!

*THE NEW FOOD-SAFETY INDICATOR

Frigidaire dares to give you the Food-Safety Indicator—visible proof that foods are kept at Safety-Zone Temperature, below 50 degrees and above 32 degrees.

Now you can choose a refrigerator on PROOF, instead of mere claims

● 1936 is a year of PROOF in refrigerator buying! No longer need you rely on mere claims or guesses. That isn't enough! Before you buy ask for the clear evidence that the refrigerator meets every requirement for satisfactory home refrigeration.

For example, here are the five basic standards by which to judge a truly modern refrigerator: 1. Lower Operating Cost. 2. Safer Food Protection. 3. Faster Freezing—More Ice. 4. More Usability. 5. Five-Year Protection Plan. Some refrigerators may have one or two or even three of these advantages, but Frigidaire with the Meter-Miser gives you all five. And proves it, too!

The proof awaits you in any authorized Frigidaire dealer's showroom. See the tests of the Five Standards. Learn the important things to look for in your new refrigerator. And convince yourself that Frigidaire with the Meter-Miser saves enough money in your kitchen to pay for itself and yield a profit besides!

NEW IN DESIGN—NEW IN BEAUTY—NEW IN LOW COST OPERATION

The New Frigidaire with the Meter-Miser is a magnificent achievement, inside and out. A stunningly beautiful cabinet—wider, roomier, more convenient than ever before. It is truly a "refrigerated pantry." And its marvelous "usability" is matched by performance that shatters all previous standards of low cost, trouble-free operation. For the new cold-making mechanism—the Meter-Miser—cuts current cost to the bone and maintains safe temperature no matter how hot the weather.

Seeing this new Frigidaire is a thrilling discovery of what modern refrigeration can mean in your home. By all means visit an authorized Frigidaire dealer and ask for the proof of Frigidaire superiority. It's waiting for you.

A PICTORIAL PARADE OF AMERICAN PLANES

FOR YOUR SCRAPBOOK: NAVY TWO PURPOSE AIRPLANES— The ships pictured above serve both as scouts (equivalent of army observation ships) and as light bombers. The plane directly above is the latest of the famous Vought Corsair types, the V-90, armed with machine guns and bombs. The motor is a Hornet of 700 horse power. This ship is used both on floats and off airplane carriers. Wings 36 feet, fuselage 28 feet. Speed, 175 miles per hour.

A FAST NEW DECK LANDING BOMBER AND SCOUT: THE SBU-1— This also is a Vought plane, with a speed said to be approximately 200 miles per hour. It carries pilot and gunner and 500 pounds of bombs with a 600 mile range. The motor is a twin row Wasp Jr., 700 horse power. Note the flapped cowling on the engine and the controllable pitch propeller. . . . For convenience in mounting in a loose leaf folder, filing markers are printed at the left. Other American airplanes will be depicted in approximate scale in forthcoming issues.
